Would Replace Juvenile Court

LONDON (AP)—The Labor government proposed Tuesday the abolition of Britain's juvenile courts and reform schools for law-breakers under the age of 16.

In a white paper, the government suggested juvenile courts be replaced by family councils composed of social workers and family courts manned by specially-appointed magistrates.

The family councils would consult with parents of young law - breakers to determine whether they thought they could keep the children under control in the future.

Serious cases would be referred to the special family courts, which could place the children under supervision of a sort of parole officer, or order their transfer to foster homes.

The white paper also proposed formation of special courts to deal with law-breakers between the ages of 16 and 21. These courts would be empowered to impose sentences of up to three years in jail.

CBC RETURNED MONEY

The CBC returned $30,778 surplus from its 1964 grant of $85,900,000 from the Canadian government.

Beatlemania Dying Down, Popularity Great as Ever

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Is Beatlemania dying down?

"Perhaps the hysteria has quieted a little," says Beatle movie - maker Walter Shenson, "but their popularity is as great as ever."

Shenson is the Hollywood press agent who sought his fortune in the Old World—and found it. He wearied of flacking for the likes of Rita Hayworth and Frank Sinatra, spent his savings on a movie script and tried to produce it in England. He finally succeeded; the film was The Mouse That Roared.

A few films later, he was assigned a project to give star status to a singing group. Shenson produced A Hard Day's Night, and the rest is history, of a noisy, munificent variety.

"We made the picture for a half million and it will gross 10," Shenson reported happily. "Business was sensational in the U.S., England, the Commonwealth, Scandinavia and northern Germany. We took $300,000 out of Japan, which is good but not great.

"The picture didn't do as well in France, Italy, Spain and Latin America, where the sale of Beatle records is soft. But the boys have since toured in southern Europe, and I think the new picture will do better."

The new picture is Help! and it doesn't appear to need any. Shenson reports that business so far is ahead of A Hard Day's Night, although reviews lack the unanimity of critical praise that the first film received.

"I expected that," said the producer. "I think we have an excellent picture in Help! But no matter how good it was, we couldn't have gotten the same raves we had for A Hard Day's Night."

GOT TWO AWARDS

Shenson was faced with the problems of how to follow the first film, which was good enough to draw two academy award nominations. The Beatles themselves dictated some of the terms.

"They were very cute about it," Shenson recalls. "They came into my office and sat in a row on a couch opposite my desk. They told me exactly what they didn't want in the second movie. They didn't want: Screams; performing numbers on stage; black and white."

The result is a chase from London to the Alps to the Bahamas, filmed with large splashes of color and very little sense. The screams come only from the harassed villains. Budget for the film was $1,500,000, not excessive considering the two expensive locations.

Again, the age-old question: What do they do for an encore?

"We are contracted for a third picture," reported Shenson. "It will probably be A Talent For Loving, a novel by Richard Condon which the Beatles own. It's a Western set on the California-Mexico border 100 years ago.

"The idea of the Beatles in a Western is a provocative one, but not without its problems. How can we have a 19th-century Western with Beatle music? I think it can be worked out. The Beatles have been greatly influenced by Bob Dylan, and they might be able to do songs with a folk-music style."

New Series Saving Bonds To Be Sold

OTTAWA (CP)—A new series of Canada Savings Bonds, the 19th since the Second World War, will go on sale in October, Finance Minister Gordon announced Monday.

He said details of the new offering — including the interest rate to be paid—will be announced next month.

Mr. Gordon announced that the current series of savings bonds will be withdrawn from sale at the end of this month. Applications made before Aug. 31 with arrangements for deferred payment will not be affected.

The current series of savings bonds which went on sale last October yield five per cent a year if held to maturity in 10 years from the issue date, last Nov. 1.

Canada Savings Bonds have been issued annually since 1946, replacing the wartime Victory Loan Bonds as an opportunity for gilt edge investment by the public in government bonds of small denominations which can be bought by payroll deduction. Sales in recent years have topped the $1,000,000,000 mark.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Time out for some loving is what Claudia Cardinale and John Smith are doing in a scene from Samuel Bronston's rousing "Circus World", a Paramount release opening Tonight at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. This exciting and action-filled Wild West saga also stars John Wayne, Rita Hayworth, Lloyd Nolan, and Richard Conte. Directed by Henry Hathaway, "Circus World" was filmed in spectacular Technicolor. 2nd action-packed feature attraction, also in color, "Law of the Lawless" features Dale Robertson, Yvonne DeCarlo and William Bendix.

Johnson Takes Tough Line on Negotiations

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson today reminded steel negotiators — labor and management alike—that American troops are fighting in Viet Nam and said economic strength is vital to the cause of peace.

"We must never forget that our boys are still fighting in South Viet Nam and that our economic strength is the keystone of free world peace . . .," Johnson told a press conference.

"There must be continued cost and price stability in our American economy and I expect full and complete responsibility in the current wage negotiations and I expect continued stability in steel prices."

Negotiations seeking a new contract in the American steel industry are under way in Pittsburgh. Negotiators face a Sept. 1 strike deadline.

Think Missile Shot Down U.S. Navy Jet

SAIGON (AP)—A U.S. Navy Phantom jet plane has been shot down by what appeared to be a surface - to - air missile about 90 miles south of Hanoi, a U.S. spokesman reported today.

The supersonic plane, from the 7th Fleet aircraft carrier Midway, was hit Tuesday near the city of Thanh Hoa, the spokesman said.

The downing was the first indication that Communist antiaircraft missiles have been moved as far south as Thanh Hoa.

Two other American planes have been downed in the last month by missiles which Soviet technicians are presumed to have installed in North Viet Nam.

U.S. military headquarters in Saigon announced that 59 Americans were killed in action in South Viet Nam last week. Because of security regulations, there was no breakdown of services or identification of the actions in which they were killed, but it was known that most of them died in the big marine operation on the Van Tuong Peninsula.

The announcement said 76 Americans were wounded in action during the week ending Saturday, but a spokesman said reports of the marines wounded at Van Tuong had not arrived in time for inclusion.

Four Americans were listed as missing in action or captured.

A total of 1,010 Viet Cong were reported killed during the week. The week before 1,330 Viet Cong had been reported killed, the heaviest enemy casualties for any single week of the war.

The Viet Cong meanwhile claimed "absolute supremacy" in the Viet Nam war following its 15 - minute mortar attack early Tuesday on the Bien Hoa air base 12 miles north of Saigon.

APPOINT DEPUTY

OTTAWA (CP)—Francis C. Gascoigne, 52, of Ottawa has been appointed deputy director of investigation and research under the Combines Investigation Act, it was announced Monday. He has been a combines investigation officer with the justice department.

Ontario Doctors' Registrar Denies Regulations Changed

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. J. C. C. Dawson, registrar of the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons, has denied published reports that suggested the college has changed its licensing regulations.

It had been reported that more than 150 Ontario doctors trained in foreign countries will be allowed by the college to write examinations to qualify them to practise. The reports said that 60 other doctors, mostly graduates of medical schools in India and Pakistan, would not be allowed to write the exams.

Dr. Suresh Anand, chief resident in medicine at the New Mount Sinai Hospital, said the reports were based on the latest issue of the college's semi-annual report.

But Dr. Dawson said Tuesday that while it is true the latest issue of the college's report made specific reference to India and Pakistan, an earlier issue listed other countries whose medical colleges were not acceptable to the Ontario licensing body. The latest report had simply added India and Pakistan without repeating the other countries in the list, he said.

Dr. Dawson denied Dr. Anand's implication that the exclusion of Indian- and Pakistani-trained doctors from full registration arose from Dr. Anand's criticism of the college, saying that the decision was made before the criticism.

ASSESS SCHOOLS

Dr. Dawson added that there has been a progressive assessment of foreign medical schools by a college committee for some time. Medical schools in 18 European countries were found acceptable by the college, he said.

He said that when India gained its independence from Britain in 1947, 33 Indian medical schools had the approval of British authorities. Since that time 65 to 70 new schools have been developed, not all approved by British authorities.

Dr. Dawson quoted a noted British authority as having said that many of the new schools were staffed by inexperienced teachers and offered inadequate courses in basic sciences.

In February, 1964, the college wrote to the deans of 34 approved Indian schools for information on Indian medical schools and received replies from six, Dr. Dawson said.

Asked why the Ontario college demands higher qualifications of foreign medical graduates than all other Canadian provinces require, Dr. Dawson said Ontario faces the problem in greater numbers. The province receives 1,000 to 1,500 applications for registration each year from foreign-trained doctors and most of these are from India, he said.

CN Officials Probe Charge of Discrimination

A CNR spokesman said Tuesday a mixup in dates has delayed the inquiry into the incident alleged by Rev. Bernard Brown, an Oblate missionary from the Northwest Territories. He said last week a 14-man Indian-Eskimo canoe team he was escorting was ordered to the back of a train and told to stay there.

"We found a crew that handled a train on which a group of Indians and a priest travelled on July 30," the CNR official said. "They denied any incidents. But it turned out the people who complained were on the train a week later.

"So we've got to start all over, trying to track down the crew concerned."

The CNR itself has stated that it does not practise or tolerate racial or any other form of discrimination or segregation on trains.

Churchill Research Station Changes Official Owners

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Churchill, Man., research station is in the middle of an ownership change but it isn't having any effect on the tenants.

One of them, the United States Air Force, has just launched a study into invisible noctilucent clouds, an Arctic phenomenon that has puzzled scientists for several years.

The clouds, invisible from directly below, exist at altitudes of more than 250,000 feet, "a place where clouds have no business," as Dr. R. S. Rettie puts it.

HEADS CHURCHILL RESEARCH — Dr. R. S. Rettie, chief of the Churchill research range branch of the National Research Council, will head operations of the northern Manitoba site from Ottawa. The NRC took over control of Canadian operations at the Churchill base from the Defence Research Board and will take over full control from the United States Air Force at the end of the year. Dr. Rettie said that use and costs of the base will continue on a joint basis between the two countries. (CP Photo)

Dr. Rettie is directing the northern Manitoba base as chief of the Churchill research range branch of the National Research Council. The council will not assume full ownership of the base until Jan. 1, 1966, but it already handles the Canadian operations.

The NRC took on the job July 1 from the Defence Research Board and takes over from the USAF at the end of the year. But while the base will no longer be jointly owned by Canada and the U.S., it will continue to be used on a joint basis by both countries.

Dr. Rettie will head the operation from Ottawa with another NRC official, Dr. James H. Brandy, taking over at the site as officer in charge of the range.

CLOUD MISSILES

"There will still be an allocation of facilities and time between the two countries, and costs will also be met on a joint basis," Dr. Rettie said.

The noctilucent cloud study, a project of the USAF Cambridge Research Laboratory, is only one of many in progress, but it promises to be one of the most interesting.

"The big problem is that you can't see the clouds from directly below," Dr. Rettie said. "They are only visible at night, after the sun is well below the horizon, and even then you have to be 50 to 100 miles away.

"We have a series of spotter stations along the railway lines to tell us when one of the clouds is overhead. Then we can shoot a rocket through the cloud to find out its composition."

The rocket nose-cone will include an elaborate Venus Flytrap apparatus with sensitized arms that unfold during the passage through the cloud. The arms then fold back into an airtight container for the return to earth.

"No one knows what's in the clouds but the most widely-accepted theory is that their condensation nuclei are micrometeorites. But why they stay there is a big question."

Some scientists believe the micrometeorites are held up by upward currents from the ozone layer enveloping the earth. During the Arctic summer, this layer is being heated by the sun 24 hours a day. This could explain why the clouds exist only during the short Arctic summer.

"These currents may also pump up water vapor to form the clouds," Dr. Rettie added, "but we don't know that for sure. Maybe we will get the answers this summer."

GIANT BALLOONS

Rocket research makes up a major portion of the station's activity, but not all the upper atmosphere research is dependent on these costly vehicles. Giant balloons are used frequently, including one type with a capacity of 10,000,000 cubic feet that stands 150 feet at its launching. This model reaches altitudes of 100,000 feet.

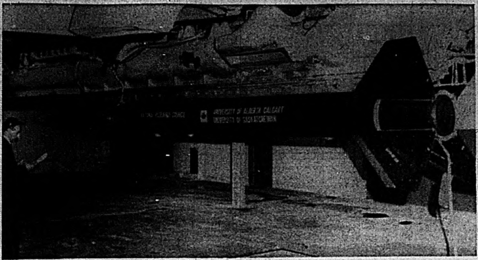
But many projects, including long-term studies on cosmic radiation and the aurora—Northern Lights — require frequent rocket shots. The base has four separate launching facilities, three of which are completely enclosed for winter operation.

"Churchill is closer to the magnetic pole than any other rocket range in the world," Dr. Rettie said. "But we may have to move further north for some of our work in the next few years.

"I don't think we will need as elaborate facilities for satellite stations, but to keep building costs down we may have to make a greater allowance for rocket failures.

"However, I think it will be much cheaper to take a chance on having to fire two rockets from a small camp when one from a more sophisticated base probably would do the same job."

He said this problem still 's well in the future, "but we have to start worrying about the future now."



MAJOR PART OF RESEARCH — Rockets such as this Black Brant make up a major part of research activity at the Churchill Research Station, which is closer to the magnetic pole than any other rocket range in the world. Dr. R. S. Rettie of the National Research Council says the NRC may have to start building satellite stations even farther north in the next few years. (CP Photo)

Dief Speaks On Unity

By KEN KELLY

GRANBY, Que. (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker stumped from town hall to town hall through Quebec's Eastern Townships Wednesday winding up at a zoo here in a face-to-face encounter with a cheetah.

The spotted wild cat rolled its eyes and licked its chops hungrily as the Progressive Conservative leader gingerly patted its head at arm's length.

Someone suggested the animal would make a good candidate in the next federal election and Mr. Diefenbaker quipped: "I could use one but he looks too spotted."

Earlier Mr. Diefenbaker stopped at the city hall here and at Drummondville where he spoke briefly on national unity.

At Drummondville he noted that Mayor Marcel Marier had been in office 10 years and remarked: "I was never mayor. I hear you have been mayor for 10 years. I want to know how you stay in power that long."

BE LIKE GANDHI

At city hall here Mayor Paul O. Trepanier remarked, in welcoming the Progressive Conservative leader, that separatism is unacceptable in these times and people should strive for the outlook of Mahatma Gandhi. He quoted Gandhi as having said: "I do not want my house to be walled in on all sides. I want the culture of all the lands to be blown about my house as freely as possible."

Mr. Diefenbaker said in reply: "I am, before all, a Canadian and this means recognition of the fact that the association of the two great cultures is the basis of Confederation."

Pearson Did Nothing To Dissipate Vote Talk

VANCOUVER (CP) Prime Minister Pearson said today an announcement of an election "one way or the other" will be made "very shortly" as he gave the strongest indication yet that Canadians will be casting their ballots some time this fall.

* * *

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson Wednesday night appealed to 520 Liberals for continued support on behalf of national unity as he delivered a 30-minute speech that did nothing to dissipate the swirling speculation over a forthcoming election.

He didn't mention an election, even jokingly, but at one point he said: "If I am chosen. . . ."

Resources Minister Laing, who introduced the prime minister to the fund-raising dinner of the British Columbia Liberal Federation, said: "Our system, if it is to be successful, calls for a strong government with a majority. . . ."

Mr. Pearson delivered his speech after spending three days on a Vancouver Island farm with John Nichol, president of the Liberal Federation of Canada, and sources close to the prime minister said it was likely that a decision had been reached on whether to call a fall election.

Observers, including some of the province's members of Parliament, studied every word of Mr. Pearson's speech Wednesday night for a clue to a possible election. While there was some disagreement, a majority felt that the prospects of a fall vote increased.

Mr. Pearson painted a glowing picture of the province's economic future and itemized over $250,000,000 that the federal government spent in B.C. since the Liberals assumed office.

When the prime minister reached the portion of his speech dealing with national unity, he departed from his prepared text to say: "It will be a time in government not for hysterical dramatics, but for wise and well thought-out decisions."

Several paragraphs of his remarks on federal-provincial relations were almost identical to statements he made to the Quebec Liberals at a spring fund-raising dinner in Montreal.

"We must work together and go forward together. On both levels we have our responsibilities. The provincial governments have new and increasing ones within the constitution to provide for the welfare and the progress of their own people. They need the resources to discharge these responsibilities. The federal government understands this need.

"In its turn, the federal government has a responsibility under the constitution to the whole of Canada. We are not going to betray or surrender that responsibility."

During his speech, Mr. Pearson was interrupted 23 times by applause. The 520 supporters who crowded the downtown Vancouver Hotel ballroom had paid $25 a plate for the duckling dinner—$5.50 of this went to the hotel.

An influential B.C. Liberal source told a reporter earlier in the day that when an election comes, the party's campaign, particularly in B.C., will be based largely on national unity with "a sound, non-partisan approach."

The prime minister told his audience Wednesday night that it is far more important to be loyal to Canada than to any political party. He quoted Sir John A. Macdonald as saying that a broken Canada would sink into significance and adversity.

'Gemini's Go Up Here,' U.S. Astronauts Smash Russians' Space Record

By JOHN BARBOUR

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Astronauts Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad smashed the world space record held by the Soviet Union today — a major victory for the United States in the race for the moon.

The historic moment came at 9:06 a.m. EDT.

The Soviet record for a single flight — broken by Gemini 5—was 119 hours, six minutes, set by cosmonaut Valery Bykovsyk in June, 1963.

The Gemini 5 spacecraft hurtled on toward a new mark of eight days in orbit.

At 9:19 a.m. the Gemini 5 had completed 75 orbits.

Before the day is out, the United States will have still another record. At 2:01 p.m. EDT, the U.S. astronaut corps will have logged more man hours in space than all the Soviet cosmonauts. Cooper and Conrad will have 124 hours in Gemini 5 at that point, putting the American total over the Soviet log of 507 hours, 16 minutes.

In the early morning, the Gemini 5 spacecraft flashed past the 2,000,000-mile mark—nearly two-thirds of the way home in its orbital ordeal.

The hours preceding the record-setting were mostly quiet as the astronauts slept on and off, and the spacecraft sped on toward the goal of 3,120,000 miles.

India 'Not After Territory' In Drive Into Pakistani Area

NEW DELHI (AP) — Indian forces have advanced deeper into the Pakistani sector of Kashmir in their drive to cut off guerrillas infiltrating into the Indian-held part of the Himalayan state, an informed source said today.

"We are not after territory," the source said. "Our sole objective is to cut off the infiltration of guerrillas."

The informant said the advance took place in the Tithwal sector, just a few miles from Muzaffarabad, capital of the Pakistani sector of Kashmir.

The Indian government radio claimed the initial drive across the cease-fire line Tuesday had created panic in some villages on the Pakistani side and some of them were being evacuated.

The Indians said they had seized two positions a mile and 300 yards inside Pakistani territory. One position is at 8,000 feet altitude overlooking the Lipa Valley, which India claims has been a primary route for the guerrillas.

The Indians first advanced across the cease-fire line Aug. 15 when they took Pakistani positions in the Kargil sector. New Delhi said then it was a move to protect the supply route to the Indian troops facing the Red Chinese in Ladakh.

Official reports in Rawalpindi, the Pakistani capital, said about 1,000 Indian soldiers supported by artillery attacked two isolated Pakistani posts in the Tithwal sector Wednesday morning. The Pakistani forces evacuated the positions and moved to alternate positions the reports said.

The Kashmiri guerrilla radio claimed Wednesday night that guerrillas had killed 195 Indian soldiers during the previous 24 hours in their biggest attack since the fighting started.

Pakistan claims it has nothing to do with the guerrillas, whom it describes as "Kashmiri Moslems revolting against Hindu India."

Scientists Say Earth Has Visitors

SANTIAGO, Chile (Reuters) — People who have sighted strange objects in the sky recently may not be "seeing things," three scientists agreed today.

"There is scientific evidence that strange objects visit our planet," said Chilean professor Gabriel Alvial. He added:

"It is lamentable that the governments have drawn a veil of secrecy around this."

Russia's Dr. Mitrovan Zverev, who works at the Cerro Calan Observatory in Chile, said: "Something unknown to our understanding is going around the earth."

And Prof. Claudio Anguita, observatory director, said: "We are not alone in the universe."

Front-line Troops Used to Quell Riot

Defence Minister Kim Sung Eun said the government was not considering proclaiming martial law at present—as it did in June 1964—to quell anti-government rioting.

But he said stronger measures will be taken if necessary.

President Chung Hee Park's government called in the 6th Army division from the west-central sector of the Korean War armistice line after demonstrations Wednesday turned into the worst riot in the capital since 1964.

U.S. Gen. Dwight Beach, commander of UN forces in Korea, concurred in the decision to move the front-line troops into the capital. As UN commander he has technical control of them.

As the new troops entered the city, two other army battalions and police used tear gas to disperse about 2,000 demonstrators near three campuses in eastern Seoul.

Soldiers chased fleeing students into alleys and beat those they caught with shovel handles. Scores of demonstrators were arrested.

The students regrouped, then threw hundreds of stones at the helmeted police as they tried to break through. But they were pushed back into the Seoul National University campus where other students joined them in throwing rocks at the police.

U.S. Plans Manned Orbiting Station For Defence

By HOWARD BENEDICT

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Military men know the best way to gain a battle advantage is to take the high ground and hold it.

Now, with an order to develop a Manned Orbiting Laboratory, the U.S. defence department will extend this axiom hundreds of miles into space in an effort to gain military supremacy before the Soviet Union or any other country grabs control.

The race to achieve military dominance in space might be more vital to mankind than the dash for the moon. If a country with hostile intentions commanded space, military experts say it could exercise a policy of international blackmail with a network of manned and unmanned spacecraft capable of raining nuclear destruction on any area of the globe.

The military space race between the United States and Soviet Union actually has been going on several years. Until Wednesday, neither country wanted to admit it.

But President Johnson removed the myth that the United States is pursuing a purely peaceful and scientific space program. He gave the defence department the green light to develop the MOL to determine whether man can perform useful military duties in space.

The $1,500,000,000 he authorized is nearly $2,000,000 more than the cost of the two-man Gemini program.

It will cover the price for development, test flights and the launching of five two-man orbiting laboratories.

Each MOL will consist of a Gemini capsule hooked to a tank-like section the size of a medium-size house trailer. On launching, the astronauts will ride the Gemini, then transfer to the tank which will be equipped as a scientific laboratory. After 30 days or more aloft, the pilots will return to the Gemini, detach it and fly home.

During their periods in orbit, the MOL astronauts will work in their shirt sleeves and conduct tasks which will determine whether man or automatic satellites can better perform such duties as reconnaissance, navagation, surveillance of ocean and air traffic, communications and inspection and perhaps destruction of enemy satellites.

The result would be a Buck Rogers - type patrol involving scores of manned spaceships operating out as far as the moon, perhaps beyond.

The U.S. Air Force, which will run the MOL program, has been training its own astronauts in a school at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. It will not draw from the present 33 national aeronautics and space administration astronauts.

Defence planners have argued for years the Soviet space program is aimed primarily at obtaining military dominance. They said the U.S. must push forward rapidly with a program of its own.

The air force has launched nearly 150 unmanned military satellites, most in secrecy, from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. They are used primarily for reconnaissance, keeping a constant camera watch on Russia and China.

U.S. sources believe Russia's Cosmos series, the 79th of which was launched Wednesday, has a similar spy-in-the-sky role.

SPACE LABORATORY REVEALED—This is an artist's conception of the Manned Orbiting Laboratory (MOL) revealed by President Johnson at his news conference in Washington. Under present planning, MOL will consist of a pressurized cylinder, about 25-30 feet long and 10 feet in diameter, attached to a modified Gemini space capsule. It will be lifted into orbit by the Air Force Titan IIIC booster. The President said the initial unmanned launch of a fully-equipped laboratory is scheduled for 1968, followed later that year by the first of five flights with two-man crews. Bill to End National Origins Controls in U.S. Immigration Passes House, Faces Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bill that would end the controversial U.S. immigration policy based on national origins has sailed through the House but faces tougher going in the Senate.

The House passed the bill Wednesday night by a vote of 318 to 95 after beating back a Republican-led attempt to limit immigration from western hemisphere countries such as Canada.

The Republicans won a brief victory when their amendment to hold immigration from North and South America to 115,000 a year was adopted by a non-record vote of 156 to 154. Democratic straglers were quickly rounded up, however, and the action reversed by a roll call vote of 218 to 189.

The bill is expected to increase present immigration, which averages about 300,000 a year, by an estimated 50,000.

A Senate subcommittee headed by opponents of the measure is due to meet today to consider a course of action. President Johnson has urged prompt action this session, and Wednesday summoned Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen to the White House for a discussion.

CALLS 'SHAMEFUL'

Johnson has called "shameful" the present system that seeks to preserve the population balance of the United States 45 years ago by assigning quotas to nations based on the number of U.S. citizens in 1920 who could trace their national origins to that country. England and Germany get more than half the 158,000 total visas now authorized.

In place of the individual national quotas, the bill would authorize, starting July 1, 1968, a total of 170,000 visas a year, to be distributed among all nations on a first-come, first-served basis, according to guidelines that favor close relations of U.S. citizens.

A limit of 20,000 would be imposed on each country, which will mean a cutback for England and Germany. England, with an annual quota of 65,000, sends about 26,000 of its natives each year to the United States. Germany's average is about 25,000 a year, which is its quota.

Ten Die In Rubber Plant Fire

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — While national guardsmen roamed the area to prevent looting of abandoned homes near Louisville's "rubbertown" industrial complex, flames today continued licking at an explosion-shattered portion of the du Pont plant.

Firefighting equipment was pulled back during the night. But a group of volunteer firemen and county officials make another try today to recover bodies from the plant. A rescue attempt Wednesday night was aborted by unexpected new blasts.

Ten men are missing and feared dead from the 26 explosions in the section of the plant where neoprene — a synthetic rubber — has been produced since 1942. Hospitals treated at least 35 persons.

The explosions were centered in the area where monovinylacetylene, a form of acetylene that keeps its explosive qualities, is used in making neoprene.

The Red Cross said it had found housing for about 200 persons who were evacuated from their homes near the complex situated in the city's west end, near the Ohio River.

The fire started with the first explosion about 9:20 a.m. Wednesday when, officials said, about 850 people were in the plant.

The injured included 11 volunteer firemen. Eight du Pont employees were in hospital, two in critical condition.

SEES FLASH

S. W. Buckel, a maintenance engineer who was about 200 feet from the first explosion, said:

"I saw smoke flying in the air, a flash—it was about five stories high—and then the building shook like hell. I was looking right at it."

Du Pont workers, and those in five neighboring plants that closed, were to return to their jobs today. Residents of a three-mile area around the plant were expected to return to their homes.

The area was evacuated for fear that a storage tank containing about 300,000 pounds of explosive material also would go off. Gas was burning on a vent atop the tank.

Du Pont officials declined to speculate on the cause of the original explosion but, they said, in a gaseous form the acetylene could be ignited by any spark, even from a shoenail on concrete.

Authorities To Probe Deaths Of 2 Children

REGINA (CP) — Prairie health authorities Wednesday were investigating the death of two children and the condition of more than 60 persons in Saskatchewan suspected of having sleeping sickness.

Alberta and Saskatchewan veterinary authorities reported about 240 suspected cases of sleeping sickness, also called western equine encephalitis, among horses.

Birds are the "reservoir" of sleeping sickness, believed spread by a certain type of mosquito, said Dr. E. S. O. Smith of the Alberta health department.

Dr. J. G. Clarkson, Saskatchewan's deputy health minister, said the death from sleeping sickness of a two-month-old baby in Regina is suspected. Only one human case has been confirmed in Saskatchewan and the patient recovered.

Alberta health officials were investigating the death of a 10-year-old girl from Beaverlodge, Alta. Nine other Albertans are suspected of having the disease.

Senator Pouliot Blasts Redistribution Board

Local Control To Stay

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts assured the Ontario Municipal Association Wednesday that his government, while supporting the idea of regional government in Ontario, will not permit the abolition of local autonomy.

In a speech to the OMA's annual convention, Mr. Robarts said any moves towards regional government must be undertaken with the asumption that local government is an essential element within the democratic system.

The premier said while he views regional government as being a federation of autonomous municipalities within the federal system, every effort should be made to preserve as much local autonomy as possible.

Earlier this year the Ontario legislature's select committee on municipal law recommended that the province's counties serve as the base upon which to build regional forms of government.

The committee's report carried the implied suggestion that local governments eventually would be superseded by regional governments. Existing municipalities would be eaten up, with the region itself becoming the municipality.

ISN'T ACCEPTABLE

It was apparent in Mr. Robarts's remarks that he found this unacceptable. He said the region should be a new level of government given responsibility for land use and planning, providing services such as hospitals, schools and health clinics and locating facilities such as roads, sewers and hydro.

One of the disadvantages of regional government would be the problem of political representation, he said. And there would be disputes between the local governments and the regional government on the division of responsibilities.

The levying and collection of taxes would be more equal and efficient, Mr. Robarts said, but the establishment of a regional government would not offer any new taxation sources. This was one of the basic problems facing local governments today.

"It seems to me that it is imperative that local government representatives, duly elected by the people of their communities, must exercise leadership in the development of an effective system of regional government based on the needs of their communities," the premier said.

QUESTION TAXES

In a debate on taxes the OMA was asked why should a municipally - operated waterworks plant have to pay municipal taxes while a private, profit-making cemetery is exempt?

Mayor Arthur Gullen of Leamington said the tax structure was puzzling.

"Based on the rates (tax) they charge, a 10-acre cemetery could make more than $1,000,000 a year," the mayor said. But a municipally-operated waterworks plant in western Ontario is charged more in taxes than the total revenue of the municipality it served before the plant was built, he said. Leamington introduced a resolution calling for tax exemptions for water works plants.

Barrie asked for exemptions for YMCA and YWCA organizations from school and local improvement taxes.

WILLING TO WORK

Mayor L. E. Cooke of Barrie said the Y groups were typical of organizations "willing to do a job for a community while keeping the fingers of government out." The resolutions committee had suggested earlier that grants rather than exemptions would be a better way of supporting the organizations.

Both resolutions were referred to the executive with orders to review the whole question of municipal tax exemptions.

The convention approved the principle of compulsory arbitration in labor disputes involving municipal employees when other conciliation methods have failed.

Earlier, the association endorsed a recommendation that the province give widowers and unmarried men over 60 the same welfare rights that widows and unmarried women of that age now have.

Elected vice-presidents were Ewart Biggar of Brantford, Reeve A. M. Campbell of Scarborough, P. W. Burton, mayor of Iroquois Falls, J. A. Hennan, mayor of Cobourg and T. G. McKibbin, clerk comptroller of Kingston.

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — An indignant senator, who had more than 30 years' experience in the Commons before spending the past 10 years in the upper house, said Wednesday the new electoral maps drawn by 10 quasi - judicial commissions should be scrapped.

Senator Jean - Francois Pouliot said the new maps, particularly the one prepared for his native Quebec province, represent socialistic bungling, wipe out historic landmarks and have no co-ordination.

He said in an interview that rather than write the proposed electoral MPs into law this winter, Parliament should throw aside the work of the redistribution commissions and revert to the old practice of having the maps prepared by a committee of MPs.

"It's disparaging to the members' knowledge of their own constituencies to turn the job over to these commissioners. It makes MPs out to be dunces. And the commissioners are, oh, so infallible—Jehovahs and Solomons rolled into one. Like the Queen, they can do no wrong."

WAS OLD SEAT

Chief points of complaint that raised the senator's ire were changes in the electoral map affecting his old Commons constituency of Temiscouata and neighboring ridings, and changes in the names of ridings in the Quebec City district.

The Quebec Commission headed by Mr. Justice Paul Langlois of the Superior Court drew the lines of the new constituency of Temiscouata in such a way that the old ridings' principal community, Riviere-du-Loup, now falls in neighboring Kamouraska.

But what is worse, the new map drops historic Quebec names and substitutes others, senator Pouliot complained.

Gone are de la Naudiere, Madeleine de Vercheres' married name; Compton, the birthplace of Louis St. Laurent; Arthabaska, where the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier began his career: and both Wolfe and Montcalm.

New names on the map include Duvernay, the founder of the St. Jean Baptiste Societies, and Limoulin, the hamlet near St. Malo in Britanny where discoverer Jacques Cartier was born.

DON'T MENTION QUEBEC

And what the senator found even more upsetting, the new maps do not include the name of Quebec itself, anywhere. Gone are the old ridings of Quebec East, Quebec West, and Quebec South.

In their places are the names of Louis Hebert, the first Quebec farmer, and Langelier, a lieutenant - governor Both have already been honored by having Quebec streets named after them.

What Senator Pouliot suggests is naming the three Quebec City ridings Abraham, Tresor and Sault - au - Matelot. Abraham would be named after Abraham Martin, a son-in-law of Louis Hebert from whom the Plains of Abraham got their name.

Tresor, the senator said puckishly, represents the cultural centre of Quebec City. La Rue Tresor now is occupied by art shops and sidewalk painters. And Sault-au-Matelot would be a good name for the Lower Town riding. It can be colloquially translated into English as Sailor's Leap.

Guam Jets Again Raid Red Jungle

SAIGON (AP) — Guam-based B-52 jet bombers of the U.S. Strategic Air Command struck today at a suspected Viet Cong installation 30 miles northeast of Saigon in the D-zone jungle, a U.S. military spokesman announced.

This was the 11th raid of the war by the big eight-engine craft. The spokesman said it was their third strike within the D-zone, a Communist-infested territory about 600 square miles stretching from a point north of Saigon eastward toward the South China Sea.

Under new security regulations, no further details were released.

Two South Vietnamese war planes dropped 88,000 newspapers on three North Vietnamese cities during the night, the spokesman said.

The newspapers were reproductions of Nhan Dan, a publication banned in North Viet Nam nine years ago because of its criticism of the Communist regime. The North Vietnamese Communists have since taken over the name — which means "human knowledge"—for their official newspaper in Hanoi.

Contents of the issue that was dropped were not known immediately.

Hundreds of thousands of leaflets have been dropped over North Viet Nam, but this was the first time propaganda raid was made with newspapers.

In a bombing mission, 16 U.S. F-105 Thunderchiefs flew within 35 miles of the Chinese border Wednesday, destroying a railway bridge 115 miles northwest of Hanoi, the spokesman said.

He reported that American planes in six other missions today damaged bridges, trucks and truck parking areas, barracks and a radar site.

ACTION LIGHT

Communist guerrillas shelled the special forces camp at Duc Co, 215 miles northeast of Saigon, with 15 rounds of 81 mm mortar fire. No casualties or damage was reported.

Fourteen Viet Cong were killed and three others captured in a government search-and-destroy operation 325 miles northeast of the capital. A hundred suspects were detained.

Planes from the carrier Coral Sea flew 95 strike sorties Wednesday, while American and Vietnamese Air Force pilots flew 167 strike missions during the 24-hour, period ending at 6 a.m., the officers said. Forward air controllers reported about 200 buildings levelled and another 125 damaged.

North Viet Nam's news agency reported that D. N. Aidit, head of Indonesia's big Communist party, told a reception in Jakarta Wednesday that Indonesia is ready to send 500,000 volunteers to fight in Viet Nam against the United States. Aidit is a member of President Sukarno's cabinet.

Six Accused In Deloro Theft Are Remanded

Court appearances of six men charged in connection with $600,000 looting of Deloro federal stockpile today were adjourned two weeks.

All of the six are on bail and Magistrate T. Y. Wills remanded the hearing to September 9.

Charged with conspiracy to commit theft are: Samuel Vigodda, 50, Belleville scrap dealer; his son, Leonard, 27; William Regan, 70, demolition superintendent and watchman at Deloro; Bernard Boulter, 25, and Herbert Maracle, 40, both Vigodda employees; and Peterborought scrap dealer Irving Moldaver, 50.

All were charged after police claimed they traced 150 tons of cobalt to Britain and the U.S.

The Vigoddas had to find $10,000 plus a $5,000 surety bond for bail. Moldaver was freed on a $10,000 bond and the other three on $5,000 each.

Today's court formalities did not necessitate their appearances, nor were they legally represented. Assistant Crown Attorney Tom Lally merely asked the magistrate for the remand.

As yet the disposition of the case is unknown. The accused must elect their method of trial before the magistrate who would then decide at a preliminary hearing if police had sufficient evidence for a higher-court hearing.

They were arrested and charged August 12 after nearly three months of intensive police investigation.

Provincial police detectives said a small amount of the cobalt was recovered at a metal - processing plant in Texas. The rest had already been put to industrial uses.

Cheese Board Said Short Of Product for Export

Some 40 or 50 of the leaders of the Cheese Industry of Ontario met last week at the Sun Valley Motel, Belleville.

All aspects of the cheese industry was discussed. Mr. A. L. Rowson of the firm of Rowson & Company, London, England, was the guest speaker. The firm of Rowson & Company gives the Cheese Producers' Marketing Board orders from nine to 10 million pounds of cheese each year. They are also large handlers of New Zealand and Australian cheese. Mr. Rowson stated that it was very unusual that Ontario cheese had raised six cents in price in the last four years, while Australian cheese had dropped 3½ cents in the last six months. Mr. Rowson was also very enthusiastic about Ontario cheese and its aging qualities and he would like to be able to purchase much larger quantities than the board had been able to supply him the last few years.

In reply to a question asked, "If he thought Ontario cheese could be sold at a higher price on the London market." Mr. Rowson's reply was "When your customers in the United Kingdom have gone to the expense of building up a market for your product it is always possible to hold them to ransom for a short period of time but it would be much sounder business principles to consider what might happen to your market next year and the years to follow, and to remember it was only by orderly marketing by a producer's group that such a premium trade be built in such a few short years.

It was mentioned that a few high scoring factories in Central Ontario district paid as high as $1.00 per pound butterfat or $3.50 per hundred weight for 3.5 milk delivered at their plants for the month of June. To these prices will be added the Federal Government's supplementary and deficiency payments which is expected to be between 35 to 45 cents per hundred weight on milk.

IN HEALTH POSITION

The chairman of the board, H. C. Arnold, stated the Ontario Cheese Industry was never in as healthy a position as it is today. He pointed out to the meeting that a large number of factories in Ontario were running to capacity this season and Ontario cheese is selling one cent higher than last year on the U.K. Market in spite of the fact Australian cheese has dropped in price 3½ cents per pound. He also stated that to date we have been able to give the British importer only one-third of their requirements. The financial position of our board was never as sound as at present. Today our cheese industry is one of the brightest spots of Eastern Ontario agriculture.

The presidents and vice-presidents of the Cheese Producing Counties across the province moved a unanimous vote of confidence in the policy their Marketing Board has pursued.

Uncrowned Kings of Mafia Now Face Serious Counts

By JOHN ORGAN

PALERMO, Sicily (Reuters) Italy's fight to eliminate the stranglehold of the Mafia in western Sicily is about to enter a crucial phase.

Two big question marks hang over the biggest effort since the days of Mussolini to crush the Sicilian secret society.

The first question concerns a major coup by the Italian police in August in arresting a group of alleged Mafia and Cosa Nostra bosses on charges of conspiring for criminal purposes.

Those seized in the swoop included 75 - year - old Frank (Three Fingers) Coppola, once deported from the United States; 73 - year - old Giuseppe Genco Russo, reputed to be uncrowned king of the Sicilian Mafia, and 74-year-old Frank Garofalo.

Their names have been publicly bandied about as reputed Mafia leaders for many years. But little or nothing has ever been proved against them.

Now the question being asked here is whether the courts this time have sufficient evidence to convict them.

The police say that they have built up a fat dossier proving new and extensive links between the Sicilian Mafia and the U.S. crime syndicate, Cosa Nostra.

The police also say that leading underworld figures on both sides of the Atlantic used Sicily as a springboard for smuggling drugs and tobacco between the Middle East, Europe and the United States.

POOR BASE

Some people here believe the financial power of the Mafia in Sicily, a comparatively poor and underdeveloped Mediterranean island, is derived from the rich yields of international narcotics smuggling and links with the American underworld.

The Mafia has a different face in the United States from that in its native Sicily. But in recent years there have been increasing similarities.

The Mafia in the U.S., mainly Cosa Nostra, is an enormous crime syndicate described by Robert Kennedy when he was U.S. attorney-general as "one of the biggest businesses in America."

On its home ground in Sicily the Mafia is a complicated and baffling problem, so extensive in its ramifications that some people even describe it as a way of life.

In the western part of Sicily, stretching from Palermo across to Agrigento, the Mafia has been dispensing patronage and operating protection rackets with apparent impunity for many years, a self-styled honored society" protected by the traditional "omerta," or refusal of local people to talk to the police.

While the Mafia in the United States operates as a highly organized gangster network, in Sicily it is more a mysterious and hidden power, operating in town and country and preying on peasants and businessmen.

MAFIA MODERNIZED

In recent years the Mafia in Sicily has moved more into modern protection rackets, following the example of its gangster kin across the Atlantic, and concentrated on trade and industry—building and contracting, electrical household appliances, garages, food markets.

As bloody gang wars broke out among Mafia members for control of new rackets, the police found themselves with problems of increasing complexity.

On June 30 of that year nine persons, including seven police, were killed in Palermo by Mafia booby traps which exploded in parked cars. Public anger was aroused.

Umberto Madia, an energetic Milanese from the north, took over command of a special Palermo police squad Since then he has rounded up hundreds of Mafia suspects. Mafia killings have dropped from 107 in 1960 to 39 last year.

The other major development in 1963 came on the political front. After long delays an Italian parliamentary commission representing all parties opened an inquiry into the Mafia and how to eradicate it.

The parliamentary commission, which is still at work, raises the second big question: whether the commission will really lift the lid off the Mafia and expose its criminal and political ramifications even though this may cause embarrassment to some powerful men.

Dockers Stage Wildcat Strike At Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton longshoremen—incensed over a harbor commissioner's criticism of them—staged a wildcat strike today in protest.

Some 150 men, members of Local 1654, International Longshoremen's Association, stood outside the main gates of the Wellington Street dock at 8 a.m., the time they should have reported for work.

Commissioner Kenneth Elliott, in a letter to city council and subsequent newspaper interview, called the longshoremen "slow and inefficient" and claimed they were driving harbor handling costs up. This could—and had in the case of a sugar contract—led to loss of business to the Port of Toronto, he said.

Eight vessels, all ocean-going ships, are tied up by the strike. Three of them are due to leave harbor today.

Election Pointers

Prime Minister Pearson told a Victoria, B.C., audience the other day that the only kind of fishing he planned to do during his western tour was from a boat.

Had an Izaak Walton been around, he would no doubt have expressed pleasure at such a statement and arranged for Mr. Pearson's immediate transportation by horse and buggy to the region's best streams.

However, westerners, 1965-style, were probably not so easily taken in. Mr. Pearson may have been circumspect, but his mere presence in Social Credit land can have had only one purpose—to test the strength of Liberal party prospects in a federal election.

Indeed, prospects of an election being held in the fall seem to be growing. For one thing, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker is in full cry in Quebec, weighing in with that sombre Prairie charm, regaling the long-suffering Quebeckers with his fractured French and posing for photographs which he promised to autograph if sent to him in Ottawa.

Pearson in British Columbia and Diefenbaker in Quebec. They are maintaining a healthy distance between each other, but both in their several ways are testing the political climate. Shades of 1957, 1958, 1962 and 1963.

So once more Canadians into the breach, MPs to your appointed tasks, and the best of political luck to all.

Cuban Mystery

Fidel Castro's right-hand man, Ernesto (Che) Guevara is reported dead—a victim of the first days of fighting in the revolt in the Dominican Republic last April.

If this is true, it is strange that the news of the death of the handsome, Argentine-born revolutionary is being released only now. The word came over a Santo Domingo radio operated by the civilian-military junta.

That there may be a strong element of truth in the news may be surmised from earlier reports that Guevara was seen in the rebel sector of the city. However, these reports have not been confirmed.

In Havana, the Cuban press for the first time has referred to Arturo Guzman as Industries Minister.

Some reports say that Guevara is abroad and others that he is engaged in reorganizing and unifying the country's various economic agencies. Premier Castro is reported to have mentioned him frequently in recent speeches.

It is all something of a mystery. If Guevara is still alive and in favor with Castro there should be no difficulty in proving it. If not, then he must be either dead, as reported, or else has been consigned to some mysterious fate known only to the authorities in Havana.

Men Versus Machines

Recent American successes in Vietnam have been tempered by the fact that modern military equipment is often no match for human resourcefulness and mobility.

In the battle of Van Tuong Peninsula last week, a marine supply column with tanks and amphibious vehicles from the 7th Fleet anchored offshore was virtually annihilated by Viet Cong who "rose like locusts out of hedge rows and swamps."

Once out of the water, Associated Press writer Peter Arnett reported, the huge Amtraks (35-ton amphibious vehicles) "flopped from one rice paddy to another, unwieldly behemoths unable to find their way . . ." Now in enemy territory and unable to find their own comrades, the column came under attack from armor-piercing shells and automatic fire. When it was all over only a few of the 30-man American column were left alive while five Amtraks and two tanks lay destroyed.

The vehicles were cauldrons in the terrible heat, and once they were trapped by the Viet Cong escape for the crews was almost impossible. The engagement recalled the Hungarian revolution in 1956 when freedom fighters destroyed many Russian tanks with Molotov cocktails, killing the crews as they attempted to escape from their flaming vehicles.

As it was in the streets of Budapest in 1956 so it was in the paddy fields of the Van Tuong Peninsula in 1965.

Law and order are not as important to Americans as they are, for example, to Canadians or Britons. Americans have a disposition to handle disputes in a direct, personal way rather than go through the tedious processes of justice and politics. Examples of this are the Wild West, the KKK, the Black Muslims, the widespread possession and use of deadly weapons, the American shows on television.—Richard J. Needham in The Globe and Mail.

'Energetic' Care of Hair May Be One Cause of Loss

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My hair is coming out by handfuls, even though new growth steadily occurs. I am taking Vitamin B which doesn't seem to help much. What is your advice? — Mrs. R. B.

Loss of hair is always more important to a woman than to a man; fortunately, however, it doesn't happen nearly as often with the fairer sex.

You, Mrs. R. B. didn't mention your age or a number of other important facts about your health, scalp and hair, but I'll tell you what I can, and what I hope will be helpful.

Loss or thinning of hair seems to be an increasing problem in females over 40. Women aren't much different from what they have always been, except that more of them (and men, too) are living longer.

The likely reason for loss of hair in women are skin diseases of the scalp: poor nutrition; and decline in glandular activity. (Among men, heredity is by far the dominant factor.) Loss of hair because of diseases such as typhoid has, of course, become far less common.

Why then, should the problem be increasing? Very likely it could be related to the rather energetic ways of caring for hair — by which I mean waving, teasing, lacquering, vigorous combing, spraying and so on. These expose the hair to quite a variety of strong chemicals and strains.

Since the texture and strength of hair varies considerably, some women have trouble while others don't. However, strong chemicals and rough treatment can break off the hair shafts. This "loss" causes panic as women tell of hair coming out by the handfuls.

The hair isn't always coming out. A great many times it is, instead, breaking off. Mrs. R. B. notices new hair. That would indicate that the hair is breaking off rather than coming out.

Since hair takes a long time to grow, she may well have thinness for many months, but this doesn't mean she is becoming bald. There's a difference.

Faulty nutrition can affect the hair, so follow the doctor's advice about correcting it. But don't mistakenly think that any particular vitamin is going to "grow hair." It won't.

If scalp disease is present, naturally it should be corrected, but there again your physician or a dermatologist (skin specialist) will have to diagnose and decide how to treat it.

A program, in addition to the foregoing, which you can do yourself, consists of:

Using a shampoo, but avoiding other chemical treatments (waving, teasing, etc.) for several months. By then you will know whether these have been making your hair brittle.

Combing gently. While you wait for new hair to grow, there is no point in breaking off more of the old, brittle shafts.

Gentle massage of the scalp can stimulate circulation, if that happens to be involved. But remember I said "gentle."

People lose on an average of 20 to 60 hairs a day, normally. Take a "comb count". I doubt that your hair is coming out by the handfuls.

Note to Mrs. E. M.: No, I did not give a remedy for psoriasis. I said that many remedies have been tried, and sometimes some of them work. Or anyway, the psoriasis clears up, perhaps because of the remedy, perhaps spontaneously. It's hard to tell. It's also impossible, so far as I know to predict in advance what remedy may help which patient. Besides, psoriasis often shows a great seasonal variation, better in summer than in cloudy, winter weather.

Dear Dr. Molner: How should I take the long hairs off a mole on my little girl's neck? — Mrs. C. B.

Clip them with scissors. Do not try to pull the hairs, shave them, or remove them chemically. Snipping them off is the only safe way. (Unless you have your doctor remove the mole.)

IQ Tests Discredited

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

What is your intelligence quotient? If you don't know, perhaps you are a little bit lucky, because there are some people, especially students, who just can't quite reach certain goals; their IQ isn't what it was supposed to be. Of course these pepole know what their IQ is, to their sorrow.

Now it looks as though the whole idea of the IQ and IQ testing will be modified or scrapped, as a result of studies made at Princeton, N.J., It is beginning to be accepted, as many teachers and most parents firmly believed all along, that no young person's ability and intelligence can be represented by a single number.

Nevertheless IQ testing prevailed in some quarters for many years, and under some circumstances a young man or woman could be tagged with a number which suggested that he or she had limited mental ability. Had the IQ test worked perfectly it would have been useful, but since it is agreed that it doesn't, now what?

Will those of us denied certain opportunities in life because of lack of a few vital IQ points be given another chance? Probably not, since life doesn't work that way. More important, how soon will the IQ test and its over-rigid application, which was the real root of the evil, be abolished?

It is a fact that IQ figures have been and still are overemphasized by those responsible for selecting people to take certain jobs. The concept of a single figure to assess a man's mental capacity made things all too simple for those who would like to substitute false or pseudo-scientific methods for the use of sound common sense and good judgment, which is an art, not a science.

Hong Kong Vets' Plight

Hamilton Spectator

The case of Canada's Hong Kong veterans is one that touches the heart. Last - war shadows lengthen and memories tend to grow dim, but the hardships and sufferings of these men in Japanese slave labor camps should not be allowed to fade from public recollection.

There are about 1,150 of these Hong Kong veterans and since the war they have been trying to get a better pension deal from the government. Their association has been meeting in Toronto.

In November, 1941, the Winnipeg Grenadiers and the Royal Regiment of Canada took over the garrison of Hong Kong. On December 7 Japan entered the war. The Canadian battalions faced the Japanese onslaught with hopeless odds.

Some 300 were killed in the fighting and the rest were taken off to endure the hardships and inhumanities of Japanese slave camps. Another 300 perished in these conditions.

For almost four years those who survived suffered from malaria, dysentery, berberi and any number of that vast catalogue of diseases that can attack exhausted, half - starved humans in the tropics. Like many who were released from Japanese camps when the war ended, they were in a pitiful state.

Some of the diseases contracted in captivity have had long - lasting physical and mental effects. According to the association, life expectancy for these veterans is ten years less than for normal people. Since 1946, about 180 have died, 15 by their own hand.

The association wants disability pensions for Hong Kong veterans to be increased from 25 per cent to 50 per cent.

There are always difficulties in these matters. War brings so much suffering and a tragic aftermath. There are no doubt other groups feel their claims entitle them to special consideration. Precedents are easy to establish.

But when this has been recognized, surely no one will deny that these Hong Kong veterans deserve a special study by the Canada Pension Committee to establish to what extent they are entitled to gratitude from their fellow countrymen.

WHEAT SALES

Winnipeg Free Press

It will be noted that announcement of the sales was made by the Canadian wheat board, and not by either of the cabinet ministers present — Mr. Sharp or Mr. Hays. There is always a temptation to make political capital out of a transaction of this kind. The fact remains, however, that Russia would in all probability have made its purchases no matter what kind of government happened to be in power in Ottawa. All that the present sale does — as it did its 1963 predecessor — is to show up the absurdity of Conservative claims that only a Conservative government can sell wheat.

Political Wives Play Vital Supporting Roles

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — National politics a man's world?

Not exclusively, anyway.

Just ask them, and the Liberals' Margaret Konantz, Pauline Jewett, Margaret Rideout and the Conservatives' Jean Wadds and Eloise Jones are quick to make it plain that, of course, a woman's place is in the house.

The House of Commons, that is.

Too, Health Minister Judy LaMarsh is the living, breathing, globe-trotting, politicking — and loving every lively minute of it — evidence that this "woman's place in the house" can even be in what Prime Minister Pearson likes to call the political "kitchen," the Cabinet where all the big national decisions are cooked up.

But Jean, Judy, Pauline, Eloise and the two Margarets are only the most obvious of this comparatively new breed of women who have successfully invaded and captured a place for themselves in what used to be this man's world.

What about the women who also play an indispensable role in politics — not as stars, perhaps, in the national spotlight of the stage that is the House of Commons, but in the absolutely essential supporting featured parts?

BETTER THAN SPEECHES

These, of course, are the political wives.

Women like Mrs. L. B. Pearson who is often more important to the Prime Minister's public image — especially on the campaign trail — than some of his speeches.

Women like Mrs. John Diefenbaker who always can take the Conservative Opposition Leader firmly in hand — when nobody else dares try — and ordering him to rest and relax, must sometimes have prevented him from driving himself beyond the point of exhaustion.

And women like Mrs. Paul Martin who can give an appealingly comfortable homey touch to the starch-stiff striped pants world of diplomacy in which the External Affairs Minister lives.

These women have many responsibilities, but perhaps their two heaviest assignments are first appearing on the public platform, and then mixing with the crowds.

Both jobs are essential to the success of their husbands, both in the sense of the impression the wives create and the influence they exert as well as in the sheer volume of work involved.

On the platform at all times they must appear calm and serene no matter how cold or hostile a reception the audience may be giving their husband. They may have heard the speech a hundred times — and if it is during a national campaign, be sure they have—they may be bored to tears, but they must convincingly appear to be intensely interested, even entranced.

And when the rally is over, while they may be drooping from fatigue, their feet aching and their fingers bruised from the day-after-day, night-after-night squeezing of thousands of handshakes, they must stand there in the reception line, smiling, generating charm and looking as if they had been waiting all their lives for just this magic moment.

TEAM EFFORT

And as happens with most men, the political leader's wife usually turns out to be his surest and most objectively constructive critic.

Like the night Prime Minister Pearson was on television and his wife, attending a party rally here in the Capital, stood before the set, almost like a fan at a fight, shaking a rolled up text of his speech at his shadow there on the screen and saying, over and over again: "Give it to them, give it to them; harder, oh, harder!"

"How was I?" he was to ask when he returned from the studio to the party gathering.

"You should have been firmer," she told him, "you must be tougher."

And then turning, all smiles and warm interest to charm people as they crowded around.

Or like the night when as Prime Minister, John Diefenbaker and his wife stood amid 7,000 people in the Queen Elizabeth Building on the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds, determined, he swore, to shake hands with every last one who waited around to meet him.

They worked there together in the reception line for more than two hours, shaking hands with better than 1,200 people, and still some 2,500 waiting.

"Looks like a long night," said Dief, "but I guess we have to see it through to the end."

"I guess not," said his wife, taking him by the elbow and steering him back from the line towards a door. "See it through and we might not get to see the campaign through."

Or like Mrs. Martin reflecting that nice warm homey touch when the newspaper social writers and photographers came to call just before the start of the last campaign.

"Shoot the picture with me standing besdie my washing machine," she smiled, "for that is where I feel more at home when I'm not sitting beside Paul on some platform."

Strictly Personal

Beware When Nations Talk About Honor

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: In the field of personal relations, a stupid person can sense a truth that an intelligent person is unaware of — just as a horse can tell when you don't trust him, just as a dog can tell when you don't like him.

The verbal embroidery we agree with is "eloquence"; that which we are indifferent to is "rhetoric"; that which we disagree with is "hot air."

When a nation begins talking about its "honor," the chances are better than even that national leaders are preparing for some dishonorable action toward another country.

The most important thing a top executive can do is to make suitable provision for his successor; when an organization falters, it is most often because of a weak chain of command in which subordinates were chosen for their docility rather than for their aggressiveness.

There are very few thoroughgoing skeptics; as Lictenberg said long ago, "With most people, doubt about one thing is simply blind belief in another."

A man who makes a fool of himself over a woman is an object of derision; while a woman who makes a fool of herself over a man is an object of sympathy — which indicates that we expect women to take men more seriously than they are taken by them.

We commonly think of a "barbarian" as someone crude and brutal; but the basic definition is a person who cannot understand or accept any way of life except his own — and this sort of psychic barbarism has been responsible for more trouble in the world than the club-and-tiger cloth cartoon concept.

Any book or film which depicts a past age as "quaint" fails in its primary task as a work of imagination — which is to make us see and feel close continuity of human experience through all the ages, despite the superficial differences of manners, dress and speech.

The catch-phrase "private initiative" is morally neutral and meaningless in itself; nobody, for instance, has more private initiative than the safe-cracker or the rapist.

We shouldn't be too surprised if the Russian communists become more hostile toward the Chinese communists than they are toward the capitalisic countries; for, as Colon once observed: "In politics, as in religion, we have more dislike for those who believe only half of our creed than for those who deny the whole of it."

"An End to Arms," by Walter Millis, is the best book I have yet read on the problems of nuclear conflict and the possibilities for avoiding it.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

August 26th, 1945

The National Gallery in London was re-opened recently with 50 of its greatest pictures on exhibition, and the director told of some of the difficulties of wartime storage.

In 1937 the frames were adapted so that the pictures could be taken out at a moment's notice and arrangements for transport were made. Originally it was thought that the pictures could be stored in several large houses, but this proved impossible because many of the pictures would not go through the doors of even quite large country houses. Questions of fire protection and so forth had also to be considered.

It was then decided to bury them in the earth. The place selected was a half abandoned slate quarry with a series of great caves about five or six miles from Festiniog in North Wales. The Ministry of Works built a series of storerooms inside the caves, each specially lighted, heated and air conditioned, so that the temperature and humidity remained absolutely constant summer and winter. Here the pictures thrived remarkably free from those minor ailments of blisters and cracks to which most big collections are liable.

At a special meeting of the public works committee of the city council, tenders were received for the paving of Pinnacle Street. After much consideration the members of the committee decided that the price named was too high, and no action was taken. Present at the meeting were Mayor Panter, Aldermen Fred Wallbridge, Platt, Smith, Woodley, McCurdy, Earle and St. Charles.

The council of the township Rawdon called a special meeting of the residents in the township recently in order to obtain the sentiment of the people with regard to making of grants for the equipment of battalions going on active service overseas and for the needs of the men. It was the unanimous opinion of the meeting that grants should be made and the sum of $2,000 will be donated this year. This grant, with other grants to patriotic causes already made, will bring the total amount donated by Rawdon township during the first year of the war to $7,500.

Burden of Decision on Union Is Resting on Anglican Synod

By DENNIS ORCHARD

VANCOUVER (CP)—A great burden of decision on the course to be taken toward union of the Anglican and United churches in Canada rests on the Anglican general synod which opened here Wednesday.

Synod delegates will be asked to express approval of the Principles of Union, drawn up this year by committees of both churches after 22 years of discussion during which union was a vague and indulgent hope.

If the synod adopts the principles, it commits the Anglican Church of Canada to begin planning with the United Church of Canada the steps they must take to join as one.

However, many years may intervene before the still - unnamed new church becomes a fact.

Today's debate will mark the first official chance of the Anglican parishioner to speak through his lay delegate on the proposals. The church's clergy are believed strongly in favor. The layman's view, and the strength of the reservations he may have, are less well known.

SENSE OF URGENCY

In the opening sessions of the synod, the merger was described as something that prompts both a sense of urgency to hasten desirable work, and a sense of caution to ensure that members of both churches are not alienated.

"The unity that is achieved must be real and deep," said Most Rev. Howard H. Clark, Primate of All Canada.

"I hope that I am ready for God to lead us forward as swiftly as He will . . . but we certainly do not want a pace that forces some to be laggards and others drop-outs."

The churches together may take the basic steps by 1970, he said.

The principles are the unanimous product of work by two Committees of Ten. They set down common beliefs in what Dr. John Gwynne-Timothy, the only lay member of the Anglican Ten, described Wednesday as "one of the great statements of the Christian faith made since the Reformation."

Dr. Gwynne-Timothy, a history professor at the University of Western Ontario, said the core of the agreement on the principles — hurdling the toughest problem between the churches—is the act of unification of ministries.

RETAINS BISHOPS

The Anglican Church has retained since the Reformation the threefold ministry of bishops, presbyters and deacons. The United Church lies in the tradition of reformed churches that affirmed parity of ministers and gave the bishops' functions to church officers.

In the principles of union, the United Church recognizes the episcopal tradition of the Anglican church. The principles states that in the new church "there shall be bishops, presbyters and deacons."

The committees, anxious that neither church should repudiate the past ministry of the other, set out an act of unification in which both ministries would be laid before God "without question so that he may overcome what is inadequate" and confer, through prayer and the traditional laying on the hands, authority to be ministers of the united church.

Young Folk Back Move For Unity

SASKATOON (CP)—The exeutive councils of the Anglican and United Church National Young People's Associations have issued a statement of unity following a meeting here.

The statement was sent to officials from both churches and to committees in each church studying the problem of unity, Deanna Copeland of Toronto, president of the Anglican Young People's Association, said Tuesday.

The statement said it "is of the utmost importance that our churches face the problem of our separation at the Lord's table with immediate resolution and courage."

'We have discovered that in our concern for holy communion together, we are overwhelmingly united."

Police Chief Says Arrests Are Imminent

AMHERSTBURG, Ont. (CP) Police Chief George Hannah said Wednesday that arrests are imminent in connection with recent racial incidents.

Chief Hannah said his force—which totals five men—have been working "round the clock" since the disturbances that occurred in this town of 4,400, 20 miles south of Windsor.

The incidents—which earlier this month included the burning of a gasoline-soaked cross at a main intersection, a series of vituperative telephone calls to some of the town's 300 Negroes and anti-Negro slogans written on walls—brought the Ontario Human Rights Commission here to study the situation.

The commission's report, when ready, will be presented to the Ontario attorney-general's department.

Amherstburg Mayor H. Murray Smith also has called a meeting of the town council and a seven-man committee formed locally to investigate the incidents. The meeting is scheduled for Monday.

Police here previously have described the incidents as the work of "young hoodlums."

Rewards totalling $500 have been offered by anonymous donors for information leading to the conviction of those responsible for the incidents.

Pleads Guilty To Public Mischief Count

COOKSVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Roy James Welch, 43, of Hamilton was fined $100 Wednesday after pleading guilty to public mischief for a remark he made that halted an Air Canada flight last Aug. 11.

A clerk testified that Welch asked her to hurry with his ticket because he had just murdered someone in Hamilton, and had to leave quickly.

Word of Welch's alleged remark reached the aircraft by radio message after it was airborne. The plane returned to Toronto.

Modern Habits Don't Alter Ways of Kensington Market

Teen-agers with Beatle-style haircuts or tight skirts stroll hand-in-hand along the crowded streets.

Late-model cars, driven by men in sharply-cut business suits, crawl slowly along the narrow roads.

But despite these modern sights, Kensington Market is much the same as it was when it was established at the turn of the century.

The market is composed of three streets—Baldwin, Austin and Kensington — in midtown Toronto. The streets are so narrow and full of people walking aimlessly along, a car travelling up the middle of the road leaves little room for anything else to pass.

The average Canadian would not understand the language spoken by the regulars in Kensington market, for Hungarian, Yiddish, Greek and Portuguese are more commonly heard than English.

Once each wave of immigrants became more secure, they moved uptown and left the market place for the newer Canadians.

Most of the owners use their shops mainly for the storage of their mechandise. They set up wooden tables and stalls on the sidewalks and sell their wares from there.

Kosher butcher shops, fresh fish stores, bakeries and fruit markets are in the majority with clothing stores, short-order restaurants and cluttered junk shops filling in the spaces.

Octopus, four-foot eels, hanging salamis and squawking roosters in cages are a common sight. The fruit shops, which boast of having the freshest fruit in the country, also offer flowers, seeds and nuts. Chicken feathers and the smell of fish seem to be everywhere.

Tiers of clothing racks surround the shops, offering dresses, shirts and jackets. Indian rugs, boots, shoes, hats and comforters can be purchased at dry goods stores for moderate prices.

One proprietor, Aaron Weingarten, who emigrated from Poland four years ago, said he sells to "the man with the smallest salary."

"Somebody has to look after the laborer," he says. "It might as well be me. There is no reason why he shouldn't have a nice rug on the floor or warm blankets on his bed."

Plump birds, selling at $2.50 per or $4.50 for two, can be found at a poultry market which has been open from dawn to dark for 15 years. The bird is killed on the spot and wrapped in newspaper to be carted away by the customer.

One of the first stores to appear in the market place, 62 years ago, is a junk shop owned by Abraham Litvack, an 84-year-old Russian Canadian.

His stock includes small wine bottles, dolls' heads, large wine vats, little onions, brooms, kettles, pots and pans, jars, cups, spades, toasters, knives and light bulbs.

There are also new stores on the street in contrast to the old, dilapidated shops — a modern supermarket, tiled dairies and spotless cheese shops.

Students Want Free Education And Salaries

MONTREAL (CP)—The 10,000 member University of Montreal Student Association wants the provincial government to provide free education and pay salaries to students 18 years of age and over.

The students, in a 158-page report released today by l'Association Generale des Etudiants de l'Universite de Montreal, ask that free education and salaries for post-graduate students be implemented immediately, and salaries to students attending university and institutes recommended by the Parent commission on education be established as a long term measure.

The report defines a student as a "young intellectual worker" and says work accomplished by such a student is considered productive although it is not financially compensated.

"If the student is a productive worker," says the report, "he has the right to receive a salary. This is the strict right of the student."

The report does not say how much a student should be paid.

In a section devoted to the role of a university in society, the report claims students should also play a part in the institution's academic direction.

It suggested university administrators become "technical councillors" who would direct the institution along lines established by teachers and students.

Youth Killed In Accident At Resort

AMHERSTBURG, Ont. (CP) A farewell party by a group of Detroit teen-agers for one of their number who was going to college shortly, ended in tragegy Wednesday night on a Canadian pleasure resort island in the Detroit River when a youth was killed in an accident.

Early today police here and in Windsor, 20 miles north of here, were sorting out the facts that left in doubt whether a 17-year-old Detroit youth killed on Bob-Lo Island was a member of the farewell party or a spectator.

Thomas C. Minidis of Detroit died in the derailment of a car on a fairground ride, the Bug, which also injured nine other young people.

The resort island, situated opposite here, is a favorite nightspot for residents on both sides of the international border, marked by the Detroit River. The fairground is one of a number of attractions on the island.

Although the condition of the nine injured people—five boys and four girls—at two hospitals in Windsor was not released, one of them was reported to have told police there were nine of them in one car on the Bug, a six-car circular ride which can carry a total of about 60 persons.

Volta River Project in Ghana Now Nearing Its Completion

By SIDNEY TAYLOR

AKOSOMBO, Ghana (Reuters)—The Volta River hydro-electric project, which will revolutionize Ghana economically and be a major political factor in the development of the new Africa, is nearing completion.

The great grey concrete dam, 2,200 feet long and 440 feet high from bedrock, now spanning gorge where the blue Volta cuts through the dense green savanna of the Akwapim Hills, is an impressive sight.

The level of the largest man-made lake in Africa, and fourth largest in the world, already has risen more than 206 feet—two feet more than is needed for the generation of power. Its ultimate height will be 276 feet, and its area 3,275 square miles, compared with the present 965 square miles.

Six giant steel pipes called penstocks, pointing downward, are ready to take the captive river on a controlled plunge into the mammoth turbines.

The first power from the new generators will, it is hoped, be delivered to Accra, 60 miles away, by September. In Accra at present only the main roads are lighted at night.

The original schedule provided for completion of the whole project by Sept. 1, 1966. There now are hopes of writing "finished" at the end of March, 1966.

POWER, PORT, SMELTER

The Volta River project has three elements:

—The $196,000,000 dam and power station, with 500 miles of transmission network in southern Ghana;

—The new artificial port at Tema, which has cost about $99,000,000 in the last 12 years;

—The $170,000,000 aluminium smelter still to be built, which would have an ultimate apacity of 120,000 tons a year.

Three different bodies are responsible for the project. They are: The Volta River Authority, which is a Ghanaian government corporation; the United States designers and supervisers of the work, Kaiser Engineers and Instructors of Oakland, Calif.; and the Italian contractors, the Impregilo consortium of Naples.

Of the $196,000,000 required for the dam and power station at Akosombo, the government of Ghana is providing 50 per cent and the other half is coming from international loans.

The Volta River Authority has been headed since 1961 by Frank J. Dobson of Toronto. He formerly was construction manager of Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission's Lakeview thermal generating station near Toronto.

To create the lake at Akombo, a name which means "chain of stones," it was necessary to ubmerge 729 villages. About 80,000 perons from these villages have been resettled elsewhere.

The abundance of cheap electricity which will result from the project may lead to a dramatic economic breakthrough by Ghana. For when this power becomes available, widepread indutrialization will become possible. This would free the country from more than 50 years' dependence on a solitary crop—cocoa, the price of which has fallen disastrously on the world markets.

The new lake, too, is to be developed as a frehwater fishing industry to correct serious protein deficiencies in the diet of the local people.

By turning the Volta from a fast-flowing, turbulent river into a comparativey still lake, a blow will be dealt at the disease known as "river blindness," spread by a fly which breeds best where the water moves quickly.

about three hours to go yet before a big event," Gemini control said in the early hours before the record was broken.

"Is that what it is?" Conrad asked. "We didn't know exactly what time it was."

There seemed to be some small concern on the ground about the build-up of water in the fuel cell system. The system which joins hydrogen and oxygen to harvest electrical current produces water as a by-product and it is stored in tanks. The tanks are filling up.

Conrad was told that the "tightest constraint" from here out in the flight would be the storage space for the water.

Another minor concern was the hydrogen and oxygen supply remaining to keep the fuel cells going.

"It's kind of tight," said Gemini control, "but you got it there."

On the Gemini 5's 68th orbit, Conrad reported a strange phenomenon — "one of the more spectacular sights of our flight."

It was just before sunset, with the sun's rays streaming from behind the spacecraft, when either the hydrogen or oxygen tanks vented gas into the super-cold void of space.

"It looked like 7,000,000 stars passing by the window" Conrad said.

COOPER SLEEPS

With Cooper asleep, Conrad was advised that the orbital lifetime for the Gemini 5 was "14½ days from now."

"Get serious," he said sardonically.

The flight is due to end at 10:27 a.m. EDT Sunday with splashdown in the Atlantic, eight days and 27 minutes after blast off.

As Conrad and Cooper spelled one another to get some sleep, and the spacecraft was powered down through the night, Conrad reported on the picture-taking routine.

"Okay," he told mission control, "we've got the thunderstorm pictures (over Florida) and we've just taken some more photographs of Cuba. Just scenic shots."

From the ground, several observers reported seeing the spacecraft — from the Pacific Ocean to Mexico. For those who know precisely where to look in the sky, and when, the spacecraft is visible to the naked eye, usually at sunset and sunrise when it catches the slanting rays of the sun.

AUSTRALIA SEES

"We have visual contact with you," said the communicator at Carnarvon, Australia.

"Very good," Conrad replied. "We are tumbling so we ought to be flashing at you."

The doctors on the ground suggested some ways of reducing the itching that the astronauts complained of Wednesday. Dr. Charles Berry, flight surgeon, suggested that Conrad could take off the cuffs on his thighs, one of the major medical experiments. The cuffs had stopped operating anyway.

"We feel lots better," said Cooper, "since we got our space suits off."

Mission control reported Berry "rose right out of his chair."

The space suits must be kept on lest the space cabin suddenly lose pressure and the astronauts be exposed to the deadly void.

Open Antigonish Library, Honor Angus L. Macdonald

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP) — Stories about Angus L. Macdonald are told in every kitchen and dell in the deep valleys and green hills of eastern Nova Scotia.

The man has become a folk hero.

He was a living legend during his lifetime, which began at Dunvegan, high in Cape Breton, in 1890. He was premier of Nova Scotia from 1933 to 1954—with five war years in Ottawa as minister of national defence for naval services. He was the man who had the reponsibility of turning a few tin cans into a Canadian navy.

His greatest accomplishment, to hear it here, was the revival of the dying Celtic tradition in the province. It was Angus L. who accounts for those pipers at the Strait and the Isthmus, the tartans that abound at the ancient games.

He had the atavistic appeal for Nova Scotians that the whine of bagpipes have. He called to something in their highland blood in a gentle, mystical way.

He was 64 when he died but he was to Nova Scotia what President Kennedy was to America. And the pain of loss was much the same.

It is a young Angus L. who stands in the new portrait at the St. Francis Xavier University here and he is pensive as he looks across a dark and beautiful Cape Breton valley.

The late premier had the hard-headed ability to keep his party firmly in office, but he was called the poet premier, and there is more of the poet in the man who stands on the heights in full Clanranald dress.

The portrait stands over a black marble fireplace in a room called The Hall of Clans. It is the main room in the new $1,000,000 Angus L. Macdonald Memorial Library.

On the walls are the crests and devices of the Highlanders who emigrated from the isles off Scotland, the rebels known as Jacobites.

Angus L. himself was brought up in northern Cape Breton where Highlander and French mingle closely, and his mother was of French descent. She spoke Gaelic fluently, as he did.

In 1953, he suggested that when a library was built, it contain a room known as The Hall of Clans. He also was anxious that it be a fount of Celtic culture.

He would have become first head of the unique department of Celtic studies here if he hadn't died.

It wouldn't have been an honorary post. He was as good with Gaelic as he was masterful with English. A lawyer, he was educated at St. F.X., Dalhousie University in Halifax, and Harvard.

The builders of the library have decided that it will contain "the literary output of the Scottish, Irish, Manx, Welsh, Cornih and Breton peoples." Celtic folk songs and tales also will be stored there.

St. Francis Xavier, which likes to refer to Angus L. as "a noble Scot and a sterling son of Xavier," is also proud of its Gaelic choir and the co-operative movement that made it famous.

"It is probably true to say that no leader has arisen in this province who was closer to the hearts of the people," said Chief Justice J. L. Ilsley at he opening of the library.

Then a choir of 21 girls from Mount St. Bernard, each wearing a sash in her family tartan, switched from Gaelic to English to sing a heartfelt Sleep, Angus. You could have heard the heather grow.

Plead Guilty To Breaking Station Window

Particularly if you've got a combination of service station operator who sleeps on the premises -- and a police cruiser close by.

That's what happened Saturday to Gus de Costa, 19, and Ronald Alfred Kehoe, 20. Both were on their way home to Kingston when the brick landed through the plate glass of George McGillivray's service station on Highway 2, east of Belleville.

But said OPP constable W. G Willis, Mr. McGillivray "was sleeping inside the building — much to their surprise. He has a bedroom at the back."

The operator called police and a nearby cruiser was there in five minutes. The youths were arrested after a three-hour search.

Today both pleaded guilty before Magistrate T. Y. Wills to wilful damage. They claimed they had been "drinking a bit," the car broke down and they coasted to the service station. deCosta said Kehoe got mad and threw the brick at him — missed and shattered the window.

The officer said the pair were out of money at the time.

Magistrate Wills said there was almost prima facie evidence for attempted burglary and remanded the youths to view their record.

Four in Boat, One Lifejacket

Failure to have enough lifejackets in his boat cost a Belleville man $25 and costs today.

Stanley Sills pleaded guilty to the charge laid by RCMP Corporal N. E. Rossiter after the officer said he found only one lifejacket aboard the 16 - foot craft in mid - channel on the Trent River.

There were three youths with Mr. Sills in the boat at the time.

Heeney Assails Report Distortion

By DON MacLACHLAN

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—An "almost impossible distortion" of the Heeney-Merchant report on Canadian - American relations has given many persons the idea it proposes to gag the Canadian and United States governments, co-author Arnold D. P. Heeney said Wednesday.

Mr. Heeney told the third annual Banff conference on world development that the report is quite clear in suggesting each country should reserve the right to speak out on critical issues. It suggests only that this be a last resort.

"Many Canadians interpreted emphasis on quiet diplomacy, on the avoidance of public disagreement, as a proposal to gag the Canadian government and prevent Canadian public criticism of U.S. external policies.

"The text of the report is quite clear. There is categorical reservation of what the prime minister subsequently referred to as the right, indeed the responsibility, to speak out when the national interest of Canada requires it."

Mr. Heeney, former Canadian ambassador in Washington, added that the report's "proposed restraint on premature public criticism was . . . intended to apply and is intended to apply to the United States as well as Canada."

INDICATES FAILURE

Mr. Heeney, who prepared the report with Livingston T. Merchant, former U.S. ambassador to Ottawa, said: "Speaking out is not an attempt at persuasion, it is an indication persuasion has failed."

While "quiet diplomacy" was recommended for the two governments, the report specifically recognized the right to public criticism of non-government sources in both countries.

"If Canada is to try to influence United States policy in directions of Canadian national interest, Mr. Heeney said, direct public confrontation with the U.S. is the very last and usually most unpromising resort.

RATS REPLACE RAILS

LINCOLN, England (CP)—Lincolnshire farmers are worried about an unforeseen aftereffect of the closing of uneconomic railway lines. They say disused tracks and cuttings are ideal breeding grounds for rats, rabbits and weeds, which then invade the nearest farmer's land.

Former Army Man Facing Seven Charges

MONTREAL (CP) —Gaston Collin, 33, of Montreal, was arraigned Wednesday on seven charges involving the placing of dynamite bombs on railway property.

Collin, who spent 12 years in the Canadian Army, was remanded in custody, without bail, for preliminary hearing Sept. 1. Police said he has lately been a member of Les Chevaliers de l'Independance, an organization which advocates an independent Quebec.

Collin was arrested Tuesday after an investigation into the discovery of dynamite on a CPR bridge Aug. 2 and into an explosion on CNR tracks the same day near St. Hyacinthe,

Interesting thing about daily newspapers:

they never take a vacation

Maybe you've never thought of the communications industry as "going on vacation". But it happens. Take television. Every summer, television viewing slumps from 30% to 50%. All those TV sets literally go on vacation. Radio takes a winter holiday. Listening drops some 15%. But daily newspapers? They never take a holiday. Winter, summer, spring, or fall, circulation never varies more than 4%. Whatever the time of year, wherever they are, and whatever they're doing, most Canadians continue to read a daily newspaper.

Newspapers are a part of our daily life here in Canada.

Over 12 million people read one every day, for news of our towns, our country, our world. And for the ads, too! In a recent survey validated by the Canadian Advertising Research Foundation, 83% of the people interviewed said they use their paper as a daily shopping guide.

So when advertisers want to reach people with news about their products or services, daily newspapers make a great vehicle. Because daily newspaper advertising never takes a vacation. It goes right on reaching the people, regardless of the season, all year round.

Income Tax Explained

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax office.

By C. A. MILLER
Retired Supervising Assessor, Income Tax Department

MEDICAL EXPENSES

Many taxpayers are still confused as to what they may claim as medical expenses. It would be impossible for me to list in this short column each individual item that may be claimed. All costs to the taxpayer for himself or dependants due to illness, injury or affliction may be claimed, except those drugs he can buy without a doctor's prescription, but here again, there are certain drugs that can still be claimed for which no prescription is needed. These include insulin, Vitamin B12 for pernicious anemia and oxygen. Ordinary patent medicines are not allowable.

Other allowable deductions are for artificial limbs, crutches, eye glasses, wheel chairs, spinal braces, a brace for a limb, a truss for hernia, an artificial eye, a larnygeal speaking aid, a hearing aid, tec. The taxpayer is allowed the cost of these items as a medical expense, if for himself, wife or any other dependant.

Hospital bills may not be claimed if paid by a Provincial Hospital Services plan to which the taxpayer subscribes. Doctors, dentists and nurses bills if paid by some form of insurance the taxpayer carries may still be claimed as his personal medical expenses, if the expenses were for himself, wife or dependants.

If the taxpayer, wife or dependants require the services of a full time attendant for a 12 month period due to such person being confined to a bed or wheel chair, then the cost of such an attendant may be claimed as a medical expense. This cost would not only include the wages paid but also a reasonable amount for the attendant's board. Any bill of which you are in doubt, consult your nearest income tax office or a letter to me, following the instructions given below, will bring you correct information.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1; I live in a small village and have to travel 60 miles each week to consult a medical specialist. Can I add this travelling expense to my medical bills?

Answer: No.

Question 2; My daughter quit work and came home to look after her mother who is confined to bed due to illness. Can I claim the cost of her board and clothes as wages to an attendant?

Answer: No. She probably does other housework besides taking care of her mother.

Johnson Gives Green Light To Laboratory

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson gave the go-ahead Wednesday for a new $1,500,000,000 U.S. venture in space, a manned orbiting laboratory that will have military potential.

At the same time, Johnson described the two-man Gemini 5 flight as "a dramatic reminder that our American dream for outer space is a dream of peace," and he invited the Soviet Union to send one of its top scientists to the October launching of Gemini 6.

The orbiting laboratories, as the Gemini spacecraft, will carry two-man astronaut teams.

Johnson said the United States will not orbit weapons of mass destruction, but he also noted the space laboratories will enable the U.S. to relate "what man is able to do in space . . . to the defence of America."

Johnson dealt with a wide assortment of topics in a 40-minute press conference carried live by radio and television. There were no dramatic new pronouncements on the war in Viet Nam, but much of the press conference dealt with the fighting there.

U.S. IS UNITED

American fighting men, Johnson said, "have been giving a very good account of themselves" and the U.S. is united behind them.

But Johnson said what the U.S. wants in Viet Nam is negotiations and peace — and he hopes the whole world knows it.

'So peace—peace, that simple little five-letter word—is the most important word in the English language to us at this time," Johnson said, "and it occupies more of our attention than any other word or any other subject."

U.S. Ambassador Sets Off Debate by Walking Out Of Reception at Kremlin

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—Suppose you are the American ambassador here and are invited to a Kremlin reception to honor the leader of a neutralist country.

Suppose a member of the host government insults you by calling your country an aggressor.

Do you stay or walk out?

Ambassador Foy Kohler of the United States chose to walk out—and thereby set off a round of debate, speculation, second-guessing and post-mortems about the wisdom of his move.

Reverberations of the incident could ripple for some time through the propriety-conscious, never-never land of international diplomacy.

Kohler, a quietly intense man who is small in stature but a giant among his diplomatic peers, stood with a bemused expression on his face as Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin ripped into the U.S. at a recent reception for the king of Afghanistan.

While a hallfull of Soviet dignitaries and foreign diplomats listened, Kosygin accused the Americans of conducting aggressive actions "fraught with the gravest consequences for world peace."

He promised the Soviet Union would continue to help its "Vietnamese friends" to strengthen their defence potential and bring an end to "American aggression."

REMARKS UNACCEPTABLE

Kohler had politely suffered through several similar attacks although he once walked out of a function at an eastern European embassy because he felt his country had been insulted by a reference to Viet Nam.

But after the Kremlin incident he was reported to be considering his engagements more carefully, accepting invitations only to events he felt sure would involve no attacks on U.S. policy.

After the Kosygin speech, Kohler waited until the Afghan monarch, Mohammed Zahir Shah, had made a predictably neutral reply and then slipped away from the diplomatic entourage with his wife and headed for the door.

"I don't feel the remarks made by Mr. Kosygin are acceptable to me when I am a guest and have no chance to reply," he told a couple of reporters.

One American correspondent believes Kohler made an error by leaving.

"I think he's been altogether too sensitive about this sort of thing right along," the correspondent said.

But a neutralist diplomat disagreed: "If it had been my country I couldn't have walked out because we're too small. But Kohler did the right thing."

NOT CAUSE FOR WAR

Many, observers thought the basic issue was one of common courtesy. It's just not polite to launch one-sided attacks against foreign guests—even though the policies of the guest's country may be despised.

But the Russians have never had much truck with diplomatic niceties. The shoe-pounding episode by former premier Khrushchev at the United Nations some years back set the Soviet tone in such matters.

At one time in the history of international relations, the Kremlin incident would have been settled on the battlefield. Wars have been fought on flimsier pretexts.

Kohler's response to the provocation entailed nothing as serious as that but it could still have significance in the context of Soviet-U.S. relations.

"So what does he do next time he receives an invitation to a Kremlin reception?" mused a second American correspondent. "Perhaps he phones up the government and says, 'Look, boys, I'll come if you promise not to make any nasty remarks about my country' "

Six days later Kohler attended a Kremlin reception for Prime Minister Urguplu of Turkey, correctly figuring there would be no attacks on the U.S. at a gathering in honor of the representative of a NATO country.

Company Gambles Millions In Large Oil Reserves

By RON MacDONALD

MILDRED LAKE, Alta. (CP) Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. is gambling $190,000,000 that its key will fit the door to one of the world's largest oil reserves.

At a mile-square site on the Athabasca oil sands here, the company is constructing the facilities for extracting crude oil from the sands and sending it by pipeline to Edmonton, 280 miles southwest, where it will go into the Interprovincial pipeline for the trip to Ontario refineries.

Great Canadian plans to use a water flotation process to extract oil from the sands that sprawl over 13,000 square miles of northeastern Alberta wilderness, smelling like a newly-asphalted road on a hot day.

Oil slicks cover roadside polls in this area and in places where banks have been cut away by construction crew, oil oozes forth.

The Alberta Oil and Gas Conservation Board, overseer of the province's oil industry, estimates the sands contain 700,000,000,000 barrels of crude.

The Great Canadian site now employees about 900 construction workers, the work force will rise about 1,700 in a year About 500 permanent workers will run the plant when it is completed.

Construction of the plant, with its processing building, 16 massive storage tanks and 350-foot stack, is going ahead rapidly on a site cut out of the poplar and spruce forests that line the banks of the Athabasca.

GIANT SCOOPS

Nearby is a pilot plant where 80 technicians are working the bugs out of the water flotation process devised more than 10 years ago by the Alberta Research Council and private industry.

Great Canadian plans to strip-mine the oil sands on its 3,800-acre lease. The oil-laden sand, an average of 60 feet below the surface, will be scooped up by two giant $1,000,000 buckwheel excavators and carried by a conveyor belt at the rate of 5,000 tons an hour to the processing plant.

At the plant it will be mixed with steam and hot water to form a thick slurry. When the slurry is placed in a separation tank the oil floats to the top as a froth while the heavy sand sinks to the bottom. The oil froth is skimmed off the top by revolving wiper blades that look like huge winds[illegible] wipers.

Further processing will remove the last of the sand. Coke is then extracted to fuel the plant and after sulphur and hydrogen are removed, are product left is light gravity crude.

The daily output will be 45,000 barrels of oil, the maximum production initially allowed by the Alberta government, about 375 tons of sulphur, 3,000 tons of coke and more than 50,000 tons of sand.

The sulphur will be shipped out by rail and it is hoped eventually to establish a glass-plant in the area to utilize the sand.

The annual operating cost will be about $7,500,000, with another $6,500,000 for payroll and $14,000,000 for taxes and interest on debt.

NUCLEAR SUGGESTION

Total investment will be about $190,000,000, with $67,500,000 from Sun Oil; $12,500,000 from a debenture issue to Alberta residents (initially, one $100 debenture to each applicant); and the remainder from institutional borrowing.

First crude is to flow through the pipeline in September, 1967, 180 years after voyageur Peter Pond first recorded the presence of the oil sands in this area and noted that the local Indians used the gooey substance to caulk their canoes.

Since Pond's discovery, many a scheme has been proposed to break the tight embrace of the sands and oil, including a proposal by Richfield Oil Corp., Imperial Oil Ltd. and Cities Service Athabasca Inc. to use a nuclear blast.

One plant near here in the 1930s produced bitumen surfacing that was used on roads in Jasper National Park and Edmonton.

The Oil and Gas Conservation Board gave final approval to the GCOS project in February, 1964, and told two other companies with oil sands proposals, Cities Service and Shell Canada, to re-apply in 1968.

Shell has part ownership of Great Canadian Oil Sands.

The Alberta government wants to keep production from the oil sands initially at about five per cent of total oil production in Alberta, now running at about 550,000 barrels a day.

There seems little doubt that eventually other companies will be able to move into the sands, even with the five per cent restriction still in force, since over-all Alberta production is climbing steadily.

Some observers say investment in the oil sands by the end of the century could total more than $1,000,000,000.

TUKTOYAKTUK, N.W.T. (CP)—Eskimos have lost faith in the northern affairs department and only local government will restore that faith, the Carrothers commission has been told in this arctic coast settlement.

David Anderson, who operates a hotel here, told the advisory commission on the [illegible]velopment of government in [illegible] Northwest Territories during the weekend that the North is run by remote control by Ottawa.

"Major projects require four or five years before they are approved because they are decided upon outside the community concerned. By this time they are out-dated, out-moded and in most cases useless," said Mr. Anderson.

The federal government also created a problem by hiring persons from the south and providing them with homes and services. Eskimos hired by the government must find their own accommodation.

Mr. Anderson said natives would be more than happy to pay "the pittance" whites pay for such homes.

TURNOVER A PROBLEM

Jim Clark, manager of the Hudson's Bay Company store, said a main problem in the North is the big turnover in government personnel.

Nurses, teachers and others were just beginning to realize the problems of their communities when they were either transferred to other northern towns or went back south.

The answer was to sign these workers to three-year contract, he said. He also advocated northern allowances.

The commission headed by A. W. R. Carrothers, dean of law at the University of Ontario, met here during a 35-day tour of the North. Tuktoyaktuk is 1,200 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Ann Landers

One Doesn't Need Friends of This Kind

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Am I big-hearted or do I have the word sucker written all over my face?

There are eleven houses on this block but everybody who wants to borrow a cup of sugar or an aspirin rings my bell. The lady next door is married to a man who can buy and sell my husband ten times over, yet she has been using my washing machine for three weeks.

The man across the street had trouble getting his car started. Of all the places he could have gone for help he picked me. (Yes, I'm a strong woman, but wouldn't you have thought he'd ask a man to help him?) Well, Ann, I have pushed his car every day for two weeks. Yesterday I said, "Look, I'm pushing you today for the last time. Get a new battery and leave me alone." Boy, he is mad.

Am I an oddball to resent this? I don't ask my neighbors for the time of day. Please give me some advice.—THE MAGNET.

DEAR MAG: There's a vast difference between lending a neighbor an aspirin and pushing a man's car every day for two weeks. If you don't know the difference, then you ARE an oddball.

Each person must decide for himself how far he will let friends and neighbors go. You've let yours go too far, Petunia.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband who is 41 has had a serious liver problem for over seven years. This last year it has become much worse.

The doctor told Jack in 1959 that he must give up alcohol if he wants to live. I have threatened to leave him, I've cried, and even gotten down on my knees and begged him to leave liquor alone, but I might as well talk to the lamp post.

Two weeks ago Jack had an acute attack and had to be rushed to the hospital. I thought surely it would kill him or cure him. Lord knows how he pulled through.

Jack has been home from the hospital three days and is feeling much better. Tonight before supper he fixed himself a martini. Now he's on his fourth and told me to skip the dinner. Why would a man do this when his doctor has told him it adds up to suicide?—DESPONDENT WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: Because he is an alcoholic. And alcoholics want to kill themselves but they'd rather use a bottle than a gun.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I always knew there was something extraordinary about me but I didn't know what to call it until I read some books on extrasensory perception. I have it.

When I wake up in the morning I can feel when I'm going to receive a letter. I can often tell within seconds that the phone is going to ring. I've walked down the street and thought of someone I hadn't seen in months, and within minutes I've bumped into that person.

Several weeks ago I said to my father, "The market is awfully high. It's going down soon." The next day it really took a dive.

I'm dating a very fine man. I've only gone out with him four times but I know I'm going to marry him. Do you think I should tell him? Would it hurt or help the romance?—JANUS.

DEAR JANUS: I've only got five senses and sometimes I'm not too sure of THEM so I'm in no position to give advice to someone who can predict what's going to happen to the stock market.

I don't think it's smart to tell a man you're going to marry him until he asks you—with or without E.S.P.

Nice Having Predictable Parents for Predicaments

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS: How do you ditch a guy? And how do you know who is good and who is bad?

At the last dance I was to a stranger came and asked me to dance. I did. We started talking and found we had many acquaintances in common. Then he made me promise I'd ask my parents if he could take me home after a special dance which is coming up.

On the way home with my Mom and Dad they told me this guy was usually drunk and was in general bad for me. And other things about him.

I don't want to get mixed up with him and I guess I broke my promise because I'm not going to ask my Dad if he can take me home from the special dance because I know the answer is "no". What do I do now?

This is the first predicament I've ever been involved in between my parents and a guy and it is so embarrassing I never want to go through it again.—NEVER AGAIN.

DEAR NEVER AGAIN: Parents are just about the handiest things a girl can have in a case like this. Simply tell your Dad about your promise and get his definite "no". Then pass the message along, quite honestly.

Nobody can size people up, and be 100 per cent right, at first glance. Get the habit of sharing things with Mom and Dad; because there'll be other predicaments to meet, I'm sorry to say!

* * *

DEAR DORIS: Could you please send me a list of vocations for any grade XII graduates with an average of 60 to 65?

Also send me a list of vocations for a grade XI student with a 60 to 65 average?—UNDECIDED.

DEAR UNDECIDED: It's not that easy. All grades tell us is something about a student's scholastic ability—and even that is not too reliable. Other things, like home life, temperament, outside activities enter in.

Choosing a career means tabbing talents, noting a person's native drive, probable level of intelligence, behavior, and matching all this and other things up with what employers are calling for in the way of skills.

Otherwise, all I can do is send you a book which lists vocations and have you read about all of them. Talk to your teacher or career counsellor.

(For more about this, write in for my leaflet "On Choosing a Career", enclosing ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I've never gone out with boys, ever. The other night, a couple of girl friends and I went to the show. I almost always wear lipstick but I didn't that night. When I came home, my hair was a mess and of course I had no lipstick on.

I overheard Mum say to Dad, "She's been out necking!" But I wasn't. Why should she get so suspicious now when I've never ever given her any reason to doubt me?

Neither Mum nor Dad have said anything to me about it but the quiet is worse than the bawling out. I can't act myself around them, and I'm scared to death to talk to them about it.—DESPERATE.

DEAR DESPERATE: Guess what? Your mother is worried too, but hates to start something which will upset you! Show her this column and tell her you are the Desperate One. Tell her what happened that night—even if it takes all the nerve you've got. She won't bite.

* * *

Confidential to DISPRISED: If you were to sue for divorce and could produce evidence (of which there seems to be ample), the guilty party would have little to say as to whether or not a divorce would be granted. See a lawyer.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: After reading the letter from "Undecided", the girl who couldn't choose between the man she wants to marry and her little boy, Tony, I would like to tell her that my daughter gave up her little two-year-old boy for a man that didn't want someone else's child.

That little boy cried his heart out for his mother when she left him with me. I adopted him and gave him all my love, and many times found myself hating my daughter for the hurt she did to this boy. He is still hurt about it. To hurt a dear little child for a man that is so narrow-minded is a terrible act.

The man my daughter gave up her son for, left her for another woman that has two children. No man is worth that. Any woman that could hurt a little child that much, deserves the unhappiness she will have later. — A MOTHER WHO KNOWS.

DEAR MOTHER: Thank you. This boy was old enough to become attached to his mother, and rightly felt rejected by her. A completely different situation from that of the unmarried teenager who gives her baby for adoption at birth.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I would be pleased if you could convey my thanks in your column to many people across Canada who have sent devotional literature. The churches have particularly welcomed such publications as Every Day, The Upper Room, Portals of Prayer, Forward, The United Church Observer.

I have written to a few of the donors but the numbers have increased beyond my coping with correspondence. It has been an inspiring experience to see the response to your appeal.

We have a few links with Canada in recent years. Staffing is one of our difficulties and CUSO (Canadian University Service Overseas) is certainly giving us a big help. My teacher of English is from Toronto and another is coming from Vancouver in September.—JOHN R. GRAY, Principal, Cayman Government Grammar School.

DEAR MR. GRAY: So glad our readers have reached out to you. Now that the Rev. John Lord is relieving you as pinch-hitter in the Presbyterian Church you'll have more time to devote to the pressing problems of education in Cayman Islands. (Note to readers: Literature of the type listed above will be gratefully received by: The Rev. John Lord, Presbyterian Church, George Town, Grand Cayman Island, B.W.I.)

Book Corner

By FRASER MacDOUGALL

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Reform of the Canadian Senate can probably best be left to the Senate itself, says F. A. Kunz, an assistant professor at McGill University.

Dr. Kunz sets out his conclusion in The Modern Senate of Canada 1925-1963 (University of Toronto Press), the 15th volume in a series on government in Canada.

There are several areas in which the Senate could increase its usefulness, he writes. The most obvious was in continued expansion of its committee work on legislation and particularly in scrutiny and inquiry.

Helped by its flexible rules and its pervading spirit of impartiality, it could develop effective ways of examining certain aspects of financial administration, especially relating to Crown-owned corporations, and in checking certain executive practices, especially in the field of delegated legislation.

It could increase the number of special inquiries and enlarge their scope and variety.

"All this requires very little external stimulus and can be achieved through imaginative leadership and, perhaps, a few changes in internal organization."

Dr. Kunz discusses reform proposals made in 1925 in Prof. R. A. Mackay's book, The Unreformed Senate of Canada, to which the present volume is virtually a sequel.

MANY CHANGES MADE

Prof. Mackay suggested making it possible to introduce private bills first in the Senate rather than the Commons, to permit ministers from the Commons to introduce legislation in the Senate, to increase use of Senate committees and to divide the task of piloting government legislation among senators generally rather than confining it to the government Senate leader.

"All of these proposals . . . have been put into effect one by one during the last 37 years," says Dr. Kunz, a native of Hungary who holds degrees from the University of Budapest as well as Sir George Williams and McGill in Montreal.

His comprehensive study leads him to the conclusion that the Senate has performed a useful function in the Canadian political structure.

It had exercised its legal powers in a responsible way, relying on persuasion rather than obstruction in stands against the Commons. In economic and social policy "it has wisely taken the lead of the elected House." Its membership had never, at least since 1925, been associated with notions of social superiority.

Dr. Kunz advances two ideas for external reform of the Senate.

RETIRE AT 75

One calls for a fixed retirement age for senators, not higher than 75 and not lower than 70. A footnote remarks that a bill providing for retirement of future senators at 75 was passed just as the book went to press.

The other idea relates to method of appointment.

Here the problem was how to reconcile the need for legislative competence, achieved by appointment of former MPs, with the idea of non-partisanship.

One solution might be to develop certain constitutional conventions which would bind the prime minister in making appointments. It had also been proposed that Senate appointments should be seconded by the Opposition leader or that there should be a statutory maximum and minimum for government and non-government members.

". . . Some reform along these lines would probably help improve the composition of the Senate and increase its all-round efficiency."

Dr. Kunz has assembled a wide range of interesting material on the Senate's performance but on at least one point his research was incomplete.

For example, he states that Senate committee meetings are not attended by newspaper reporters and thus the Senate receives no credit for its useful work in this field. The fact is that The Canadian Press assigns reporters to all Senate committee meetings just as it does to regular sittings of the Senate itself.

Family Reunions

WAY PICNIC

The descendants of the three Way families gathered at Wellington Park on August 14th for their annual picnic. . . . . . .

After dinner the president, Mr. Philip Way of Rochester, N.Y., called the gathering to order for the 29th reunion. A few words of welcome were extended to Misses Margaret and Ruth Way from Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, and to Mr. and Mrs. Hallam from Florida.

The 1966 reunion will be held on the third Saturday in August. The place will be decided upon by the American cousins. Judy Pitcher and Connie Way succeeded Mrs. Torelli as sports conveners. Other officers will continue in their positions for the coming year.

Regret was expressed by the absence of the family historian, Mr. Glenn C. Way and Mrs. Way of Niagara Falls, N.Y. Two minutes' silence was observed for the recent passing of Mrs. Fred Crews, Mr. Frank Way, Mr. Wesley Way and others.

The sports program was conducted by June Way as follows: balloon race, tie between Connie Way and Dianne Harder; bean guessing contest won by Mrs. B. Way; candy scramble, Dale Way; wheelbarrow race, Clare Pitcher and Ronnie Boulton; minute walk, Ruth Way; spoon and marble race, Clare Pitcher; plate throwing, Miltie Way; oldest woman present, Mrs. P. G. Way of Rochester, N.Y.; oldest man present, Mr. Ezra Maybee; guest from greatest distance, Margaret and Ruth Way of Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan; guest from shortest distance, Ezra Maybee of Wellington.

Most guests remained for a picnic supper in the evening.

Campbellford Girl Wins In Contest

TORONTO (CP)—An 18-year-old high school graduate from Campbellford whose future plans don't include farming won Wednesday's Ontario Dairy Princess preliminary judging at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Maria Battagalino, representing Northumberland County, says she plans to attend teachers' college and complete music studies she started five years ago.

In that time, Maria has won five scholarships—four for piano and one for singing, and this year won the grand challenge award at the Northumberland Music Festival.

She's a church organist, plays the accordion and is currently in Grade 10 in her piano studies.

Bible Camp Situated on Former Farm

HILLIER — Pleasant Bay Bible Camp, situated by Lake Ontario and a former farm, was purchased by the Baptist Churches two years ago.

Many changes have taken place since. Barns have been cleaned and painted and benches have been moved in for films and other recreation. A tuck shop with supplies of drinks and ice cream has been installed and a large field has been mowed and made into a ball diamond.

The camp accommodates about 30 children each week. A full time cook and several volunteer counsellors make up the staff.

Playground Activities

EAST HILL

In the sand modelling contest Yvon Callahan was first and Anita Callahan came second and Anne Dodson third. Everyone enjoyed this and took part.

In the painting contest Anne Dodson was first, her sister, Laurie Dodson, was second Glenn Watson was third and Nancy Bronson fourth. All took part and all won prizes. The supervisors of East Hill Park are Doreen Flunder and Bob Watson, who would like to thank the children of East Hill Playground for their co - operation, interest and participation in the program this summer.

Women's Institutes

IVANHOE W.I.

IVANHOE — The August meeting of the Ivanhoe Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Howard Cooke, recently, with 15 women present.

Mrs. A. Revoy, the president, opened the meeting in the usual manner and extended a cordial welcome to all. A number of business items were discussed.

As this was health meeting the program was conducted by the health convener Mrs. H. Cooke, and Mrs. Arthur Wood gave the motto "Is retirement good for the health." The musical portion was given by Mrs. W. Fitchett and a reading by Mrs. J. Moorcroft. A paper on the topic was given by Mrs. John Wallace and first aid hints were read by Mrs. J. McInroy.

The hostess along with a few helpers served lunch.

New Powers To Control Young Sought

TORONTO (CP) —The Ontario Municipal Association has urged Attorney-General Arthur Wishart to provide municipalities with special powers to control unruly youths.

The request was made at the association's annual meeting Wednesday at which the Township of Sandwich East also made an appeal for protection against growing teen-age terrorism in the Windsor area.

The association authorized its executive to form a committee to study the problem and prepare a brief for submission to Mr. Wishart and the Ontario legislature's select committee on youth.

Sandwich East's resolution said groups of youths under the age of 16 are showing an increasing disrespect for property and the rights of other people.

Hoodlums are becoming more difficult to curb because people are unwilling to be identified and to testify. Gangs challenge other people to use sidewalks, drive - in restaurants, dance halls and parks throughout Essex County.

The resolution asked for power to impose curfew, restrictions on the use of motorcycles in troubled areas, special police units to be dispatched to these districts and severe penalties for assaults on policemen.

Reeve Mel Sewart of Thorold Township said there is increased vandalism and disrespect for the law not only by youths but also by adults. He cited several instances in which citizens had refused to come to the aid of police in trouble.

CROCHET A COASTER

Dear Susanna: The knitting pattern you sent my daughter and me the little chicken egg warmers was not only easy to follow but we were as happy as could be with the results. As we both find crocheting a pleasant form of relaxation too, do you suppose we could impose on you for another pattern idea that would fill the bill either for use at home, or as a gift or sale item? Can't tell you how much your help is appreciated along these lines.

We have enclosed hints that we trust you will find suitable for the column, and will anticipate hearing from you soon. — M. and E. Culligan

Think you might care to crochet some cozy, crinkley, colorful cool-drink-coasters? We have a darling pattern that makes up very quickly — a dozen or two in half as many days—and they are stretchy enough to fit several size tumblers.

With these pretty protectors in place you won't have to spend the evening wondering if your guests are really using the multitude of coasters you have set out everywhere on your lovely furniture — only to find you forget about father's desk in the den and some inveterate wet-glass-setter-downer has done it again!

Thank you so much for your excellent hints — will certainnly be using them in the column. Anyone else care to crochet? We'd love to send you the pattern too! — SUSANNA

(There is no charge for these instructions from Susama — all she hopes is that you will have some little idea of your own to send her in return.)

EVERY HAIR IN PLACE

Dear Susanna: You answered a gal who had pickled egg problems. Could you please send me the complete recipe? In return, here is a simple time-saving tip for working girls who never go to sleep without donning their hairnets in order to save on the number of hair settings they will need, to keep looking their smartest:

Before stepping into that quick early morning shower — or that steamy bath — leave your hair net in place with all the ends tucked in and see how easily your shower cap goes right on over everything. This has prolonged many a lovely hairdo for me. — M. Ross

It's also a good idea to go right back to the dry air in your bedroom before removing the cap and net . . . and my favorite pickled egg recipe is on its way to you right now! — SUSANNA

Pakistani Man Makes Good Hubby

KARACHI (Reuters)—Pakistani men are completely ignorant of the art of love, according to an analysis made by the women's magazine, She.

While admiring Western ways of life and aping Westerners on every possible occasion, Pakistani men become suddenly old-fashioned when it comes to their own womenfolk, the magazine adds.

Firmly convinced that men are the stronger sex, they are equally adamant in believing that woman's place is in the home.

"Men may give a thousand reasons why a woman's place is in the home but the reason which worries them most is the one they will never voice—that it makes the women independent," adds She.

Pakistani men do not marry for love, for they are tied to the maternal apron - strings. They go meekly to the altar when mama has found a suitable marriage partner, says the magazine, adding that men expect to be similarly pampered by their wives.

Yet, the magazine concludes, the Pakistani man makes a good husband. Once married, he rarely looks at another woman. Although he is allowed four wives, he remains a one-woman man. And while he may be a poor lover, he usually succeeds in building a happy home.

Northumberland Strait Link Spurs Visions of Canal

By DON LeBLANC

AMHERST, N.S. (CP) — The decision to build a causeway-bridge-tunnel linking Prince Edward Island with the mainland has rekindled hopes of Maritimers for a canal across the Isthmus of Chignecto.

Many had regarded the two projects in the same light—nothing more than dreams—until Prime Minister Pearson announced July 8 plans to go ahead with the Northumberland Strait crossing. Now visions of a canal across the 17-mile stretch of land between nearby Cumberland Basin in the Bay of Fundy and Baie Verte in the Northumberland Strait appear more realistic.

The Prince Edward Island-New Brunswick link-up, to cost $148,000,000, was discussed before Confederation. The Chignecto Canal, cost of which would run more than $100,000,000, dates back to a plan devised in 1686 by Jacques de Meulles, local administrator in New France.

Both projects were the subjects of a seemingly endless series of feasibility and engineering surveys. And there are probably more in store for the Chignecto Canal.

PROVED FEASIBLE

Since de Meulles suggested excavation of a ditch 10 to 12 feet wide and four feet deep nearly 200 years ago—he said the strong Bay of Fundy tides would widen and deepen the canal—there have been at least a dozen surveys and studies.

Not one of them disputes its feasibility and only the Young commission in 1875 and the Surveyer commission in 1934 expressed doubt about the economic aspect of its construction. However, these two surveys coincided with the depressions of the 1870s and 1930s.

A natural extension of the St. Lawrence Seaway, a waterway through the isthmus would cut 700 miles off the Montreal-Saint John, N.B., run and save 300 miles on a similar trip to the eastern seaboard.

This is what G. H. Ketchum, a railwayman, had in mind when he launched a plan to build the Chignecto Ship Railway in 1875.

A company was formed, plans prepared and $5,500,000 in capital raised, much of it in England. Work began in 1889 but the company was beset by problems even in the first year of construction. An unprecedented rainfall caused near flood conditions in this area throughout the summer, an earlier survey had overlooked extremely boggy conditions in one section and there was a shortage of manpower. Railway building was at its peak and the labor situation was desperate.

WENT BANKRUPT

Work progressed despite the unexpected setbacks but by the autumn of 1891 the company was bankrupt. The railway was within one year and $1,750,000 of completion although the company's deadline was still three years away.

At this point docks at either end of the railway were nearing completion, ties had been laid for much of the 17 miles and rails laid for all but five miles. Buildings to house the machinery for lifting ships on to oversized flatcars were built and all that was necessary was installation of the hydraulic machines and the excavation of channels leading to the two docks. The lifting equipment was already on the scene.

Much of the railway bed is still visible, especially at the ends, but the centre section has disappeared into a bog. With the company's failure, the idea of carrying ships piggyback was forgotten and engineers again turned to thoughts of a canal.

The idea of a Chignecto Canal has grown from de Meulles' concept of a ditch to include the harnessing of the Bay of Fundy's high tides for power generation. The power project, which would generate about 1,000,000 kilowatts would cost an estimated $325,000,000.

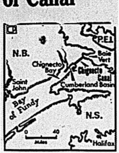
CAN SUPPORT DAMS

Atlantic Development Board engineers have already determined that the bottom of the Bay of Fundy could support dams for a massive tidal-water power project. At the same time, other engineers say such a power development in the Bay of Fundy would decrease the cost of the canal.

Most Maritimers consider a short cut through the isthmus of paramount importance to the region's development. For this reason the Chignecto Canal Committee, a group of politicians, economists and businessmen, continues to press for it.

Their feelings jibe with those of Premier R. L. Stanfield of Nova Scotia who says low-cost transportation is essential to the economic development of the Atlantic provinces.

"The Chignecto Canal will provide a waterway through which can flow the commerce of the Atlantic region," he says. "It will provide also, in conjunction with the St. Lawrence Seaway, a water route from the Eastern Seaboard to the markets of Central Canada."



CANAL HOPES REVIVED—Map shows proposed Chignecto Canal which would provide a direct water route from the Bay of Fundy across the narrow neck of land that joins New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Hopes for the canal — first proposed in 1686 — have been revived following announcement that the federal government plans to build a causeway from New Brunswick to Prince Edward Island.

Prairie Grain Harvest Well Under Way

OTTAWA (CP)—The Prairie grain harvest is well under way with yield prospects ranging from good to excellent, the bureau of statistics reported Wednesday.

High temperatures in the western farm belt have hastened maturity of the crops and also caused some deterioration. Rust has also had an adverse effect.

The fifth all-Canada telegraphic crop report by the federal agency also said Prairie hay yields are good and special crops are doing well. The survey was based on reports from crop correspondents and other observers received up to Tuesday.

The Ontario crop picture is brighter. The winter wheat harvest is practically complete with yields ranging from 75 per cent of normal to normal. Quality is average. The spring grain harvest is in full swing with excellent yields. August rains helped all crops, particularly corn, soybeans and white beans. The southwestern Ontario corn crop is the best ever but corn is variable elsewhere.

Liquor Sold From Tent At Orillia

ORILLIA (CP) — Provincial police are investigating the sale of liquor at the opening of the Orillia and District Chamber of Commerce's new building.

OPP Inspector Gordon M. Keast of Barrie said Wednesday that Tuesday's opening ceremony, attended by Premier Robarts, former premier Leslie Frost and other dignitaries, would be studied to see whether charges should be laid.

A tent was set up on the grounds to sell drinks for 40 cents each. The Orillia area is dry and no banquet licence had been obtained from the Liquor Control Board. Chamber Manager Hugh Grant said Wednesday that "as the chamber manager, I accept full responsibility for anything that went on."

Chamber President Ingo Peterson said "I did not see any member of the official party in the tent. I feel very badly about this. It was certainly not the intention to embarrass anyone."

Middle Age Really One Of Man's Minor Woes

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—If people fought sin as hard as they do middle age, earth would be a moral paradise.

Actually, middle age is one of man's least troublesome chronic ailments, once he faces up to the diagnosis and learns to relax and enjoy it.

You probably are middle-aged if — you grunt loudly when your wife sits in your lap.

No neighborhood youngster calls you by your first name anymore.

The only dance you can do is the fox trot—and you'd rather not even do that.

You read the daily medical columns in your newspaper, and no matter what the doctor is writing about you recognize the symptoms in yourself.

The last thing you do at night and the first thing you do in the morning is take a pill.

Are they really yours or aren't they? Only you and your dentist can be sure.

Taxicab drivers don't seem to be as wonderfully witty as they used to. You wish they'd just shut up and drive.

SLIPPERS GONE

If your wife throws away your old pair of slippers, you brood about it for days.

You get a softer pad for your swivel chair at the office, and you spend less time hanging around the water cooler trading gossip with the other fellows.

At a cocktail party you no longer talk to strange women until you're deep in your third martini—the one you swore you weren't going to have.

You'd rather pay to have the car washed than do it yourself.

If a long-haired youth with a beard sits next to you in the bus, you move to another seat.

You could probably still reach down and touch the floor without bending your knees, but why should you? What does it prove?

You don't want to drive anywhere unless you're sure that when you arrive there'll be plenty of parking space.

Falling leaves in autumn don't stir you to pensive thoughts. You just fret because you're the one who'll have to rake them up.

GLASSES WENT BY SEA

BIRMINGHAM, England (CP) Sales manager Ernest Deavin dropped his spectacles into the sea off Majorca while on holiday. Two months later they arrived by mail at his home here, sent by a skin-diver who had found them on the North Italian coast. After travelling 500 miles under water, they were still in their case, in perfect condition.

Decision on Fees Seen as Key To Bargaining for Civil Service

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The postponement of any decision on a move to increase the funds available to the Civil Service Federation of Canada was seen today as boiling down to a question of whether a large segment of government employees is fully ready to accept the collective bargaining promised them by the government.

Delegates to the federation's 24th triennial conference turned back Wednesday for further study a proposal that fees paid by national associations on behalf of 68,000 of its 80,000 members be raised to 45 cents a month from 30 cents.

The decision to refer the raise back to the federation's finance committee was taken after the Federated Association of Letter Carriers—one of the unions involved in the recent postal walkout — said it could not commit its 5,500 members to the increase until it is considered at the association's national convention in Montreal next year.

Federation sources, however, made it clear that if the increase does not go through the government employees' group will not have the financial resources available to tackle the problems it expects will come when civil servants enter soon into collective bargaining with the government—a long-sought objective that now has been promised them.

Frank Lancaster, chairman of the federation's finance committee which presented the proposed increase, said that if the organization does not get the extra money it will have to curtail some of its plans for the next three years, including pu ting up $25,000 a year for ed cational purposes.

Another source said, hov ever, that if the 200 delegate do not support the increas fully it will mean they do n realize the implications i volved in getting collective ba gaining.

"It's simply a matter that we don't have the [illegible] hire proper experts or educa our members in what collectiv bargaining can mean and th best ways to gain maximu benefits, we won't win unde collective bargaining — we' lose," he said.

The delegates' decision to r fer the increase back for fu ther study was taken aft Claude Jodoin, president of th Canadian Labor Congress, to delegates that winning colle tive bargaining rights is on the opening shot in the war.

Inviting the federation affiliate with the 1,200,000-m CLC, Mr. Jodoin said bargai ing is merely a means to th end—"the final proof will b found in what results from th bargaining."

Conference sources [illegible] the chances of the fe ratic affiliating with the CLC a good, although considerable o position can be expected.

Ask Day Off For Workers Having Baby

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Should the civil service give a day off to any employee who gives birth to a baby?

A resolution calling for the day off was presented Wednesday night at the 24th triennial conference of the Civil Service Federation of Canada and it left the delegates baffled.

The resolution noted Canada "favors the addition of human capital" and said a birth is "a capital gain so to speak," then asked for a day off for any employee so blessed.

After one delegate shouted from the floor that any male civil servant who gives birth is entitled to at least a year off, the delegates voted to refer the resolution back to committee for further study.

Accord to End War in Yemen Eases Moscow Grip on Nasser

By PETER BUCKLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Joint agreement to end three years of civil war in Yemen, after months of unsuccessful peace moves, comes at a significant time for President Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

It also established King Faisal of Saudi Arabia as a new force in the turbulent Middle East.

Nasser is scheduled to leave this week for Moscow, and one of the prime objects of the visit is understood to be re-negotiation of the U.A.R.'s heavy indebtedness to Russia.

An estimated 50,000 Egyptian troops aided by tanks and aircraft have been stationed in Yemen since fighting began in September, 1962, between the Nasser - supported republicans and the royalist forces led by the deposed Imam, backed by Saudi Arabia.

The U.A.R.'s losses in dead and wounded are reported to have run as high as 25,000 men. The drain on her treasury has been estimated at about $1,000,000 a day.

Diplomatic observers in Europe became increasingly convinced Nasser could not afford to continue such a serious commitment without binding himself more tightly to Russia financially.

With the Yemeni agreement in his pocket, Nasser may expect more sympathetic treatment in Moscow as he perhaps seeks easier repayment terms for the heavy Russian investment in Egypt.

The financial squeeze on the Egyptian home front makes it easier to understand the reason for concessions Nasser apparently made in his talks with King Faisal.

Withdrawal of Egyptian troops by September, 1966, three months before the Yemenis vote on their future ina plebiscite, would remove virtually all possibility of overt Egyptian influence on the outcome of the plebiscite.

In London, The Guardian writes that Faisal "has confirmed his position as an Arab leader of comparable stature to President Nasser. . . .

"The king's most valuable gain from the agreement is time in which to prove his claim that reform is possible in the Middle East without revolution" the newspaper adds.

Soviets Happy Over Common Mart Strain

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — The Soviet Union always reacts with glee to evidence of strain and stress in the European Common Market.

The deadlock that developed in Brussels recently over questions of agricultural policy was welcomed by the Soviet press, which reflects official thinking on such matters.

Moscow has never made any effort to hide its hatred of the Common Market and the movement toward Western European political integration.

It doesn't relish the idea of seeing its predominant power position on the Continent challenged by any new super-state.

Its propaganda machine has always done its best to exploit signs of weakness in the program for a united Europe and to aggravate disputes among the countries concerned and, wherever possible, to sow distrust.

For some time, emphasis has been on driving a wedge between France and its partners by taking advantage of French dissatisfaction with failure of the ECM to adopt a common farm-price structure and doubts about further political consolidation.

In various ways, economic and diplomatic, the Soviet government has been pushing to develop its own special relationship with France and wheedle it away from the Atlantic Alliance.

A reflection of this campaign is seen in an article in Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, saluting the French on their national holiday, Bastille Day.

"It is quite obvious that the development of relations between big powers like the U.S.S.R. and France will be conducive to the strengthening of security in Europe and all over the world," Pravda said.

Citing French-U.S differences over Viet Nam, the Dominican Republic, the proposed multilateral nuclear force and the United Nations, the article said:

"Actually this position strengthens the international prestige of France and meets the demands of the relaxation of international tension."

A chortling note runs through much Moscow press comment on the Brussels crisis that erupted at the beginning of July.

"The latest events only show that the Common Market, as any other imperialist alliance, cannot, because of its nature, remove the profound contradictions between its members," Pravda said.

A few days later the newspaper declared the events at Brussels "graphically showed Paris the whole illusoriness of calculations based on the 'goodwill' of its partners-rivals." And it accused other members of ECM of applying "crude pressure" on France to bring about political integration.

The English-language Moscow News, in a commentary by Vladimir Suschenko, doctor of economics, refers to the "devastating flop" of negotiations in the Belgian capital and adds:

"I believe that the economic contradictions within the Six shape rivalries both within and without NATO — rivalries that are likely to cause this military alliance to 'go west.'"

Elderly Couple Attacked With Knife, Razor

PALMERSTON, Ont. (CP)—William Charles Clark, 17, of Toronto, was charged with attempted murder Wednesday after a Palmerston couple was attacked with a razor and two butcher knives in their home.

Palmerston police said Thomas Foley, 75, and his wife, Margaret, 55, picked up a hitchhiker in Arthur about 10:30 p.m., Tuesday and offered him a meal and a bed in their home because it was late.

They were in bed when the youth attacked them, they told police. One butcher knife broke and the youth grabbed a straight razor and continued the attack. It, took, broke and he got a second butcher knife.

Rains Halt Giants * * * * * * * * * * Others Beaten

Percentage Points Divide Top Four

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

It rained all over Herman Franks Wedneday and stalled his San Francisco Giants when they appeared ready to step past Milwaukee Braves into second place in the National League behind Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Giants were leading Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3 with one out in the bottom of the 10th inning and the Forbes Field scoreboard already showed that Los Angeles had lost 7-5 to New York Mets and that Milwaukee had gone down 7-4 to Cincinnati Reds.

But then the rain started and after waiting 46 minutes for the storm to abate, the officials called the game with the score reverting to the end of the last completed inning — the ninth— leaving the game a 3-3 tie.

That left the Giants in third place, a full game back of Los Angeles and one half game behind the Braves while the fourth place Reds closed within 1½ games of the lead. Only 10 percentage points separate the first four teams.

Billy O'Dell, beaten by Tommy Harper's two-out, two-run homer in the ninth Tuesday night, came on in relief of Dan Osinski with the score tied 4-4.

Pinch - hitter Tony Perez, who sat out the Tuesday game with a bad leg, immediately smacked a three-run homer to sew up the game.

The Dodgers dropped their second straight to the Mets as Joe Christopher whacked three hits, including a two-run homer, and Gordon Richardson pitched 6 2-3 innings of four-hit relief.

Houston Astros edged Philadelphia Phillies 7-6 and Chicago Cubs topped St. Louis Cardinal 6-3 in other league games.

Denis Menke, who made three errors, bobbled a bases-loaded grounder in the seventh and then belatedly ran to second for an attempted force although Frank Bolling was standing on the base, waiting for a throw.

In the sixth, pitcher Denny Lemaster fielded Sammy Ellis' bases-loaded bunt a few steps from the home plate, but instead of tagging the plate, or throwing to first, held onto the ball as the run scored.

Joe Gaines' pinch double delivered the tying run and Lee Maye's sacrifice fly brought home the winner as Houston rallied for two in the ninth to beat the fifth place Phillies. Rich Allen homered for the losers.

CHUVALO AT TWEED

An exuberent Jim Halpenny, chairman of the Tweed sports celebrity dinner on September 8th, called in to confirm two more big names in the sporting world for the affair. Rudy Pilous, one of the top speakers on any banquet circuit, and none other than Canada's gift to the world heavyweight boxing picture, George Chuvalo, are the latest to agree to appear. They join the likes of Bob Pulford, Bob Baun, Kent Douglas, King Clancy, Vince Scott, Les Ascot, Vince Mazza, Lloyd "Moon" Wooton, Jimmy Roberts, Pinky Lewis and M.C. Steve Douglas on the all-star list. Halpenny still hopes to add Whipper Billy Watson and Dave Keon to the list. Word is that tickets are going fast and will be mighty scarce in another week's time. Better get one now if you figure on attending.

TRUDEAUS ON SPOT

It's a do-or-die situation here tonight for Trudeau Motors when they tackle the powerful Kingston Prince George Indians in OASA Senior "B" playdowns. The game starts at the Fairgrounds, at 8.30. Trudeaus came up with a fine effort but still dropped a 2 - 1 decision in Kingston in the first game, so must win tonight to force a third. Coach "Shaker" Baker will likely send Bill Baldwin to the mound. If he does as good a job as Bob Green did Tuesday, against the Seniors, the Gilmours, Pester, Ferguson, White and company, Belleville could come up a winner. However, the club is missing the fine two-way play of Ralph Plane, a hospital patient with infection in a hand, and needs a strong effort from all points in order to win. The game should attract a big crowd.

* * *

There was no lack of ball here this summer, especially when all leagues had regular schedules going. In the immediate area there were approximately 60 to 70 games played weekly, broken down something like this: B. and D. softball (7), Commercial (8), Prince Edward North Shore (4), Interdepartmental (3), Belleville Minor Softball (15), South Hastings baseball (5), South Hastings Junior (4) and South Hastings "Little League" (4). There are undoubtly others that we have missed. It added up to a lot of ball and most groups are involved in some sort of playoffs, or are contemplating them by now.

* * *

High school football is just around the corner and much of the city action this year will again be at the Fairgrounds, it is expected. Floodlights, plenty of space and stands for the fans attracted at least one school there for home games last year and might add another this fall, according to rumor.

* * *

Los Angeles Dodgers Maury Wills, the baserunning great who hopes to lead his mates into the World Series this fall and at the same time surpass his 1962 all-time total of 104 stolen bases, recently came up with a good quote in a Sports Illustrated yarn. "I know when I have had a lousy day just by looking down at my uniform. If it isn't dirty I haven't scored two runs, I haven't done my job."

* * *

Coming up this Sunday is one of the highlights of the season for Belleville archers and handgunners. It is the second of the challenge matches between the Belleville Bowmen and the Quinte Handgun League slated for the handgunners' Rednersville range. The Bowmen lost a close-decision last year, by a slim 19 points after a full afternoon's shooting, and have vowed to even the score this time, or at least go down with all bows firing. Enthusiasts of both sports are advised not to miss the fun. The meet is turning into an annual affair because of its popularity.

* * *

Still on the shooting bit, there is plenty of activity out at the Quinte Trap and Gun Club these days. All local sportsmen have been invited to take advantage of club facilities to sharpen their eyes for the fast-approaching hunting season. Members' rates only are being charged for a limited time. By the way, there is a registered tournament on tap at the Quinte range on September 5 and the annual club tournament is scheduled for the following Sunday, Sept. 12.

Trenton Printers bowed out of the OASA Intermediate "A" playdowns last week by dropping two of three games to Kingston Frontenacs. Pat Maracle threw all three games for Trenton, winning the second on a three-hitter in Kingston. The veteran was not enough, however, with Kingston's Ken Lewis striking out 21 of the Printers in the series opener and 23 in the third tilt, won by a 7 - 1 score. The first two tilts were won by 4 - 1 scores.

The later start for the 1956-66 National Hockey League schedule means that Bob and Dennis Hull, summering across the bay, near here, do not have to report to camp until September 20 this fall. Both appear in good shape. Bob, by the way, ranks fifth among active players in goals, although he has been in the league only eight years. Gordie Howe, in the loop for 19 years, has 595 goals, followed by Jean Beliveau (12 years) with 385, Andy Bathgate (12 years) with 291, Alex Delvecchio (14 years) with 280 and Hull with 264.

Ontario Captures Rinks Title

By JOHN SHORT

EDMONTON (CP)—Ontario, British Columbia and Manitoba split titles evenly in the 1964 Canadian lawn bowling championships which wound up Wednesday before about 300 spectators.

Skip Don Beaupit of Niagara Falls sparked a 12-6 playoff triumph over Dick Williams and his British Columbia mates from Vancouver in the fours to gain a title for Ontario, which won all three 1964 titles. Sandy Houston of Vancouver won the singles crown for B.C. and skip Ed Brown and Tom Griffith of St. Boniface won the pairs title for Manitoba.

Champions last year were Joe Dorsch and R. L. Reidel of Waterloo, Ont., in pairs Karl Beacom of Toronto in the singles and a rink skipped by S. E. Bond of Toronto in fours.

Beaupit was aided by the third Jimmy Smart, second Bill Gilbert and lead Fred Marcante. Williams was supported by third Reg McConnell, second Dan Handling and lead George Henderson.

Houston was defeated by Beacom last year in the singles playoff. Houston, in his sixth national final, Wednesday defeated Manitoba champ Stan Townsend 21-15 to complete his perfect 6-0 record.

Houston won the 1963 championship. In the last three years, he has lost only two games, including the playoff with Beacom.

Manitoba finished with a perfect doubles record Brown and Griffiths sat through the last-round bye. The last-round singles bye went to Ontario representative John Sciamonte of St. Catharines and the fours bye to the Alberta crew skipped by Joe Church of Calgary.

Four pairs — Alberta, B.C., Ontario, and Nova Scotia—were tied with three wins and three losses, but Alberta won the title on the basis of points for and against.

Officials of the Canadian Lawn Bowling Council announced the 1966 championships will be held in Winnipeg.

Grabs 3-2 Decision

Bloomfield 2 Up On Ellis'

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

PICTON — Outhit by a healthy 10-3 margin, Bloomfield used alert base running to help them gain a spirited 3-2 win over Belleville Ellis Juniors before a large crowd here last night.

Bloomfield leads the four-of-seven B. and D. League finals, for the Bill Ott Trophy, two games to none. No dates have been set for remaining games since both clubs involved open OASA playdown series this Saturday.

The Juniors took a 2-0 lead in the opening frame and Bloomfield got one back in the fourth, tied it in the seventh and won with another tally in the eighth.

Bloomfield's winning marker came without the aid of a base hit. Jim Guernsey opened the inning by going to second on an infield error. A wild pitch carried him to third and he raced in on a short passed ball to snap the deadlock.

An error paved the way for the tying tally as well, putting C. Stacey on first. DeMille singled past second, sending his mate to third. The Juniors ignored DeMille as he went to second, with none out. After a popout, Keith Stacey hit a solid fly to right field and brother Carl scampered home after the catch. DeMille tried for third but was cut down to end the inning.

In the fourth, C. Stacey rapped a double over third, advanced on DeMille's ground out and raced in when an inside pitch got away from catcher Moon.

Rutherford was cut down trying to score on a passed ball in the fourth and was the victim again in the ninth, this time at third, when the losers got three solid hits without scoring a run.

Carl Stacey hurled the victory, striking out an even dozen. He gave up the ten hits, plus two walks, but was tough in the clutch.

Bob Ethier gave up an infield single to Leo St. Denis in the first, Carl Stacey's double in the fourth and Ken DeMille's single in the seventh, in defeat. He struck out ten and issued just one free pass, to the first batter he faced.

Junior coach Harold Reid tried several lineup changes, inserting Boyle at first base, moving Muirhead to centre field and dropping Chatland and Rutherford well down in the batting order.

Ellis' travel to Brockville and Bloomfield goes to Lindsay in OASA playdowns on Saturday, with return games in Belleville and Picton early next week.

Stoney Creek Advances In 'World Series'

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP)—Stoney Creek, Ont., became the first Canadian team to get past the opening round of a Little League world series by blanking Rota, Spain, 6-0 Wednesday.

The Canadians got good pitching from righthander Joe Polango, who struck out 12 and was never in serious trouble after his team gave him a five-run cushion in the second inning.

Semi-final games are scheduled today, with Friday an open date. Saturday's schedule calls for the consolation game between semi-final losers and the championship contest.

Minor Softball Results

In the BMSA Squirt Finals, on the West Hill, the Cardinals topped the Cubs 19 - 6 to take the hill championship.

These two winners will meet in a best-of-three series to decide the city championship, with the first game being slated for next Wednesday night, at Pine Street school. Game time is 6.00 p.m.

Advance In OASA

Pointers Oust Westwood

Unleashing their second heavy-hitting attack, the Point Anne Cementmen crushed Westwood 13 - 3 to capture their OASA Junior "D" playdown set two games to one, at Stirling last night.

Bill Shaw's Cementmen meet Elginburg in the next round. That series opens in Sydenham Saturday night, at 8.15.

Point Anne led from the second inning on, when they scored five, to notch their second straight lop-sided win over Westwood.

The winners pounded out a total of 17 hits against Westwood pitcher Godden. He walked four and the club erred six times to add to the woes. Godden struck out five.

Ron Maracle stopped the losers on seven hits over the route, three of them coming in the eighth when they scored twice. Maracle struck out a half dozen and walked only one.

Point Anne had five of their hits in the second and put together bunches of three in the fourth and sixth frames. Only in the seventh were they held hitless.

Dennis Maher, Perry Ellis and Mike Cook belted three hits apiece to spark the onslaught. Ron Maracle had a home run and one other safety while Rick Rosebush also slammed a homer. Dennis Hull and Gerry Maher each had two hits with Eric Maher getting the other.

Lynch was a two-hit man for Westwood while the others were split among Flagler, Brown, Patterson, MacMillan and McGee.

Foxboro Takes 6-5 Victory

Foxboro doesn't seem too concerned about the fact that Shannonville ended the regular season in first place in the South Hastings Baseball league. Last night they edged Shannonville 6-5 to take a 2-1 lead in their four-of-seven semi-final set.

The win was largely due to a fine pitching performance by Keith Dickey, as he allowed only five hits while whiffing three and walking the same number.

Larry Lewis and Bill Hill hurled from the loser's hill-top, and were raked for 12 hits, while claiming four on third strikes and walking one. Hill picked up the loss.

Foxboro jumped to a one run lead in the first inning, as they stroked four hits.

Shannonville got back into the race in the fourth with three tallies, but the winners responded in the bottom of the same frame to push across five runs on seven safeties. Jack O'Neil's home run blast was the highlight.

Shannonville started a rally in the sixth and last innning but it was choked off at a pair of runs.

Canada's Medal Hopes

Jerome, Crothers Win Easily

From AP-Reuters

BUDAPEST (CP) — Canada's best medal hopes passed their first tests with little difficulty Wednesday as the track and field events got under way at the World Student Games here.

Veteran sprinter Harry Jerome of Vancouver, still one of the world's best, won his semi-final in 10.3 seconds after winning an earlier heat in a leisurely 10.6.

Fritz Obersiebrasse of West Germany and George Anderson of the United States were also clocked in 10.3 in another semi-final race to lead—with Jerome —the qualifiers for the 100 metres final.

Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., won his 800 metres heat in an unexciting one minute, 52 seconds, putting on a strong spurt over the last 50 metres to overtake Hungary's Lorant Stoll.

The Canadian star, Olympic silver medallist in the 800 at Tokyo last year, said he was confident he could win his race and he took it easy. He let Stoll build up a large lead, he said, but "I knew I would catch him."

HARRY JEROME

One of the chief contenders in the 100 metres—the favorite, in fact—Enrique Figuerola of Cuba, had to drop out when he pulled a leg muscle in the morning heats. He won his heat in a slow 10.7.

Figuerola, Olympic silver medalist at Tokyo and favorite in the 100 metres, had to drop out when he pulled a leg muscle in the morning heats.

A big teen-ager from Romania, Olympic gold medallist Mihaela Penes, won the first gold medal of the track and field competition with a javelin toss of 194 feet, 3½ inches.

Miss Penes, 17, who is six feet tall and weighs 204 pounds, said she felt she might have broken her world record of 198-7 ½ if she had had one more throw.

The United States, after winning nine gold medals in swimming, got its first in track and field from Randy Matson, who put the shot 66 feet, 7¾ incnes.

A third gold medal won by Jovdenak Blagoseva of Bulgaria with a high jump of five feet, five inches.

Maria Theresa Riedl of Italy won the women's tennis singles by beating Irina Jermolova of the Soviet Union 4-6, 8-6, 6-0. The American pair of Allen Fox and Donald Dell took the men's doubles in a five-set battle against Russians Tomas Lejus and Sergei Lihacsev, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4.

Hungary won the gold medal in water polo with a 5-3 victory over the Russians, who got the silver medal. Romania took the bronze with a 5-1 win over Bulgaria.

ARE DEADLOCKED

TORONTO (CP)—After three dives, Barney Cipriani of Miami, Fla., and Alfred Gonzales of Chicago remain deadlocked in first place in the Canadian National Exhibition's professional high diving championships. The two Americans each picked up 192 points in Wednesday's dive from the tower's 80-foot platform to give them 472 points and a 22-point edge on defending champion John Deininger of Seattle, Wash.

Saskatchewan Stuns Bombers 25-6

Campbell Stars

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

WINNIPEG (CP) — Hugh Campbell, veteran flanker for Saskatchewan Roughriders, is not noted for his speed and at six feet doesn't have a marked height advantage over pass defenders.

So why, coach Bud Grant of Winnipeg Blue Bombers was asked, did the 24-year-old import almost single-handedly power the Roughriders to a stunning 25-6 victory over the Bombers Wednesday night?

Campbell used that ability with deadly effect before 22,486 fans, the largest crowd in Winnipeg history, as he pulled in eight passes from quarterback Ron Lancaster for 206 yards—56 per cent of Saskatchewan's total offence — to carry his mates into range for their first 17 [illegible]'s.

Halfback Bill Gray, end Jim Worden and fullback George Reed did the rest as Saskatchewan halted Winnipeg's winning streak at four games with its sixth consecutive victory over Bombers since Aug. 19, 1963.

Gray scored two touchdowns, Worden got one and Reed rammed out 99 of Saskatchewan's 212 yards on the ground as the Roughriders slipped into second place, one point behind Winnipeg's eight and one point ahead of Calgary Stampeders.

Stampeders shoot for a share of first place Saturday night when they entertain Hamilton Tiger-Cats in a Canadian Football League interlocking clash.

Campbell's first catch ate up 53 yards, his second was for 21 yards and his third for 15. Seconds after the third, Lancaster threw deep into the left corner of the end zone where Gray made a diving catch for the Roughriders' first touchdown.

Jack Abendschan, Saskatchewan's rookie guard, booted the first of three converts and it was 7-0. Abendschan also had a 29-yard field goal while the Roughriders' other points was a single on end Martin Fabi's fourth quarter punt.

Saskatchewan's 365-yard total offensive was good for 19 first downs. Lancaster, Reed, Gray and former bomber quarterback Hal Ledyard completed 11 of 21 pass attempts.

Halfback Leo Lewis' 87 yards in eight carries was part of Winnipeg's 263-yard offence for 15 first downs. Quarterback Kenny Ploen and late replacement Dick Thornton completed 12 of 22 pass attempts for 181 yards.

After the game Grant revealed the Bomber loss was twofold. Defensive end Bill Whisler, a WFC all-star last season, suffered torn knee ligaments and will be lost to the club for the season.

MAYS INJURED

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Willie Mays of San Francisco Giants has a pulled groin muscle and may miss the final two games with Pittsburgh Pirates, a club spokesman said Wednesday.

SIGN RUSSELL

BOSTON (AP)—Boston Celtics, champions of the National Basketball Association, signed 6-foot-10 centre Bill Russell Wednesday to a new three-year contract at a salary the club described as fantastic. "I don't think it's so fantastic," Russell said, then added: "Each of the three years is in sig figures." This would mean at least $100,000 a year.

Jets Gain Full Game On Leafs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Columbus Jets' bid for the International League pennant was enhanced Wednesday night as they defeated Toledo Mud Hens 6-4.

Second-place Toronto Maple Leafs fell two games off the pace as they lost 6-4 to Rochester Red Wings and the third-place Atlanta Crackers were all but eliminated from the pennant race as they dropped a doubleheader 4-1 and 5-1 at the hands of Jacksonville Suns.

In other league action, Buffalo Bisons dropped Syracuse Chiefs into a fourth place tie with the Suns with a 4-3 10-inning victory over the Chiefs.

Joe Altobelli drove in two runs and Manny Jimenez hit his 11th homer of the season as the Red Wings, battling for a playoff spot, came from behind to beat the Leafs.

Twins Stretch Lead As Chicago Loses

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Pres Sports Writer

Jim (Catfish) Hunter, 19, Kansas City's bonus baby, posted his first major league shutout Wednesday night as he pitched the Athletics to a 5-4 victory over Detroit Tigers.

It was the second straight impressive performance for the young right-hander who came out of Hertford, N.C., last year with a nickname he acquired fishing; minus a toe he lost hunting and with his pockets filled with $75,000 of Charles Finley's bonus money.

Ten days ago he took New York Yankees with a 4-1 four-hitter. Adding his six-hitter against the Tigers gave him a 5-4 record with the last-place Athletics.

Meanwhile, at the top of the standings, Minnesota Twins increased their league lead to 7½ games by edging the Yankees 5-4 while Baltimore Orioles tripped the second-place Chicago White Sox 2-1.

Elsewhere, Cleveland Indians swept a doubleheader from Los Angeles Angels 6-3 and 8-2 and Boston Red Sox walloped Washington Senators 8-3.

Hunter got the only run he actually needed against the Tigers when Bert Campaneris tripled in the first inning and scored on an infield out. Wayne Causey and Ken Harrelson each drove in two runs for Kansas City while John Blanchard accounted for the other with a homer.

MICKEY OPENS DOOR

Yankee outfielder Mickey Mantle opened the door for a decisive three-run Twins' rally in the seventh inning when he dropped Jerry Kindall's drive to left centre to open the inning. One out later, Zoilo Versalles drew a walk. Rich Rollins then cracked a 2-2 tie with a triple and scored the final run on Earl Battey's double.

The Orioles broke a 1-1 tie in the third inning, scoring an unearned run when Louis Aparicio singled and raced all the way around when Ken Berry fumbled Boog Powell's single to right centre. Milt Pappas made the run stand up, checking the White Sox on four hits and bringing his record to 11-6 with his first victory in five weeks.

Fred Whitfield and Duke Sims hammered homers as Steve Hargan posted his first major league victory for the Indians in the opener. Whitfield also had two other hit, plus a pair of double and single in the nightcap for a six-for-nine performance. Leon Wagner contributed a homer and single in the second game as Ralph Terry won his first in a month for an 11-4 record.

The Red Sox unloaded five homers to the Senators' three. Carl Yastrzemski, Tony Conigliaro, Rico Petrocelli, Felix Mantilla and Bob Tillman pounded Boston homers while Ken McMullen, Jim King and Frank Howard connected for Washington.

Sunbury Eliminates Tweed 7-2

Sunbury blasted the Tweed Lombanks out of OASA Intermediate "C" playdowns with a hard-hitting attack before a good crowd at Napanee last night. The score was 7 - 2.

Tweed dropped the series two games to one.

Sunbury pecked away with lone runs in the first, third and fourth, bagged two in the fifth and another in the seventh for a 6 - 0 lead. Tweed's two runs came in the eighth on a hit, walk, error and a wild pitch—but that was it.

Phil Litchfield led the Lombanks down on three hits while hurling the victory. The Kingston pitching star struck out ten but gave up eight free passes.

An over-worked Joe Barrons was tagged with the defeat before giving way to Eldon Gray in the fifth. They were tagged for 14 hits, including three homers, struck out seven and walked two.

Randy Clark paced Sunbury's long-ball attack with a triple, double and a single. Chuck Convery and Don McCollum each hit a home run and single while John Ball had the other circuit cloud. Litchfield helped his own cause with a double and single: Garfield Ball singled twice, Ray Sands and Ted Thompson once each.

Ray LeSage collected two of Tweed's three singles and Terry LeSage got the other one.

Riders Meet Als

Stewart, Blum May Be Out

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders, battling to catch first-place Hamilton Tiger-Cats, may be forced to go without two regulars when they meet Montreal Alouettes here in tonight's only scheduled Eastern Football Conference game.

The Montrealers in turn, will be out to grab a piece of second spot, now in sole possession of the Roughies.

John O'Quinn, Rough Riders' general manager, said in Montreal Wednesday night that halfback Ron Stewart has a virus infection and may miss tonight's game.

O'Quinn said centre Mike Blum also is a doubtful starter with a hip injury picked up in the Riders' 27-1 loss to Hamilton Saturday night.

"With Jackson it's a combination of injuries he has picked up since the season started. They've been just enough to slow him down on his rollouts."

Tonight's game will afford the Montrealers an opportunity to gain revenge for the 23-2 hammering they suffered in Ottawa Aug. 12.

Als coach Jim Trimble expressed confidence Wednesday that his club will share second spot with the Roughies when the game ends.

Trimble said he plans no changes in the lineup that downed Toronto Argonauts 20-0 Aug. 18.

U.S. import quarterback George Bork and Canadian lineman Pete Walker will again sit out this game. Fullback J. W. Lockett, centre Terry Fernandez and defensive halfback Clare Exelby—all injured in the Toronto contest — will all be back.

Ralph Goldston, the veteran defensive halfback obtained from the Ticats in a mid-winter trade that brought quarterback Bernie Faloney to Montreal, will operate from the corner linebacker spot.

George Dixon, the Als' sparkling halfback of other years, is returning to top form after recurring knee troubles.

PLANS SHUFFLE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Coach Dave Skrien will shuffle his B.C. Lions' lineup drastically for Sunday's interlocking Canadian Football League game here with Toronto Argonauts. Skrien said Wednesday he will start Bill Munsey at offensive fullback replacing Bob Swift.

How They're Biting!

TORONTO (CP) — Anglers had a rough time of it in Ontario last week, as poor fishing conditions were reported in nearly all regions.

A weekly report issued by the Ontario department of lands and forests showed only a few good catches in the northern sectors.

Muskellunge fishing ranged from fair to poor, but they were striking in the North Bay area.

Bass fishing was generally poor, but a few good catches were reported in Lake Simcoe and the Sudbury district.

Trout were not taking the bait and fair to poor catches were reported throughout the province.

Some northern regions showed good pike and pickerel fishing, but conditions were poor in other areas.

Foes Help Riders Land Scott

By WILLIAM NEVILLE

OTTAWA (CP)—It took Ottawa Rough Riders a lot of time a lot of money—and a big assist from their eight Canadian Football League opponents—to sign Bo Scott.

In some ways, the assist was just as important as the time and money.

Scott, a strapping 205-pound halfback, now is firmly entrenced in Rider plans with undoubtedly the richest three-year contract in club history.

The Eastern Conference Riders, for their part, have ended their long search for a breakaway back and may be headed for their first Grey Cup date in five years.

But to get back to that assist. Scott, who had been on the Rider negotiation list since 1963, joined the club late in 1964 and, although he was not in top physical shape, immediately impressed coach Frank Clair as a budding star.

The problem, however, was that Scott, who had dropped out of Ohio State with scholastic troubles, appeared to have his heart set on playing in the United States.

He asked for—and received from Rider general manager Red O'Quinn—an assurance that should he be a high draft choice of a U.S. pro team the Riders would attempt to waive him out of the CFL and allow him to join the American club in question.

DEAL FELL THROUGH

"I talked it over with coach Clair and we agreed that we should try and meet Bo's wish provided we could make an acceptable deal with Cleveland," says O'Quinn.

"We talked to the Browns half a dozen times and they said they were willing to give us a first-line player for Bo. So I tried not once, but three times, to get waivers on him.

"Someone claimed him every time, so we had to pull him back. The other CFL clubs knew about the situation, but they just weren't prepared to let a player of his calibre go through."

Unable to join Cleveland this season, Scott first decided to play out his option here and go south in 1966. Then the time and money came into play.

"It was a long, tedious business," says O'Quinn of his negotiations with Scott. "And money wasn't the only thing. We had to sell him on our club and on Canadr [illegible] as a good place to live.

After a month of off-and-on bargaining, the Riders announced Aug. 5 that Scott had signed a three-year contract. No terms were disclosed, but it is generally believed Scott will receive well over $50,000 for his efforts.

None of which would have happened if those other CFL clubs hadn't come through with that crucial assist.

COCK WRISTS ON DOWNSWING TO INCREASE DISTANCE

© 1965 by NAT'L. News. Syn. Inc. of America

Most golfers fail to hit the ball as far as they should because they release, or uncock, their wrists too early on their downswing. This expends maximum clubhead speed before it reaches the ball. It is vital to "delay" uncocking the wrists.

Good golfers achieve this delay by shifting their weight to the left and returning their right elbow to their side early in the downswing.

However, there is another way to delay uncocking and to preserve power: cock your wrists on your downswing.

You will note in No. 1 that I am at the top of my backswing. The club is horizontal. Now look at No. 2. My hands have lowered noticeably. Obviously my downswing has started, yet the club is still horizontal. I have cocked my wrists on the downswing. This additional wrist cock helps me retain a full hinging of the wrists until I'm far into the downswing (No. 3). The wrists will not fully unhinge until my clubhead is in the hitting area. I will achieve maximum distance.

Cathy Cole Adds Silver

By MURRAY ROSE

TEL AVIV (AP)—Cathy Cole, a 14-year-old water sprite from Florida, figures to go from the silver to the gold standard today in the seventh Maccabiah games.

Little Cathy, who looks as if she would be swallowed up by the first big wave off her Miami Beach home, has bagged three silver medals in swimming in the first two days of the Games, known as the Jewish Olympics.

The five-foot-one, 99-pound high school sophomore earned her third silver medal by finishing second to another American, Olympic silver medalist Marilyn Ramenofsky, in the 400-metre freestyle final Wednesday.

The United States, dominating the Games as expected, took a big step toward basketball honors Wednesday by crushing Canada 107-53. The Canadians, dropping their first game after beating Venezuela, kept it fairly close in the firt half. They trailed 44-31 at half-time.

Track and field opens in the 60,000-seat Ramat Gan Stadium today, turning Tel Aviv and its suburbs into a sports complex with activity going on in 17 different sports.

Two Get Indefinite Suspensions

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—Two senior player were suspended indefinitely Wednesday by the Inter-County Baseball Asociation for attacking umpires during the playoff competition.

Infielder - outfielder Fred Thompson of Galt Terriers drew his suspension for striking a plate umpire after a called third strike in a game against Stratford Chiefs.

About half of Ontario's 50,000 reserve Indians depend on trapping and hunting for their livelihood.

May Have Key To U.S. Track Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — The ruling powers of United States track and field endorsed Wednesday binding and continuing arbitration of their jurisdictional row.

The Senate commerce committee obtained the agreements from the presidents of the rival Amateur Athletic Union and National Collegiate Athletic Association, and promptly treated it as the key to perhaps a permanent peace move.

Chairman Warren G. Magnuson also nailed down an agreement by NCAA that its Aug. 16 acceptance of a temporary truce meant that college athletes who defied an NCAA boycott against AAU track meets won't suffer threatened disbarment from competition this fall.

Magnuson said he considered he also had a binding pledge from AAU at Tuesday's hearing that its no-college athletes would not be punished, either, for competing in NCAA meets the AAU was boycotting.

The committee is investigating the feud which has reached new peaks of bitterness, threatening reprisals knocking brilliant young athletes out of competition and, witnesses said, endangering U.S. hopes in the 1968 Olympic Games.

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Wednesday, Aug. 25, will be a day the Turcotte brothers will remember for the rest of their lives.

Junonia was second and Green Goddess third.

Victory in the Duchess was worth $7,225 and boosted Ciboulette's earnings this season to $13,852. The filly's backers earned an cross-the-board payoff of $15.20, $7.30 and $4.10

Aug. 25 will be a day apprentice Ted Kornblum won't forget, either. The 20-year-old Mohawk Indian from Belleville rode the first winner of his 10-mount career when he took the fourth race aboard Windfields Farm's Victory Chant.

SINE'S SHELL 6 TIP TOPS 3

Sine's Shell defeated Tip Top Cleaners 6-3 in a peewee playoff game last night. Both teams managed only three hits, but five Tip Top errors proved costly.

Terry Meagher bested Paul Hall in the tight pitching duel, as he gave up five walks and struck out 11. Hall handed out three free passes and whiffed eight.

All of the hits in the contest were singles, with Rickey Meagher, Don Bankey, and Robin Lee contributing for the winners. Paul Hall, Terry Pope and Billy Cole rapped safeties for Tip Top.

Sine's broke a 2-2 tie with a run in the second inning, and never looked back, increasing their lead with a pair in the fourth.

Guelph G[illegible]s Finals Berth; Stratford Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph CJOYs moved into the senior Inter-County baseball finals Wednesday night with a 5-2 victory over London Pontiacs and Stratford Chiefs took the lead in their semi-final series against Brantford Red Sox with a 3-2 win.

Guelph won its series over the Pontiacs four games to two. Stratford leads its best-of-five semi-final two games to one. Fourth game is in Brantford Friday night and if a fifth is needed it will be played in Stratford Saturday night.

Playing - manager Nick DiCarlo piloted Guelph into the finals with a three-run double in a four-run fifth inning.

Stratford also won with a big sixth inning. Trailing 2-1, the Chiefs scored twice in the sixth as Lynn Gilbert's single produced the tying and winning runs after Keith Spicer and Eric Morris had singled.

Geoff Zahn went the distance, striking out 14 and scattering eight hits. The loser was Paul Kormos, who failed to last beyond the sixth.

Scoring Ace O. Tessier Retiring

CORNWALL (CP) — Orval Roy Tessier, a top scoring ace with Kingston Frontenacs of the now-defunct Eastern Professional Hockey League, announced Wednesday his retirement from hockey to take a job with a brewery.

Tessier, father of four, set a record in the EPHL during the 1959-60 season by scoring 59 goals and 67 assists for 126 points. He won the scoring title again in 1961-62 by scoring 54 goals and 60 assists for 114 points. That year he also won the most valuable player and the ability and good conduct awards.

Tessier started his hockey career with Montreal Royals in the old Quebec League in 1953-54. Then he played with Montreal and Boston of the National League and Hershey and Springfield of the American League. He also played for Portland of the Western League.

He was reinstated last year as an amateur and joined Clinton Comets of the Eastern League. In 60 games, he finished third in the league scoring race with 60 goals and 58 assists.

Shot Put Star

So - - He's A Growing Giant

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BUDAPEST (AP) — Randy Matson thinks he might hit the 68-foot mark in the shot put at the World Student Games—if he doesn't collapse first.

"Everybody seems worried about me and keeps stuffing me with food," the six-foot, 6½-inch giant from Pampa, Tex., said today.

"I've gained 20 pounds since I left Russia and the way I'm going I'll gain 20 more before I get home. People seem to think I'm a growing boy who needs food."

The Texas muscle man, who earlier this year set a world shot put record with a heave of 70 feet, seven inches, said the strenuous Russian trip had trimmed him down to 240 pounds.

"I'm up to 260 now and feel strong as a bull," he said.

When he arrived in Budapest three days ago from a tour of the Scandinavian countries, he was immediately adopted by Tomas Folvari, chef at the hotel where the Americans are quartered.

"None of the other boys are allowed to have seconds, but he gave me two plates the first time I sat down," the rangy Texan said. "Last night we had Hungarian goulash and my dish was piled a mile high."

"At breakfast, he gives me not two, not four, but eight eggs and then stands over me while I eat it. He pats my head like a parent and says, 'That's a nice boy'."

It was the same in Scandinavia, Matson said.

"I would ask for ice cream and they would give me a platter full — eight and 10 scoops," he added. "I'd order strawberries and they'd bring them in buckets."

The Trots

TORONTO (CP)—Simcoe, a fast stepping two-year-old trotter owned by Ontario's Lieutenant-Governor Earl Rowe, came with a rush in the final furlong to score a half-length victory in the $5,691 Canadian Standardbred Horse Society's Futurity at Greenwood Raceway Wednesday night.

Time for the mile was 2:11, two-fifths of a second off the two-year-old trotting mark set by Armbro Flight in the 1964 futurity. Armbro Flight is co-favorite for this year's edition of the Hambletonian.

HULL, Que. (CP) — Direct Duke, owned by G. Aiken, D. Brackenbury and J. Janes of Talbotville, Ont., and driven by Stan Williams, won the $400 feature race at Connaught Park Raceway Wednesday night.

The six-year-old brown horse easily won the one-mile pace in 2:10, paying $3.50, $3.20 and $3.10. It was the horse's fifth win—all at Connaught Park—out of 17 starts this season, bringing its total earnings this year to more than $1,700.

RUNNER DIES

ENGLEWOOD, N.J. (AP)—Johnny Hayes, who learned to run in the streets of New York City and went on to earn a name in sporting history by winning the 1908 Olympic marathon title, is dead at 79. Hayes died Tuesday in a nursing home. The last American to win the Olympic marathon title, Hayes defeated Italy's Dorando Pietri in a marathon race in London, after Pietri collapsed and had to be helped across the finish line.

Bing Crosby Is Playing Down-and-outer in Movie

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Visitors to the Stagecoach set have to take a second look at the scruffy fellow with unmowed chin and unkempt toupee.

"That's Bing Crosby?" they asked incredulously.

Yep, that's Bing Crosby opening up a whole new can of peas in his long, fabulous career. He is playing an out-and-out character role for the first time. Down-and-out too.

The film is Stagecoach. Bing is replaying the role of the bibulous frontier doctor which the late Thomas Mitchell parlayed to a supporting-actor Oscar in the 1939 original. Bing sings nary a note, and his usual sunshiny personality is submerged in vintage firewater. He stepped out of the coach one afternoon to chat.

"You think I look bad now?" he grinned. "This is one of my better days — only a one-day growth of beard. You should see me when I haven't shaved for a week."

AGENT'S IDEA

Who got the notion for him to play the role?

"It was George Rosenberg's idea," Bing replied referring to his trusty agent. "He said the part was there if I wanted it, and it sounded fine to me. Gives me a chance to do a real character part.

"I've played drunks before. Did one in Country Girl and another in Man on Fire. But this is the first time I've been drunk through most of the picture."

Bing said he hadn't seen the John Ford classic since its original release, so his characterization won't be influenced by the Mitchell performance. The role is much the same, although some comic bits have been added for Bing and Red Buttons, who took the role originated by Donald Meek.

Bing appears to be enjoying the new assignment. Contrary to the Crosby image, he likes to work. But he admits that work can be carried too far, as happened last year when he attempted a television series.

"Never again," he declared. "It's just too much. I was working from 7:30 to 7:30 every day for a period of five months. And I mean working."

This season he will be emceeing Hollywood Palace for 10 shows with an occasional guest shot.

In between he will travel to England to see Meadow Court, the horse he owns along with Canadians Max Bell and Frank McMahon, in the St. Leger race.

Bing hopes to return to Europe later if the horse makes the Arc de Triomphe Sweepstakes in France.

ANABO ON WAIVERS

EDMONTON (CP)—Jon Anabo, 24, a quarterback with Edmonton Eskimos, has been placed on the Western Football Conference club's "secret waiver" list, head coach Neill Armstrong said Wednesday. "I am highly disturbed by this breach of secrecy, apparently on the part of Calgary. I hadn't even told Anabo and didn't plan to because we planned to grab him back if anyone showed interest.

Lisa Hughes Is Likely To Return to 'World Turns'

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It seems inevitable now that Lisa Hughes, the star-crossed heroine of Our Private World, will soon be returning to safety and more suffering in As the World Turns.

When CBS' Dick van Dyke Show returns to the air for a new season Sept. 15, the network's cautious imitation of Peyton Place will be concluded, something less than a hit.

But somehow, from the very beginning of Our Private World, one had a feeling that CBS didn't really think it was long for the night - time television world. In the first place, it was just a summer replacement. Secondly, the principal character was spun off the long-playing day-time soap opera—and Lisa carefully kept the door open so she could slip back to the day-time fold.

However, the network programmers have not yet finished fooling around with sudsy formats on the 15 network offerings. Strange things are happening to CBS' night-time program, The Doctors and the Nurses, now on reruns.

POPS UP AGAIN

Drastic treatment failed to cure chronic ratings troubles, so the network dropped the show at season's end. But the show's producer stubbornly refused to let it die. It will pop up again on ABC on Sept. 27 as a day-time soap opera called—again—The Nurses.

Meanwhile, another ABC detergent drama, Time For Us, is on the way out despite valiant first-aid treatment Originally it was called Flame in the Wind, and centered on a woman novelist writing a book about her home town—a sort of spinoff of the author of the book, Peyton Place.

The feminine audience didn't seem to care, so they changed the name, dropped the novelist and concentrated on her two young nieces. The patient failed to rally in the ratings so on Sept. 24, it's time runs out.

GETS 22 YEARS

TORONTO (CP) — Charles Boomer, 29, of Waterdown, Ont., was sentenced Wednesday to 22 years in penitentiary after he pleaded guilty to five holdups of trust company offices. Wednesday he admitted a sixth holdup—the $900 robbery of the Laurentide Finance Co. of London, Ont.

At the Belle

TIMES HAVEN'T CHANGED FOR BRANDO AND COX

When Wally Cox and Marlon Brando were both nine years old and neighbors in Evanston, Ill., Brando and some of the other boys in the area tied Wally to a tree and then decided it would be fun if they went off and left him. It was over an hour before someone released Wally.

Both families moved shortly hereafter and it was some ten years later in New York City that the two young men met again. Wally, now a silversmith, seemed to hold no grudgs and Brando, an aspiring actor, invited him to some theatrical parties. It was after watching Wally do some parlor entertaining that Brando and others encouraged him to be an actor.

Their careers went pretty well in parallel with Brando hitting it big in "A Streetcar Named Desire," and Wally capturing the nation in "Mr. Peepers."

Over the years the two had talked of working togethter, but it didn't happen until the 20th Century-Fox release "The Saboteur"—code name "Morituri", opening tomorrow (Friday) at the Belle Theatre. Brando portrays a British undercover agent and Wally is a ship's doctor addicted to narcotics. In the story, Brando shoots Cox right between the eyes.

"You have to say one thing about my relationship with Marlon," says Wally. "It's consistent."

One Election Date Gone Down Drain

OTTAWA (CP) — One date that figured in speculation about a federal general election this year has gone down the drain.

It's Monday, Oct. 18, discussed widely a month ago as a possible choice. Saturday, Aug. 21, was the last possible date for dissolution of Parliament to allow time for voting Oct. 18.

The Canada Elections Act requires that voting be on a Monday unless that day happens to be a public holiday or a day generally observed in any province for religious exercises and declared a holiday by provincial law. In such a case, voting day is on the Tuesday.

Then comes Sept. 4 for an election on Tuesday, Nov. 2. The holiday rule applies here since Monday, Nov. 1, is All Saints Day and is considered a public holiday in Quebec.

For a Nov. 8 election, the deadline is Sept. 11 and for Nov. 15 it's Sept. 18.

GETS NEAR WINTER

Political circles don't rule out the possibility of a later date than Nov. 15 but they suggest it would be running the risk of wintry weather.

Only two of Canada's 26 general elections since Confederation in 1867 have been held in November—in 1900 on Nov. 7 and in 1904 on Nov. 3. Both were called by a Liberal government under Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Only two were in December—in 1917 on Dec. 17 and in 1921 on Dec. 6. The December elections were called by Conservative governments, in 1917 under Sir Robert Borden and in 1921 under Arthur Meighen.

The present Parliament technically could sit until May 8, 1968—five years to the day after the writs of the 1963 election were returned officially.

Since nearly two months are needed to enumerate voters and make other election preparations, the next election could be put off until early July, 1968.

James Roosevelt, 58, who has served in Congress from the 26th district of Los Angeles since 1954 was persuaded by Johnson to yield his seat to become U.S. ambassador to the Economic and Social Council.

Teen-age Canada

Some Students Believe Vacations Are Too Long

By JACK HUTTON

A significant percentage of Canadian students hold a secret conviction so awful they won't tell their best friends! They believe summer vacations are too long!

Horrors, you say. That can't be true.

The yawning school door is less than two weeks away. You want at least two more weeks of freedom. Anyone wanting to end this idylic bliss must be crazy.

Well, they say figures don't lie. And secret agents for this column have just completed a survey of 150 students between the ages of 14 and 19 in three cities — Calgary, Halifax and Edmonton.

During the last two weeks, three friends made a point of casually inviting answers to the question: "What do you think of your summer holidays?"

What happened? The answers exploded the Tom Sawyer myth of youth lying back in the hot summer grass, chewing blades of grass and happily daydreaming about fishing for bass in the crick.

ANSWERS VARIED

More than two-thirds (110) said they were bored. Yes, bored. When did they become bored? The answers varied from one bookworm who said one day after school finished to the majority who confessed they were searching for ways to fill their time by the end of July.

A 14-year-old Halifax girl: "Maybe it would be better if my family went to a cottage, but the folks are too busy this year. It can be pretty lonely when most of your friends leave for camp and cottages that sound exciting."

A 16-year-old Calgary girl who did go to a cottage: "It was great for a week, but I'm the oldest of five kids. And what I don't like is that I'm chief babysitter for the youngest. This is no way to spend a holiday. I look after them at home too."

A 15-year-old fellow in Edmonton who stayed in the city: "After the first two weeks my mother started asking, "Well, what are you going to do today? Lie around the back yard? That meant I just loitered around the corner coffee shop with some other guys who were getting the same treatment. None of us enjoyed it."

So 150 answers prove nothing, you say. And we asked questions in only three cities that prove nothing about the rest of the country? What about the 40 who weren't bored?

The funny thing about those who said they weren't bored was that they were busier than they would be in school. They were trying summer courses, learning how to paint, plowing through reading programs to give themselves a headstart for the fall, involved in jobs that paid little but challenged them.

And there was something else that the 40 shared: they were all looking forward to school opening.

The rest had mixed feelings ("I guess it's better than what I'm doing" was typical) although every one of them had looked forward to getting out of the classroom.

Something went sour. Was it because they weren't self-starters? Would they have been happy even if they'd done whatever they said they wanted to?

I wonder? Now that summer is in its dying days, I'd like to hear what you think. Should summer holidays be longer or would you like to see them shortened? Or do you think there should be more organized activities in the same time?

I'll let the rest of you know the results of our mail poll.

SUMMER WORK

And, just to back us up in our survey, a McGill University expert claims the day is almost over when a university student can expect to finance his education through summer work.

Collin Dobell, assistant to the director of McGill's University Placement Bureau, told a Montreal reporter he believes the only way a student can finance his own education is to take a year off and work.

"What we're up against," he said, "is that in the last eight years the number of university students has doubled, and it will probably double again in the next six years.

Prophetic words. Remember them next spring.

DROP OUT?

Very unlikely. The successful newspaperboy is at opposite poles from the quitter b the very fact of having a newspaper route.

His experience shows him that the rewards for the goof-off are slim; that there's n room for the quitter and that the laurels of life go to the person able to meet challenges. He's found that initiative pays big dividends and there is no substitute fo learning to deal with people.

Guided by men who are trained to work with boys he develops responsible atti tudes, and for the first time, money becomes more than a hand-out. Nothing car replace the satisfaction of purchasing with money he's earned on his own.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, AUGUST 26, 1965

CANOE RACE ends at Belleville for these Eskimos and Indians last evening. Probably the first ever group from Arctic Circle native inhabitants went almost unnoticed by Bellevillians. Later they were joined by voyageurs from Ontario, New Brunswick and the Yukon.

Eskimos and Indians on Canoe Voyage Not Impressed With This Part of Canada Says Priest

Canada's acquisition of civilization 1960-style may be a moving force in world circles but it doesn't overpower all of its inhabitants.

Like the 14 Eskimos and Indians from the Northwest Territories camping on the Bay of Quinte last night.

Individually, they are cheerfully laconic about their impressions. However, they have a good spokesman going for them in the person of Father Bernard Brown, Roman Catholic missionary.

Surveying his crews making camp for the night, Father Brown owned his charges were not all that impressed with this part of Canada so far.

"There's not been anything as interesting to them as their own country—nor to me either," he admitted.

Unassuming, soft-spoken, muscular, he gives his age as 44—and looks in his early thirties. Dressed in sports shirt and slacks he gives his identification as an Oblate Father—and looks like a young executive on vacation.

ATTRACTED TO ARCTIC

He is, in other words a born Northerner — although he was neither born nor reared there. His native spot is on Lake Ontario just north of Rochester. The Arctic he went to 18 years ago.

"I'd been attracted to the Arctic since I was a kid," he recalled.

Now there some 18 years, his mission is centred on Colville Lake, more than 950 miles north of Edmonton. While he can't begin to estimate its square mileage he knows the number of his parishioners.

"The total population — as of Easter — was 68."

The figure is precise: "It's very constant. When anyone moves into the area its quite an event — we know about it."

Father Brown, who serves his parish by dogsled or canoe as the weather permits—reiterated that none of the canoeists came from his far-flung parish. However, they had been assembled under his command from inhabitants in what passes for his neighborhood. The Eskimos were from about 200 miles north, the Indians from approximately the same distance south.

FAR FROM HOME

Last night, camped outside the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, they were about 2,400 miles from home territory — as a plane flies.

Getting the canoe teams together was no easy matter.

"We had considerable difficulty in persuading the boys to come down on this trip," said Father Brown.

As trappers the bulk of their work falls in winter. Yet, the trip is hardly "adequate compensation" for them.

Strangers in a strange landscape they camp in outdoor surroundings that are scarcely outdoors by their standards. They are used to finding wood for their own cooking. In Southern Ontario, most campers carry cookstoves.

Last night in Belleville the

They are accustomed to drawing water from lakes and streams.

"But they can't even drink this," said the missionary, indicating the Bay of Quinte, beautifully Canadian—but polluted.

Labor Irks Labor

By PETER BUCKLEY

LONDON (CP) — A sort of midsummer madness which has struck British labor relations has provoked an anguished cry from a cabinet minister with long - standing union connections.

"It is absolutely, totally mad and quite infuriating," said George Brown, economics minister, deputy to Prime Minister Wilson and a member of the powerful Transport and General Workers Union.

"I don't presume to judge who is right or wrong. But grown - up management and grown-up trade union officials, whether lay or professional, who can't stop this happening are not grown-up enough to do their jobs."

The problems he was referring to Wednesday are a series of work stoppages, particularly in the crucial automobile industry, which have made thousands of workers idle.

RESENT FOREMAN

The trouble at BMC began nine days ago when 400 men at a components plant in Wales stopped work because a foreman they regarded as "unqualified" was giving orders to trained machine operators. The shortage of parts has forced the closure of other company plants throughout the United Kingdom.

Another strike at a Ford Motor Co. plant involves 300 men and threatens another 800 jobs. The striking delivery drivers are protesting because a man convicted of dangerous driving was dismissed.

The strikes are only the latest in a series which is making 1965 one of the worst years in post-war Britain for labor disputes.

Figures released Wednesday by the labor ministry show a total of 2,183,000 working days were lost in the first seven months this year because of industrial disputes, up more than 30 per cent from the comparable period last year and already approaching the figure for all of 1964.

MOST ARE UNOFFICIAL

More than 90 per cent of the strikes have been "unofficial" —without official union backing.

The auto and engineering industries showed the most trouble, accounting for almost half of the lost time. In all, 623,000 men have lost working time through strikes in Britain this year.

George Woodcock, general secretary of the Trades Union Congress, was moved by the situation to denounce the "early 20th century attitude" of some workers who assume that fellow - workers on strike must have a valid reason.

"I am personally worried that not enough attention is given to the recurring situation where a few men put an enormous number out of work," Woodcock added.

Six Canoe Crews Camp Out At Victoria Park for Night After Quick Trip Down Bay

Eskimos and Arctic Circle Indians canoed into Belleville last evening — but their first bow was taken before an empty house.

Without a local soul to greet them, strangers on its shore, they landed in the Friendly City — and had to start foraging for such simple necessities as firewood and water.

They were companion crews of two canoes from the Northwest Territories entered in the Canada Centennial Voyageur practice runs. They were followed at intervals by teams from Ontario, New Brunswick and the Yukon — the balance of the voyageurs in this North Bay -Gananoque 600 mile race to select teams for the Centennial Year cross-Canada pageant.

The event here was further dampened through the night when a thunderstorm dropped a half - inch of rain on the city while the canoeists slept under canvass.

Monday, two Alberta canoes touched here — the vanguard of last night's contingent bidding for a place in the 3,500-mile 1967 trip.

Making camp in voyageur fashion, the six crews last night scattered around the south end of Victoria Park, preparing for the next leg of the trip scheduled to take them to the Bath area.

The encampments drew small crowds of spectators watching the canoeists rest up from a jaunt that started early in the morning on the Trent River, about 13 miles north of Frankford.

First to arrive — about 5.30 p.m. — were the NWT crews, whose Ontario visit with Catholic missionary, Father Bernard Brown has sparked charges of discrimination against Canadian National Railways. (See Story This Page).

Both Eskimo and Indian crews raced across the Moira River mouth to gain first honors in touching ashore.

The reception party greeting them consisted of Father Brown, commission officials, a brace of reporters—and two elderly ladies who said they had waited nearly two hours.

Once ashore they found themselves momentarily at a loss.

NO WOOD HANDY

Provisions had preceded them by road but, Father Brown explained, his charges were hunters who lived from the land where they camped. No wood was handy for cook fires. Worse, officials had discovered unprocessed Bay of Quinte water was banned to human consumption.

The nearby Bay of Quinte Yacht Club came to the rescue by providing both. While his crews were drawing water, a club steward overheard the priest inquiring where he could purchase kindling—and found him firewood in a club locker.

The first arrivals were followed by teams from Ontario, New Brunswick and the Yukon.

But it was the encampment of the Far Northerners outside the yacht club that drew most attention from city sightseers.

It also extracted some well-meaning—if unintentionally broad—comments from local citizens at hand.

"You should tell the government you're underprivileged."

Plans for today call for a stopover somewhere in the Bath area before the teams journey on to Kingston where their arrival is being treated as something of a gala occasion.

Bandit Given 22 Years

TORONTO (CP) — Charles Warren Boomer, 29, of Hamilton was sentenced Wednesday to 22 years in prison on five charges of armed robbery and a charge of carrying a pistol.

Boomer, arrested at gunpoint in an apartment closet Aug. 17 after a chase through backyards and alleys by policemen and citizens, admitted having committed the offences which netted him $5,600.

Germans Dislike Plan

BONN (Reuters)—The West-German disarmament commissioner, Ambassador Swidbert Schnippenkoetter, left here for Geneva Wednesday to seek clarification of "some passages" in the Canadian disarmament proposal tabled by Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, a government spokesman said.

The spokesman, asked about a report that the Bonn government was "concerned" about the Canadian proposal, told Reuters the report was exaggerated.

He said that West Germany has not yet received the official text of the proposal, reported to stipulate that the West establish no nuclear force that might become an increased danger for Soviet security.

Earlier, the cabinet had discussed the Canadian proposal, among other things. The chief government spokesman, State Secretary Karl Guenther Von Hase, at a press conference later, recalled the government view that West Germany needs the planned NATO multilateral nuclear force as protection from the Soviet nuclear threat.

He was referring to a declaration by Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, made recently after ex-chancellor Konrad Adenauer had attacked an American non-proliferation draft that the Erhard government had at first welcomed.

British Mortgage and Trust Substantial Noteholder of Atlantic Acceptance Corp.

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says a list compiled from information gathered among sources in the short-term money market shows creditors of Atlantic Acceptance Corp. Ltd. involve the entire spectrum of the Canadian business and financial community, together with several United States organizations.

Atlantic went into receivership June 17 after defaulting on a $5,000,000 note that matured June 14.

Montreal Trust Co., named Atlantic's receiver, estimated last week that assets available to meet the claims of the holders of senior notes would have a realizable value of $103,432,-830. This is $3,430,510 short of Atlantic's liabilities to senior noteholders alone.

Another $28,925,410 in liabilities to subordinated junior subordinated and other crediors is not backed by any realization asset, the receiver's estimate showed.

Montreal Trust Co. has not published a list of holders of the various classes of Atlantic notes but The Globe and Mail says the list compiled from the sources in the short-term money market shows, as expected, that British Mortgage and Trust Co. of Stratford, Ont., which had links with Atlantic through the two boards of directors, was a substantial noteholder.

HOLDS DEMAND NOTE

The story says British Mortgage held a $200 000 demand note, a $2,000,000 note maturing June, 15 and $1,000,000 junior subordinated note due April 22, 1966.

Royal Bank of Canada held a $2,000,000 demand note and The Globe and Mail's list of other noteholders included:

Short - term notes: Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Co., $2,000,000 (U.S.); Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd., $2,952,000; First National City Bank of New York, $3,000,000 (U.S.); National Lead Co., $2,500,000 (U.S.); Societe Financiere pour Commerce et l'Industrie Ltee., $5,000,000; and Toronto-Dominion Bank $4,000,000 (U.S.).

Medium - term notes: Aetna Life Insurance Co., and Ford Foundaion, $2,000,000 each in U.S. funds.

Long - term notes, Series A: Aetna Insurance $5,400,000; Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co., $4,000,000; Eaton Retirement Fund Trustees $2,038,000; Lincoln National Life Insurance Co., $2,250,000; Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co., $2,000,000; Travelers Insurance Co., $2,000,000; and Weber and Co., $2,000,000.

Panty Girdle Rejected by Organization

NEW YORK (AP)—A panty girdle called "stars 'n' stripes" has been yanked from the market after the Daughters of the American revolution objected to its name and flag-like decorations.

The DAR called the girdle a "shocking caricature" of the U.S. flag in a letter to the manufacturer.

"We will burn the damn things or send them to some foreign country where our flag isn't involved," said a spokesman for the manufacturer Wednesday. He said about 3,000 had been distributed to stores across the U.S. but he did not know how many had been sold.

The "stars 'n' stripes" girdle was one of four decorated garments called pop pants brought out by the firm last Wednesday. Others in the line are "crying 'eyes," "the big zip," and "hamburger 'n' soda pop."

The DAR has no objections to the other girdles.

Separatist Leader Is Fined

MONTREAL (CP) — Reggie Chartrand, 32, leader of the separatist Chevaliers de l'Independance and a former boxer, was fined and bound over to the peace when he appeared in court Wednesday on charges arising out of Montreal's Victoria Day disorders last May.

Municipal Court Judge Roland Langlois fined Chartrand $146.90 for taking part in an illegal assembly and ordered him to sign a bond for $100 to keep the peace for one year on a charge of disturbing the peace by shouting.

Chartrand's 20-year-old wife was fined $10 and costs on an illegal-assembly charge and ordered to pay court costs on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Priest Admits Mistake

Discrimination Charge Arose From Ignorance About Fares

TORONTO (CP)—A Roman Catholic priest who charged the CNR with discrimination against Indians and Eskimos says he didn't know there is more than one class of ticket on Canadian trains.

Rev. Bernard Brown, an Oblate missionary from the Northwest Territories, complained last week that he had been told to take Indian-Eskimos canoe crews to the rear of a Toronto-North Bay train. The teams were on trial runs for the centennial voyageur canoe pageant.

Father Brown said he had paid "$86 and change" for tickets to North Bay, and John Noel, CNR public relations man, said this is what would have been paid for day coach tickets for 14 at $6.20 apiece.

The priest said he didn't specify the type of tickets he wanted.

"I thought the tickets gave everybody the same privileges," he said. He added he did not know then about parlor cars.

Father Brown, who is from Rochester, N.Y., and has spent about 18 years in the Arctic, said he never had ridden on a Canadian train before. Neither had his charges.

Mr. Noel said the Indians and Eskimos were not segregated. The coach in which they rode had 30 other persons aboard it. It was not the one which contained higher-priced accommodation.

Mr. Noel said the railway was satisfied that the incident was only a misunderstanding between the priest and the train crew, and that discrimination wasn't involved.

"Father Brown and his boys had never been on one of our trains before. They didn't understand the different ticket prices.

"He thought he had bought first class tickets, but that would have cost him $11.20 more than he paid for each ticket. He was not sent to the rear of the train but to a regular day coach in the middle of the train where there was room for the team to stay to-

Record Crops In Tomatoes And Corn Seen

TORONTO (CP) —Ontario farmers are heading for record crops in corn, tomatoes, soybeans and white beans despite a serious mid-season drought, the Ontario agriculture department reported Monday.

Heavy rains and warmer weather since Aug. 1 are credited with reversing the gloomy picture of June and July, which were cold and dry.

The two-month drought ruined hay crops in most areas. The department said strawberries, raspberries, and cherries suffered from dryness because of the drought.

Strawberry production declined six per cent from last year to 7,550,000 quarts; raspberries 14 per cent to 2,028,000 quarts; sour cherries 26 per cent to 22,379,000 pounds, and sweep cherries 12 per cent to 10,555,000 pounds.

Department officials say the province's corn yield may exceed last year's record average of 81.1 bushels an acre, if warm weather continues and there is no early frost. Prospects are excellent for higher yields in Kent County, biggest corn- and tomato-growing area in the province.

MAY SET RECORDS

Because of bigger acreages planted last spring, harvests of soybeans and white beans, as well as corn, are expected to rise to records, the department said.

Corn planting last spring was up 14 per cent to a record 740,000 acres. Soybean planting rose 15 per cent to a record 265,000 acres and white bean planting 13 per cent to 85,000 acres.

Wants YMCA Tax Exempt

TORONTO (CP)—Mayor L. Cooke of Barrie Wednesday asked the Ontario Municipal Association to request tax exemption for YM-YWCA property.

"If we don't do this, municipalities will be faced with paying for volunteer agency services because the agencies will be priced out of the field," he said.

After some discussion, the OMA passed on his request to the executive committee for further study.

True Davidson, Reeve of East York, said there have been growing requests from social agencies for such exemptions, but she suggested the entire matter be fully reviewed before a decision is made to press for provincial government change.

SHAPING the EARTH
CAN WE INFLUENCE MUTATIONS?
Certain CHEMICALS, such as mustard gas, will raise the average number of mutations. In the case of the banana fly, the variations in descendants will double, if bred at a temperature 18°F HIGHER THAN USUAL. While we know ways of adding to the mutations, we still cannot cause PREPLANNED MUTATIONS of a definite type, such as developing banana flies with no wings!
Mutations bring about NEW hereditary characteristics. No one knows the cause of them. It is known that certain things encourage mutations such as X RAYS. Here are shown some of the MANY different shapes among descendants of BANANA FLIES exposed to x rays (left), compared to the descendants of those not so exposed (right).

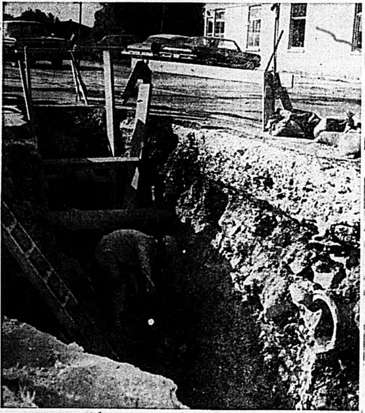
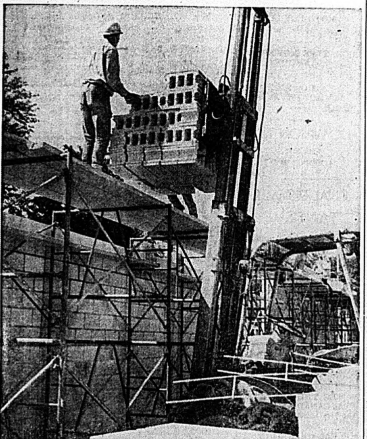
Workmen are installing services in this gigantic excavation at North Front and College Streets. North Front is now under reconstruction and is being widened to four lanes in that area.



Lightfoot Construction Company has begun reconstruction work on Pinnacle Street. This shot shows work on the installation of services at the corner of Dundas and Pinnacle.



Workmen unload concrete blocks while working on the addition to the G. T. Lanning Company on Coleman Street. Work on the large addition is being done by Arthur Sills and Sons Construction.

Construction Round-up

By CLAIRE HOY

City Building Inspector Grant Stickle reports that August will be the best month of the year to date. Building permits have been obtained this month for 30 new houses now under construction in the city. "The total value of the new buildings for August should go over the $500,000 mark," he said.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new $30,000 expansion of the G. T. Lanning plant on Coleman Street. Arthur Sills and Son are the general contractors for the job. The cement block walls of the structure are almost completed.

The Builders' Exchange has two tenders on display. One is for the new Public Utilities Commission building, due September 9, 1965, and the other is for construction of a building for a concrete block manufacturing plant for the Maker Building Materials Company in Cataraqui, due Friday, August 20.

Work on the installation of services in the Ponton Park Subdivision is progressing steadily. The new subdivision, being developed by Don Keller Construction, has 68 lots, all of which have at least 60 feet of frontage and some having as much as 85 feet.

The development is surrounded by Dundas Street West, Selena Ave., Leland Drive and Sidney Street. Houses come complete with sewers, water, storm sewers, paved roads and concrete curbs.

Revoy Construction Limited has completed work on the outside of Nicholson Catholic College and plastering and painting is proceeding on the inside. The building will be ready for the opening of school in September.

Wilson Concrete has been awarded contracts for two bridges under the D.H.O. plus another bridge over the Trent Canal at Lock No. 1. The D.H.L. bridges are in the county of Lanark and in the county of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry.

The company was also low bidder for the pre-cast materials at the new addition to the Belleville General Hospital and the new Belleville high school. They are the likely suppliers of the pre-cast.

Wilson Concrete is doing the pre-cast for the Morton-Parker silver plant addition in Trenton and the Professional Building, also in Trenton. Contractor for the Professional Building is Frank Miron-Wiggers.

The latest Southam Building Guide's Statistical Bulletin reports the cumulative dollar value of Canadian construction contract awards for the first seven months of 1965 is 18.1 per cent higher than the level for the same period last year and establishes a new all-time high for this period.

Alcoholism Said to Be Big Problem

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Donald Cameron Bews, medical director of the Bell Telephone Co., says industry is taking an ostrich-like attitude toward alcoholism and should accord alcoholic employees the same consideration and benefits given other sick personnel.

The first step in reducing Canada's $200,000,000 loss to industry through alcoholism lies in the adoption of a basic policy statement by companies which would place alcoholism in the same category as other health problems requiring treatment, Dr. Cameron told members of a service club Tuesday.

"A conservative estimate would indicate that we have at least 250,000 alcoholics in Canada today—and another 1,000,000 persons who are affected by the disease process—families, associates and employers," he said.

"The problem is a growing one—two alcoholics today for every one 10 years ago—and strikes at every level of society, every occupation and every income bracket.

Definition of the alcoholic has never been fully agreed upon, Dr. Bews said, but a useful and workable rule of thumb is that anyone whose drinking frequently interferes with his business life, social life or health is an alcoholic.

Nicholson Catholic College is just about ready for the opening of school in September. Plasterers and painters are now at work on the inside.

Is This an Arctic Stonehenge Or Somebody Having Fun?

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — Shades of Stonehenge in the Canadian Arctic? Or was someone just having fun?

Geologist Fred Roots doesn't know what to make of an unusual set of stone markers he discovered on O'Reilly Island in the Arctic but hopes they might be of interest to archeologists.

Dr. William Taylor, chief archeologist for the National Museum, hopes to complete his Arctic field trip in time to take a look at the formations before he returns to Ottawa this month.

Dr. Roots, chief of the Polar Continental Shelf Project, stumbled on the markers in March. A later examination failed to turn up any answers.

"You might think of the ancient Druid ruins at Stonehenge in England when you see them but there's no real comparison in either size or age.

"There are seven large single blocks of stone 18 inches to three feet in height balanced on top of larger, deck-sized boulders. Someone must have put them there but we have no idea who or why."

It's possible that Eskimos assembled the stones "but I've never heard of an Eskimo carrying a 40-pound stone when he could use two 20-pound stones," said Dr. Roots.

NO REASON

"Besides there's no apparent reason for putting the stones there and Eskimos aren't likely to waste that effort."

The stones form no recognizable pattern, although six of them make up "two reasonably straight lines," with the third stone of one four - stone line forming the middle of the other line.

A few yards away Dr. Roots found a stone platform about a foot high formed by a ring of boulders on the outside and a similar ring inside with gravel packed between the two rings. The inner ring enclosed a pit, the bottom of which was lined with "flatly laid stone chips fitted into a tile pattern."

The platform is about nine feet by five feet with the inner pit about 30 by 18 inches.

"There was no sign of any fire and it certainly isn't the type of thing you make to cache something in. It wasn't animal-proof."

Dr. Roots isn't sure of the age of the formation but lichen growth on the rocks indicates it is probably more than 50 years old, "maybe even 100 but not much more than that."

Another mysterious stone formation was found a few years ago on King William Island, 80 miles north. There were seven cairns there, too, but they were made of small rocks.

"The only similarity is in the number.

Burmese People's Militia Fight With Bow and Arrow

By MIN THU

RANGOON (Reuters)—Burma is raising "people's militia units," armed with bows and arrows, to help rid the country of armed rebels who have been threatening its peace and security for more than 16 years.

The firt units now are being formed in about 100 villages in the Kachin state in northern Burma where rebels calling themselves the Kachin Independence Army are a menace to innocent villagers.

Gradually, similar units will be formed in all villages, towns and districts throughout the country.

Eligible to join these units are civilians between 18 and 45. In addition to being armed with bows and arrows, they will have bamboo spikes. But they will not wear uniforms or badges like the regular army.

JOIN FORCES

"Working people should not depend solely on the army and the police to wipe out these rebels," Lt.-Col. Tun Yin Lau tells the villagers. "They must cooperate with the army and police to wipe them out."

Burma at present has nine rebel organizations operating in the jungles. They are the Communist Party of Burma led by Thakin Soe, also known as the Red Flag Communists; the pro - Peking Communist Party (Burma) led by Thakin Than Tun; the Kashin Independence Army; the Shan State Independence Army; the Shan National United Front; the Arakanese Communist Party; the left-wing Chin Organization; the left-wing Mon United Front and the left-wing Karen National United Party.

More than 6,000 rebels belonging to these organizations surrendered last year and early this year, and about 5,000 rebels were killed or captured by army patrols in attacks against their hideouts in the jungles.

Representatives of all the organizations came out of their jungle hideouts and visited Rangoon when Gen. Ne Win, chairman of Burma's ruling Revolutionary Council, offered them peace talks in June, 1963.

ONLY ONE SIGNED

But the talks broke down in every case, except with the Kawthoolei Revolutionary Council which signed a peace agreement in March, 1964. The government blamed the "insincerity" of the rebels for the breakdown.

All the peace delegations representing rebel organizations were sent safely back to the jungle as promised by the government.

Soon afterwards, they again began to ambush government patrols, loot villages, and sometimes mine passenger trains and blow up bridges.

The rebels' usual method of operation is to enter villages when they know that army and police patrols are absent, and demand 'tax money' or rations, or loot the villagers. Then they slip back into their jungle hideouts before the patrols return or at first sight of them.

In future, army and police patrols will carry the fight intensively against the rebels in their hideouts while the people's militia units guard their own villages.

With the formation of these units throughout the country, the rebels will not easily be able to enter the villages to obtain money or food.

Canada's Geologists Using Modern Technique on Regional Scale

Science of Geochemistry Points Way to Riches

Using the ultra-modern technique of regional geochemical investigations, Canada's geologists are busy pinpointing the nation's probable sources of future mineral wealth with a clarity never before so graphically clear. Basic idea behind the method is the fact that hidden ore bodies diffuse and disperse minute traces of their elements across the face of the surrounding countryside. By sampling small pieces of surface material collected at many points over a wide area and testing the strength or amount of their metal content, geologists can produce an overall picture with the high and low mineral-content areas sharply defined. Maps produced by this method are as distinct as the population charts in a school atlas. One of the present geochemical surveys is underway in northern New Brunswick. Here, a 12-man Geological Survey of Canada field party is spending the summer traversing the province's scenic beauty while testing samples of the waters and sediments in the wilderness streams. Living in tents and special trailer units, which are also travelling chemical laboratories, the geologists remain mobile in order to complete the season's target of 1,000 square miles of territory examined. Traces of minerals found in stream-bed samples give strong indication of the element content of the surface materials in the area drained by that particular stream. This in turn indicates any above-average concentrations in nearby sub-surface rocks. Other surface samples studied for mineral content in geochemical surveying are plants, trees and soils, all of which tend to accumulate higher metal contents when in the vicinity of rich ore bodies. Canada's advanced methods of geochemical exploration, combined with other geological knowledge, will be a vital factor in the discovery of additional mineral wealth to ensure the country's future economic prosperity.

Auditor-General Is Unable To Find Help to Do Job Right

OTTAWA (CP) — Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson, who sometimes ticks off the government for having too many bodies around, can't get enough of them for his own office.

Despite the support of a Commons committee and a revised recruiting procedure, he continues to suffer from a staff shortage which, in his own words, "can't help but affect our ability to do the job assigned us by Parliament."

The job is that of government watchdog, empowered to examine the spending activity of each department and agency and, in an annual report to Parliament, to draw the public's attention to any evidence of waste and maladministration he has been able to uncover.

With federal spending now well beyond the $6,000,000,000 mark, it's a man-sized assignment requiring plenty of manpower.

Mr. Henderson calculates his minimum needs at 220 auditors and assistants. The treasury board has concurred in this figure and allocated the necessary funds.

MINISTER AGREES

"It's a difficult and frustrating problem," says Mr. Henderson. "There isn't much use having an approved establishment if you can't fill it. And we really need to fill it to do our job properly."

On that score, Mr. Henderson has the support of Finance Minister Gordon, a former partner in one of Canada's foremost chartered accountant firms.

When Mr. Henderson complained of his staff problems in his 1962 report, Mr. Gordon, then Liberal opposition member for Toronto Davenport was quick to support the auditor-general in an ensuing Commons debate.

Mr. Gordon told the House in January, 1963, that he, for one, recognized the importance of having sufficient staff to carry out audits. Without the necessary staff, Mr. Henderson just couldn't do his job.

"And if this job is not done properly, we might as well go home," said Mr. Gordon

While Mr. Gordon's switch to the treasury benches hasn't had much immediate impact, Mr Henderson feels he has made some progress toward solving the manpower problem.

In line with a recommendation of the Commons public accounts committee, the auditor-general has worked out a new relationship with the Civil Service Commission to streamline hiring procedures. Under the new system, Mr. Henderson himself does the recruiting with the commission maintaining liaison but not direct control over it.

TRAIN ACCOUNTANTS

Mr. Henderson says it's too early to tell whether the new system will provide the answers, but, at this stage, he's "very hopeful" it will.

The treasury board also has accepted Mr. Henderson's plea for a revised salary scale for his office. Recent staff advertisements run by the auditor-general offered $5,730-$6,630 for audit assistants and $6,630-$7,950 for auditors, salaries which Mr. Henderson says are comparable with private industry levels.

Finally—and Mr. Henderson thinks this may be a major breakthrough—he has moved to have his office acknowledged as an approved training ground for chartered accountants. The Quebec Institute of Chartered Accountants already has given its approval and similar action is expected from the Ontario institute.

"This should be a big help," says the auditor-general. "In the past, it's been almost impossible for us to attract juniors who want to study for their CA exams. Now we'll be able to compete for them."

Britain Proudly Displays First Remote-control Mine

NOTTINGHAM, England (Reuters) — Britain's state-owned coal industry points with pride at its newest baby—the world's first completely remote-controlled coal mine.

In this $54,000,000 automated project the communications system includes closed-circuit television, radio devices and a 200-line telephone exchange.

They will help control underground tasks that little more than 100 years ago were performed by sweating naked miners, girl helpers, and at the coalface boys of five and six who dragged the fuel-filled tubs away.

When Bevercotes opened in 1961 as a conventional mine, it was planned that 2,000 men would produce 1,250,000 tons of coal a year at a rate of three tons a man-shift.

In its new robot form the mine will produce 1,500,000 tons a year at the rate of eight tons a man-shift and will employ only 770 men.

Half of Britain's coal mines will be working along similar lines within the next 10 years if Bevercotes is a success.

Bevercotes has been described as a laboratory, a test bed and a proving ground. It certainly bears little resemblance to a coal mine.

The outline of its big cubical inter-connected surface buildings suggests a chemical plant. Even below ground there is little to indicate its real function.

At the foot of its 3,000-foot shafts are concrete-lined labyrinths, control rooms and bunkers, lines of machinery and conveyor belts — everything it seems, except coal.

When the first of the five remote-controlled, long-wall faces starts operating, Lord Robens, head of Britain's coal industry, will see coming nearer his dream of a mine working like an oil refinery 18 hours a day for seven days a week.

Robens still holds to his total British production target of 200,000,000 tons of coal a year despite the reluctance of the nationalized electricity industry to give guarantees about consumption.

He hopes that within the next decade about half this total will be produced by automated mines and that coal prices will fall.

External Aid Fights Off Mosquitoes

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP)—The long arm of Canadian external aid is reaching out to the mosquito problem on a three-island British colony in the Caribbean.

A Canadian scientist is to be sent to the Cayman Islands soon to conduct a two-year study along with a British entymologist already on the scene.

Under the external aid program, which assists underdeveloped countries, a three-man Canadian scientific team made a two-week preliminary on-the-spot survey last February. This led to the decision for a more extensive study.

The aim is to find a way of eliminating or controlling the mosquito population which tourists find annoying. A secondary problem is posed by biting midges, a speck-sized insect.

D. G. Peterson, crop protection research co-ordinator for the federal agriculture department, told an interviewer the main problem lies on Grand Cayman, the biggest of the islands.

BREED IN SWAMP

Mr. Peterson, who was on the preliminary survey, said the mosquitoes and midges breed freely in the Grand Cayman interior, which is mostly mangrove swamp.

The intermeshed branches and roots of the mangrove trees make it impossible to move in some areas without the help of an axe. The difficult access makes ground spraying a problem. The island is 21 miles long.

The May-October rainy season is also the mosquito season. Hotels in the beach-lined western end of Grand Cayman—the principal tourist area—combat the mosquitoes with machines that produce an insecticide fog.

Mr. Peterson said the Grand Cayman interior terrain is made more difficult by tides that raise and lower the water level in the swamps. It resembles a huge sponge, which makes control by drainage difficult.

New Zealand Leaders Move To Extend Maori Position

WELLINGTON (CP) — At a time when the trend all over the world is to closer integration of races, the New Zealand parliament presents an anomaly.

The Maoris of New Zealand are among the most advanced and best integrated of native races in Western civilization. Yet they retain separate representation in parliament. And parliament has been debating a move not only to retain the system, but even to extend it.

The Maoris are represented in the House of Representatives of 80 members by four Maori MPs, elected on a separate roll. The Maori MPs, supported by the opposition Labor party, have been demanding that a fifth Maori seat be added, because the Maoris are increasing in numbers more rapidly than the white population.

The government response has been that, far from perpetuating the system of separate representation, all Maori seats should be abolished and the whole population should vote on a common roll. However, the government has indicated that it would not take such an initiative without a clear mandate from the Maori people.

At present, and for a long time past, all four Maori seats have been held by the Labor party. Government speakers have been quick to claim that this is the reason Labor supports proposals for a fifth Maori seat.

MAORIS DIVIDED

The Maoris themselves are divided on the question, but many of them maintain that the race still needs its own spokesmen in parliament to safeguard specific Maori interests.

Attacking suggestions that the Maori seats should be abolished, a leading member of the Labor party, N. E. Kirk, said in parliament that the government wanted to mimic the policy of the nationalist government in South Africa. There the only people who represented colored people were whites.

Opinions on this point vary. Some people maintain that just as many Maoris as at present would get into parliament on a common roll. Others claim the race would critically lack spokesmen in parliament.

One outstanding case has occurred where a distinguished Maori, Sir James Carroll, represented a white constituency in parliament for many years. Citizens with some degrees of Maori blood can choose whether to register on the white or Maori roll. At the last election three part-Maoris ran for white seats. None was elected, but one came close to success.

Supporters of the idea of a common roll say that once white constituencies show their willingness to elect Maoris, or part Maoris, the movement for abolition of the special Maori seats will gather momentum. In local-body politics large numbers of Maoris are elected to borough and city councils on common rolls.

Meanwhile, Attorney-General J. R. Hanan has castigated the present system as "simple apartheid." Attacking in parliament the proposal for a fifth Maori seat, he made a call instead for the fixing of a clear timetable to abolish separate representation.

"We have now reached the stage when a time should be fixed, say 10 years hence, for abolition," he said. "Should this take place, I assert that there would be more members of this House with some Maori blood than there are today."

Hanan warned that the time would come when the United Nations would indicate that electoral segregation by separate representation was incompatible with the concept of an integrated society.

There the matter rests. The government has declined to accept the idea of a fifth Maori seat. But it is taking no active steps on Hanan's suggestion for a timetable for abolition.

Indications are that no government is likely to pursue the matter until there are stronger demands from the Maoris themselves for a common roll. So far the Maoris are not supporting in substantial numbers the claim that the separate roll is a form of racial discrimination.

Army Corporal Given Custody Of Daughters

KIRKLAND, N.B. (CP) — Army Corporal Alonzo W. Connors, who defied a London court order to bring his five-year-old daughter Evelyn Marie to Canada, says he will never return to England.

Last week Ian McCulloch, the soldier's counsel in London, told a High Court judge his client was in contempt of court for flying to Canada with the girl while the London court order called for her return to her mother in Wales.

He said he was shocked at the publicity given the case. He was contemptuous of suggestions that he give up Evelyn for her 14-year-old sister Shirley, still with the mother in Wales. That would be "trade in humans," he said.

When he divorced his wife in New Brunswick in 1953 he received legal custody of the girls. But the lawyer for Connors in Dublin said the mother went to Wales with the children without the father's permission.

A family with an annual income of $6,600 spends about $24,000 to raise a child to age 18 . . . 20 years ago a family earning $3,000 a year could bring a youngster up for $9,000—and faced less danger of winding up with a beatnik.

India is one of the world's hungriest nations . . . it is estimated that three out of four of her 483,000,000 people get less than the 2,500 daily calories needed for good health.

The price of freedom: Since Japanese women have been granted more-equal rights, doctors have found an increase in high blood pressure among them . . . but they still outlive the average Japanese man, 72.8 years to his 67.6.

The price of peace in a cold war era: State Secretary Dean Rusk figures the United States has spent $600,000,000,000 on defence since the end of the Second World War.

Our quotable notables: "It is only in the upper-class level that each husband sits next to the other man's wife." —Louis Kronenberger.

South Viet Nam may have had nine or 10 changes of government in the last few years, but Bolivia may hold the record for political restlessness . . that country has had some 179 revolutions.

Sign on back of pest control truck: "Drive carefully—and leave the exterminating to us."

I suppose that you, like most people, have gone through life wondering how to tell a male toad from a female . . . a reader informs me this is a sure-fire way: When tickled, the male sits and croaks, but the female just sits and sits.

Life is getting lovelier all the time: A whisky-scented soap made in bottle-shaped bars is being sold in Austria.

Why Don't Those Astronauts Just Climb Out And Clean Those Fuel Lines?

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — "Why don't those astronauts just climb out of the spacecraft and clean out those fuel lines?" asked the anxious voice over the telephone.

Bob Button, Manned Spacecraft Centre information specialist, listened patiently, then tried to explain why L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr. couldn't fix Gemini 5's propulsion problem as easy as that.

"They can't open the spacecraft hatches," he said. "They don't have an umbilical cord to pipe oxygen to them even if they could open the hatch. And finally, their space suits can't protect them from the dangers in space."

Not convinced, the man asked: "Why don't they build trap doors into the equipment section then?"

Button couldn't think of an answer. "I'll pass along your suggestion," he said.

Whenever problems pop up in the Gemini 5 flight, and there have been plenty so far, Button's phone starts ringing with callers offering advice.

The centre has had calls from as far away as Toronto, Button said, although he did not disclose the caller's name—or suggestion.

Most calls, about 100, came last Saturday, first day of the flight, when the fuel cell started acting up.

"One woman called from Los Angeles, Calif.," Button said, "saying that her woman's intution told her that a screw was loose in the fuel cell. 'If you could just find that screw and put it back in place the trouble would be solved,' she said."

Other suggestions ranged from taking the switch off and repairing it to turning the spacecraft's bottom, where the fuel cell is located, toward the sun.

"One woman said if the trouble was a broken wire, why didn't the astronauts get another wire and splice them together?" Button said.

Button and Mrs. Zell Skillern operated the query desk in the Gemini 5 press centre 24 hours a day. They take questions from reporters and get the answers.

"One caller from Los Angeles said the fuel cell trouble was sabotage," said Mrs. Skillern. "He called back five times. Finally he said he was going higher up. He didn't think I was doing enough."

The query desk has answered 318 questions from reporters up to Thursday night. Names of the reporters are recorded, but not the names of the callers offering free advice.

"When the astronauts reported they were cold," Button said, "one caller wanted to know why they didn't put a blanket around their shoulders."

"Many of the calls come from people claiming to have seen the spacecraft at night," said Button. "I try to explain that the spacecraft has not passed over the United States at night yet. They don't believe me."

The spacecraft will make its first night pass over the United States today and Saturday.

BACKHOE CUTS PHONE CABLE

Sewer Work Disrupts Lines For 250 Phones

Approximately 250 telephones in the City Hall area were out of service for nearly five hours yesterday as a result of an accidental cutting of a cable at the corner of Bridge and Pinnacle Streets.

Mr. C. Buckley, Bell Telephone manager, said, "we received a flash that the phones were out about 3.30 yesterday afternoon. It took us about one hour to locate the problem, and except for a few stray lines, the phones were back in service by 8 p.m.

"It is impossible at this time to estimate the cost of the damaged lines. The testing and working through of each of the 200 lines can vary so much that an estimate can not be given at this time.

"We can say though that the damage was considerable. Whenever we have over 20 lines out of service, we consider that serious, so you can imagine what impact 200 lines have.

"There were more lines affected in yesterday's break than there was in the submarine cable break in the bay a while back. However, yesterday's break was easier to get at."

All the lines at city hall were out, and LaSalle Ambulance reported that three people who required an ambulance could not get one. The solution for LaSalle was for the Bell operator to relay calls to the ambulance mobile units.

Bell Telephone cable repairmen Mac Bell, back towards camera, Len Coughlin, centre, and Ron Kerr, fix the damaged telephone cable yesterday at Pinnacle and Bridge Streets. The 1200 pair cable was partially cut by the backhoe of a trenching crane.

Dief. Winds Up Que. Tour

KNOWLTON, Que. (CP)—Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker said Thursday night that all Canadians must strive to preserve Canada in strength, unity and amity.

The Progressive Conservative leader told a public meeting here as he concluded a five-day tour of Quebec's Eastern Townships that in two years the Liberal government has brought about division, suspicion and uncertainty to an unprecedented degree.

A crowd of about 350 persons waited almost 80 minutes for the Opposition leader to arrive in the basement of the Roman Catholic high school here. He was delayed during an afternoon visit and supper with the monks at the Benedictine monastery of St. Benoit du Lac, about 40 miles southeast of here.

Mr. Diefenbaker told his audi-

Decision On Vote Reached

By STEWART MacLEOD

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson was moving on to new territories today after a week in southern British Columbia during which he appeared to leave little doubt that he'll soon return on an election campaign.

"That's it," said a B.C. party organizer Thursday after he heard about Mr. Pearson's press conference with its heavily-weighted comments in support of an early vote.

After the week in British Columbia, when it was generally believed the prime minister would reach a firm decision on an election, Mr. Pearson gave every indication Thursday that such a decision has been reached in favor of polling this fall.

He said an announcement would be made "one way or the other" within the next two weeks after he consults his cabinet in Ottawa. And then, through a series of questions and answers, the prime minister appeared to be clearly presenting a case in favor of voting

Gemini 5 Will Fly 7th Day

By JOHN BARBOUR

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Gemini 5 spacecraft was cleared for the seventh day in space today and hurtled on toward its eight-day goal, turning awkward cartwheels along the way.

Earlier troubles that threatened to cut the mission short by one day were under control. The seventh-day go-ahead came at 9:02 a.m. EDT.

Flight officials were encouraged that the mission would go the full eight days.

Pilot Charles (Pete) Conrad Jr. asked that the mission clock read and was told "50 hours to go." Command Pilot L. Gordon Cooper, Jr., said he slept eight hours out of 24, but was "still sleepy."

At 8:09 a.m. EDT the spacecraft completed its 90th orbit.

Temperatures fell to below freezing in the spacecraft cabin with the electrical usage curtailed—but Cooper and Conrad remained comfortable in their spacesuits.

TUMBLING EASED

The go-ahead, beamed up to Gemini 5 by capsule communicator James A. McDivitt, was for 106 orbits.

As the Gemini 5 passed over the Guaymas, Mexico, station on its 90th orbit, the second section of the fuel cell was reactivated and the power was brought up in the electrical systems of the space craft. The flight at that point was just over 144 hours old.

The two astronauts triggered their jet thrusters periodically to straighten out the slowly accelerating tumble of their craft.

With pilot Charles (Pete) Conrad Jr., asleep, command pilot L. Gordon Cooper Jr. told controllers that the tumble rate was a little bit high—about two turns a minute—but "not too bad."

"We didn't really feel much specifically except that items that have been flying around

Economy Strong In June

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — June, the month of the stock market slump, turns out now to have been not such a hard-times month after all.

Figures only now becoming available for the month show strength in many of the important business sectors of the economy.

Except for the continued rise in prices and somewhat higher unemployment, caused mainly by the arrival of high school and university students on the labor market, all these showed up-trends:

—Retail sales, $1,863,647,000, up 9.2 per cent in June from the level of a year earlier, bringing total retail trade for the first half of 1965 to $10,133,357,000, up 5.6 per cent

Teacher Thinks Galosh-pulling Beneath Dignity

ALGONQUIN PARK, Ont. (CP) — Ontario's teachers are concerned about some of the things they find themselves doing outside classroom hours—such as helping pupils out on galoshes.

"I believe the status of a professional person is judged, by the public, by what you have to do," said L. H. Outram of Stoney Creek, president of the Ontario Public School Men Teachers Federation.

"If you do up galoshes, you are not adding very much to your status," he said.

This, and other kinds of extra curricular activities, have become an irritating problem, it was decided Thursday at the convention of the board of governors of the Ontario Teachers Federation.

The governors will vote today on a resolution calling on the provincial education department to provide extra adult supervision of school children before 8:30 a.m., during lunch hours and after school.

Wilbur Smalley of Fort Frances suggested the school grants system be altered to encourage school boards to hire more teachers, so there would be time for supervision as well as spare periods for teachers to rest, prepare lessons and carry on other duties.

H. E. Gillies of St. Catharines, agreed that more teachers were needed, and added:

"I don't like the concept of status entering into it, as if by having to do anything with pupils outside the classroom is beyond the teacher's exalted status. A very valuable contact can exist between pupils and teachers in non-classroom situations. To turn supervision over to non-teachers would be detrimental to the education of the children."

Viet Cong Attack 3 Posts Dozen Miles From Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong guerrillas attacked three government positions a few miles south of Saigon within an hour early today, a U.S. military spokesman announced.

Vietnamese losses were reported heavy in one of the assaults, on Tan Nhut outpost. It was reported overrun.

A ranger unit dispatched to the scene made contact with the Viet Cong, but there were no details on the fighting.

The actions took place about 12 to 15 miles southwest of the capital.

Government forces were reported to have beaten off one of the attacks, at Long An, with light casualties. Two Viet Cong were killed after a guerrilla force of unknown size moved against a Vietnamese unit protecting five hamlets in the area, the spokesman said.

The communists also shelled the district town of Binh Chanh with mortar fire, the spokesman said. Light Vietnamese casualties reported.

The spokesman reported these other developments:

A multi-battalion government force completed one of the wars' largest road clearing operations Thursday, opening strategic highway 21 from the coastal city of Nha Trang to the provincial capital of Ban Me Thuot in the central highlands.

More than 2,000 American logistic troops from 20 different units landed at three coastal cities this week as the U.S. military buildup continued. The troops will strengthen the first logistical command.

U.S. Marines pulled out of the area Tuesday, a week after attacking an estimated 2,000 Viet Cong on the peninsula. At least 600 Viet Cong were reported killed in the battle.

President Nasser of the United Arab Republic arrived in Moscow for a five-day visit today, and authoritative sources in Cairo said he brought a new Vietnamese peace proposal.

The plan calls for a ceasefire in Viet Nam to be supervised by an international force and for respect for the present frontiers between North and South Viet Nam, the sources said.

Responsible sources in Cairo said Nasser had been in touch with the Chinese Communists and they insisted on the withdrawal of U.S. forces from Viet Nam as a condition for any peace talks. This, too, was included in the proposals Nasser brought to Moscow, the sources said.

U.S. Seeks To Slow Viet Nam War

NEW YORK (AP) — In a series of unpublicized and indirect approaches to North Viet Nam, the United States now is offering to exchange demonstrations of a desire to slow down the war, the New York Times says.

The story from Washington reports that the North Vietnamese are said to be receiving unidentified third-party representatives with evident interest, although they have not yet given anything that might be construed as a reply.

In its indirect approaches the Johnson administration is specifically said to be urging the Hanoi government to consider a withdrawal of all or part of the 325th Division of the North Vietnamese army from South Viet Nam in exchange for a reduction in United States military actions, including the bombing of North Viet Nam.

Canada to Pursue More Effective Peacekeeping Measures at UN Assembly

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

There appears to be growing disenchantment within and outside the government with Canada's self-appointed peacekeeping role.

External Affairs Minister Martin said Wednesday, however, that Canada will pursue the subject of more effective peacekeeping measures at the United Nations General Assembly this fall.

Despite one disappointment after another, Mr. Martin has refused to be dissuaded from his goal of a world peacekeeping force. He is as relentless in this matter as his predecessor, Conservative Howard Green, was in the field of disarmament.

John Holmes, director-general of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs and a former senior official of the external Affairs and a former senior official of the external affairs department, said this week that Canada's reputation is becoming slightly tarnished after 20 years of the kind of active diplomacy that rarely satisfies anyone.

OLD DRIVE LACKING

"We are no longer looked upon as a fresh young force," he said at the third annual Banff conference on world development.

Within the government as a whole, there does not appear to be the same drive there once was behind the objective of world peacekeeping.

For example, no strenuous effort was made to find enough infantrymen to reinforce the 2nd Canadian Guards Battalion for its scheduled UN duty in Cyprus next month. The unit was far below strength and it will be fleshed out by a 130-man battery from an artillery regiment which won't take its guns to Cyprus.

There is wide criticism among the military and non-military alike in Ottawa concerning the choice of the CF - 5 fighter-bomber, ostensibly to be used in limited conventional flareups anywhere in the world.

WHITER CF-5?

Many officials say they just can't see Canada becoming embroiled in a situation far from its shores where the CF-5 would or could be used, whether in a UN operation or otherwise.

Prof. James Eayrs of the University of Toronto, who has written books on Canadian defence and foreign policy, said at Banff Wednesday that Canada's military policy is in disarray because its military forces are used more for diplomatic than defence purposes.

On the CF-5, he said, "there is nothing to suggest that in Canadian service it can ever be called upon to do what it's designed to do."

Prof. Donald R. Gordon, associate professor of political science at the University of Alberta, said too much stress has been placed on Canada's role as a member of the UN "fire brigade."

UN TROUBLES

The coolness to peacekeeping is probably due, at least in part, to the inability of Canada and some of its friends to swing the UN generally to the view that peacekeeping costs must be a collective responsibility of all UN members.

The special financial pledges by Canada, Britain and the Scandinavians to help meet the peacekeeping deficit have so far not persuaded other UN members to fill the till.

GOAL WAS TROMBONE

The only theatrical ambition comedian Andy Griffith can recall from childhood was being able to play the trombone—which he now can.

Suburban Planning Board In Favor of Row Housing

Belleville and Suburban Planning Board looked at the needs of an expanding city at its regular meeting Thursday night, and suggested row housing as one answer to the problem of increasing population and rising costs. Other topics discussed were parking, building bylaw violations and the sewage treatment plant.

The board will recommend that city Council change present zoning regulations to permit row housing. This kind of multi-family dwelling, called town housing in Toronto and other large centres, is now prohibited in Belleville. Planning Board staff has prepared a set of standards for row houses and a local builder wants to begin construction of units when Council gives him the go ahead.

Reason for the Board's decision is the high cost of servicing new developments. Row housing would accommodate more people at less cost for construction and services, resulting in a saving for both the prospective buyer and the city.

Planning Director P. J Beavis said residential density in some parts of the city is only nine people per acre. Single family suburban houses of the kind now being constructed in Belleville will soon be too costly for the average family to own and for the city to service, he said.

MAYOR CONCURS

Mayor Jack Ellis, speaking in support of the Board's recommendation, said row housing is not directed at low - income groups. In Toronto it is considered housing for the elite. He added that Belleville's senior citizens' housing plan is a dramatic example of row house architecture, but building can't get under way until the bylaws are changed.

Debate on off-street parking in the downtown area was prompted by a letter from City Manager J. R. Reynolds. He asked the Board to consider reducing the amount of the cash payment required of developers in lieu of providing parking space on business premises. In June, the Board advised City Council to ask developers for $1,200 in lieu of each space required This is 60 percent of the cost to the city of providing alternative downtown parking on city owned lots Council tabled the recommendation.

Mr. Beavis said there is sufficient area on the West Robertson Block property to provide 20 of the 26 to 30 spaces required. The developer would have to pay cash for six to ten spaces, at a total cost of from $7,200 to $12,000.

Mayor Jack Ellis said the city may be able to reduce the cost of a parking space to $1,500 resulting in a charge of $900 to developers. The Board tabled further discussion of the parking space question until after Council has considered the new rate.

BY-LAW VIOLATED

Two violations of the four foot side yard requirements of city zoning bylaws were reported to the Board by Mr. Beavis. In both cases the men concerned applied to the Committee of Adjustment, after construction was underway, for permission to build carports less than a foot from the boundary lines of their properties. One carport is finished; the other is 80 percent built. The owner of the completed carport failed to apply for a building permit before starting construction. The second man was warned at the time he applied for a permit that buildings could not be constructed closer than four feet from the side property line.

The Board decided that the building bylaws are reasonable and the two cases submitted to the Committee of Adjustment are not minor variances, but straight contraventions of the building and zoning bylaws.

"This is a case of applications being submitted after the dee is done," commented Mr. Beavis.

The Board advised the Committee to reject the applications

Huntingdon's Centennial Project Passed

The Ontario Government has approved a township of Huntingdon centennial project, calling for the purchase of a school building and its conversion for use as municipal offices at an estimated cost of $4,500.

Clark Rollins, MPP for Hastings East, reports that he has received from Hon. J. W. Spooner, Minister of Municipal Affairs, notification of the province's approval. The proposal will now be forwarded to the Centennial Commission in Ottawa for its approval. If this is received, the cost will be shared equally by the township, provincial and federal governments.

Decision

The advice of the experts, he said, is that no election can be held in 1966 on the new electoral boundaries—now in process of being shaped—and he said no one would want an election in early 1967, Canada's centennial.

WOULD CHOOSE FALL

In that case, offered a reporter, the choice was either this fall or late 1967 and he suggested the prime minister would choose this fall.

"You have a very succinct way of putting things," said Mr. Pearson.

When asked about earlier statements that he hoped the present government could continue to govern, he said he would like to think that it could but "it has always been the prerogative of a government to decide when an election would be called."

He snapped back at statements by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker that the prime minister wanted an election to avoid facing Parliament on such issues as the Dorion report.

"All I can say is that the Dorion report was submitted before the House of Commons recessed when Mr. Diefenbaker was in Saskatchewan and didn't come back," he said. The Opposition had all the opportunity it needed to move any motion against the government on the Dorion report before Parliament recessed.

Today Mr. Pearson was moving on to Prince George for a noon speech to a joint service club luncheon, then on to Banff, Alta., for an evening speech to a conference on world development. Saturday he attends an afternoon picnic in Edmonton before speaking there in the evening to the Alberta Liberal Association.

Anglicans Ready To Form Union

By DENNIS ORCHARD

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Anglican Church of Canada has declared its "engagement" to the United Church of Canada.

Approving a solemn proposal to embark on a union of the two churches, the Anglicans' 22nd General Synod Thursday night committed itself, in the words of one member, "to an adventure in the name of God."

The synod's vote approving the principles of union drawn up by Anglican and United Church Committees of Ten will be followed in 13 months by the vote of the United Church's general council.

If the principles are passed there too, the churches will begin the great task of planning union, and bringing the principles to their presbyteries and dioceses for the laity to digest.

The act of union lies at least several years in the future. The year 1975 is regarded as a conservative estimate.

NO TURNING BACK

But the feeling of the synod Thursday was that its all but unanimous vote meant an all but irrevocable step, and as Toronto's Archdeacon G. H. Johnson said, "there is no turning back."

The 38 bishops of the synod's upper house all voted for the principles. So did the members of the clergy who make up half of the 300-member lower house. Among the lay delegates, making up the other half, three men dissented.

All three were from Winnipeg, representing the diocese of Rupert's Land. Their spokesman, Derek Bedson, said union with the United Church is an ecumenical short cut that should be refused in the hope of a larger Christian union.

The United Church, formed 40 years ago of Methodists, Congregationalists and Presbyterians, has about 2,000,000 members on its rolls.

Anglicans in Canada number about 1,300,000.

Standing ovations met members of the Committee of Ten who movingly placed the principles in their historical perspective.

Too Much Fat In Hamburger, Butcher Fined

A Belleville butcher today was fined $200 for selling hamburger containing more fat than allowed by law.

John Black, owner of Black's Meat Market, pleaded guilty to two charges laid under the Federal Food and Drug Act and was assessed $100 on each charge by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Food inspector Patrick MacKinnon said the law allowed only 30 per cent fat in hamburger. Two samples taken from Black's showed fat content at 35.5 percent and 34.3 percent.

Mr. Black had been warned twice before the charges were laid, the inspector said.

A letter had been sent by the department in July 1964 and January of this year.

Mr. Black estimated he sold about a thousand pounds of hamburger a week and had never received any complaints from customers. However, he was now installing a $400 machine to test lean - fat ratio before offering hamburger for sale in his store.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is changing step slightly to keep pace with the altering patterns of the times.

Starting this Fall the regiment switches to weekend training in a bid to attract and hold recruits still in high school.

The new look was unveiled to officers and NCOs of the regiment at a training conference in Belleville headquarters armory last night by Lt.-Col. K. D. H. Willcocks.

The change from traditional Monday-night drill parades will greatly facilitate the type of young recruit now being sought by the regiment, the colonel said.

"This has been tried out West and has proven very satisfactory. We don't want our programs to interfere with their studies and we feel this is met by training one Saturday and Sunday a month."

For some senior officers and NCOs the change may raise some difficulties, he told the conference.

"This year," he said, "the regiment had been given the task of raising and training a field rifle company. There were vacancies for about six subalterns and possibly 40 new recruits."

Some militia units in Eastern Ontario were doubtful of maintaining strength through the new year, he noted. However, the colonel said he had no such fears for the Hasty Pees.

"If we can get these 40 people, I believe we'll be the strongest unit in Eastern Ontario by far."

were getting slung to the side of the cockpit," Cooper said.

By powering down the spacecraft — cutting its electrical usage—flight officials said they were controlling easily the problems emanating from the fuel cell.

Two crippled jet thrusters that helped manoeuvre the spacecraft were still not working—but others were. Flight officials emphasized that the manoeuvreing jets were not necessary for the completion of the flight.

After a gloomy assessment of the problems Thursday, flight director Christopher C. Kraft said there was a possibility that the mission might be cut short by a day.

But later, with the spacecraft in its 87th orbit, flight controller Eugene Krantz summed up a second look at the problems as they existed then. He said:

"At the present time I think we have the capability of going eight days. I tend to think there should be no difficulty in going the full eight."

Long Delay Before Charge, Youth Freed

Police officers are primarily concerned with charging the offender—not in seeking compensation for his victim, Magistrate T. Y. Wills said today.

He underlined his words by dismissing a wilful damage charge against 17-year-old Grant Lawrence, R.R. 5, Belleville, and rejecting the youth's plea of guilty.

Lawrence was charged with smashing a picture-display showcase at the Park Theatre, May 28. However, the magistrate noted the charge was laid August 21.

The delay in laying the charge seemed to intimate there had been an attempt to secure reparation for the damage.

"If there's a criminal offence the charge should be laid whether or not there's a question of collecting money," said Magistrate Wills. "The police are in charge of the law and not the person who has been injured."

"That doesn't mean you win," he told Lawrence, warning him to stay out of further trouble with the law.

Saturday evening Bayview Heights will hold their annual wiener roast at 7.30 p.m. We hope everyone will attend. Thanks again Janet!

Awards Given Performers

STRATFORD (CP) — Award-winning theatrical personnel who receive prizes intended to advance their art can make their own decisions about how the money is to be used "even if they think one big party" will provide more future benefits than anything else, Douglas Campbell said here Thursday.

Mr. Campbell, veteran actor, presented Sir Tyrone Guthrie awards to members of the Shakespearean Festival company. Seven persons received awards, including the first to an actress, Joan Karasevich.

The winners were: Actor Leon Pownall, $2,000; actor Kenneth Pogue, $1,000; Miss Karasevich, $500; property man Jack King, $1,000; property man Michel Catudal, $1,000; wig dresser Jean Garrod, $500; and singer Maurice Brown, $1,000.

Eight Injured In Accident On Wooler Road

TRENTON — Eight persons were taken to Trenton hospital by Rushnell Ambulance shortly after 2 p.m. yesterday, following a two - car, head on crash on the Wooler Road, just south of the subway.

Injured were the driver of the south bound car, Geoffrey Herbert Lord, 45, of Codrington, who suffered possible broken ribs; his wife, Jean, 41, who was cut below the left eye; Cathy Lord, 17, both knees cut; Wendy Lord, 10, cut inside mouth; Douglas Lord, 8, cut inside bottom lip; Samuel Lord, 5, cut to right leg and the driver of the north bound car, John Wm. Steele, 21, of 10 Spring St. who suffered lacerations to his forehead. Janet Lord, 9, was not injured.

Police say the Lord vehicle was considered a write off and the Steele car was damaged to the extent of $450.

Roads were wet and slippery at the time of the accident.

Shortly after 2 p.m. yesterday Stephen Weese, 14, of 63 Kerr Cresc., Trenton slipped on No. 1 dam in the Trent River and fell into the third Spillway from the west end of the dam, into the river below.

Fortunately the water was shallow at this point and the youth was pulled from the river by his 16 year old brother, David, with whom he was swimming.

Stephen was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital by Rushnell Ambulance where he was x-rayed for possible back injuries.

Car Strikes Hydro Pole, Four Injured

A car driven by Kenneth John Hall, 21, Brighton, crashed off a curve in heavy rain and felled a hydro pole. Passengers in the car, Ann Martin, 13, her brother Arthur, 18, and Charles 15, all of Brighton suffered minor injuries.

While they were treated at Trenton Memorial Hospital, a car driven by Gregory Smith, 18, of Bayside, rounded the same curve and struck the hydro pole still lying across the road.

He was uninjured.

Damage to the Hall vehicle was 2,500.

Tenders Called For Building In Township

TRENTON — Tenders were called today for the construction of a new municipal building in Murray Township by E. F. Marston, consulting engineer for the township. Tenders must be in by 5 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 8.

Estimated cost of the building is $30,000, on which the township will collect $10,000 as a Centennial grant. The remainder of the cost has been provided for out of current funds and by the sale of debentures.

Meanwhile, work on the approaches to the new railway bridge across the new township development road is progressing, and two cement piers for the bridge itself are installed.

Tenders for the completion of the stretch of road between the bridge and Highway 33 will be called for by the Department of Highways this autumn.

When the development road is completed sometime next year, it will run from Highway 401, across Highway Two to Highway 33, and will provide motorists and truckers, coming off 401 or from Prince Edward County with an alternative to bucking Trenton traffic.

Murray Township officials are anxiously awaiting action on the part of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission which means to build a dam abutting the road and a water storage pond in the near vicinity.

The PUC has said it means to go ahead with the project and has named $300,000 as the sum necessary to complete the job for capital budget planning purposes.

U.S. Legal System

The processes of the law as they are unfolded in the United States are so tortuous and involved that they are almost impossible for the layman to follow.

From the public point of view it is sufficient to be convinced that justice is being done—or, to use that quaint example of legal terminology, has the appearance of being done.

As often as not, however, in the United States, a miscreant can get away literally with murder. The prosecution of justice is so entangled with prejudice, emotionalism and regional idiosyncracies, not to mention the long drawn out system of appealing a case, that the law has the appearance of the proverbial ass.

The impending trial of a part-time deputy sheriff in Alabama for the murder of a white theology student is shadowed by local sentiment and prejudice. The accused has been described as "an easy-going, good fellow," which can be regarded only as a mark in his favor whenever the authorities get around to holding the trial.

Last March, Mrs. Viola Liuzzo, a Detroit civil rights worker, was shot in cold blood in the same area. A Ku Klux Klansman was tried for the slaying, but the jury was unable to reach a verdict. In Alabama, convictions for killings with a racial background are the exception rather than the rule.

Jack Ruby, alleged killer of Lee Harvey Oswald, President Kennedy's assassin, is still in custody with arguments presumably still being conducted over his mental state at the time of the shooting.

Meanwhile the troubles of Oswald's Russian wife, Marina, continue. She has just obtained a peace bond against her husband, Kenneth Jess Porter, whom she married only three months or so ago. Mrs. Porter claimed her husband, who was held for a time in Dallas county jail of all places, slapped her and frightened her with a gun.

Apparently, the obtaining of a peace bond is one legal procedure that may be effected expeditiously in the United States.

Toronto's Boom

The city of Toronto affects people in different ways. Some like it, others cannot stand the place, while a third group grudgingly admits it grows on them and is not such a bad place after all.

A new appraisal of the city goes so far as to rate it as Canada's most sophisticated city. That is the view of Marlene Ann Argus, director and business manager of a new magazine, The Townsman, being published especially for the city's affluent society.

After eight years in Vancouver, Mrs. Argue, a native of Bulyea, Sask., describes Toronto's boutiques, theatres and arts centres as "absolutely exciting." She says Toronto is second only to New York in such fields as theatre, night clubs, cinema, discotheques, art exhibits, concerts, folk singing, jazz and music.

This is fine of course if you want a steady diet of entertainment and diversion. However, when all is said and done there is an artificiality about all this new-found sophistication that repels the uncomplicated soul who prefers simple pleasures or life in the great outdoors to skyscrapers and the harshness of big city streets.

Perhaps the ideal solution is to live and work in one or other of Toronto's attractive suburban communities where one can still obey the call of the wild, breathe air that is clean and fresh and now and again brave the jungle that is the big city for dinner, dancing, the theatre or whatever.

A Lunenburg, N.S. artist, Thaya Batdorf, summed up this situation aptly the other day. On a visit to Montreal she said she was both depressed and stimulated by city life.

"Visiting urban areas is necessary for the absorption of ideas, but people who live in the city never see the mad circle they are in."

Memory for Faces

A good memory and a sharp eye for faces are among the qualities of a good policeman. They led to the arrest and jailing in Perth recently of an Illinois man who returned to Canada to attend a family funeral in Belleville.

The Chicago resident was arrested in Ontario four years ago on a charge of breaking and entering, was released on $500 which was estreated when he did not show up for trial. He was arrested when recognized by a policeman in downtown Belleville.

The incident has a parallel out west where Constable Dennis Lannon of the Vancouver City Police has an impressive record of spotting wanted criminals on city streets.

Lannon estimates he made 50 or 60 arrests in 1964 by remembering faces from police posters. He was on holiday recently when he made his 31st arrest of 1965, spotting a man wanted by police in Toronto on a charge of criminal negligence.

The Toronto-born policeman developed his visual skill as a youngster when he collected pictures of hockey stars and memorized the details of their faces.

Doctors Are So Busy They Lack Time to Explain

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have just read your booklet, "How to Heal Peptic Ulcers and Keep Them Healed." (To receive a copy, write Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., enclosing the required 20 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.) No doctor in this day of hurry would take the time necessary to explain to his patients what you have done in your booklet. I have learned a great deal from it. — Mrs. S. C.

Thank you for your kind words, and naturally I am glad that the booklet helped you. But let me also explain something else.

It isn't always a question of what one would do, but rather what one can do. Doctors would explain peptic ulcers, and many other problems, if they had the time to do so.

Why don't they have time? Because, in the simplest possible statement of the facts, some stretching is necessary to make the supply of doctors meet the demand for their services.

In many other parts of the world the condition is far worse. In India many people are blind because there aren't enough eye surgeons to remove cataracts. Babies die in China from diseases which pediatricians in the United States or Sweden or New Zealand would cure readily. The hospital-medical ship S. S. Hope visits Indonesia and Africa and finds swarms of suffering people who never in their lives have seen a doctor.

Here at home we do not have abysmal absence of medical care, but we do have a shortage. We don't have the problem of a patient needing attention that simply doesn't exist. Rather, we have the problem of not getting as much attention as we would like (and can use!) and not always getting it right when we want it.

Have you ever arrived in your doctor's office on time and then had to sit and wait? Who hasn't!

It isn't because the doctor benefits by having you wait. It is because he has had to squeeze in an emergency patient, or has had to take extra time because of some complicated case, or, let's face it, his secretary trying to give appointments to everyone who called, scheduled an extra one.

That's the way things are. That's why doctors can't take the extra 15 minutes to explain things. Somebody else is waiting, and wondering why the doctor can't hurry.

And that's the story of why I think my booklets on various subjects may be worth their salt. If one booklet saves 10 minutes of some doctor's time, a thousand booklets on the same subject will save 166 hours of 'doctor time'" And if each doctor has, let's say three patients waiting an extra 10 minutes each, hundreds of hours of "patient time" are saved.

I gather that the booklets fill a real need for readers. They also help stretch the amount of medical care that can be given by our doctors.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has a thyroid deficiency. Does this mean our children will be mentally retarded? We have been told so. — Mrs. J. S.

No, that is not true. Complete failure of the thyroid gland in a child will cause serious retardation, but that is a far different condition from an underactive thyroid. And even when a baby is born with this problem, thyroid medication prevents retardation.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Are diuretics harmful in the early months of pregnancy? Because of an extremely irregular menstrual cycle, I did not realize that I was pregnant for quite some time, and had been taking the medicine to increase the urine. Can it harm the embryo in any way? — Mrs. B. H.

In ordinary dosage, it should not harm either you or the baby.

Human Life Has Become 'Cheap'

The Editor,
Intelligencer:

Re: Page 12 issue Friday 20th report of "woman killed."

The complacent reporting of this awful tragedy, just as though some minor incident had occurred that delayed the train, makes me shudder to contemplate how cheap human life has become.

There was a time when the press was the leader of public opinion. With the annual sequence of death and maiming that goes on across Ontario at rail crossings, surely there should be an insistent demand for more adequate safety measures.

It is deadly easy to get yourself killed at an uncontrolled crossing, if you don't hear the bell. On a windy day you get quite close at the speed a car travels, and if brakes should fail, you've had it.

Dual warning, lights and bells at every crossing would not save every life (there are those that try to beat the train), but at least they would place two strikes against a fatality.

John H. Roper,
R. R. 1,
Carrying Place.

Editor's Note: This newspaper has consistently advocated greater safety on the highway, in the water, at level crossings and wherever danger lurks amid today's complex traffic systems.

Maginot Line Serviceable

Brockville Recorder and Times

France's Maginot Line, built after World War I and proved useless in World War II, may yet demonstrate its worth — if World War III should ever occur.

The elaborate concrete - encased defence line was constructed following the first Great War in which trench warfare was the principal type of combat. A collection of heavily protected forts, blockhouses, tunnels and subterranean chambers, it was considered the ultimate in protection against any future German attack.

French reliance on its impregnability proved the country's undoing in World War II when Hitler, employing blitzkrieg tactics, easily outflanked the line with tank thrusts. With the Maginot Line, the front line of defence, overrun in a matter of days, French resistance crumbled and the country capitulated not long thereafter.

"Old fashioned" in 1940, the line is now being reconsidered as a defence establishment in the nuclear age. The system, which stretches along France's eastern frontier, has been kept in working — though disarmed — condition since the end of World War II.

A survey of possible shelters against atomic bombs and missiles has found the line "ideal." Its submerged tunnels and compartments contain everything needed to enable men to remain underground for several months at a time without contact with the outside world.

It must surely rank as one of history's great ironies that the Maginot Line — the very symbol of unpreparedness in 1939 — should give France a leg up on the rest of the world in preparedness in 1965. The United States, Britain, Canada — and Russia too — are still at the talking stage on the fallout shelter problem while a military anachronism has given France such a system, ready made.

STERLING FIRM

New York Times

The news that British exports soared to a record last month should dispel rumors that sterling will be devalued. British producers, helped in part by the Labor government's measures to spur exports, are demonstrating an ability to compete in world markets. If they can continue to improve their position and if Labor's moves to curb imports are successful, the pound will be in a position to recover from the suspicions that now surround it.

The British are finding out that it is much more difficult and time-consuming to build confidence in a currency than to destroy it, and it will take more than one month's good results to restore international faith in the value of sterling.

Cultivated Minds Are Rare

Brantford Expositor

Teachers receive more unsought advice on what their job is and how to do it than almost any other section of the community. And they remain remarkably calm, at least in public, under this bombardment of counsel and criticism, some from people whose education could stand improvement.

For stimulus in our badly lagging cultural field there is much looking to teachers. By the nature of their work they have a big role to play, and some may not be pulling their weight. But what of the rest of the 19 million Canadians, many of them parents? Among them there is a good deal of sniffing at culture.

People with cultivated minds have been a small minority in every nation in every age. Compulsory education and spreading prosperity have not greatly altered their relative number. The chief achievement of popular education has been to produce a lot of people who can read and write but who rarely write and whose reading leans heavily to the mediocre and worse.

They have been exposed at school to certain cultural influences but the vaccine has not taken for reasons that lie at least as much within them as with the quality of the teaching. Many are allergic to anything that is not immediately and crudely entertaining or which requires any more mental effort than is needed to grasp the meaning of a comic strip.

Since the bulk of any nation will probably never be interested in literature, drama, painting or music above the level of juke box yowling, it is to be hoped that expectations of a cultural upsurge through the schools will not be pitched too high. Without knocking themselves out in an impossible cause, teachers will do all they can, while grappling with oversized classes and overloaded syllabuses, to encourage in their pupils an appreciation of cultural values.

Some pupils will respond. Most will not. The teacher's reward must be the knowledge that a few minds have been saved from a life of wandering in the cultural lava beds.

Canadian Driving Habits

(Letter from G. W. Simpson of Galt, in The Globe and Mail)

Your recent article drawing attention to the bad driving habits of the average Canadian driver as compared to their opposite number in the United States comes as no surprise to those of us who do a considerable amount of driving on the highways of this province.

My work as a federal inspector entails using the highways five days a week, both on limited-access highways, regular highways, and rural roads of various descriptions.

In June I kept a daily record of highway traffic violations which I had seen. In the 20 working days I recorded 123 traffic violations, mainly speeding, passing on solid lines, passing on the wrong side, passing on corners, and every other violation contained in the Highway Traffic Act.

Is it any wonder that those of us who are considered professional drivers and who see these violations every working day feel that the enforcement of the Highway Traffic Act is nothing but a big joke?

As we are dealing with sneaky drivers, we should adopt sneaky methods, and it is my contention that a special detail of Provincial Police should be set up using unmarked cars; and every violation, no matter how trivial, the driver should be charged. Only in this way can respect of the law be taught those who have for so long thumbed their noses at any law which interferes with their selfish, arrogant manner of driving with resultant loss of life, injury and damage, and the inevitable never-ending rise of insurance rates.

J. F. K. Kept Desk Untidy

Montreal Gazette

Mrs. Evelyn Lincoln, the secretary of the late President Kennedy, in her memoirs (published this month), says that no man could have kept an untidier desk. "It looked," she says, "as if someone had taken a wastepaper basket and turned it upside down on top of his desk."

When he was out of his office, Mrs. Lincoln would try to put things in order. But she had few thanks. When he looked at his rearranged desk, he would cry angrily: "How can you ever expect me to find anything. Why don't you leave my desk alone?"

This is comforting revelation. It goes far to destroy the idea that really successful men are those who keep their desks in order.

What never seems to be understood is that the accumulation on such a desk is actually the most efficient of all filing systems. All this was dramatized many years ago in one of the comedies of W. C. Fields.

He was working as a clerk in a legal office — where he was an old - time employee. The head of the firm comes to him and asks for a deed of 30 years ago. W. C. Fields opens his roll - top desk. It is crammed with papers, all scattered about. After a few preliminary gestures in the air, his hand darts at the pile of papers. Out it comes, with the very deed required.

It was all typical W. C. Field's humor. Yet it was not impossible, either.

Sing Along With L. B. J.

Buffalo Evening News

The other day President Johnson told a group of young choristers visiting Washington: "I yield to no one in my love of harmony—and you can take that both ways—but I yield to anyone in my ability to carry a tune."

It puts us in mind of another Chief Executive, in the same predicament. President Ulysses S. Grant once said something close to this:

"In all my life I have been able to remember just two tunes. One is Yankee Doodle. The other isn't."

Strictly Personal

Glamorous Women Are Rarity

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A newspaper I've been reading this summer has been running on its Woman's Page a feature called the "Glamor Clinic" which I've been following with some interest.

It is one of those before-and-after features, purporting to illustrate how a plain and dowdy woman can be transformed into an alluring creature by changing her hair-style, make-up, clothing and accessories.

What has captured my attention in this feminine transmutation is the obvious superiority of the Before woman to the After woman. Maybe her dress isn't precisely the right cut, nor her lips so cunningly made up, but at least she is a real and recognizable human being.

The After woman is a completely synthetic personality, who looks depressed and vaguely uncomfortable in her new rigging. She is simply a walking compendium of Fashion Tips plastered on from the outside like a bill-poster.

A woman who is "glamorous" — whatever that word may mean — cannot be fabricated; she has an outer glow and an inner mystery that is all her own. Few women can be genuinely glamorous, just as few men can be truly heroic; this is what puts such a high value on these scarce commodities.

A woman is expected to look as attractive, warm and pleasant as she can, within her own limitations; she should not be expected to look like the cover of a fashion magazine. And, incidentally, most of the girls who model for those covers are nothing to stand up and cheer about when you get to know them — as most of their ex-husbands would testify.

Along with "glamor" the word "charm" has become one of the most abused terms in the modern lexicon. A charming woman has a luminous spirit that radiates outward and captures the imagination: it is a quality of mind and heart and total personality, not the rigid external trappings of style.

And, indeed, the more a woman becomes preoccupied with these external trappings, the more she runs the risk of ceasing to be a person in her own right, and turns herself into a dull stereotype of whatever the current "look" happens to be — no matter how unsuitable that look may be for her.

Good will, good humor, and naturalness are the most appealing qualities in the world—and they are qualities within the reach of nearly every human being. Without these, the After woman is a dud; with these, she'd be happier staying the way she was Before.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

August 27th, 1945

It is a case of hit-and-run with raspberry growers and canning factory operators in many parts of the district, especially in the Wellington area.

It is reported the fruit shows a tendency to develop a slight mould if not preserved or frozen within at least 18 hours of being picked. One small plant in Prince Edward incurred a loss when it was forced to get rid of a large number of boxes of the moulded fruit. As it is, most plants now busily in preserving the fruit are operating until the early hours of the morning in order to preserve the day's yield.

The crop is said to be good with some districts reporting exceptionally heavy yields. Prospects look exceedingly bright for at least a 40 percent increase over 1944.

30 YEARS AGO

August 27th, 1935

Mrs. Beecher Doolittle and Miss Bessie Doolittle have returned home from Lindsay where they were guests at a wedding.

Mr. T. Ed. Ketcheson, city assessor, and Mr. James Haggerty, county treasurer, will attend the convention of the Ontario Municipal Association which will meet in Toronto for three days next week.

"Wild ducks were offered for sale on the market today at 40 cents per pair."

A privately arranged horse race often took place here years ago. Some of the old timers will remember events such as the following from our file copy at this time in 1885:

"A match race for $10 a side is to be run at the driving park in the near future between Mr. John Snell's chestnut gelding "Billy" and Mr. James Herring's chestnut mare "Nell." Half mile heats, best two in three."

40 YEARS AGO

August 27th, 1925

Cricket was a popular game in this city years ago and at times a series of games were spread over several days. There was also a social side to the matches, as many ladies attended and comfortable arrangements were made for them: sometimes for a special event a marquee was erected. The cricket field was along the bay shore south of Dundas Street. In this connection we quote from our file copy at this time in 1885: "Members of the Onandaga Cricket Club of Syracuse, N.Y., arrived here today on the steamer "Hero" from Picton, where they engaged in a match with a team of that town; they will now play the Belleville cricketers. The Belleville team will be composed of the following: H. Corby, Harry Smart, James Jen[illegible], W. J. Pedan, George May[illegible], George Skinner, R. Lazier, F. Strong, J. Smith, F. Fellows and W. H. Ketchum.

50 YEARS AGO

August 27th, 1915

Last evening shortly after 8:00 p.m., the "Say When" left her dock for Massassaga Park with about 50 young people aboard, where dancing was enjoyed at the pavilion for several hours. During evening refreshments were served in the hotel. Last evening was one of the many which have been spent pleasantly by the campers and their friends from the city through the kindness of Mr Levitt, the proprietor of the hotel at the Park. Excellent music was furnished by Sills' Orchestra.

A heavy traction engine went through the Bear Shanty Creek bridge on the Hastings ro[illegible] few days ago, and it was a[illegible] ficult job getting it back upon the road. The engine is owned by Mr. Danford of Faraday township.

Lope de Vega, the great figure of Spanish Renaissance literature, died 330 years ago today—in 1635—and his death was honored by national mourning. He was a prolific writer and became almost a literary dictator of the kingdom when only in his forties. Though he regarded them as trivial, posterity has put the highest value on his plays, numbering more than 500, which display a powerful imagination and did much to put the Spanish theatre on a firm basis.

1758 — The British captured Fort Frontenac (now Kingston, Ont.)

1793—The name of Toronto was changed to York.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1915 — French artillery destroyed a German munitions depot north of Arras; Russian forces continued to retreat between the sources of the Bobr and Pripet Rivers.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials moved higher for the third day in moderate morning stock exchange trading today.

Gains were mostly fractional. Other sections of the market were mixed. Speculative activity increased.

Base metals fell, despite gains of ½ to Cominco, at 44, and ⅜ to Falconbridge, at 100 ⅞. Noranda rose ⅝ to 49¾. Inco fell ⅛ to 94¼.

On index, industrials gained .38 to 165.25, western oils .04 to 97.55 and the Toronto Stock Exchange index .30 to 155.32. Golds fell .50 to 168.59 and base metals .14 to 79.08. Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,102,000 shares compared with 730,000 shares traded at the same time Thursday.

Volume declined to 3,923,000 shares compared with 4,892,000 Wednesday.

In the industrial list, Atlantic Sugar advanced ⅛ to 25½ and sold at a 1965 high of 26½ early in the session. Strength was attributed to rumors that the company will be the target of a takeover bid soon. The identity of the bidder and the price varied depending on which analyst was questioned.

Laurentide Financial Corp. advanced ⅜ to 14¼. The company announced earlier that it would bid for the consumer finance business of Atlantic Acceptance Corp. which went into receivership June 17.

Among senior mining issues, United Keno Hill, Canada's largest silver producer, dipped $1.05 to $6.25 after selling at a 1965 low of $5.95. Earlier in the year the stock sold as high as $11.

On index, industrials gained .04 to 164.87, base metals .32 to 79.22 and the TSE index .07 to 155.02. Golds declined 1.28 to 169.09.

British Trust Shares' Value Meets Plans

TORONTO (CP)—The value of shares of British Mortgage and Trust Co. have risen to the point where they would meet the requirements of a proposed one - for - six share exchange, with Victoria and Grey Trust Co., British Mortgage officials said Thursday.

W. H. Gregory, chairman, and H. R. Lawson, president, said in a letter to shareholders that auditors have established a range of values, dependent on what recovery is realized on certain doubtful assets.

Shares of Victoria and Grey traded Thursday on the Toronto Stock Exchange for $15.50, indicating that British Mortgage officers estimate the book value of their company's shares at just more than $2.50. Bid price was $3.50.

The Stratford-based firm suffered substantial losses on securities it held on Atlantic Acceptance Corp. Ltd., which defaulted on some of its short-term notes June 14. British Mortgage directors recommended the amalgamation as the only solution to its difficulties.

Conrad Once Tweedie Bird

NATICK, Mass. (AP) — Lt.-Cmdr. Charles Conrad Jr., riding high in the sky in Gemini 5, probably believes nobody remembers he once was known as "Tweedie Bird."

That information about Conrad was disclosed today by Herman Fichtner, 36, who took flight training with Conrad from 1954 to 1956 at Jacksonville, Fla., naval air training station.

"He probably will drop something from space on my house for letting that out," Fichtner said. "Pete (his current nickname) got tagged with Tweedie Bird because of his nasal voice, small, wiry build and receding hair line. But he was a good sport and went along with the nickname."

Padre to Pubs Says Police Hound Skid Row

"They won't leave them alone," complained Rev. Gordon Winch to the Institute of Alcohol Studies at McMaster University, "to these down-and-outers skid row is their club—it's the poor man's YMCA."

But police continually harass Toronto's 2,500 skid row residents. Some of them aren't even alcoholics, they are just defeated men, says Mr. Winch.

At least 60 per cent of the skid row's population are unemployed men from the Maritimes and many are Indians who find skid row the only place they are accepted and comfortable.

Mr. Winch appealed for more social facilities for single homeless men. "A beer parlor is the only place he can go to be with people."

He also called on the church "to show love and concern for all people—whether they drink or not."

For a year, Mr. Winch has kept office hours in a skid row building and has nightly visited Toronto's beer parlors and cocktail lounges.

He said he's had a warm reception from owners, waiters and patrons. "At first they thought I was making a collection or seeking more church members, or even gathering illustrations for my Sunday sermons but now I think they welcome me."

ence he is trying to bring the various elements of his party together. He wouldn't always be right. Sometimes he'd be on the wrong side.

"But, my friends, I'll never be on the side of wrong."

At a press conference earlier, he called for a substantial cut in personal and corporation income taxes.

He also said that municipal taxes should be fully deductible by home owners in calculating their federal income tax liability.

Mr. Diefenbaker described an income tax cut as a major need. He recalled that tax cuts in the United States had given new incentive to the American economy.

ALL DEDUCTIBLE

His proposal that municipal taxes be deductible had been made earlier this year but without indicating whether all municipal taxes should be involved. He elaborated Thursday by saying they should be fully deductible.

Visits to a new federal prisoners rehabilitation centre, an art centre and a duck farm occupied the morning of his day-long visit in the Cowansville area Thursday.

Before starting out he told reporters that he is "really most happy because there hasn't been one jarring element" since he started out last Sunday.

He said he has been struck most by people telling him that they had been misled about his government's policies in the 1962 and 1963 election campaigns.

In the rounds of handshaking the problem most generally raised by the people he met was the "high cost of living and high taxation."

"In these small manufacturing concerns, what they feel most keenly about is the 11-per-cent sales tax on production machinery."

Mr. Diefenbaker was scheduled to leave today for Ottawa. He flies to Edmonton to speak Sunday.

EXPECT DISCLOSURE

PARIS (Reuters) — President de Gaulle is expected to make the first official disclosures at a press conference in two weeks about a recent mission to Communist China by one of his top cabinet ministers. Culture Minister Andre Malraux, considered one of the closest in the cabinet to de Gaulle, met with Chinese Communist party leader Mao Tse-tung and other leaders on his tour of China.

According to Hoy

By

Claire Hoy

Eat, Drink and Be Merry

> "We can live without love, what is passion but pining,
> But where is the man that can live without dining?"
> Owen Meredith.

There are banquets and then there are banquets, but if you weren't to the complimentary banquet for H. Corby, M.P., given by The Conservatives of the Bay of Quinte District in Belleville, Thursday, September 21, 1893, (and don't admit it if you were) then you've never been to a banquet.

By a stroke of good fortune, the program for this banquet came into the office recently. It seems that Ted Hogan, who lives at 220 Church Street in Cobourg, in what is believed to be the oldest home in that city, was going through the attic one day and came across the menu for the complimentary banquet.

The program, printed by The Intelligencer Power Press on expensive glossy paper, comes complete with engraved, two-colored song birds on a rose bush and a photograph of Mr. Corby, the honorable gentleman for whom the whole affair was held. Mr. Corby later became Senator Corby. He founded Corby's Distillery.

There are no fewer than 19 quotes, seven of which are Shakespeare, in various places on the four-page menu.

The menu itself is "such stuff as dreams are made on." The main course starts with oysters (raw, of course), roast beef, roast turkey, roast lamb, roast duck, roast chicken, boiled ham, ox tongue, fillet mignon a la Parisenne, and calf's brains in cases, a la Poulette."

And as everyone knows . . .

> "To feastful mirth be this white hour assigned,
> And sweet discourse the banquet of the mind."
> —Pope

Thus, the luscious succulence of the meats could not have been fully appreciated without a spot of G. H. Mumm's champagne.

Then came the jellies, port wine jelly, lemon jelly, claret jelly and everybody's favorite, white pudding, blanc mange.

Again, Piper Heidseick—white Rhine wine—assisted the digestion of the jellies and pudding. Port and sherry went with assorted cakes, maccaroons and lady fingers.

For dessert (the jellies and puddings were not included) the banqueting Conservatives enjoyed oranges, peaches, grapes, pears, apples—finished off with a drink of Pomeroy sec—London layer raisins, English walnuts, soft shelled almonds and vanilla and strawberry ice cream.

Celery and cheese were everywhere. And if anyone was interested, there was green tea, black tea and coffee.

The relishes are also listed. They include Crosse and Blackwell's pickles, French mustard, mushroom catsup and Worcestershire sauce.

Lest the Bay of Quinte Conservatives of 1893 be accused of being unpatriotic, I feel it only fair to mention that they did toast the Queen, and the Prince, Princess of Wales, and Royal Family.

Fearing their cup may runneth over, the guests then proceeded to toast the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario; their guest, H. Corby, M.P.; the Members of the Dominion Cabinet; the Army, Navy and Volunteers; the Senate and House of Commons; the Press (how things have changed), and the Ladies.

Don't panic! If your favorite area of society seems to be missing from the list of toasts, it's only because they fell under the final category—the volunteer toasts.

> "So comes a reckoning, when the banquet's o'er.

or, as Shakespeare said,

"Our revels now are ended."—let's have a toast to that.

Ann Landers

Spotless House No Substitute for Love

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Why should any husband adore a lazy, messy, disorganized, addle-brained wife? The woman next door brags that the minute her kids could reach the sink and the stove she taught them to fix their own breakfast so she could sleep. Her house looks like they moved in yesterday. For two years she has been saying, "We're not settled yet."

She never cooks a meal. Everything is in cans, or frozen or sent out for. Her kids eat so much Chinese food from the place around the corner I wouldn't be surprised if their eyes began to slant. Yet this slob's husband treats her like a Dresden doll. He calls her "Poopsie" and "Pet" and covers the telephone with a blanket when he goes to work so she can get her rest. On weekends he does the laundry and the marketing.

I get up at 6:00 a.m. every morning and fix my husband a farmer's breakfast. I make his shirts because he doesn't like the ones in the stores. I bake my own bread and rolls and I even put up my own tomato juice to please him. My house is spotless. You can eat off the floors.

If my husband ever emptied a wastebasket for me I'd faint. Once I phoned him at work and asked him to drop by the store on his way home and pick up a loaf of bread. He swore at me for five minutes. I say the more you do for a man the less he appreciates you. What goes on anyway?—THE MOOSE (that's what he calls me).

DEAR MOOSE: No man ever loved a woman because she kept the house spotless or baked bread for him.

The slob next door makes her husband feel important, loved, and needed. She has learned how to keep her marriage at an even keel and it his paid off.

You can call her addle-brained if you want to — and maybe she is — but when it comes to handling her husband she can teach some Phi Beta Kappas a few things.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When you finish reading this letter you'll probably say, "What a kook . . ." and you are probably right. Maybe the menopause has something to do with it.

My two sons are 15 and 18. I love them very much — perhaps too much. It's the older boy I'm worried about. He has always made excellent grades and was accepted by the college of his choice. He is thoughtful and kind and seems to be extremely attractive to girls. I know you'll say, "So what are you worrying about?" It's true, I don't have anything to worry about but I worry anyway. Particularly do I worry that he might take up drinking and be loose with girls. Most of his friends drink and it scares me to death.

I guess what I'm asking you is how I can be relaxed about this boy and give him the freedom he deserves.—ANXIOUS PARENT.

DEAR ANXIOUS: You've asked the 64-thousand-dollar question: How does a mother cut her children loose — particularly a son?

Your boy is 18. The job of molding his character, teaching him values and instilling in him a sense of responsibility is done — or it isn't done. If it isn't done, chances are that it never will be and worrying won't help.

The Bible said it best, "Train a child in the way he should go: and when he is old he will not depart from it." That advice is as good today as it was two thousand years ago.

Yes you can, but the following recipe is better for individual custards.

INDIIVIDUAL BAKED CUSTARDS (serves 5):

3 large eggs, 2 tablespoons sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1¼ cups whole milk, ¾ cup 18% cream (see below), ½ teaspoon vanilla, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg.

In a bowl beat the eggs until mixed but not foamy. Stir in sugar until dissolved and salt. Add milk and cream and vanilla. (Note: If desired use 2 cups whole milk and omit cream but the cream gives it a lovely, velvety texture and rich flavor.) Pour into 5 standard-size custard cups and sprinkle tops with nutmeg. Stand these in large shallow pan containing ½" warm water. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour. Cool and chill. Turn out on tea plates and top with fresh berries or sliced peaches or any easy fruit in season.

Mrs. Pearson Enjoying Holiday on West Coast

By STEWART MacLEOD

VANCOUVER (CP) — Remember that two-pound salmon Prime Minister Pearson hoisted from the Pacific Sunday—his 40th wedding anniversary — which he said would be given to his wife?

Mrs. Pearson didn't get it. The prime minister ate the fish for breakfast.

"He offered me half of it," said Mrs. Pearson, "but it wasn't a very big fish."

The salmon — a miserable little thing by B.C. standards—was consumed while the Pearsons spent three days relaxing on a secluded Vancouver Island farm early this week.

Mr. Pearson wet a line a few times during his three days on the farm, and he and Mrs. Pearson spent much of their time strolling through the park-like gardens.

"It was lovely there," Mrs. Pearson said Thursday in an interview. "There was a really beautiful garden, and I just relaxed. I really didn't do anything."

That was the first time in many months that the Pearsons had taken a holiday away from the Ottawa area.

"He loved the fishing," said his wife.

"I find packing and unpacking a terrible burden," she said as she discussed the frequent trips she takes with the prime minister. "It's hard to know what you will need. For instance, we're going to a picnic in Edmonton Saturday and that means things like flat shoes."

How would she view another election campaign?

As wife of the prime minister, Mrs. Pearson is tied closely to an official life, with few lengthy breaks from it. Someday, she would like to take a long, leisurely vacation.

"I am just longing to go to Greece and take one of those trips around the Greek Islands and stay long enough to get the flavor of the country. And I'd like very much to go back to Italy."

She thought for a moment and added: "I hope we won't be too old. . . ."

Susanna's Family Fare

TIT FOR TAT

Dear Su: I love to read your column Susanna, and am using several of the shortcuts. As there may be those amongst your readers who have not tried some of my favorites, here goes:

Take most of the worry out of boiling eggs by salting the water well before you start. Not only will this help to prevent the eggs from cracking, but those that already are cracked to begin with will hardly bubble out of their shells at all. I remember your advice about always cooking eggs at a low temperature only, in order not to toughen and "rubberize" the protein in the white, so of course it is doubly wise when boiling them, to keep the water at a low simmer.

Have a neat sewing basket by keeping lace tapes, ribbon and piping wound around empty spools. Fasten the ends with a small safety pin. Or, if only a straight pin is available, poke it in and out along the length of the spool so that you won't be catching your fingers on the point.

If you are tired of drab pussy willows, try this. Pour several bits of food coloring on individual saucers. Wet so many buds from each stem with the different colors. After they dry you will be able to arrange a most unusual display, either by themselves or in combination with other flowers.

When making bouillon and the liquid is not absolutely clear whisk the white of an egg into the cool broth. Heat, and simand it will be clear as glass. — K. H.

Of course I have to add my two cents worth. What K.H. is talking about has nothing to do with skimming off the fat, she is referring to particles clouding the mixture. The action here folks, is coagulation — for the same reason we drop egg into a pot of coffee. All clear everyone? — SUSANNA

INSIDE OUT

Dear Susanna: Save time and be more accurate when making a dress by fitting the garment on inside out. Turn the hem and pin the darts in place — more accurate too, because of not having to re-pin on the wrong side of the garment. — So-Sew

Family Reunions

SAVAGE CLAN

On Sunday August 22nd, the family of Mr. W. J. (Jim) Savage and the late Mrs. Savage (nee Watering) gathered at the Frankford Park to hold their first reunion. Fifty - nine relatives and friends were present from Regina, Saskatchewan, Ottawa, Kingston, Trenton, Ameliasburg and Belleville.

At noon all sat down to a picnic lunch, after which a business meeting was held to elect officers. The following were elected: president, Mr. Art Savage; secretary, Mrs. Doris Jewell; treasurer, Mrs. Nancy De Shane. These officers with helpers, will plan a full program of activities for the next reunion to be held next year at the same time.

Prizes for the year were won by: Mr. Jim Savage, the oldest person present, 86 years of age; Timmie Hass, the youngest present, 16 months; the latest married couple, Jim and Phyllis Chumbley; the longest foot, Charles Watering; guest from the longest distance, Jack and Betty Schofield from Regina Saskatchewan; the shortest distance, Art Savage from Trenton. During the afternoon Mr. Jack Schofield taped greetings from all adults present to take home to his son and wife, and his mother and family. A tug of war for the men, and one each for the women and children caused much amusement.

The rest of the afternoon was spent in renewing old acquaintances and recalling the days gone by.

Honor Couple On Departure

MARMORA — Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Velleman of Deloro were feted at a surprise party in Deloro Hall on Monday evening by friends and neighbors of the village.

Residents of Deloro for the past five years, the Vellemans have sold their home there and will move to Plainfield in September to be closer to their work.

Mr. Velleman is director of the Ontario Home for Mentally Retarded Infants at Plainfield. He and Mrs. Velleman with a staff of 60 personally look after the 65 babies at the O.H.M.R.I. in Plainfield. Having come to this country from Holland about 40 years ago, this dedicated couple founded the Home with no outside help. Recently the government has assisted in its operation. Mr. Velleman has served on Deloro Village Council since 1960.

During the evening an address was read by Reeve Tom Armstrong of Deloro and Councillor Bill Regan expressed the sentiments of the villagers in losing the Vellemans. They were presented with an oil painting for their new home.

Mr. Velleman expressed the appreciation of Mrs. Velleman and himself for the painting and personal gifts. He said they had enjoyed living and working in and for the village and invited any of the group interested in their work to visit the Home.

Horticultural Group Enjoys Scenic Tour

There were 21 who left Stirling at nine in the morning with transportation provided by Mrs. Armstrong, her daughter Mrs. William Morgan, her father Mr. William Ashby and the secretary of the society Mrs. Ray Rose.

The group travelled to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Laundry "Glad Acres Farm" near West Lake in Prince Edward County. Here they were welcomed and later viewed two large fields of multi - color gladioli. Mr. Laundry has 70 varieties of dahlias, a large rose garden and numerous chrysanthemums.

Those present travelled to Lake - on - the - Mountain picnic grounds where long tables were laden with a delicious pot-luck dinner. Mr. R. B. Belshaw, a veteran horticulturalist who recently observed his 87th birthday said Grace.

The motorcade crossed the Glenora Ferry and travelled up the scenic route to Adolphustown. Here they visited the United Empire Loyalist Memorial cemetery plot which was dedicated in June 1965 to those pioneers of earlier years, many of whom had arrived in 1784 to settle in the wilderness. They also visited the Church of St. Alban the Martyr which was erected in 1884, a good 100 years after the landing of the loyalists. The guest book was signed and donations made, after which the memorial corner and plaques were read. The Quaker monumental plot was visited and a stop made at Dorland Cheese Factory.

The next visit was the Hay Bay Church, built in 1792. It is the oldest United Church edifice in existence today and was the first Methodist Church to be built west of the Maritimes. The minister in charge supplied information and once again the group signed the guest book and added their contribution to the upkeep of the church.

Later the group journeyed through Sillsville and on to Deseronto where they viewed the site of the location of the new bridge.

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Batting statistics for the Belleville and District Softball League, released by statistician Allan Sills this week, produced several big surprises.

The fact that Madoc third baseman Brian Gray won the batting crown with a handsome .426 average and that Ellis' Bob Ethier took pitching honors with an equally impressive mark, were not among the surprises.

Both are to be congratulated for their efforts. Ethier built a fine 13 - 2 won-lost record, with a big 188 strikeout total tossed in. Others copping honors were Gray again and Tweed's Terry LeSage, for the most hits, 26 each; the Juniors' Bob Moon for most runs, 23; Bloomfield's Ron Weese for the most RBI's, 20; and Madoc's Larry Griffin for the most home runs, six. Trenton's Jim Whyte had the runner-up batting average, .362.

Weese, Bloomfield's starry third sacker, was well up in the list in every hitting department, marking him as an MVP candidate. He will likely get a battle from Ethier and Ken DeMille.

Topping the surprise list is the fact that Ellis Juniors, who won the loop pennant by a comfortable margin, did not have a man in the top seven batting list. This despite the fact the club won its last 11 league games in a row and overall compiled a 15 - 3 won-lost mark.

Ethier's pitching, the run-scoring efforts of Bob Moon and the RBI work of Stu Muirhead and Mike Chatland, appear that much more important because of the lack of high batting averages on the team.

Madoc, cellar-dwellers all season with but three wins to their credit, not only led the loop in home runs, with 17, six by Griffin, four by Gray and three by D. Kramp, but placed two men in the elite hitting circle. Trudeaus and Stirling missed the boat, along with the Juniors, while Bloomfield and Tweed placed two each and Trenton one.

DeMille, ace of the Bloomfield hurling staff, showed near-perfect control by walking only eight batters in 124 innings. He had 171 strikeouts and Pat Maracle, of Trenton, was 134 - 24 in the strike-out-walk department, in 107⅓ innings. Ethier worked 130 frames and dished out 43 free passes.

Eldon Gray, of Tweed, failed in his attempt to retain the batting crown he won last year, despite lifting his average to .356. Eldon is not a relative of Brian's to the best of our knowledge, but both boys are mighty dangerous when it comes to swinging a bat.

Well, well, what have we here?

According to an ad on these sports pages yesterday, there will be a professional wrestling show here at Memorial Arena tonight, starting at 8.30.

It is a different school of wrestlers by the look of the card which pits something called "No. 1 Hangman" against "Fabulous Gorgeous George Junior" in main bout. That will be a two-of-three falls affair, or sixty minutes.

A special attraction is a two-of-three fall midget match. Roger Littlebrook tangles with Frenchie Lamonte, with a 45 minute time limit. Neither tips the scales at 110 pounds.

There are also two one-fall, 30 minute bouts. In the first Terry Garvin clashes with Doug Kinslow and in the second Ron Garvin meets Vic Rosettanni.

Baseball playdowns are on tap over the weekend, with two local clubs involved and the Belleville diamond being used as neutral grounds in the other tilt.

Belleville's lone entry in EOBA minor action, the tyke Booth TV's, clash with Peterborough in their third and deciding game Saturday afternoon. Game time is 2.30, at Park Dale.

Kingston and Peterborough midgets are playing their third and deciding game at the Fairgrounds diamond Sunday at 2.30. That series has been a heated one, thus Jack Carson has ordered the final tilt here. We understand Charlie Pester has been suspended after becoming involved in a fight with a Peterborough fan while umpiring the first game.

Last, but not least, Cannifton begins OBA Intermediate "C" playdowns in Campbellville Sunday afternoon, at 2.00. Harold Griffin hopes to have the return match in Belleville next Friday night.

"Dave Jones is the fine type of hockey player and man we want to have on our club," said Gordon Leach when in town to sign the well-known Belleville forward yesterday.

He and coach Danny McLeod think highly of Jones, Leach made it clear, and he also indicated that other Belleville players will be attending the Aces' training camp in late September.

The Aces are being considered for one of the CAHA's European tours and the club brass is also gunning for a good shot at the Allan Cup next spring.

"With our Hockey Hall of Fame now open, we would like nothing better than to win the Allan Cup to sort of mark the opening," Leach said.

Buenos Aires Soccer Team Wins Easily

TORONTO (CP) — Independiente of Buenos Aires, defending South American club champions, proved to Canadian spectators Thursday night that they belong with the cream of the soccer world.

The 1964 finalists in the world club championship put on a brilliant tactical display before a crowd of 10,710 and took advantage of erratic goalkeeping to trounce an Eastern Canadian Professional Soccer League All-Star team, 10-1.

Ontario Team First To Reach Tourney Finals

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) Stoney Creek, Ont., and Windsor Locks, Conn., reached the championships Thursday in the annual Little League baseball world series tournament.

Stoney Creek became the first Canadian team ever to reach the finals in the series by defeating Jeffersonville, Ind., 1-0 in a semi-final game.

The Canadians meet Windsor Locks Saturday for the championship.

Stoney Creek broke a scoreless tie with Jeffersonville in the fourth inning when it picked up its only two hits of the game. Rick Ferroni led off with a bunt single, advanced on a throwing error and scored on a single by Byron Kenny.

Stoney Creek's Gary Bartkiewicz, a left-hander, finished the game with 12 strikeouts to his credit and only one walk, an intentional pass in the first inning.

Jeffersonville's Mike Flynn struck out seven men and had retired the first 10 men he faced before Ferroni's single.

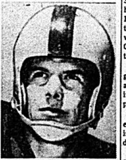
Argo Veteran

Shatto Would Join Als

TORONTO (CP) — Dick Shatto, a first rate halfback for Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference during the last 12 years, said he would be willing to play for Montreal Alouettes if Argos didn't feel he "is helping them."

The Argos, who seem to have found a home in the EFC cellar, haven't been using Shatto much this year and the 32-year-old veteran doesn't know why.

"It's disappointing and rather discouraging," he said Wednesday night. "One day I'm a flanker, then a left halfback, then a right halfback. I'm not sure what the coach (Bob Shaw) thinks of my ability."



DICK SHATTO

Shatto says he has been hearing trade rumors ever since Argos were whitewashed 20-0 by Montreal last week.

He said he would rather finish his career with the Argos, but he would report to Montreal if such a deal were made.

However, Shaw and Montreal coach Jim Trimble both said that the rumor was unfounded. Trimble said that he would check with Shaw to see if there was a chance to make a deal for Shatto.

"Shatto is a great football player," said Trimble. "I'd make room for him."

Shaw wouldn't comment on the situation except to say he will start Shatto at the left halfback position Sunday night in Vancouver against the B.C. Lions of the Western Football Conference. The Argos have been defeated in their only three starts this season.

Red Wings Bid For Playoffs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A two-run homer by Buffalo Bison's Choo Choo Coleman and spotty fielding by Toronto Maple Leafs put Rochester Red Wings within striking distance of the fourth and last playoff berth in the International League Thursday night.

The Red Wings scored four unearned runs on two of Bob Sadowski's three errors and two hits that eluded first baseman Bob Guidon to take an 8-2 victory over Toronto and come within one game of Syracuse Chiefs and Jacksonville Suns, tied for fourth.

Coleman's wallop, meanwhile, gave the Bisons a 2-0 victory and kept the Chiefs from gaining sole possession of the last playoff spot.

Elsewhere, Toledo Mud Hens edged Columbus Jets 2-1 in 11 innings, and Atlanta Crackers defeated Jacksonville 3-1.

Toronto's Jerry Herron had a one-hitter going until the fatal sixth inning when the Wings scored their four unearned runs.

Rob Gardner limited the Chiefs to two hits.

A pair of also rans led Columbus Jets to victory. Don Wallace hit his first home run in 123 games and rookie pitcher Tom Shafer won his first game in 11 starts.

Sandy Alomar collected two triples to pace the Crackers' five-hit attack on the Jacksonville pitching staff.

MONTREAL (CP)—"We decided to run the ball, and we ran it real well."

Coach Frank Clair of the Eastern Football Conference Ottawa Rough Riders was commenting on import halfback Bo Scott's three-touchdown performance as his club trounced Montreal Alouettes 31-13 here Thursday night.

Scott, a 22-year-old speedster from Ohio State University who joined the Ottawa club in time for only two games last season, furnished a one-man offense, as he ran for two touchdowns and caught a Russ Jackson pass for a third to set up the rout.

Speedy Whit Tucker, the Canadian halfback from the University of Western Ontario, supplied the Riders' fourth touchdown during the final quarter on a 76-yard pass-and-run play from Jackson.

Reliable Moe Racine, the seven-year veteran Canadian tackle who doubles as place-kicker, had a field goal, a single and three converts to round out the Ottawa scoring.

Overshadowed by Scott's individual efforts was Alouettes new fullback, J. W. Lockett. He scored Als' two touchdowns and brought to three the total he has counted in two games of Canadian football.

TIED FOR FIRST

The Riders' victory raised them to a temporary tie for first place in the EFC with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, both with six points. Hamilton remains undefeated in three games played, while the Rough Riders have now won three out of four.

Scott's performance moved him into first spot in the EFC individual scoring race. He now has 24 points on four touchdowns while teammate Ted Watkins and Lockett remain tied at 18.

In the opening quarter Scott raced around the left end from the one-yard line. In the second quarter he took a 10-yard touchdown pass from Jackson and within less than three minutes returned for his third counter.

On the third touchdown, Scott took a handoff from Jackson and, eluded five Montreal players at mid-field and the Als' deep defender Jackie Simpson at the eight to complete an 88-yard touchdown romp.

Quarterback Bernie Faloney marched the Als to within striking distance only twice in the first half. Both times he had payoff passes intercepted by middle linebacker Ken Lehmann and Ottawa started another march. In the fourth quarter, Faloney had another pass picked off, this time by Bob O'Billovich.

Tempers flared in the final 15 minutes and Als' Ed Learn and Ted Watkins of Ottawa were thrown out of the ball game with less than one minute remaining.

Ottawa emerged unscathed from the contest, which was played on a muddy field before less than 16,000 fans. But the Als lost end and punter Gino Berretta for an indefinite period with torn ligaments in his right knee.

Lanes, Trenton, will be competing in the initial Master Bowlers Association of Ontario tournament of the new season this weekend. Each will participate in a five - game qualifying round at the Mohawk Lanes, in Brantford.

Top thirty - two men and top sixteen ladies, will then go into match play to determine Eastern Canada's singles representative at the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver on Labor Day. Eastern champs will be flown to Vancouver for this annual five pin event.

Both McKenze and Mrs. Fox are entering their second year as master bowlers and will be competing in Masters tournaments in Sudbury, Niagara Falls, London, Brockville, Toronto and other Ontario cities. In all, ten Masters Tournaments will be held between August 29 and June of 1966.

Close Battle For CNE's Pro Diving Crown

TORONTO (CP)—Alfred Gonzales edged into first place Thursday in the Canadian National Exhibition's professional high diving champions.

The Gary, Ind., resident snapped a tie he and Barney Cipriani of Miami, Fla., had been waging since the first dive Monday from the tower's 60-foot platform.

Gonzales leads 706 to 688 in points, but both remained co-favorites in the running for the $2,000 first-place prize money.

Ten of the original 15 divers who started Monday were still eligible for a share of the $5,000 in cash prizes being awarded this year by the CNE.

Thursday's dive was from the 90-foot platform. It is being raised 10 feet each day to a maximum of 110 feet for Saturday's final plunge. Any divers surviving to that date are assured of at least $100.

Baseball People Say:

'Dodgers Cannot Win'

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Los Angeles Dodgers have occupied first place all but 16 days of the season, yet few baseball people believe they can win the National League pennant.

Latest of the league's managers to voice skepticism over the Dodgers' pennant chances is Wes Westrum, whose Mets whipped the league leaders for the second straight night Wednesday.

'Pitching has kept them up there," said Westrum. "Pitching and hustle. "But that won't be enough to win. They lack the muscle to do it. I wouldn't pick them to win even if they owned a three-game lead right now."

The Dodgers have looked tired in losing two out of three to the Mets. Known for their running speed, they've had four of six would-be base stealers thrown out.

What keeps the Dodgers in first place is a mystery. Nobody is hitting close to .300. Nobody has hit more than 10 home runs.

And the team is challenging the Mets for last place in fielding.

Even the Dodgers' heralded pitching has begun to crack. Sandy Koufax, the 21-game winner, is supreme. But Drysdale is hobbled by a loose knee joint. And Claude Osteen was punished for seven runs in five innings Wednesday.

Ron Perranoski, the No. 1 man in the bullpen, is nursing a sore hamstring muscle. Bob Taylor, the right-handed reliever, hurt his elbow in Tuesday's game. Johnny Podres and Jim Brewer have strained elbows.

Why are they up there?

"Perseverence and hustle," said manager Walter Alston.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Pierlou, son of Nearctic, won his first race of the season here Thursday, almost a year to the day after he established Fort Erie's six-furlong track record.

Coming off the pace, Pierlou passed the pacesetter, Ontario Holiday, at the head of the stretch and held on for the win. Ridden by John LeBlanc, Pierlou returned $7.70, $6.60 and $3.60.

Ontario Holiday paid $16.30 and $5.90 and Morins' Mornin paid $3.30 to show.

Reds Only Winners Among Leaders

Giants Drop Two

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

San Francisco Giants are so pressed for pitching help they may have to start listing their hurlers as possible rather than probables

With ace right hander Juan Marichal sitting out an eight-day suspension for his tussle with catcher John Roseboro of Los Angeles Dodgers, things actually got so bad Thursday night that the Giants had to press outfielder Matty Alou into service as a pitcher and were forced to call on Ron Herbel both as a starter and reliever.

When the long night was over, Pittsburgh Pirates had rapped out 26 hits and swept a twinight doubleheader 8-0 and 6-5, handing the Giants their third and fourth consecutive losses and dumping them into fourth place in the National League pennant race.

It would have been Marichal's turn to start against the Pirates, but instead Herbel opened up in the first game and had to absorb an eight-run shelling before manager Herman Franks turned to Alou and said simply:

"You like to pitch. Okay, now it's your turn."

So Alou, who had never pitched professionally but has tinkered with curves and change-ups during batting practice, went in against the Pirates and pitched well enough to shut them out over the final two innings, allowing three hits and striking out three.

HERBEL PITCHES AGAIN

Gaylor Perry started the nightcap but before it was over, Masanori Murakami and Bill Henry were in and out and Franks had to ask Herbel to take another turn.

The doubleheader loss dropped the Giants 1½ games off the pace while the sweep extended the Pirates' winning streak to six and lifted them into fifth place, 4½ games back of the Dodgers.

The Dodgers were beaten by New York Mets for the third straight night, 5-2, but managed to cling to their one-half game edge as Milwaukee Braves also lost their third straight, a 3-1 decision to Cincinnati Reds, and now are tied with the Reds for second place.

In other games, Houston Astros jolted Philadelphia Phillies 6-4, and St. Louis Cardinals whipped Chicago Cubs 7-4.

The Pirates were led by Bill Mazeroski, who stroked six straight hits, scoring four runs and driving in three.

BUILD EARLY LEAD

The Pirates put the nightcap away by building a 6-0 lead over the first three innings with Mazeroski singling home two runs and scoring one in a four-run third inning uprising.

The Mets beat 21-game winner Sandy Koufax, getting the decisive run for a 3-1 lead in the seventh inning on a double by Ed Kranepool, an infield out and a throwing error by third baseman Don Lejohn.

Deron Johnson hit a two-run homer and Gordy Coleman a solo shot for the Reds' runs while Ted Davidson came on in relief of injured Joe Nuxhall and blanked the Braves on one hit over the final six innings.

The Astros scored the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning when pitcher Gary Wagner threw wild to home. It was the third straight game the Phillies lost because of a wild throw by one of their pitchers.

Ken Boyer's three-run homer and Julian Javier's two-run shot got the job done for the Cardinals. Ron Santo and Ernie Banks homered for the Cubs.

Kingston, Trudeau's Here Tonight

Rain and wet grounds forced postponement of the OASA Senior "B" playdown game here last night between Trudeau Motors and Kingston Prince George Indians.

Trudeau manager Ron Fralick says the game has been re-scheduled for the Fairgrounds tonight, at 8.30.

Friday night softball is a rarity here but the fans are expected to turn out for this game. Kingston won a 2-1 thriller in the series' opener and Belleville must win tonight to gain a third and deciding fixture.

Still with OASA ball, Ellis Juniors open their Junior "A" series in Brockville tomorrow night, at 8.15; Point Anne has a Junior "D" tilt in Sydenham, against Elginburg, also at 8.15; and Bloomfield travels to Lindsay for an Intermediate "B" battle, at 8.30.

ON THE DOTTED LINE—Gordon Leach, President of Kingston Aces Senior Hockey Club, smiles his approval here yesterday as Belleville's Dave Jones inks his playing contract for the 1965-66 season. This will be Jones' second season with the Aces, who lost out in their bid for the Allan Cup last year to the champion Sherbrooke Beavers.

Race Cards Continue

The Quinte Riding and Driving Club has lined up another excellent card for its weekly harness meet here Saturday night.

Four races of two heats each will be run, starting at 8.00 p.m., at the Belleville Fairgrounds.

Purses are $190 for 1-5, $190 for 2-6, $200 for 3-7 and $210 for the feature race, 4-8.

Luella Scott will get plenty of competition in the feature, from Direct Dillard, Irene Han, Leo's Lad, Dorann Grattan and Jacken, after sweeping both heats last Saturday.

The other races appear equally-well balanced so it should make for a good night's racing.

A club official said that numerous fall fairs are expected to keep the heats at eight for the remainder of the season.

Hawk Farm Teams At St. Kitts

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League and St. Louis Hawks of the Central Professional Hockey League will hold a combined training camp here this year.

Fred Hunt, manager of the Bisons, announced Thursday that the personnel of both teams would report Sept. 26 and start their workouts the following day.

The Bisons have trained in Welland for the last four years.

This marks the first time since Garden City Arena opened in 1938 that an NHL team has not used its facilities for preseason training.

Chicago used St. Catharines for its fall headquarters for the last nine years and Toronto Maple Leafs held a camp here before being replaced by the Hawks.

Toronto is training in Peterborough and the Hawks will work out at the Chicago Stadium for the first time in club history this fall.

Crothers Wins

Japanese Entry Beats Jerome

From AP-Reuters

BUDAPEST (CP) — A tall Pole who lived up to her press notices and a Japanese who didn't have any won the 100-metre dashes Thursday at the World Student Games.

Hideo Iijima stunned his opposition in the men's 100 metres by leading a closely bunched field, including Canada's Harry Jerome, to the tape in 10.1 seconds.

Poland's Irena Kirszenstein, rated the world's fastest woman, won the female sprint in 11.3, two-tenths of a second off her world record-equalling time of 11.1 last month.

BILL CROTHERS

Iijima's time, matched on the sluggish track by runner-up George Anderson of the United States, was the fastest in the world this year. Jerome, from Vancouver, was third in 10.2.

Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., led the qualifiers for the 800 metres final. The Canadian star won his semi-final heat in 1:51.4, two-tenths of a second ahead of Rudolf Klaban of Austria.

Poland won both of the gold medals decided Thursday in women's track and field. Besides Miss Kirszenstein's victory, Danuta Straczynska took the 80-metre hurdles in a blistering 10.6, only one-tenth of a second slower than the widely-shared world record.

West Germany's Rolf Herrings won the javelin with a heave of exactly 260 feet. Vanni Rodichiero of Italy and Lennart Hedmark of Sweden took the silver and bronze medals respectively.

Snejana Kerkova of Bulgaria took second place in the 80-metre hurdles and Tatiana Antarian of the Soviet Union was third.

U.S. SURPRISED

The American champ was as surprised as Jerome by the Japanese victory. Anderson said he had regarded Jerome as "absolutely the man to beat."

"I was the most amazed person in the stadium," Anderson said after the race. "Man, I'd never heard of this Japanese runner.

"I had Iijima on my left and Jerome on my right! I went straight for the tape keeping an eye to my right, on Jerome, then suddenly I saw this white vest hit the tape ahead of me."

Said Jerome of Iijima: "We all underestimated this boy."

The victor, a 24-year-old student in physical education at Waseda University in Tokyo, shyly accepted the praises heaped upon him by Japanese teammates and other runners.

"I thought Jerome would win the race, with Anderson neck and neck for the silver medal," he said. "I am amazed, amazed, but delighted that I managed to hit top form and beat both of them."

Iijima ran in the Olympics last year. He was eliminated in a semi-final won by Jerome, who went on to win the bronze medal.

George Puce of Toronto, representing Canada in the discus, qualified for the finals with a toss of 172 feet, 11 inches.

Hungary pulled abreast of the United States in gold medals Thursday by winning the open team event in fencing, its 11th championship of the games.

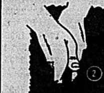
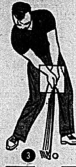
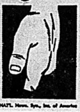
Reducing the game to its simplest terms, the matter of hitting a golf ball straight involves no more than (1) a clubhead that is moving toward the target during impact and (2) a left hand that returns, again during impact, to its original address position. Let's discuss here the second of these points.







In No. 1 we see the left hand being placed on the club; in No. 2 it is on the club in its proper position. You will note that the back of this hand faces along the target line.

Illustration 3 shows how my left hand is returning to its original position — again facing along the target line — as my clubhead moves into the ball.

The next time you practice iron shots, concentrate on duplicating your left hand's address position during impact and I think you will benefit from straighter shots.

Jerome May Quit

'I Ran Like High School Kid'

Written for
By THE CANADIAN PRESS
By BRUCE KIDD

BUDAPEST (CP)—It was a sheepish Harry Jerome standing on the podium to receive Canada's first medal ever at the World Student Games Thursday. Favored to win the 100-metre dash after Cuba's Enrique Figuerola had scratched from a semi-final, Jerome was beaten in a close finish by Hideo Iijima of Japan and George Anderson of the United States.

"I've no excuses, but I must admit that I ran like a high school kid," Jerome said after the race. "Even though I got a sluggish start, I didn't see the other two until the 75-metre mark. Then it was too late."

Jerome gave quite a start to reporters and Canadian followers when he failed to enter the stadium with the eight other finalists. Jerome has been having difficulties with spasms in his left thigh and it was feared he had scratched from the race.

But just a few minutes before the gun, he appeared.

"It's so cold and damp, I wanted to keep my legs warm until the very last minute," he explained later.

"But the leg felt good during the race, so I'm definitely going to run the 200 metres," he said.

TWO QUALIFY

Two other Canadians qualified for final events, while another fell by the wayside Thursday.

Despite a mild attack of dysentery and a sore leg, Bill Crothers hardly worked up a sweat in winning his 800 metres semi-final in 1:51.4 from Austria's Rudolf Klaban and George Germann of the United States.

Since the opponent Crothers considered most dangerous, Franz Kemper of West Germany, scratched from the semi-final because of leg trouble, Crothers' main opposition in the final is expected to come from Britain's John Boulter. Crothers has defeated Boulter in eight straight races.

George Puce of Toronto, a student at Los Angeles College placed fourth among discus qualifiers, throwing in Thursday morning's rain, with a toss of 172 feet, 11½ inches. Best qualifying throw was 179-6½ by Sweden's Lars Haglund, who have a personal best of 196-8¼. Three other qualifiers have thrown over 190 feet. Puce's best toss is 193 feet even, a Canadian record.

Canada's only other competitor Thursday, Vancouver's Steve Spencer, failed to make the qualifying height of six feet 2½ inches in the high jump. He jumped only 6-0½, although he has a personal mark of 6-7.

BUDAPEST (AP) — Canada's crack sprinter Harry Jerome said here Thursday night he may quit running because "I am losing too much money."

In an interview after collecting the bronze medal in the 100-metre dash, won by Japan's Hideo Iijima, he said: "I think it's time I gave up. I intend to do no running at all next year, as I do everything for gratis, and that hits my pocket."

Asked whether he will be competing in the British Empire and Commonwealth games in Kingston, Jamaica, next August, he said: "Definitely not. If I go there, I will lose $1,000 and I can't afford that."

Jerome has just completed a summer session in physical education at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver, his home town.

"I'm teaching now and I just can't afford to give up a month's salary at the drop of a hat," said the 24-year-old Jerome, who shares the world record of 10 seconds flat with three other men.

Jerome has a history of leg trouble that hasn't helped him any in his quest for the big prizes. In the 1960 Rome Olympics, where Jerome appeared headed for an epic race against Armin Hary, the colorful German sprinter who first hit the 10-second barrier and won the Olympic gold medal, he collapsed in the semi-finals.

At the 1962 Commonwealth games in Perth, Australia, where he was considered a shoo-in for the 100 yards, he ran sixth and last in the finals.

His luck and his legs were somewhat better last year at the Tokyo Olympics. Although he didn't come up with his best race, he ran a good one, taking the bronze medal behind Bob Hayes of the United States, who hit 10 flat, and Enrique Figuerola of Cuba.

Jerome was the second man to run the 100 in 10 flat. He did it two months after Hary, at the Canadian Olympic trials in July, 1960, in Saskatoon.

OBLIGING DRIVER

GRENDON UNDERWOOD, England (CP) — Jailbreaker Leslie Ellis, after escaping from Springhill prison, got a lift from a car but found that it led away from freedom and back to prison. The driver of the vehicle was a prison officer from Springhill.

Will Need Binding Arbitration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Robert F. Kennedy (Dem.-N.Y.) gave investigating senators Thursday his blueprint for peace through arbitration in the feud-plagued affairs of U.S. track and field.

He proposed arming the federally-chartered U.S. Olympic Committee with broad powers to impose binding arbitration on this and any future bickering between the rival Amateur Athletic Union and National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Testifying before the Senate commerce committee, in its investigation of the jurisdictional warfare between the two ruling powers of amateur athletics, Kennedy said he spoke from bitter experience.

He advised his colleagues not to expect smooth sailing with the agreement it won from presidents of both groups Wednesday to accept binding and continuing arbitration of their row.

He told the committee that if it arranges a peace pact that stands up longer than overnight, "you'll have done a hell of a job."

Kennedy said he had negotiated what were labeled final agreements between them twice in their 1962-64 feud and both were shattered within hours. Kennedy was attorney-general at the time.

The committee would be wise, Kennedy said, to plan some early winter hearings in which to demand an accounting from both as to how their truce, or peace was working out.

"Then," Kennedy predicted, "they will keep their word."

PLAN PROMOTION

TORONTO (CP)—Great Britain plans extensive trade promotion in Canada during 1967, an executive of the British national export council says. D. W. Pritchard, a council deputy-chairman, said in an interview Thursday that trade exhibits are planned for the Canadian National Exhibition, the International Trade Fair at Vancouver and the world's fair at Montreal.

Robinson Homers Twice

Twins Open Big Lead; Birds Whip Sox

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

There's a battle going on in the American League, even if it's not in the pennant race.

Yastrzemski, who won the batting title with a .321 average in 1963, leads the race with a .327 figure today but Robinson is just six points off the pace. Oliva, at .311, is third.

Robinson continued his hot hitting Thursday, whacking two home runs and driving in four runs as the Orioles shelled Chicago White Sox 8-1. Yastrzemski hit his 17th of the season in Boston's 4-2 victory over Washington Senators.

Oliva, troubled by a jammed finger, missed his first game of the season as the Twins downed New York Yankees 9-2. In the only other American League game played, Kansas City Athletics dropped Detroit Tigers 5-3.

Robinson hit a solo homer against the White Sox in the third and then connected with two on in the ninth. Boog Powell, who drove in three runs, and Dick Brown also homered for the Orioles.

Bob Allison crashed a two-run homer and a pair of doubles as the Twins hardly missed Oliva against the Yankees. The victory stretched Minnesota's lead to 8½ games over the White Sox.

Jim Kaat went the distance for his 13th victory, scattering 10 hits, including Clete Boyer's 15th home run.

Home runs by Tom Reynolds and Wayne Causey beat the Tigers for Kansas City. Reynolds' first of the year broke a 3-3 tie in the sixth and Causey's No. 2 produced the final run in the eighth.

British Send Team To Meet

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—About 380 of Canada's top track and field stars pour into Shamrock Park in this city's north end today to match skills in the national age-class track and field championships.

Included is a small but potent British team which will provide the first foreign competition in the previously all-Canadian event. Selected following an international meet involving Scotland, Wales, Ireland and England, the six-man entry boasts two outstanding middle distance runners—Mike Tagg and Chris Stewart—and English schools sprint champion Alan Lowndes.

All Canadian provinces are represented in the competitions. About 40 invitations were issued to athletic clubs in the United States but that country will not be represented.

Ontario leads in entries with 154. Nova Scotia follows with 54, New Brunswick is third with 43 and Quebec has 42.

Forty-five events will be held in track and 37 field events are billed in six classes.

Minor Softball Results

In Bantam softball semi-final action Jets outlasted the Sabres 15-11, and the Aces won a defaulted game from Yukon 9-0.

The section finals start Tuesday, with the Jets and Aces meeting in a best-of-five affair.

Two Silvers Won By Canadian Athletes

From Reuters-AP

TEL AVIV (CP)—Canadian athletes collared two silver medals at the Maccabiah Games here Thursday, their first medals of the current Jewish Olympics.

Mark Arnold of Montreal, taking part in his first international track meet, finished second in the 110-metre hurdles in a tight battle with two Americans. Dick Sheer was the winner in 14.8 seconds, Arnold was second in 14.9 and Jack Spitzberg third, also in 14.9.

The other Canadian silver medal came in weightlifting, in which short, stocky Maurice Strauss of Toronto took second in the middle-heavyweight class behind Eli Askenazi of Israel.

The United States won three of the seven gold medals awarded on the first day of track and field competition. Besides Sheer, the American winners were Bill Morgan in the 10,000 metres in 30:55.8 and Roger Wolff in the 200 metres in 21.7.

Gerston Dacks of Toronto came in fourth 10,000 metres in 32:53.7.

In weightlifting, Strauss raised 253 pounds, 220 and 309 in the press, snatch and jerk respectively for a total of 782 in winning his silver medal. Askenazi lifted 827 to take the gold.

Two strong Israeli women fought a close duel in the discus, Olga Winterberg emerging the winner over Leorit Daniel by half an inch at 131 feet, 6½ inches. Noreen Slack of Ottawa, another Canadian newcomer to international competition, was seventh with 92 feet, three inches.

In fencing, Peter Bakonyi of Vancouver was among the eight men qualifying for the championship pool in the individual epee event.

American Ed Preisler kept his lead in the golf tournament with a 54-hole score of 218. Norm Mogul of Toronto, top Canadian, was seventh with 223. Other Canadians were well down, Alvie Garbe of Toronto with 233 and Harry Bearg of Toronto with 254.

Don Fuell Among Argo Cuts

TORONTO (CP)—Coach Bob Shaw cut eight players, including two Canadians and two veterans, from Toronto Argonauts' roster Thursday.

Linebacker Don Fuell and Ed Harrington, both in their third year with the club, were the regulars dropped.

The Argos, in last place in the Eastern Football Conference after losing their first three starts, also cut rookie quarterback Ron Calcagno, halfback Bob Reed, linebacker Dave Corley, linebacker Frank Orgel, formerly of Buffalo Bills of the American Football League, and Canadians Bill Johnson, a centre, and George Stringer, a defensive lineman from East York Argos.

Two more players arrived in camp Wednesday, both released by San Francisco '49ers of the National Football League. They are Pat Brosnan, a 23-year-old flanker, and Bob Brown, a 280-pound tackle.

The two new imports took part in a heavy scrimmage Wednesday in preparation for Sunday's game against British Columbia Lions in Vancouver and Tuesday's game against Edmonton Eskimos in Edmonton.

Latta Rally Brings First Playoff Win

Latta broke a 1-1 deadlock in the seventh inning to defeat Read 4-1 in a South Hastings Baseball League playoff game last night.

Reat has a 2-1 lead in the four-of-seven series with the next game scheduled for Latta Sunday afternoon, at 2.00.

Stan Reid hurled three-hit ball over the distance for Latta and Ted Abrams matched that effort on the Read hilltop. The winners erred but once while the losers committed three bobbles.

Latta jumped ahead 1-0 in the first on a home run by Doug Rollins. Read tied it with their loner in the fifth, setting the stage for the deciding tallies in the seventh.

Bill Ezinicki

Compares Golf With Hockey

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—Former National Hockey League player Bill Ezinicki of New Seabury, Mass., says there are days when golf can be just as tough — if not tougher—than hockey.

"Hockey is, of course, a much more physical game, and the rough-and-tumble going in the pro ranks can take its toll. But there are days when I would gladly trade the putter for a hockey stick—particularly when the putter isn't hot," Ezinicki said Thursday.

Here for the Dartmouth Open starting today and closing Saturday, he said the psychological and nervous strain on top golf professionals is great.

"Unlike a hockey player a golfer is completely on his own. If be makes a mistake, no one can correct it but himself. In hockey you have a few fellows to fall back on. tunately show up on the score and you can make unforcard.

"You must remember, too, that often a putt to a top pro can mean thousands of dollars."

Indians Not Always To Blame for ,Trouble At Alberta Railhead

FORT McMURRAY, Alta. (CP)—There was a time before the oil boom hit this northern Alberta railhead town when people blamed the Indians for any civic trouble that came along.

Those days of prejudice are all but gone. Today most people here realize that no race has a monopoly on trouble.

The major share of the credit for this awakening goes to the Indians themselves. Some of the credit goes to Terry Garvin, the community development officer here.

"My job is to help the Indians help themselves," Mr. Garvin says.

"I'm supposed to encourage the Indians to find ways of improving their education and their housing. I'm here to help them learn why it is better to stick with a job, perhaps spend their money in a different way and that sort of thing.

In July, 1964, before the crew-cut former RCMP officer launched his program, there were 60 court cases involving Indians in Fort McMurray. The Mounties were planning to bring in reinforcements.

In December, 1964, the number of court cases involving Indians had declined to two and the RCMP didn't need any extra men.

"I can never make decisions for them," Mr. Garvin explained. "The idea is for them to make the decisions. And the program isn't designed to make them live exactly like white men.

PATERNALISM OUT

The joint federal - provincial community development program is intended as a new approach to Indian problems. The approach tosses paternalism out of the window in favor of helping Indians and Metis—persons of mixed Indian and European blood — assume responsibility for their own futures.

One result of the program in Fort McMurray has been racial harmony, brought about partly by Indians earning the respect of others in the community and partly by Mr Garvin's efforts to root out prejudice.

"I try to match every remark I hear about shiftless Indians by pointing out a couple of inebriated white men," he says. "It usually has an effect."

A key to the development program was to encourage formation of an Indian organization that would provide a united voice. The association is called the Nistawoyow Council—Nistawoyow is Cree for "Three Forks in a Valley"—because the Christina, Clearwater and Athabasca rivers join near here.

The 125 Indian and Metis council members call themselves the "Bow - and - Arrow" council. Thy are led by Edmonton-born Henry White, a 59-year-old Second World War infantry veteran with six children.

Mr. White says the Indian's biggest problem is that he doesn't have enough confidence in himself, especially when he is talking to a white man. He is always afraid he is making the wrong move.

"The council leaders will ask for a meeting so I call one. Then Terry (Garvin) or I will ask what the meeting is for and nobody will answer. They'll all be afraid to speak."

JOBS FOR INDIANS

Despite difficulties like this, Nistawoyow has set up a housing co-operative providing Indians with housing loans worth about $13,000 each.

It has helped establish a handicrafts centre, athletic training programs for youths, a technical-vocational school and employment counselling services.

Indians are being hired for construction jobs in town and about 90 now work at the Athabasca oil sands development 25 miles north of here. Mr. Garvin says employers are satisfied that Indians are steady workers and some employers prefer Indians.

Nistawoyow now is pressing for a public health nurse to help remedy what Mr. Garvin considers an "appalling lack of public health services" in Fort McMurray.

For his part Mr. White would like to see the government pay for a university education for about five or six Indian and Metis boys.

"They would act as leaders of their people and it would pay the government back," he says. "We'll never get anywhere with the white man leading the Indian. It just doesn't work. We can't live like the white man."

Two years ago Indians made up the majority of the town's population of 1,200. Mostly Cree and Chipewyan, they worked traplines in the winter and some got jobs on the transportation services in the summer. Others lived on welfare.

Now with the town's population swollen to 2,200 because of the oil sands development, the Indians are slightly in the minority.

Accused Placed On Suspended Sentence

PICTON (Staff) — In magistrate's court here Wednesday, Morris Palmer, R. R. 8, Picton, was placed on suspended sentence for one year when he pleaded guilty to a charge of indecent exposure.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills also ordered Palmer to sign a bond to keep the peace for one year and remain on good behavior.

Const. Jack Hodgins of the provincial police detachment here said he found the accused wearing absolutely nothing in a shack near the road at his home, just outside Picton.

He said the man was visible from the road and a group of children and other people were nearby.

The officer described Palmer's condition as drunk. He also said he used obscene language and created a struggle.

Evidence was heard in the case of Earl Mindle, 21, of Consecon who pleaded guilty to a charge of wilful damage and a charge of assault. On a charge of assault by threatening, he pleaded not guilty.

The magistrate dismissed the charge of wilful damage and asked the accused to withdraw his plea of guilty.

Sentence was withheld on the assault charge to obtain Mindle's record.

Admits Taking Cow From Pasture Field

PICTON — "Without color of right" is the legal clause which remains to be interpreted in the case of Arnold Devries, R.R. 8, Picton, a farmer charged with theft of a cow.

After hearing evidence on the case Wednesday, Magistrate T. Y. Wills of Belleville reserved judgment until Sept. 8 to consider an argument advanced by defence counsel William Lane of Picton.

Magistrate Wills described the case as "a technical charge of theft," but said the case should have gone to a different court.

The cow was one of several purchased by Burrows from Devries about a year and half ago. Burrows admitted he still owed money to Devries from the transaction but the two differed on the amount.

Devries said he tried to buy the cow back from Burrows since he couldn't seem to get the rest of his money, and finally just took the cow last April. He has been milking it ever since and estimates the profit at 50 cents a day.

Mr. Lane referred to a case where the charge was dismissed because the accused sincerely and honestly believed he had a color of right to take the law into his own hands and reclaim the cow, but withheld judgment to consider the case reference submitted by Mr. Lane.

Rotarians Given Details Of Peanut Drive

PICTON (Staff) — Past President R. F. (Dick) Evans on Tuesday gave Rotarians details of his plans to make this year's Peanut Drive bigger and better than ever. This is the sixth year this club has sponsored this money-raising event, he said; now householders welcome the annual repeat call. Last year, Picton Rotary's net proceeds from house-to-house calls exceeded the previous year by over $150, Dr. Evans told.

"This year my idea is to enlarge our canvassing area, by calling on homes in rural areas which have not been touched before," the speaker said. As an instance, he mentioned Glenora Road, and Lake-on-the-Mountain which previously have not been canvassed.

This year the club will have only two products to offer, namely, peanuts at one dollar a tin, and peanut butter at fifty cents for a one-pound jar. Rotary hopes to have larger sales in Wellington this year by using Wellington boys to call on the homes. "In general, we have had a splendid response from calls in the several rural areas," he told.

Dick Evans asked Rotarians to give one night each to drive their cars on the various routes in Picton, and the surrounding countryside. He suggested that, if the boys in each Rotarian's canvassing team are given a pep talk, talking about Rotary objectives, they will do an excellent job in selling the peanuts and peanut butter.

The peanut sale drive will take place in Picton on Tuesday, September 14th, and in the rural sections on the next evening. "We hope to 'clean up' the entire promotion in two days," Dr. Evans said.

This Tuesday meeting saw Len Pearo and Don Parks sharing duty as sergeant-at-arms. This meeting has had an unusual number of facetious remarks by members, president Victor Allan stated. A feature was a duet by Bill Purtelle and Mayor Harvey McFarland, who chose "Home on the Range."

Cressy Area Hard Hit by Electric Storm

PICTON (Staff) — A violent electric storm which passed over Prince Edward County caused only routine damage according to Ontario Hydro officials here. Fuses were blown and one line was still out at 10 a.m. this morning in the Cressy area where the storm appeared to be most severe. Lightning is said to have been the cause of a barn fire about 4 a.m. this morning when a small barn belonging to Mr. George Tuttle of Cherry Valley burned with its contents.

According to one spokesman the barn contained carpenter tools, 200 traps, three trapping boats, a cultivator, a mower and some lumber. Loss is estimated at $2,000. The Hydro went off in Cherry Valley village about this time and Firefighting equipment was called from Camp Picton to fight the fire. In view of the fact that the fire had such a good start and the weather was severe the Fire Department did not respond. The barn was located between the main road and East Lake near the Hyatt canning factory.

Traffic Signs Removed From Main Highway

PICTON (Staff) — Provincial police of the Picton detachment are continuing investigations into the removal of a number of highway traffic signs from the Town Line road north of Wellington.

Some of the signs have been recovered, including a few found in Picton.

Police here describe the incident as vandalism.

The road is one of the main traffic arteries in the county and is heavily travelled. Signs removed include stop signs at some of the junctions leading onto the Town Line road, the loss of which could cause a serious accident with injuries or death.

Among TV's Obvious Needs Are New Names for Stars

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What television obviously needs, in addition to some fresh ideas for series, is some new names for series' starlets.

Their faces may be their own, but their handles, real or invented, sound like a broken record.

There are—or will soon be—Linda Evans, Linda Foster, Linda Kaye, Lynn Borden Lynn Loring, Lisa Loring, Lori Saunders, Lynette Winter, Cynthia Lynn and Lana Wood.

In the male division there is Tim Considine, Tim O'Connor, Tim Conway, Gary Conway, Gary Collins, Gary Lockwood, Gary Vinson, Gary Crosby, and Bill Crosby.

Richard X. Slattery is a co-star in Mr. Roberts, but no relation to Slattery's People, whose star is Richard Crenna. Dorothy Malone of Peyton Place is not related to Nancy Malone of The Long Hot Summer.

There used to be considerable kidding about the off - beat names invented for ambitious young actors, notably flashy tags like Rock, Tab or Rip for Hudson, Hunter and Torn. But at least they have the advantage of being distinctive. Let's see now, is it Lisa Loring in The Addams Family and Lynn Loring in The FBI or is it the other way around?

NBC UNHAPPY

NBC is not happy about the recent changes in the procedures of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences in awarding its Emmies. Designed to eliminate criticism by CBS and ABC, nominations this year are in only four broad categories and recipients will be chosen by panels of judges (whose identities will not be announced) instead of by vote of the membership.

Under the new rules there may be several Emmies presented in each of the categories, which immediately eliminates part of the fun.

NBC will televise the proceedings live Sunday, Sept. 12, opening night of a frantic week in which the three networks will launch their new season and will be fighting furiously for viewer attention.

CBS News—whose president started the ruckus that led to change—still will not participate in the proceedings and a lot of programs nominated for excellence have been dropped from the schedules — Mr. Novak, Profiles in Courage, The Defenders, That Was the Week that Was and The Rogues among them and many others were specials or one-shots.

With so little industry excitement about the awards, the show that NBC thought was a blockbuster opening for its season may turn out to be a damp firecracker.

AT THE PARK — Jane Fonda stars in the title role of "Cat Ballou", now showing at the Park Theatre, the wild and way-out western in Columbia color produced by Harold Hecht. Also starred are Lee Marvin, Michael Callan, Dwayne Hickman, Nat King Cole and Stubby Kaye. Tonight complete shows 7.00 - 9.15. p.m. Saturday continuous from 1.00 p.m.

Zubin Mehta Is Called Best Conductor Alive

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What serious music needs is a little more youth and enthusiasm. So says Zubin Mehta, who has added generous quantities of both.

The Bombay-born conductor has startled the music world with his virtuosity. Not only does he head two major symphony orchestras, Montreal's and the Los Angeles Philharmonic, he also maintains a heavy schedule of guest conducting from Milan to Moscow.

Mehta flew here this week after conducting an opera at Salzburg. After presenting the Verdi requiem at Hollywood Bowl, he was scheduled to return to Europe for more appearances.

"My older colleagues say I do too much," the conductor remarked. But some of his fellow conductors are unstinting in their praise; for instance, Russian Kiril Kondrashin called Mehta "probably the best conductor alive today."

Mehta is something of a local hero, having conducted the Los Angeles Philharmonic through its first, triumphant season at the new Music Centre. Attendance was doubled from the previous season, and critics agreed that the quality of the music was high.

Despite the success of the season, Mehta feels two elements are lacking. One is youth.

"We give special concerts to school children and regular concerts to a mature audience," he said. "But what about young adults—persons from 20 to 30? Little is done to attract them to concerts in this country, and they are either uninclined or find tickets too expensive. Yet this is where our future audience lies.

"In Europe it is different. There they have the Jeunesse Musicale, which provides inexpensive concerts for young adults."

Mehta has special reason for his fondness of the Jeunesse Musicale. It was under such auspices that he, a young music student in Vienna, was able to do his first professional conducting in Belgium and Yugoslavia. Then in 1958 he entered a competition in Liverpool and scored first in a field of 100 young conductors.

That led to his conductorship in Montreal.

Mehta mentioned the second element he finds missing at the Music Centre: Standing room for music fans.

"I wish the fire laws could be adjusted to provide it," he said. "That is the brain of the audience; that's where most of the enthusiasm for music comes in Europe. Why, in Vienna the standees have their own newspaper and review every performance. They are the ones who can fire a conductor."

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Some persons find it advantageous to rent their home instead of selling. The following communications are typical of the most frequently asked questions.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have tried for six months to sell my house but I can't get my price. Several persons have offered to rent it for as high as $175 per month. If I were to do this I would have about $70 a month left over after paying the taxes, mortgage, and other expenses.

The extra money would be very welcome. The only trouble is I don't have enough cash to buy another house. Is there any way I can have my cake and eat it at the same time? — Mortgaged Home Owner.

ANSWER: Our correspondent has no problem. The second house can be bought for no cash by placing a blanket mortgage to cover both properties. The equity in the first property provides the necessary down-payment.

The $70 per month available from the first house will pay a substantial part of the expenses and mortgage of the second property. This truly is a case of having your cake and eating it at the same time.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: As I accumulate extra money I am following a policy of buying a house and renting it out. I now own three. I usually get an 80 percent mortgage so the cash investment is small. I am making a fair return but, what is more important, my tenants are paying off the mortgages and in the years to come I will have a large estate.

I developed the idea myself. I have searched the libraries for information to guide me but with no results. Can you please tell me what type of house yields the best investment results? — "Imaginative"

ANSWER: There is a definite relationship at various price levels between value and rent. I have developed the following table from a typical market:

Price	Monthly Rent	Ratio Monthly Rent To Price Per Cent
$ 2,500	$ 50.00	2.0
$10,000	$100.00	1.0
$20,000	$150.00	0.8
$40,000	$250.00	0.6
$60,000	$325.00	0.5

The best investment return is always obtained from the cheapest houses. However, they represent many problems and usually are in declining neighborhoods. If you confine your activities to around the $10,000 bracket you will still have a satisfactory return and a minimum of problems.

The more expensive houses will not fit into your program for they take too much cash for purchase and their rental return is comparatively poor.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Invariably, several months after I paint, the same dozen stains always reappear on the front of the house. No other wall has this trouble. They aren't even the same color ranging from light brown to dark blue. From the distance my house looks like an abstract painting. — "A Non-Impressionist"

ANSWER: Your colorful house is caused by stains resulting from metallic objects embedded or protruding from the wall. Each metal yields its own distinct color.

Next time, before you paint, look for these metallic objects and give them one or two coats of anti-corrosive primer. Your stain problem will then vanish.

• • •

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately, he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Chronic Case of Blues Brings Negative Results

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS: I have become interested in a certain young man. On his part, he says he's confused about which he likes best, me or a former girl friend of his.

My problem is that I find myself thinking of him day and night. I've been refusing dates with others, simply because I can't pretend to be having a good time when I'm feeling blue.

What do I do while he makes up his mind? How do you hide sadness, especially when as long as you can remember you've been known to your friends and family as "Our Gay Sociable Miss"? I'm not all that young but I am mixed up. — OLD FAITHFUL.

DEAR FAITHFUL: Keep your sunny side up — just like the fried egg! Nothing is solved by a bad case of blues.

For one thing, he knows it when you brood over him. For another thing, he has no business to keep you dangling.

For a third, the folks who care about you deserve better treatment than a long face.

And fourthly, when you make a great big effort to be cheerful you begin to find yourself feeling that way — believe it or not!

* * *

DEAR DORIS: My best girl friend is getting married. When I received the invitation I noticed it mentioned nothing of the reception afterwards. It stated that I bring an escort, however. Does this mean just to the church or am I invited to the reception (that I know she is having)?

My mother says I'm not invited to the reception, yet I think I am.

Please print this in your paper as a lot of my friends got the same type of invitation and we are . . . CONFUSED.

DEAR CONFUSED: I'd say you are invited to the reception too, as one can hardly justify suggesting an escort if it is only for a trip to the church. Yet Mother is right in saying this should have been mentioned on the invitation.

Since the bride is your best friend, why not ask her? Be the spokesman for all those other puzzled friends. Just tell her you didn't want to do the wrong thing.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: Just a letter about 'worried' mother working and no one helping. I work from necessity. My daughter 13 loves to cook, so she cooks. I haven't prepared a meal since school let out.

My husband helps, because if you really have to work, why shouldn't he? I never hear a grudging sound. The other children (five altogether) help according to ages. They receive allowances.

But really, I couldn't manage without my 13-year-old daughter. I've never had a bad word for 'teeners'. I love mine too much.—WORKING MOM.

DEAR WORKING MOM: "As the twig is bent . . ." Congratulations!

Expected Redistribution Timetable Does Not Bear Out P.M.'s Remarks

Sleeping Sickness Said Spreading

EDMONTON (CP) — Sleeping sickness apparently has spread to southern Alberta, Dr. Alan Van Orman, medical officer for the Cardston district, said Thursday.

He said a 15-year-old resident of Hillspring, 45 miles southwest of Lethbridge is in Cardston hospital with symptoms of the disease. A definite diagnosis cannot be made until results of a blood test are determined.

A Toronto resident was in serious condition in hospital in Calgary, apparently suffering from the disease, and two others have also been admitted to hospital there.

Dr. Van Orman also said horses in several communities near Lethbridge have been stricken. All cases have developed since Monday, he said.

Sleeping sickness was reported earlier near St. Paul, about 100 miles northeast of Edmonton.

NINE CASES REPORTED

Nine cases have been reported in Alberta, Dr. J. Donovan Ross, provincial health minister, said in Edmonton Thursday. Confirmation of unofficial diagnoses was expected shortly.

In Regina, Dr. V. E. Senior, provincial veterinarian, said the outbreak should be nearly at a end. He said there had been little change in the last few days.

"The disease usually starts to tail off about this time of year. One good cold spell now would end it."

No deaths have been confirmed among humans, but it is suspected a two-month-old baby in Regina died of the disease.

In Winnipeg, laboratory tests were conducted Thursday to determine whether a 30-year-old woman from Selkirk, died from encephalitis.

Dr. Emmanuel Snell, Manitoba director of preventive medical services, said he has indirect evidence that eight horses in widespread parts of western Manitoba have contracted sleeping sickness.

By FRASER MacDOUGALL

OTTAWA (CP)—What is the basis for Prime Minister Pearson's conclusion, hotly disputed by the Conservatives, that it is not possible to hold a federal general election under redistribution before the end of 1966?

The expected redistribution timetable does not bear out the prime minister's remark at press conferences in Ottawa last week and in Vancouver Thursday. His statement has been interpreted as an indication the minority government is deciding between an election this year or none until 1967.

The redistribution, by 10 independent provincial commissions and based on the 1961 census population count, could be completed and become law any time next year from late April until early June.

But that does not clear the way for an immediate election.

A further redistribution lies ahead before the country can vote under the new set-up—shifting the boundaries of the 50,000 individual polling subdivisions, a task election experts say can be done only by constituency returning officers.

NEEDS TWO MONTHS

Nelso Castonguay, chief electoral officer, has said that he will need at least two months after appointment of the last new returning officer to have the poll job done and everything in readiness for a vote.

Even all this does not add up to the delay Mr. Pearson mentioned. A competent political observer suggests that the unknown quantity — and possibly what the prime minister was thinking about—is how long it will take after redistribution to make necessary returning officer appointments.

The returning officer, the man who runs the election in each constituency, is named by the government. A political appointee, he is traditionally chosen from active supporters of the party in power.

How long does it take to appoint returning officers? In the past it has taken more than a year to come up with a fairly full slate after redistribution or overhaul of the Election Act.

SOME RETAINED

That was the case in 1933 when the Conservatives, in power for three years, retained only 12 previous Liberal appointees. In 1938 the Liberals, also after three years in office and nearing an election decision, took better than a year when they retained only 12 previous appointees under a new act. In 1960 the Conservatives took a year to name 233, retaining 30 incumbents.

It took a year, too, under redistribhtion in 1947 and 152, although there were comparatively few changes since the Liberals were dealing with a lineup they had appointed.

There is some doubt as to how many new appointments will be necessary under the pending redistribution. One school of thought here is that when the new election plan becomes effective, all returning officer posts will become vacant. That would require 264 new appointments or, in some cases, re-appointments.

Another view is that redistribution will mean changes only in constituencies with completely new boundaries or new names, or in any where changes shift the returning officer right out of his riding. He has to be an eligible voter within his constituency.

SUBJECT TO CHANGE

Initial proposals of the 10 boundary commissions, still subject to change, provide 132 new constituencies. In another 32, the returning officer is removed by the residence requirement. Thus, barring further changes which are quite possible, there are at least 162 appointments to be made. Moreover, the great majority of current returning officers were appointed by the Conservatives in 1960.

Even in the present heady election atmosphere, there seems to be no haste in filling the half-dozen vacancies in the ranks of the 263 returning officers for the present 265 Commons seats. The figures don't balance because there are two two-member seats.

Whatever the basis for Mr. Pearson's conclusion, the Conservatives don't agree with it. Richard Thrasher, the party's national director, termed it "a lot of nonsense" and said an election is possible in June, 1966, under redistribution.

The timetable for completing redistribution, first change in boundaries since 1952 when it was based on the 1951 census, is not precise because of certain side factors.

The 10 provincial commissions have until next Jan. 20 to report. Eight will probably do so before the end of this year and the others should meet the deadline. If Parliament is sitting, the reports are tabled as soon as received.

10 CAN OBJECT

Within 30 days of tabling, any 10 MPs can object to a report and call for a debate. The Commons is required to take it up within another 15 days. Once the debate is over, the report is referred back to the provincial commission concerned and it has 30 days to deal with it.

Then redistribution is virtually automatic. Mr. Castonguay, as representation commissioner, prepares a draft order and the cabinet has five days to issue a proclamation declaring it to be in force. It is effective on dissolution of the existing Parliament or, if Parliament is dissolved at the time, on the succeeding Parliament.

One possible delaying factor is that if Parliament is not sitting when the reports come in, they are tabled within the first five days after it does sit. A long Christmas recess, well into February as this year, could delay the process. So could debate, not specifically limited by the Redistribution Act.

That explains why estimates for completing redistribution itself vary from late April until early June.

J. S. D. Tory Dies in Toronto, Ill Long Time

A lawyer, he held possibly more executive business posts than any other man in Canada.

He was chairman of McIntyre Porcupine Mines Ltd., president of Slough Estates (Canada) Ltd., and held directorships in companies representing pulp and paper, agricultural implement, oil, aviation merchandising, lumber, automotive, steel and a number of other industries.

He was a director of Thomson Newspapers Ltd., and Shoreacres Broadcasting Ltd., and a former director of the Toronto evening newspaper, The Telegram.

Mr. Tory participated in many of the biggest business deals in Canada.

One was the merger of Massey-Harris Ltd. with the Ferguson tractor interests of Britain to form Massey-Ferguson Ltd. Another was the merger of the Robert Simpson Co. with Sears Roebuck of Chicago to form Simpson's-Sears.

He was also active in the purchase of the Ventures Ltd. mining interests by McIntyre Porcupine and the sale, largely to Canadian interests, of 500,000 shares of Algoma Steel Ltd. by the estate of the late Sir James Dunn.

FUND-RAISER

Mr. Tory helped to organize fund-raising campaigns for numerous charity and hospital fund-raising campaigns in Toronto. During the Second World War he was chairman of the Citizens Committee for Troops in Training, which organized a system of comforts and entertainment for servicemen.

Born in Toronto, Mr. Tory was the son of one of three brothers who came off a backwoods farm near Guysborough, N.S., to make names for themselves.

His father, the late John A. Tory, was a supervisor and director of the Sun Life Assurance Company. James C. Tory was a lieutenant - governor of Nova Scotia and Henry M. Tory founded the University of Alberta, Carleton College in Ottawa and the National Research Council.

He graduated in political science from the University of Toronto in 1924, was gold medallist in his law class at Osgoode Hall in 1927 and took a doctorate of law at Harvard University two years later.

As president and chairman of the Canadian Mental Health Association, he organized the Mental Health Research Fund, developed CMHA divisions in all provinces except Newfoundland and appointed a committee of psychiatrists to study psychiatric services. The committee's report now is being used as a key to study of the problem by the royal commission on health services.

His marriage in 1927 to Jean Arnold ended in divorce. They had two sons and a daughter, Virginia. He married the former Ann Cowan in 1957.

Sunday School Lesson

Equipped for Battle

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Frequently over the radio there comes a little song warning people to "buckle up for safety; buckle up." The song, of course, is a reminder to people to fasten their seat belts when riding in a car. The Bible reminds people to buckle up the belt of truth (Eph. 6:14), so that when they collide with prejudice, or any other form of evil, they will not be overcome, but will be able to stand for true righteousness.

Life is a constant battle against evil forces that seek to degrade and defeat. In addition to inner hungers that need to be controlled, there are outside pressures that need to be resisted. In the political and ideological world, there are pressures from the right and from the left. In the social and economic world, there are pressures to keep up with the Joneses. In every phase of life, there are pressures to conform. If a person yielded to every pressure, or outside force, that seeks to shape him in its mold, he would become a very misshapen person indeed.

To stand firm against evil pressures, a person needs a good backbone. A bank advertisement pictured a human spine, and said, "You need one of these if you're going to save.' A person needs a strong backbone to stand up to all the forces that seek to shape or defeat him. But he needs more. He needs spiritual protection. For life is constantly beset by wicked and degrading forces. (Eph. 6:12) A person needs protection for heart and mind if he is to be a good soldier for God.

ARMOR FOR LIFE'S BATTLES

The Bible suggests such spiritual armor. (Eph. 6:14-17) It begins with truth. Everything is to be girded with that. Then for protection of character and of the heart, it suggests "the breastplace of righteousness." Righteous living is one of the best protections a person can have. Certain unscrupulous politicians tried to dig up some evidence of misconduct that could be used to discredit their political opponent. But they failed. They could attack his political philosophy, but they could not smear his reputation, for his personal life had been above reproach.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for August 29: "The Pressures from Without," Ephesians 6:10-20; James 4:1-8; I John 2:15-17.

But no one has a perfect "breastplate of righteousness." That is why all men need a "shield of faith," knowing their own righteousness is imperfect. They need faith in the perfect righteousness of God. Where they are weak, He is strong. where they are sinful, He is forgiving. Where they harbor hate, He is perfect love. Where they are like grass that "fades and withers," He is "from everlasting to everlasting." (Psalm 90).

Also heads as well as hearts need protection. They need protection against prejudice and doubt. They need protection against false ideas. They need what the Bible calls "the helmet of salvation."

We might think that the Bible should have talked about a helmet of truth, but the Bible shows its deep insight by suggesting a helmet of salvation. The best answer to doubt is not an argument but an experience. Paul's false ideas were corrected by an experience on the road to Damascus. John Wesley could think and preach great messages because his heart had been "strangely warmed." The blind man whom Jesus healed could not answer the theological questions of Jesus' critics, but one thing no one could refute. Whereas he had been blind, now he could see, John 9:25. A mind seeking truth and a heart warmed by God's presence is an unbeatable combination in facing up to the evil forces in the world.

BEST PROTECTION OF ALL

And a mind equipped with a knowledge of the Bible is the best spiritual protection of all. For the Bible is the "sword of the Spirit." It was by means of this weapon, Jesus repeatedly put His tempter to flight. (Matthew 4:1-10) Every time Jesus said, "It is written," and quoted the sacred scriptures, He scored a perfect bulls-eye for truth and righteousness. Again and again, He silenced His critics by showing He knew the scriptures better than they did. (Matthew 22:23-33; 22:41-45) A lack of knowledge of the Bible is one of the gravest problems of our day, for without a knowledge of the Bible, men cannot gird themselves with God's truth, nor fill their hearts and minds with an understanding of His ways. Bible study and prayer are indispensable if people are to stand firm against the hate and lies of wicked men.

But to stand firm does not mean to stand still. Shoes are made for walking, and the Christian is told to be shod with the "equipment of the gospel of peace" so he may carry the message of God's love and peace to the whole world.

Statement Not Accepted By Delegates

VANCOUVER (CP)—An unsigned statement lay in each chair Thursday as the General Synod of the Anglican Church of Canada convened for sessions scheduled to discuss union with the United Church of Canada.

The 246 - word statement quoted Most Rev. Arthur Michael Ramsey, Archbishop of Canterbury, as saying in the American publication The Living Church that:

. . . he could not participate in any plan for Anglican-Methodist union which could 'compromise our Catholic heritage' noting that in the past 'we have been faced with attacks upon the Catholicity and holy orders of our own church.

" 'We shall do nothing to justify these attacks which we believe to be erroneous,' the Anglican primate stated. 'Today we find within the Roman Catholic church a spirit glowing of brotherhood with us Anglicans and an outlook in liturgy and other matters which is far nearer to us, and we must not damage that spirit.' "

A synod delegate, Archdeacon Alford Abraham of Sarnia, stood to complain about distribution of the statement, saying the head of the Church of England had ben quoted out of context.

The prolocutor of the synod's lower house, Lt. - Col. M. L. Douglas of Brockville, advised delegates to "put the statement where it belongs—sit on it."

Space Pilots Whirl Happily Toward Landing

HOUSTON (AP) — Fatigue giving way to excitement, the Gemini 5 space pilots raced homeward today toward the end of the time table —— an eighth day in space and the tricky return to earth Sunday.

Astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles (Pete) Conrad Jr. got their go-ahead for the last critical orbits in their 3,120,000-mile journey at 8.50 a.m. EDT.

At 8.56 a.m., the spacecraft completed its 105th orbit.

Barring further troubles, the astronauts will fire their breaking rockets at 9.01 a.m. Sunday and splash down in the Atlantic Ocean northwest of San Salvador 27 minutes later.

Flight director Christopher C. Kraft said that weather prospects in the landing area after 121 orbits were good—but that forces would also be standing by in recovery areas after 120 orbits if necessary.

Tropical storm Betsy — born of a weather system the astronauts have watched in the mid-Atlantic—was not expected to be a problem for the splashdown of Gemini 5.

There was still the possibility of a shift in landing areas because of the storm—perhaps even ending the flight an orbit early — but flight officials thought this doubtful.

Both astronauts seemed to get the home stretch feeling. They sounded alert and cheerful. Cooper, whose sleepy drawl has punctuated Conrad's tenor chatter, took careful note of the orbits as Gemini 5 drifted past the 100 orbit mark.

PC Chief Happy In Tour

By KEN KELLY

KNOWLTON, Que. (CP) — John Diefenbaker set out this week to prove he isn't an anti-Quebec ogre and to fire the opening guns for the federal election campaign he feels is in the offing.

"There wasn't a jarring element throughout," he remarked contrasting what he called "dire warnings" against making his first Quebec tour since 1963 with his reception as he whirlwinded through the province's Eastern Townships.

Obviously buoyed up by his experience, he began to show the old campaign style, dropping such election appetizers as a promise of a substantial cut in personal and corporation income taxes and municipal-tax deductibility for home-owners when they pay their income taxes.

But these came late in his tour. He concentrated on the Progressive Conservative party's farm platform at informal, hand-shaking affairs with farmers and speeches to large audiences.

WINS CHEERS

He was cheered lustily in the heart of "bleu" territory for a speech entirely in French, except for one English sentence. The hal lwas jpammed with an estimated 1,200 while another large crowd outside the hall listened on loudspeakers.

His pronunciation of French, at times in the past almost unrecognizable as the language of Moliere, showed enough improvement for Quebec reporters to hand out surprised compliments.

His pace was exhausting—a brisk walk at 6:30 a.m., breakfast, a stop at city halls, tours at industrial plants, a buffet luncheon in a farming community, another small business plant in the afternoon, a press conference, dinner and sometimes a night political rally.

With his 70th birthday falling next Sept. 10, his remarkable vigor drew as many comments in the areas he visited as his determined attempt to get better command of French.

The strain hardly showed. Even when it had ended, he was up at 6 a.m. Friday to drive to Ottawa. He has a speech scheduled to be delivered Sunday at Elk Island Park

Anglican Priests Get Pay Raise

VANCOUVER (CP)—An Anglican priest with 10 years in Canada's northland won't buy many luxuries with a guaranteed yearly stipend of $3,400.

After 16 years in one of these missionary dioceses, he's certain of $4,000. It doesn't go far if he sends one or more teen-aged children south to school at $1,000 a year each.

But these minimum salaries are a measurable improvement he owes to Friday's session of the church's 22nd general synod here.

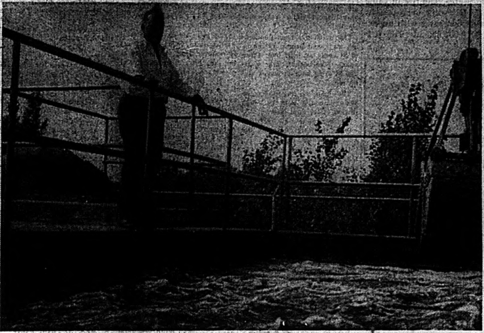
Delegates increased the basic stipend for clergy in missionary dioceses to $3,200 from $3,150, a fractionary improvement. But they also added $200 for service of six to 10 years, $400 for service of 11 to 15 years, and $800 for priests ordained more than 15 years previously.

The synod also took measures to improve housing and travel allowances. Bishops of the hinterland dioceses of the Anglican Church of Canada stood to tell the synod the changes would mean a great difference to the comfort of their priests.

The third day of the momentous synod gave approval to major reorganization of the church's legislative and executive councils.

The synod, which is the legislative body of the church, will have its lower house of clergy and lay delegates cut to 222 members from 315. It will meet every two years instead of every three.

Mysterious Overload Makes Sewage Plant Inefficient



Don Little, Chief Operator at the Belleville Water Pollution Control Plant, points to the churning water in the grit chamber. Because of the overload at the plant, the level of the water is dangerously high and often water simply has to be bypassed and put right back into the Bay without being processed because the present facilities are not adequate to handle it all.

Effluent Highly Polluted

There is more sewage going to the Belleville Water Pollution Control Plant than can be handled by the present facilities. The sewage treatment plant operates at 60 per cent above its design load, and the reason for this overload remains a mystery.

As a result, 39 per cent of the organic material and 25 per cent of the suspended solids remain in the effluent (outflow) when it is returned to the Bay of Quinte.

According to the 1964 annual report, issued by the Ontario Water Resources Commission, "The average daily flow to the plant in 1964 was 4.9 million gallons per day. T[illegible]s was an increase of 1.1 mi[illegible] gallons per day over t[illegible] average."

The report continues: [illegible]draulically, the plant [illegible] [illegible]verely overloaded. It is designed to treat an average flow of 3.0 million gallons per day, about two million gallons per day less than the actual flow during 1964."

City Engineer W. Purcell said: "The overload is greater than was anticipated. Part of the reason for the overload is the number of old sewers in the city letting in more ground water than they should.

"Also," he continued, "we still have some combined storm and sanitary sewers. This contributes a little to the overflow.

"However, these things are not the whole answer. The flow is high even when it isn't raining.

BIG IMPROVEMENT

"Despite the overload though," he said, "the Belleville plant is giving the sewage good treatment considering the fact that it is only equipped for primary treatment.

"It's true that 39 per cent of the organic material and 25 per cent of the suspended solids are returning back to the bay, but three years ago, before the plant was built these figures were 100 per cent.

"With the construction of secondary treatment in Belleville, these figures could be lowered to only five per cent and putting in secondary facilities would automatically reduce primary overloads because the retention would be reduced and the whole process speeded up so more could be handled."

The Belleville Sewage Plant was constructed in 1962 at a total cost of $2,379,600. It was designed in such a way

Rusk Says He Is Tuned In To Catch Red Peace Signal

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Rusk is tuned in for any "key signal" that will show Communist interest in a peaceful settlement in Viet Nam.

"Thus far my own antennae have not picked up this key signal, but the antennae are very much alert," Rusk told a press conference Friday.

Rusk issued his public bid for a Communist peace overture amid a bustle of backstage activity, ranging from the United Nations to Moscow, by third parties reported to be seeking to get peace talks going.

Rusk held out hope that "this process of diplomatic osmosis" will bear fruit at some point. And some of the third-party efforts, he said—while refusing to identify them—are more important than others.

However, "I can't report any response that is clearly indicative of a move toward peace in this situation," he said.

He said the essential difference between U.S. and Communist intents remains. As he put it: "The other side appears to be determined to take over South Viet Nam and control its future by force and we are determined to see that that does not happen."

Declaring that "our war aim is peace," Rusk left open a wide range of possibilities under which the U.S. might be willing to participate in peace moves.

Washington will consider stopping the bombing of North Viet Nam if Hanoi undertakes a peace step such as, for example, calling home its 325th division from South Viet Nam, he said.

A ceasefire could be the first item on a peace conference agenda — "we would be prepared to discuss these problems in any reasonable order," he said.

Children May Have Lethal Detonators Stolen at Trenton

TRENTON — Detonating caps—with lethal charges so sensitive they can be set off by the warmth of a hand or the high-frenquency beam of a household FM radio—are still being sought here.

The caps—enough to cause a massacre—were believed stolen by youngsters from a construction hut in East Trenton sometime during the week.

The theft was first revealed yesterday when a young boy walked into the security police offices at Trenton RCAF base and handed over more than 600 of the caps to startled airmen. He presumably lives in the RCAF Middleton Park sub-division.

Police have not named the youth nor have they made clear whether he was implicated in the theft or just found the caps, which prime dynamite and are used chiefly in excavation work.

It was from such a project that the caps were taken. Police discovered a construction hut owned by Carr's Electric, sub-contracting on a sewage installation, had been broken open and the caps taken.

Company officials could give police no estimate of the number stolen. Police believe the 600 surrendered airforce police yesterday was the bulk of the haul.

However, they have no idea how many may still be in the possession of youngsters in the Trenton area.

Worried authorities are beaming warnings to parents asking that they quiz children on possible possession or whereabouts of the caps, if they have disposed of them.

Authorities worry that some of the caps may have been discarded by the youngsters and left lying around to cause accidents to unwary passers-by.

The caps are in cases up to two inches long and are brass or silver in color.

Heavy Fighting Underway in Mekong Delta

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese ground forces have killed at least 50 Viet Cong in heavy fighting in the Mekong Delta, a U.S. military spokesman said today.

The spokesman described the Vietnamese drive as a "multi-battalion" operation. He said the fighting took place Friday and early today, about 100 miles southwest of Saigon.

Civil Rights Leader Hurt By Car Bomb

NATCHEZ, Miss. (AP)—The head of the FBI in Mississippi took charge today of the hunt for the bombers who seriously wounded a Negro civil rights leader.

A bomb hidden beneath the hood exploded when George Metcalf, about 55, turned on the ignition of his car Friday.

Metcalf, president of the local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was reported in fair condition today by doctors.

Both Klansmen and members of the militant Negro Deacons for Defence and Justice in this area are known to be heavily armed.

Charles Evers, Mississippi field secretary for the NAACP, forecast trouble. "The Negroes have armed themselves," said Evers, whose brother, Medgar, was shot and killed from ambush at Jackson two years ago.

Evers said Metcalf had spearheaded the drive for Negro equality in the Natchez area.

Astronaut To Plunge To Ocean Depths

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP)—The U.S. Navy says all systems are "go" for the descent today of 10 aquanauts, including astronaut M. Scott Carpenter, to Sealab 2 on the Pacific Ocean bottom 1,000 yards off shore.

Three teams of 10 divers are scheduled to spend 15 days each in the 12-by-58 foot steel cylinder over the next 45 days, eating, sleeping and working at a depth of 205 feet.

Carpenter, a navy commander, and nine other navy divers and scientists, were expected to start descending about 2 p.m. EDT. Some may go down in a three-man diving bell, others may make the trip in skindiver gear.

Sealab 2, an experiment to determine how long men can function safely under pressure six times that of the surface, was lowered to the bottom Thursday after a 12-day delay due to technical problems.

A long series of safety checks followed, and finally Sealab 2 was reported ready for the divers to enter.

Carpenter, a veteran diver as well as astronaut, will try to stay down 30 days and set a record. Last year, four men spent 13 days at a depth of 160 feet in the smaller Sealab 1, off Bermuda.

All divers will work outside the underwater base at least two hours a day, studying marine specimens and mapping the ocean floor off this southern California resort. Sealab 2 is on the edge of a deep marine canyon, which the divers probably will explore.

GOING DOWN — Astronaut Scott Carpenter sits on Sealab 2 just before the underwater-living capsule went beneath the surface off La Jolla, Calif. Capsule was plated on bottom at depth of 205 feet in preparation for 45 day experiment.

PM Says Canada May Join American States Grouping

BANFF, Alta. (CP) —Prime Minister Pearson was moving into the final phase of his nine-day pulse-taking tour of Western Canada today after a day of heavy travelling, light politics and a deep plunge into international affairs.

He ended Friday by telling a group of high school students here that Canada is likely soon to join the Organization of American States. Just a few moments earlier he had made a major address on Canada's role as a middle power to the third Banff conference on world development.

Earlier Friday the prime minister flew from Vancouver to the northern British Columbia boom city of Prince George, the heart of Social Credit territory where provincial Liberal organizers are planning a major assault in the next general election.

Mr. Pearson has given strong indications that such an election will come later this fall.

His comments on OAS came in reply to a question by a student who asked Mr. Pearson about Canada's plans.

"I believe that before long we will take our share of responsibilities as members of OAS," he replied. "The question of membership in the organization had been considered for years by this government and its predecessor and "perhaps we were right in not hurrying into the organization."

Canada had always been popular in Latin America and "perhaps we wouldn't have been so popular if we had to take sides in disputes."

During Mr. Pearson's speech and question and answer period before the world development conference he talked about Canada's determination to play its part in such organizations as the United Nations NATO and the Commonwealth.

"The United Nations, despite its frustrations and setbacks, is still the best place for us to show our special, unique and valuable qualities in world affairs."

His western trip has been generally regarded as a prelude to a general election, which the prime minister has strongly indicated will be announced within the next two weeks.

LUMBER EXPORTS UP—The value of Canadian lumber exports rose in 1964 to $473,306,000 from $452,484,000 in 1963. Softwood is the main export and most of it goes to the United States. The rise in value has been steady since 1957, following decreases in 1956 and 1957. The 1964 value compares with an export value of slightly over $100,000,000 in 1946. (CP Newsmap)

Need Right to Strike But May Not Use It Civil Servants' View

By KEN SMITH

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A strike if necessary — but not necessarily a strike.

The paraphrase of a comment attributed to the late prime minister Mackenzie King on conscription sums up reaction of the triennial conference of the Civil Service Federation of Canada to the issue of the right to strike.

The 200 delegates, representing the federation's 80,000 members, spent plenty of time during their week-long conference debating the issue but there was almost unanimous agreement Friday that civil servants need the right to walk off their jobs except in a few vital services.

At the same time, however, the delegates agreed it might never be used and then only in exceptional cases where bargaining failed completely to win concessions from the government.

They steered carefully away from a formal demand for the right to strike, agreeing finally on a resolution to oppose any bid by the government to impose a strike ban in expected legislation giving civil servants the right to collective bargaining.

On the last day the delegates turned to the question of possible affiliation with the Canadian Labor Congress but found it necessary to compose a compromise resolution.

They approved an amended statement calling on the federation's national affiliates—the employee groups making up the larger body—to join the CLC as quickly as possible, but left the question of a marriage between the federation and the CLC up to the CSF's national council when it feels it is "proper."

There were these other closing day developments:

Delegates approved a revised constitution aimed at giving more authority to the federation as a central body, taking some away from the national affiliates.

Speakers said it will be essential to have a strong federation able to meet the government on service - wide issues once collective bargaining starts.

15-cent-a-month increase to 45 cents in per capita dues paid to the federation by the affiliates was approved.

Survey Shows Subscribers Want Change

Bell Telephone Company manager, C. H. Buckley, advised that the survey of customer opinion taken in Trenton to determine the interest in free calling between Trenton and Belleville has been completed. The survey was held between July 26 and August 6 and the majority of Trenton customers contacted were in favor of paying the slightly higher rate and having free calling to Belleville. The facility will not affect Belleville rates.

As a result of the survey, Mr. Buckley mentioned that telephone calls between Trenton and Belleville will become local calls instead of long distance to keep pace with the growing community of interest between the two centres.

The Bell Telephone Company will work out the details of providing this service and are planning it to be introduced by early 1968.

Steel Wage Negotiations Do Not Appear Promising

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Steel negotiators prepared to resume bargaining today with the U.S. government's top mediator saying "the situation does not look promising at this time."

Four days remain before 450,000 United Steelworkers members will be free to strike the U.S. basic steel industry at midnight Tuesday, shutting off 80 per cent of the steel output in the U.S.

William E. Simkin, director of the federal mediation and conciliation service said Friday night: "Some very limited narrowing of the gap between the parties has been indicated to me. However, the area of disagreement remains very substantial."

The union has been demanding wage and benefit increases of 53 cents an hour over three years. Steelworkers now average $4.40 an hour in wages and benefits.

The industry has offered a 40.6-cent hourly package which it says is its final offer.

Unless there is some break today, the costly process of shutting down the mills must start Sunday. It takes an average of 10 hours to close down a blast furnace.

The union also sent out shutdown directives to local presidents across the U.S. This is a routine procedure necessary for an orderly shutdown, but is often announced and used as a psychological weapon. It was not announced this time.

Teachers Want Tests Kept Secret

ALGONQUIN PARK, Ont. (CP)—The Ontario Teachers' Federation has asked for regulations which would allow intelligence and aptitude tests and results to be kept secret.

The federation's board of governors passed a resolution asking the provincial government for controls as a result of a case in which a London, Ont., school trustee went to court in an attempt to get copies of intelligence and aptitude tests used in London schools.

The court turned down he request by Trustee R. W. Buchner. But the judge indicated that the ruling might have been different if the board of education, rather than an individual trustee, had made the request.

The federation resolution asks the provincial department of education to "formulate regulations which would control the issuing of standard test forms, their results and other confidential information to the public or to meetings of boards of education which may be attended by the public."

STUDY CONDITIONS

The federation governors also decided to set up a committee to study claims that teachers' working conditions are unsatisfactory.

Teachers told the board that they are being forced to work longer than is required by department of education regulations.

L. Dorothy Martin of Toronto said teachers are asked to supervise play periods, monitor lunch breaks and open and close schools. She said this is against regulations which specify teachers must be at school each day from 8:30 a.m. until 15 minutes after classes end.

The study committee will survey Ontario teachers and report to the board next year.

The governors recommended that one day each winter be set aside as Canada Day, in which special school programs would honor Canada, its achievements and its great men and women.

that expansion would be possible.

Waste from the city is directed to the plant via the Front and Dundas Streets pumping station and run into the grit tank. Compressed air forces the grit to settle to the bottom of the hopper while the organic material stays in suspension and passes through the grit chamber.

The grit (inorganic material suc has sand, rocks and so on) is removed from the bottom of the tank by a clam bucket and placed on a truck for hauling away. Last year, 22 truck loads of grit came out of the sewage and were hauled to the dump.

The waste from the grit tanks is then retained in the settling tanks for approximately six hours. About 65 per cent of the suspended solids settles to the bottom in these tanks and is moved to a hopper at the front of the tank by scrapers.

The sludge — solids that have settled — is pumped from the hopper to the digestion tank and the preliminary processing is complete.

And that is as far as the Belleville plant is equipped to go.

The water goes back out to the Bay again, and as mentioned previously, much of the waste material goes with it.

NEW DEAL?

Mayor Jack Ellis said, "We have wanted to build a secondary treatment plant to stop sewage going into the Bay but we just were not able to afford it until now.

"However, I understand the Provincial Government has stated they are now prepared to completely finance water and sewage treatment projects and charge the municipality for the facilities.

"The Government would assume the whole cost of the project. With this in mind, I am going to ask Council at the next meeting for permission for me to approach the Ontario Water Resources Commission and arrange details for secondary sewage disposal in Belleville and an increase in the primary treatment.

"The key to the whole plan," he said, "is that the project would in no way affect the credit of the municipality."

The sewage treament now costs each family in Belleville $5.25 per year. New services, under the plan outlined by Mayor Ellis, would have little effect in increasing this amount.

Though the proposed new plant facilities would process a much higher percentage of the waste materials, the overload problem would still not be substantially overcome.

The OWRC report recommended that "steps should be taken to reduce the high flows coming into the plant."

With regards to what steps the city is taking to reduce the high flows, Mr. Purcell said, "The new crash program recently approved by council should help some. Because of an increase of temporary help, we are able to concentrate more on some of the problems, including the extension of the existing plant and the overload problem.

"The city has put in many new storm sewers in the last few years and sewers with abnormally high flows are being sealed.

"Again, we are not sure what causes the high flow. We know it is there, but we're not sure specifically where it comes from."

So the overload continues, and indications are that as the city grows, the problem will become even more acute. Even now, whenever there is a rain, the basement of the Front St. pumping station is often flooded and much of the waste coming into the sewage disposal plant is simply bypassed and put directly into the bay because there is just too much to handle.

Life of Quinte Families Told In Books

TRENTON — Trenton businessman, Charles Barker, has acquired a two-volume set of "Pioneer Life on the Bay of Quinte," written in the early part of this century.

Histories and anecdotes of nearly all the old Quinte families are given in detail and these include Trenton and Belleville founders, John R. Bleeker and Captain John Walten Meyers. Squire Bleeker married one of the captain's daughters, Catherine, and after her death, another daughter, Mary. Numerous descendents of the two families are alive today. Trenton town council recently honored the Bleeker connection by naming a street in a new housing development, "Bleeker Ave."

Other well-known area families, the Ketchesons, Bryants, Corys, Crowes, Cummings, DeMilles, Denyes, Farleys, Finkles, Frasers, Mikels, Mowats, Ostranders, Roblins, Rowes, Rathbuns, Spragues, Vandervoorts, Vermilyeas, Waldrons, Ways and Zwicks are similarly given coverage in the two volumes.

Tatham Gets Contract for Sewer Line

NAPANEE — The council held a special meeting Thursday evening, Reeve Claude Knight took the chair until Mayor Lorne Smart arrived. Tenders were opened for the sewer line on the Palace Road. Only two were received, one for $64,305., one from the Tatham Co., for $50,771.75 who will receive the contract. The original estimate was for $48,000. Prices from contractors seem to have risen sharply.

The Canadian Locomotive Co., tender for $5,020. for construction of a pump station was accepted.

Tenders were also opened for the chlorination of the sewage treatment plant. These varied from $19,850. to $27,218. from many firms. The tender accepted was from F. McConnel and Son for $19,850.

Council once more attacked the problem of the quarry, which is operated on Roblin's hill and the source of many complaints. The members of council seem to have mixed ideas on this subject. Reeve Claude Knight said residents he had spoken to in Clarkesville were pleased with the new road, sewer and water lines and they are willing to put up with a few inconveniences. Councillor R. Douglas said he was present at the test blast and no shock was felt, he feels the reports are exaggerated.

Mayor Lorne Smart left the chair, he said that the by - law states that if the operations of a quarry are named a nuisance, they can be forced to stop operations. He feels development of this area will be very slow if the quarry continues to operate.

Councillor Marshall suggests that a new by - law be drawn up, with enough teeth in it to do the job without getting into a big court case.

After much discussion, council has moved a resolution be forwarded to their attorney, stating that no quarries will be operated within the town of Napanee 60 days after the 26th day of August or the offenders will be prosecuted.

No Action Taken On Levy Appeal

NAPANEE — Court of Revision was held Thursday night at Napanee to continue a meeting which was held earlier in the month to hear an appeal from Clarence Milligan regarding the amount assessed to him for the water and sewer line along the 232-acre farm located within the corporation of Napanee on Centre St. North.

Mr. Milligan pleaded with the members of the court to place themselves in his position. He claims that this amount of $1,078, which is his share of the sewer and water line cost yearly is an exhorbitant and unfair assessment. His property is zoned for industrial and commercial use and he states he has never had any inquiries from prospective industries. He feels he is paying the shot to run these lines up to the public works buildings.

Mr. R. Douglas replied that he could see Mr. Milligan's point but he felt the land was being improved by adding these services and that if they cut one person's levy they would be beseiged with requests from other residents, therefore the court made no adjustment.

Mr. Milligan says he has no other alternative but to take it to a higher court, which could be heard locally or go to the Ontario Municipal Board.

The Canadian National Railways have also been assessed for a portion of the cost on their property. They notified council they would accept the assessment levied on them.

BOAT OWNER MUST PAY

CHRISTCHURCH, England (CP) — A Lands Tribunal has ruled that David Stacey, owner of an 80-foot motor cruiser, is liable to pay municipal taxes so long as his craft is permanently moored in this Hampshire harbor. The decision, overruling that of an earlier court, may affect thousands of small boat owners in Britain.

Mounties Keep Careful Watch Over Russians

By JOHN McLEAN

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. (CP) There was evidence for the first time Friday that the Canadian government is taking no chances on anything happening to the six Russian construction bosses currently visiting Canada.

During a flying visit to the silver mines at Elsa in The Yukon, a special squad of RCMP in plain clothes guarded every move the Russians made. The two officers stood watch on the RCAF C-5 which is ferrying the visitors across Canada on an 18-day tour.

It was learned at the mine site that caches of dynamite had been removed from their usual storage spots during the past several days.

Miners of European background from countries where people have fled to the West from communism, were kept at tasks far from the mining and construction sites inspected by the Russians.

Two unmarked cars trailed the Russian bus at all times and parked a discreet distance away at all stopping points.

The visit to the mine, where many hard-rock miners have memories of communism in their homelands, went off without incident, although one employee went up to the leader of the delegation and spoke to him in his native tongue before the party was moved away by conducting officers.

Late Friday the C-5 brought the Russians 700 miles south to Fort St. John where they were greeted by Northern Affairs Minister Laing who earlier cancelled plans to accompany the visitors during their full stay in Canada.

Mr. Laing now will remain with the party until the visit ends in Ottawa Sept. 2.

HOBBY BECOMES CAREER

EDMONTON (CP) — What once was a boyish interest in nature has turned into a profitable business for Edgar T. Jones. Now a wildlife photographer, Mr. Jones has shot about 30,000 feet of film which he shows to the public and sells to producers, including Walt Disney. His job has taken him to the Arctic and to Africa.

Daily Paper Can Be Useful As Teaching Aid in Schools

By DENIS GRAYHURST
Kitchener-Waterloo Record

KITCHENER (CP) — Educationists, always on the alert for a good teaching aid, are discovering that the daily newspaper can become a never-out-of-date textbook with extensive use as a teaching aid in the classroom.

Teachers and newspaper men are finding they have much in common and much of this was reflected in the two-week Newspaper - Classroom Workshop which ended Friday at the University of Waterloo.

Forty - nine teachers from every province except Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland attended the seminar sponsored by their daily newspapers, but were picked by their local school boards.

The seminar, sponsored by the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association, was addressed by prominent newspaper publishers, editors and writers who discussed the paper and its functions with the teachers.

Purpose of the seminar was to teach the ways in which newspapers can be used as classroom aids. It is expected the teachers will initiate or expand the use of newspapers in the schools of their home communities.

There was some self interest on the part of the newspapers. School children who use newspapers in the classroom are much more likely to become knowledgable and permanent newspaper readers in later life.

But there was no attempt to tell teachers how to use the newspapers in the classroom. That was done by fellow teachers already using newspapers in their classes.

John Bourne, professor of philosophy of education of the University of Scranton in Pennsylvania said newspapers in the classroom are vital to modern education.

The structure of the seminar impressed him, he said. The publishers and editors came from all parts of the country and their presentations were competent and fair.

"They recognized their own responsibility as part of the total educational force," he said.

H. C. Hunter, a public school inspector in Kingston, said the seminar impressed him by showing the opportunities for newspapers to carry on where textbooks leave off.

By using newspapers in the classrooms, students can develop skills to differentiate between factual reporting, interpretative writing, editorial comment and propaganda.

Bernard A. Hoy, separate school inspector in Kingston, said he was impressed by the fact that newspapers have a particular role to play in the classroom.

"Teachers who attended the seminar have been brought to a greater understanding of newspapers and their role in society," he said. "This is bound to make the classroom more challenging and meaningful to the students."

D. C. Willows, an assistant principal with the Edmonton public school board, said the seminar achieved its purpose in reinforcing the teachers' understanding in the use of newspapers.

Space Pilots

started your 100th (orbit). Our congratulations are extended to both of you from all the flight controllers throughout the world."

Cooper, who put in 22 orbits in a Mercury spacecraft two years ago, thanked the Rose Knot Victor, thought a moment, and said, "We just have 23 orbits to go, huh?"

It took Cooper some 34 hours to do the 22-orbits on that first flight and now all he had to do was fly the distance of that first mission again.

The wild tumbling—two turns a minute at times — that the Gemini 5 performed Friday diminished as the flight continued.

"We have very, very slow rates now," said Cooper. Not oscillating, just slowly drifting."

Early anxiousness about the future of their flight was becoming exhilaration and excitement over the homecoming.

Music began beaming spaceward from tracking network stations and Gemini control to break up the long astronaut day.

"Stand by for an important transmission," said flight director Christopher C. Kraft at Gemini control in Houston. Then through the hundreds of miles that separated them from their home base in Texas came the choral rendition: "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You.

Still conserving manoeuvring jet fuel, the astronauts continued to drift through the night—only using the jets to ease their tumbling motion when necessary.

Conrad was asked whether Cooper was doing any exercising.

"I hope to shout,". Conrad said gleefully. "He's upside down in the food box. We're trying to repack 'hem."

"As a matter of fact," he added, "we're up to our ears in garbage."

MINT CHURCHILL COIN

LONDON (AP)—A crown, the seldom-seen five - shilling coin (worth 75 cents) will be minted to commemorate Sir Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan announced. Crowns have recently been minted only for coronations or occasions such as the Festival of Britain.

Cannot Sell Peaches Below Delivered Cost

TORONTO (CP)—Power Supermarkets Ltd., which recently advertised baskets of peaches at prices below their delivered cost, said Friday the advertisement was a mistake resulting from ignorance of the law.

Ontario government regulations, passed in May to prohibit such advertising, aid peach growers who said demand for their product decreases when retailers use them as loss leaders.

John Sandham of Vineland, secretary of the Ontario Fresh Peach Growers Marketing Board, said in a prepared statement that the board feels the advertisement carried in Toronto newspapers was an error and not a deliberate challenge directed at the law.

He said prompt action by interested groups has averted legal action.

The ad in question, carried the week of Aug. 18, advertised baskets of peaches at 79 cents while the delivered cost was 83¾ cents.

UNAWARE OF LAW

Leon Weinsten, Power president, said the man responsible for the advertisement was unaware of the law.

Under the law, stores are allowed to sell peaches at any price, but not allowed to advertise them under the delivered price.

The board found that stores using peaches as loss leaders—products advertised at a loss to lead customers into the store—order smaller supplies of the product.

Such low prices then stop other stores from featuring the peaches because profits are reduced, Mr. Sandham said.

Cuba's Ambassador To U.K. Resigns Post

LONDON (AP)—Cuba's ambassador to Britain, Dr. Luis Ricardo Alonso Fernandez, today resigned his post in protest of Fidel Castro's dictatorship and promptly went into hiding.

Alonso, prominent in the resistance campaign that helped Castro oust the regime of Fulgencio Batista, announced his resignation in a letter to Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos.

He had been ambassador to London since 1963 and had held other diplomatic posts for Castro in Peru, Norway and Sweden.

His resignation, which he handed in translation to The Times, demands an end to totalitarianism, and insists that Cuba be declared neutral under United Nations guarantees.

The foreign office confirmed that Alonso had announced his intention to resign in a recent interview with a senior British government official.

Cuban embassy officials could not be reached for comment.

HINTS AT OTHERS

In his letter to Dorticos, Alonso hinted that this is more than a one-man protest.

"As I know that our government unfortunately rejects as illusory and hope of liberalization, and we, on the contrary consider it illusory that liberty will be achieved through a totalitarian constitution, I beg you to accept my resignation," he wrote.

A possible explanation for the "we" quickly became clear with an announcement in Miami by Gilberto Alemani, former head of the Cuban trade mission to Japan, that he too had quit and was asking for political asylum in the United States.

Alemani said:

"I eventually lost all faith in these men who were running Cuba's economy and sinking my people into despair and starvation."

Thirteen Die In Rail Crash

PARIS (Reuters) — Thirteen persons were killed and more than 20, including children, were injured when a Milan-to-Paris express crashed into a stationary train near Champagnole in eastern France early today.

Police said six of the injured were in serious condition.

It was believed there were no foreigners among the dead, but officials at one hospital said some of the injured were Italians living in France.

Morality Issue To Loom Large Says PC Head

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker predicts that public opinion will rise up against the Liberals' "messy" record on morality in government at the next election.

The Conservative leader, back from a five-day swing through Quebec's Eastern Townships, said Friday his party will wage a "positive campaign" but he made clear that the morality issue will loom large.

"There's an over-riding feeling among people from all the way across this country that never in a period of two and a half years has there been such a series of messes that have to be cleaned up.

"These things transcend party feelings," he told an impromptu press conference on his return from Knowlton, Que.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Prime Minister Pearson is "subject to the direction" of Keith Davey, national Liberal director, and several cabinet ministers who want an election in November before redistribution of constituencies can be completed.

PEOPLE 'FOOLED'

Asked whether he thought the coming campaign would be bitter, he replied:

"There's never been any bitterness on our side, but the chickens will come home to roost when people realize they have been fooled.

"For four years there has been directed against me a campaign unequalled since (Sir John A.) Macdonald.

"I never complained. I knew that sooner or later people would realize the falsity of the campaign that has been carried on."

He said Mr. Pearson's contention that an election with the new electoral mpa will not be possible until 1968 is a "sheer political invention."

Space Laboratory

With astronauts Cooper and Conrad nearing the end of their record-breaking saga in space, the world of the cosmos is about to witness a new assault in man's quest for knowledge and domination of the regions beyond earth.

The United States is planning to develop Manned Orbiting Laboratory to explore the possibility of using manned and unmanned satellites for military purposes.

Hitherto the emphasis has been on the peaceful aspect of space technology, but it now emerges more clearly that the military possibilities of the conquest of space have been very much in the forefront of the thinking of both the Americans and Russians.

It might be naive to suppose that neither side plans to use any such developments for aggressive purposes, yet it is obvious that the country possessing this kind of sophisticated space machinery would hold an immense advantage.

If handled in the proper light, in the interests of humanity, a space laboratory controlling other manned and unmanned satellites, could be a force for peace. Otherwise we may see the prophecies of H. G. Wells and others come true in the greatest collision of all, in a war of the worlds . . . in Armageddon.

Other Worlds?

Is this earth the only planet supporting life as we know it? Is it the only place where intelligent beings dwell? There are no certain answers to these questions, although some authorities believe the answer in each case is "No."

In last week's issue of Weekend Magazine, George Topp related the amazing story of Brantford-born skipper John Miller who in October 1955 set out from the island of Upolu in the South Pacific and disappeared without trace along with 24 passengers of his motor-cruiser Joyita, even though the vessel itself was subsequently discovered, 600 miles off course but otherwise undamaged.

"There was no trace of the passengers, not even a hastily scribbled note," wrote Topp "Even more amazing was the discovery on deck under a canvas awning, of all the passengers' personal belongings . . . To this day no bodies from the Joyita have been washed ashore nor have any of their clothes ever been found."

It is here that the story takes on a sinister aspect. Said Topp: "Dr. Robert Jessup, the flying-saucer expert, claims he knows what happened to the crew and passengers. He is convinced they were kidnapped by some mysterious spaceship that came from, and returned to, some distant planet."

From Santiago, Chile, comes evidence that Dr. Jessup's theories may not be so far-fetched People who have sighted strange objects in the sky recently may not be "seeing things," according to three scientists interviewed in Santiago.

"There is scientific evidence that strange objects visit our planet," said Professor Gabriel Alvinal.

Russia's Dr. Mitrovan Zverev, who works at the Cerro Calan Observatory in Chile, said: "Something unknown to our understanding is going around the earth."

And Professor Claudio Anguita, observatory director, said: "We are not alone in the universe."

That more is known on this subject than may be supposed by the public is evident in the statement of Dr. Zverev. "It is lamentable," he said, "that the governments have drawn a veil of secrecy around this."

Possibly the best authority on flying saucers and visitors from outer space is a book by George Adamski and Desmond Leslie in which the authors claim they saw a flying saucer land in the California desert. The book, as we recall, also showed a picture of what was purported to be a crew member of the saucer.

From a public point of view, the whole subject is shrouded in mystery. How much of the evidence so far released of sightings is fact and how much is fiction cannot be determined.

Last Journey

The Globe and Mail notes that the French navy is disposing of its last two Sunderland flying boats, the long-range aircraft which proved so effective on patrol work during the last war.

One is going to a museum and the other has been bought by a man who plans to convert it into a floating night club, with a band on the wings and tables filling the vast decks.

There must be very few Sunderlands left in service now. New Zealand used them extensively until recently, in fact may still be [illegible] them, but the government there is plan- [illegible] purchase a more modern type of long [illegible] aircraft.

The Sunderlands have often been used on mercy flights between New Zealand and the neighboring Chatham Islands as well as the more distant Cook Islands, when someone was in need of medical attention.

The fact that one of the French Sunderlands is going to a museum recalls last year's gift of another British-built aircraft, a Lancaster, by the French authorities in New Caledonia to New Zealand. The aircraft now rests at the Transport Museum in Auckland.

U.S. Victim Of Subsidies

Detroit Free Press

We're happy for our Canadian friends who have made a $450,000,000 wheat deal with the Russians, but to be honest, it chafes.

Here we are, the United States paying our farmers not to raise wheat and Canadian wheat growers are assured of a market for every bushel they can produce for the next 12 months.

Here we are worrying about the U.S. balance of payments while Canada must be setting some kind of record for a lopsided balance. It bought $2,800,000 worth of goods from Russia last year, mostly furs, and sold $315,900,000, mostly wheat.

Russia, you remember, tried to buy wheat from the United States in 1963. The offer died in a jangle of misplaced patriotism and misplaced commercialism.

First, some so-called patriots protested the sale, as if the struggle between democracy and communism might be won by denying the Russians bread. Or as if a hungry Russian might be more docile than one well-fed.

Then the maritime unions took a hand in making foreign policy. They boycotted ships bound for Russia until the government agreed that at least half the wheat would be shipped in American bottoms.

The unions priced themselves out of the market. The shipping cost on American ships is double that of foreign vessels. The Russians said "no sale" and went to Canada where the maritime unions don't make foreign policy.

The United States is a victim of its subsidies.

The subsidy to American ship builders and operators—which has succeeded only in promoting efficiency and has left us with a fifth-rate merchant marine—kept us from selling out subsidized wheat.

But did we learn anything? No.

Our subsidized wheat producers are still being paid not to grow wheat while the wheat they do grow fills overstuffed storage bins.

The commercial race goes to the swift and the efficient. That is the free enterprise system that we've taught to other nations. Now we need to learn a lesson ourselves from Canada.

Corridor Road

Fredericton Gleaner

A meeting at Augusta of highway officials of Maine, New Brunswick and Quebec was one of the essential preliminaries in the implementation of the Corridor Road.

Five possible routings for the road were discussed. At a later meeting this fall further engineering and public opinion data will be available.

The green light must be flashed by both Ottawa and Washington before the Corridor Road becomes a reality.

Maine will reap the immediate benefits of its construction, but its long term effect will be the breaking of the communications bottleneck that has so long bedevilled the Maritimes in their bid to enter and compete in the markets of Central Canada.

Mayor Jones of Moncton says he would oppose a Corridor Road across Maine to Quebec if it were in any way detrimental to Moncton.

The answer is that not only would the Corridor Road not be detrimental to Moncton but it would help Moncton measurably. It would make the distance from Moncton to Montreal a hundred miles shorter.

'Plateaus' While Dieting Are No Cause for Concern

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please discuss plateaus that occur while dieting. Hitting them has been my bugaboo after losing about 30 pounds. Sometimes I will go several weeks before an additional loss. —R. M. V.

Most reducing, probably all reducing, involves these plateaus. You don't lose weight consistently or in a straight line.

In the beginning, the losses, the plateaus, are close together and you don't notice the pattern. Later you do.

Why does this happen? Well, as you use up excess fat you also lose the amount of water which is bound to the fat cells. During the process water is produced by the "burning" or consumption of the fat. So you have additional water to get out of your system.

The "crash diet," which is supposed to shed so many pounds in a week or two, prohibits salt, since it tends to hold water. You lose water rapidly when you give up salt. Hence the quickie diet seems to work like a charm for a short time — until you've gotten rid of excess fluid in your system. After that it suddenly doesn't work as well, and besides, when you go back to normal eating, you go back to salt too, and you regain the large amount of water and the very little bit of real weight that you lost.

When you stick with a low-calorie diet, after a time you use up excess fat (or some of it, anyway). You don't have as much flesh that has to be nourished and kept warm. So, actually, you need a somewhat different caloric intake — not quite as much.

If you are still overweight, when you hit these plateaus, you can keep on losing.

All of the foregoing factors are among the reasons why I take a dim view of 'crash diets' but I have seen very excellent results from slow, sane and comfortable reducing programs.

Dear Dr. Molner: Three years ago I had an operation with some severe aftereffects, one of them being a blood clot. I am now scheduled to have a stapedectomy to restore my hearing, but in view of the possibility of another blood clot, should I risk such surgery? — B. E.

This is entirely different type of operation, virtually bloodless and hence with no involvement of circulation. There should be no risk of a clot, and I don't think you have cause to worry.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband should lessen his cholesterol intake. What do you suggest. — Mrs. F. G. T.

If he is going to make any progress he must decrease the amount of foods which tend to from cholesterol — saturated (animal) fats, chiefly, and to some extent carbohydrates.

Your doctor can suggest effective medications, but proper diet and a reasonable amount of exercise are the principal, most sensible and most effective ways.

Fat! My leaflet, "The Lost Secret of Reducing," tells how to get rid of it the easy way. For your copy, write to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. William Lyon Mackenzie, Toronto's first mayor and the leader in Upper Canada of the rebellion of 1837—died 104 years ago today—in 1861—aged 66. He was a sworn foe of the Family Compact of oligarchical settlers, though not an advocate of independent democratic government. After three years' service in the legislature of Upper Canada he was expelled for a breach of privilege and not allowed to resume his seat although his constituents re-elected him five times. He returned to Canada after the rebellion under the amnesty of 1849 and returned to politics, but retired after a few years.

Ottawa—One Of the Best

Ottawa Journal

When Premier Joseph R. Smallwood of Newfoundland got up to speak at the dinner officially opening the Central Canada Exhibition, his audience settled themselves firmly in their seats and awaited the fireworks. The speaker was, after all, a man with the name o fa fighter, with a tongue like a whip, whose motto, as Mayor Reid said introducing him, might be, "what is mine I keep and heaven help anybody who tries to take it away."

But Mr. Smallwood was setting off no fireworks that evening. He dwelt at length on the beauties of Ottawa, a city that, to him, was one of the four or five most beautiful capitals in the world. If this sounded at first like a man from St. John's saying kind things to some people from Ottawa about their city, it soon took on a note of pride of possession, the boast of a Canadian's pride in his capital.

"This must be the capital of every Canadian . . . Let this be the one city where we are all at home."

Canada might be having its troubles, but he wanted to know what country would we trade it for? He suggested a few but found each of them wanting. So troubles or no, Canada, which, as he reminded his mainland Canadian listeners, he had fought so hard to join just 16 years ago, was a "great and lovely land" to be held onto and held together.

For a cheerful occasion, the opening of a fair, it was an unusually gentle "Joey." But beneath the gentle touch there was the pressure from a "new Canadian," as he called himself, urging Canadians new and old to apply to their country the motto that had been suggested as his, and hold what they have.

Press' Link With Politics

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

Senator Philip Hart of Michigan says "politics and the press are joined in an irrevocable and stormy marriage that alternates between admiration and contempt."

This is a colorful comparison but it may not suit all the people on both sides of the contract. Some may regard it as a marriage of convenience The press will suspect that the politicians feel this is the case The policitians, for their part, may look on it as a shotgun wedding.

Still others will regard it as a continuing courtship which can never result in matrimony because the two parties have more that divides than units them.

Assuming that the privilege of mutual criticism, even down to the nitpicking level, is a necessity for this kind of an alliance then the two are well and truly married.

This may explain why they regard themselves as adversaries upon occasion. The course of true love, the poets say, never did run smoothly.

It remains a verity, though, that if the time ever arises when either party to the arrangement is unable to speak its mind the hour for divorce will have struck.

Two Ways of Looking At Public Relations

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—National politics have been separating the Public Relations men from the boys.

Back only a few elections ago, perhaps not more than three, when the professional Public Relations experts first moved openly, even a bit boastfully, into the political arena, the idea was the "hard sell".

A political leader, said these PR types, must be properly "packaged" as if he were a bar of soap, a carton of cigarettes, a tube of toothpaste or a can of soup before he could be "sold" on the "market" of public opinion.

These brash, bright-eyed geniuses, then relatively new to the political field, quickly discovered that by far the most difficult of all public relations practice is in national politics.

The techniques of reaching the public are little different, and the uses of mass communications are the same, but the whole approach to this trickiest of all "markets," that of public opinion, had to be changed.

In commercial or industrial public relations, once the management accepts the necessity of making its policy decisions with its public "image" in mind the PR staff can usually chart the course of opinion - making.

In political public relations, they found, it is the Party leader who must himself be the expert, the one who decides which policies will be most acceptable to the voters.

THE ESSENCE

The big difference between political and commercial public relations is controversy.

In selling toothpaste or soap, it has no place. For offence to any, even a small section of the public must be avoided, as all segments are buyers or potential customers and the whole object of the enterprise is to sell to the entire nation.

In political public relations, it is just not possible to aim at every last voter, for controversy is the very essence of electioneering.

The commercial or industrial PR has some idea of how he is doing. Sales charts guide him. Profits or losses, too. Each day or week his organization continues to get hard evidence of how it is doing and what part its PR program is playing, in its success or lack of it.

The political Public Relations adviser may only just by possibilities, or if he is lucky probabilities, and with so many imponderables to calculate, never knows just how, for certain, he may be doing until either the roof falls in or the celebration starts as election night wears into morning.

About his only guide is the polls. And they are only direction signals. And on them few hard decisions are taken.

There is nothing that can take the place of the political leader's own personal radar, his instinct for sensing how things are going.

He can, and does get all kinds of advice — from his PR staff as well as just about about everybody else — but in the end he must make the hard decisions. Like the bush pilots of yesteryear, he has to fly by the seat of his pants.

HIS OWN MAN

His alone are the shots to call. He has to decide which men to place in positions of power. He has to assess the quality of the men with whom he surrounds himself. And only he — if he is going to come out the winner — can determine the campaign issues.

Prime Minister Pearson is the Government's top PR man.

His the decisions on the issues and the timing of a campaign.

His to decide whether, when and how to respond to the attacks of Conservative Leader Diefenbaker.

He decides what policies, promises, actions may hurt or help at the polls.

And he is, because he must be, his own PR man.

To a large extent his success or failure on election day will depend on his ability to handle the enormously complicated responsibility of political public relations.

For while the public usually is too busy at earning a living, paying taxes, worrying about the cost of living and the day to day problems of family and home to pay close attention . . . it usually finally does catch up with the incompetent or less-than-honest politician and the Government that puts its own interests ahead of those of the voters.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

August 28th, 1945

The stout lady with the New England accent bustled into the Front Street shoe store. "What a relief," she wheezed as she lowered herself into the salesman's chair.

Airing the fact that she was an American, she wanted to see Canadian shoes. The salesman inwardly gasped when she turned down the expensive leather footwear, and asked for "casuals" those things of canvas with no toes, and a couple of straps generously garnished with pieces of wood for heels.

She was satisfied. So was the manager. She bought three pairs of oversize summer footwear, because she couldn't get her size in the good old U.S.A. There was no complaint from the management for the shoes were too large for local demand.

A survery today revealed that American business along boot and shoe lines here is nothing out of the ordinary. Around the fourth of July, when more than the usual numbers were here, there was a flurry, but apart from that and the occasional weekend, Yankee dollars jingling in local shoe store cash registers are nothing about which to write to head office.

PRICELESS ART — This is a 17th century Gobelin tapestry which hangs in the grand salon of the French embassy in Ottawa. A product of a factory founded in 1776 by the Gobelin family in Paris, it depicts the triumphs of Constantine the Great (288-337), the first Christian emperor of Rome. Its value can not be estimated. A tour of the embassy is an exciting experience for anyone with an eye for art. (CP Photo).

Greek House Moves Closer To Vote

From AP-Reuters

ATHENS (AP) — Parliament moved closer to a confidence vote on Premier Elias Tsirimokos today, and it appeared that his week-old government would fall.

As Tsirimokos prepared to summarize his program before the assembly, he could count on only 134 votes in the 300-seat house—17 short of a majority. The vote could come today or Monday.

The premier was sure of 99 votes from the rightist National Radical Union and 35 from the Centre Union deputies who broke away from former premier George Papandreou.

But the balance of the 300-seat assembly is so fine that the declared opposition of the eight - member Progressive party is expected to tip the scales against him.

A government defeat in the vote would be a damaging blow to 25-year-old King Constantine who has twice tried to set up a stable regime since his clash with Papandreou who resigned under pressure July 15.

Papandreou walked out after a dispute with the king over a planned government purge of right wing army officers.

French Embassy Ships Adam and Eve to Shed

By BENOIT HOULE

OTTAWA (CP)—For the sake of visiting priests, the French embassy long ago banished Adam and Eve to a backyard shed.

Now, about the most daring works in this treasure-house of art are frescos showing young swimmers in costumes of the 1930s, and even they can be quickly veiled by long curtains.

But a tour of the imposing grey stone building overlooking the Ottawa River is nevertheless an exciting experience for anyone with an eye for art.

Some of it is priceless, some of it humorous, and it all goes to make the building one of the most handsome and spacious of all French embassies.

Most noteworthy are a 17th century Gobelin tapestry and a 100-year-old Savonnerie carpet, both in the grand salon. The tapestry, a product of the factory founded in 1776 by the Gobelin family in Paris, depicts the triumphs of Constantine the Great (288-377), the first Christian emperor of Rome.

The carpet was made for the Duchess de Berry's reception hall in the Tuileries Palace. The de Berry coat of arms forms the centre design.

GONE FOR GOOD

A wall of the grand salon was once graced by Adam and Eve "clothed in their prelapsarian state," says press attache Paul Blanc. But because it might scandalize some visiting ecclesiastics, the offending tableau was removed on orders of the wife of 1949-55 ambassador Hubert Guerin.

"Unfortunately, Adam and Eve today are resting on a very hard bed in a shed in the embassy backyard, and there is little hope of them returning to their former eminence," Mr. Blanc says.

The frescos in the dining room date from the pre-war period. The young swimmers aren't offensive but their costumes do look a bit ridiculous in the light of modern fashions One of the six ambassadors who have occupied the mansion disliked them so much that he kept them covered.

The foundation stone of the embassy was laid in 1936 by Mackenzie King and the building, of granite and wood from Canada and hewn stone and marble from France, was officially opened Jan. 4, 1939.

Diplomatic representation at the time was at the legation level since Canada had not yet exchanged ambassadors with other countries, and it was not until 1944, when Count Jean de Hauteclocque came to Canada, that it became an official embassy.

HELPED BY CANADIANS

Plans were drawn by Eugene Baudouin, a Parisian who specialized in civic buildings. He supervised work on the building with the help of such Canadian architects as Antoine Monette and Marcel Parizeau of Montreal.

The magnificent bronze double doors leading to the grand salon were engraved by engraver Robert Cami with four medallions bearing the themes of remembrance, family, work and faith.

To the left of the Gobelin tapestry, sculptor Louis Leygues has reproduced on the wall the forces that contributed to Constantine's victory — faith, symbolizedby the patriarch Abraham, strength represented by Sampson, perseverence by Joshua and courage by David.

On the right, the outcome of Constantine's victory is illustrated—the arts as represented by Apollo and the Muses, the prosperity of the grand siecle in the form of a centaur embracing a cornucopia spilling fruit and flowers.

The grand salon is surrounded by smaller reception rooms. The walls of the salon rond are decorated with three terracotta panels on which sculptor Bizette Lindet has reproduced such famous French figures as Louis IX, Joan of Arc and Roland, the brave chevalier of Charlemagne's army.

WALLS PANELLED

The walls of the salon de bouleau are entirely covered with birchbark and red cedar wainscotting, and when the room has been shut for a few days it fills with the scent of bark.

This salon leads directly to the ambassador's office, occupied since March by Francois Leduc.

The polished stone looks like marble but is soft and yields easily to the engraver's art. Charles Pinson has covered it with a multitude of scenes drawn from the history of New France.

There are Indian dances, French pioneers landing in the New World, a scene from the court of Louis IV recalling the voyages of Cartier and Champlain, young Frenchwomen arriving to marry colonists, La Verendrye and La Salle on their voyages of exploration, and a view of Quebec City.

In a panel personifying the folklore of French Canada, Pinson has used the faces of people he knew.

One of the humorous scenes shows a boatload of monks and nuns being tossed about by the waves—the sisters rowing while the fathers pray and meditate.

In the fall of 1948 four modern tapestries, the work of French artist Marcel Gromaire, were added. The motif is the four seasons. Spring and summer adorn the upper floors while fall and winter themes decorate the foyer.

URGES SUPPORT

PC Chief

near Edmonton to a Ukrainian-Canadian picnic.

He flayed Prime Minister Pearson as frightened to go before Parliament this fall to answer for the things turned up in the Dorion judicial inquiry into bribery and coercion charges.

He called the minority government "banana-spined" and blamed it for disunity, suspicion and unrest unprecedented in Canadian history.

He acknowledged his party had experienced internal troubles since the election setbacks of 1962 and 1963. He told one audience here his aim was to bring the various elements of the party together.

He never directly referred to his former Quebec lieutenant, Leon Balcer, MP for Trois-Rivieres, quitting the party earlier this year to sit as an independent with another of the eight Conservatives elected in 1963.

But he referred often to the issue which brought the final break with his former transport minister — the Favreau-Fulton constitutional amending formula, which he opposed and Mr. Balcer supported.

GAINS SUPPORT

"I've been pictured as the great enemy of this province because I dared to say this formula would place our children for generations in a straitjacket. Now all over this nation people are beginning to say the stand we took was the right stand."

Virtually every time he spoke—and he delivered 11 speeches apart from press conferences and informal chats—he emphasized the need for Canadians to move toward "the preservation of his nation in strength, unity and amity."

Generally he remained in Conservative territory—St. Hyacinthe-Bagot, Nicolet - Yamaska and Brome - Missisquoi ridings. He swung briefly into Liberal - held Stanstead and Drumond - Arthabaska and Creditiste-held Shefford.

STATES FARM POLICY

Since his audiences were mainly rural, he hammered repeatedly at his party's farm policy—remove the 11 - per - cent sales tax on building materials and production machinery, give the dairy farmer a price as close as possible to $4 a hundredweight, establish an eastern feed grain agency to market western feeds at "reasonable" prices, federal grants to build farm training schools and acreage payments for eastern farmers similar to those paid western farmers.

His tour began and continued amid speculation of a fall election being called. He made it plain he thinks one would be wrong and that Mr. Pearson is alibiing because he fears Parliament in arguing that redistribution rules out an election in 1966.

Regardless of whether Mr. Pearson calls an election, Mr. Diefenbaker hinted that he's planning another of his election-style visits to Quebec.

"I look forward to going elsewhere in this province as soon as possible."

Political Party Officials Prepared for Fall Vote

TORONTO (CP)—Officials of all three major political parties in Metropolitan Toronto say they are prepared for a fall election, and even the Communist party has announced it is ready for action and plans to contest several ridings.

"We're in a state of No. 2 alert," Ron Fairclough, Liberal party organizer in Metropolitan Toronto, said in an interview Thursday.

"We're ready to roll at any instant."

Progressive Conservative, Liberal and New Democratic parties say they have made up campaign signs and planned pamphlets.

Communist party national leader William Kashtan said the party has not yet chosen the ridings or candidates it will contest, but "we could be campaigning in a matter of days."

HOLD ALL BUT TWO

The Liberals hold 17 of the 19 metropolitan area ridings. In one of the two they don't hold, Greenwood, held by the NDP's Andrew Brewin, a candidate has already been nominated. In the second riding, Danforth represented by Reid Scott of the NDP, no Liberal or PC candidates have been nominated yet.

The Progressive Conservatives have nominated candidates in four Toronto ridings and 16 across Ontario. However, party officials say nominations can be cleaned up quickly if an election is called.

Liberal and PC officials say they have enough money to mount a campaign and Stephen Lewis of the NDP said party finances are in good shape. He is a member of the Ontario legislature for Scarborough-West.

He said the NDP will raise and spend more money on the next election in Toronto than in the past. The party has nominated nine candidates.

Saskatchewan Home-owners Given Grants

MOOSE JAW (CP) — Every Saskatchewan home owner may get a provincial government grant of more than $100 within the next five or 10 years, Premier Ross Thatcher said Thursday.

Mr. Thatcher made the statement at a press conference followed a major policy speech in which he announced a $50 annual grant to home - owners starting next year. He described the grant as an effort to reduce the tax burden on property owners.

He said the $50 amount, an "initial figure," will be provided in the budget next spring and made retroactive to Jan. 1, 1966.

In his speech Premier Thatcher estimated the original cost of the scheme at from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 a year.

Expect 100,000 Color TV Sets in Canada by 1970

TORONTO (CP)—By 1970, if predictions hold true, Canadians will own more than 100,000 color television sets, creating a $50,000,000 industry and 7,000 new jobs.

The industry bases its optimism on the federal government's decision to permit Canadian-produced color TV shows starting Jan. 1, 1967; and the decision of United States networks to substantially increase color telecasting during prime evening hours, starting this fall.

To cope with the expansion, Canada's 11 TV manufacturing companies are enlarging their assembly lines.

There now are an estimated 10,000 color sets in Canada, industry economists say.

The industry is selling about 500,000 black-and-white sets a year, compared to a high of 776,538 in 1955.

Spokesman are enthusiastic about color TV markets, although color sets are priced much higher than black-and-white sets. A 21-inch color set retails in the $690 to $850 bracket. A 23-to-24 - inch set costs upwards of $1,000.

Carl Whittaker of Montreal, head of the Electronic Industries Association which represents most Canadian television manufacturers, is meeting here today to debate whether it should ask Ottawa to advance the color introduction date in Canada to September, 1966. Mr. Whittaker said manufacturers are anxious to obtain a fall date so that color TV's debut will coincide with the start of a new manufacturing and broadcasting season.

If the government refuses to back down on the inaugural date, manufacturers say it will be too late to produce Canadian color telecasts of Canada's centennial celebrations in 1967.

The centennial events will "only be seen in color on U.S. stations," says Carl A. Pollock, president of Dominion Electrohome Industries of Kitchener.

Mom Changes Men Weekly, Dad Wants Son Returned

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS: I was married to my wife for 16 years and she had three healthy sons. I loved that woman with all my heart. There isn't a thing I wouldn't do for her. Then she had a serious operation. After that nothing seemed to matter to her any more. She was drinking heavily and just blowing every penny away. It shattered my nerves so much I was always on edge.

Before long she left home with one son, leaving me with two. Since then she has lived with one man after the other. It has been two years now and it has taken me through h—— to get over it all.

Now my problem is this: I was paying through the courts for this boy but when she suddenly left this province they did not know where to send the money to, so told me to retain it. After two months she suddenly writes in and says that she wants the back payments. Can she do this? Could I sue for a divorce?

The boy does not want to stay with this man and has written to me on many occasions to come after him and bring him home. Please tell me what to do. He is 12 years old.—UP AGAINST A STUMP.

DEAR UP AGAINST: How a woman can do such things stumps me too. But what did the court action provide? Were you at fault for something like physical abuse when you were "always on edge"?

When it comes to child welfare, our agencies get in touch, even from one province to another. And a judge is likely to be greatly concerned over a mother whose morals seem to be non-existent.

Cases differ. Your advice should come from someone who knows your case. I'd say you have grounds for divorce.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: My daughter is going to B—— to be interviewed for an air line hostess. Could you give her advice on what to do and the clothes she should wear?—SANDY'S MOM.

DEAR MOM: What to do: Take any previous job references. Take school record. Show serious interest in the actual work; be eager. Don't ask first of all about time off, pay, benefits. Who wants to hire someone whose first thought is about how little they can work and how much they can get out of it?

Have her take along the names and addresses of people of good repute who would furnish a character reference.

What to wear: A clean, pressed business suit or street dress; neat hair, topped by a hat. Clean, polished nails. Spanking clean gloves and shoes. Modest make-up. A smile. Best wishes to her.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I am a 16-year-old boy and have been going with a very nice 13-year-old girl for eight months. The last thing I would ever want to do would be to hurt her. I have decided she is a little bit too young for me, and am inclined to feel that I am holding her back from other boys she might be attracted to.

I made a terrible mistake by telling this to a friend. He has spread this around and it has finally got to my girl friend. She was very hurt and finally asked me about it. I told her I had said these things. I know she is deeply hurt.

Should I tell her I want to go back with her and forget about everything?—CONCERNED.

DEAR CONCERNED: Oh dear no. Deciding to break off was good sense; the way you let your little friend get the message was the big mistake. Perhaps one more talk with her, to explain things and part good friends, is indicated.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I drink skim milk all the time. Do you think this contributes to making a person fat? — DOLLY.

DEAR DOLLY — Aside from the fact that eating anything at all contributes to the size you are, and the more you eat the larger you are apt to get, the answer is no.

Skim milk is an excellent food for dieters, because it provides needed protein without any fat. Fat in food is most easily turned into fat in people; so the reducers avoid foods with high fat content like the plague, while reaching for lean proteins (skim milk, cottage cheese, lean meats) as lifesavers.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Bunny, who is 18, came to live with us when her father remarried to a domineering woman for whom she could do nothing right. We took her for the summer, which turned into the school year, and her father gave us $50 monthly for her room and board. We asked no financial help for the summer months, although we could have used it.

As soon as the school term was out he stopped sending her support, although she stays with us until she enters nursing in September. This really rankles with me. I am tempted to send a letter but would like your opinion first.

Bunny is easier to handle than most girls her age. Perhaps she is grateful to be away from so much unhappiness. — THANKS FOR LISTENING.

DEAR THANKS — Write him by all means. He got away with no pay last summer — so why shouldn't this uninterested father try the same thing again? Incidentally, a lawyer's letter might get action!

* * *

Confidential to A.G. — Usually such bumps are a sign you are lacking certain vitamins. We have already discussed this condition in the column. For a fuller, private reply, write in again, this time giving me something more than a couple of initials to reply to.

Italy's Palladian Country Rich With Castles, Villas

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

VICENZA, Italy — As the power of the Venetian Empire began to wane in the sixteenth century and the dangers of invasion became imminent, Venice's merchant-nobles cast their eyes westward to the relative safety of the rolling farmlands of Vicenza Province and the Veneto, in the pre-Alps.

Throughout the area, around Padua, Vicenza and Verona, they found and rebuilt castles that were already ancient when they arrived. Turning to gentleman farming, they hired Venice's greatest architects, sculptors and painters — Marinalli, Tintoretto, Tiepolo — to build and decorate patrician villas, and revitalize the long dormant cities and villages where they would now live.

A rich new era of Italian art was born, flowered. Throughout the area, more than 100 of these Renaissance and neo-Classical villas remain, the greatest such concentration of architecture in Italy. More than half of them were designed or inspired by the romantic genius who came to be known as Palladio, and who gave to the area its nickname of Palladia.

WAS STONE MASON

Palladio was born Andrea di Pietro in 1508 in Padua, where he likely was inspired by the fourteenth century Giotto frescoes covering every inch of the walls and ceiling of the Scrovegni Chapel. Di Pietro worked as a stone mason until his talent was appreciated and patronized by a wealthy humanist named Trissino, who renamed him after the Greek goddess of art in honor of his unprecedented revival of Classical style.

It is no coincidence that countless porticoed and columned plantation houses in America look like Palladio's villas; he incorporated Classic with Renaissance, created the Romantic school of architecture.

The villa that inspired Jefferson's design for Monticello is one of dozens Palladio designs in Vicenza. The statuary, as inevitable as pagoda roofs in China, is pure Veneto. But the skylighted dome and the square shape with the four columned porticoes are unmistakably Monticello — and Palladio.

Vicenza's graceful Piazza dei Signori, its central square and miniature St. Mark's, are Palladio's. So are the majestic arcades of the Chiericati Palace, the imposing basilica, the austere loggias of the Hall of the Four Hundred. But his most fantastic work is the city's Olympic Theater, which saddened Lord Byron because it wasn't in England.

The Olympic Theatre, completed in 1583, was the first enclosed theatre with permanent stage set ever built. The amphitheatre-auditorium is completely of marble; the proscenium and the seats are lined with an abundance of Greek statuary. The famed permanent setting, supposed to be Thebes, is three-dimensional wood and plaster, retreating from the stage in diminishing perspective, an art far ahead of its time.

IMPORTANT LINK

The theatre was built for a local dramatic academy which is still in existence. It presents — often only with candles and spotlight — everything from Moliere to Shakespeare, with Thebes as a remarkably versatile backdrop. The theatre is considered the most important link between Greek and modern dramatic presentation.

There are 27 national monuments in Vicenza, some of them seven centuries old. Among them is the home of Pigafetta, last survivor of Magellan's round-the-world captains, and author of the navigator's report. The campanile bell tower in the central square is similar to the others gracing the Veneto countryside, but noted for its slender, tapering 250-foot height resting on only a 20 - foot base.

Among the more than 100 villas scattered through the Veneto countryside, the Villa Al Nani is famed for its well-top dwarfs —copies of which rest on lawns from Connecticut to California — and its rooms frescoed by Tiepolo, last of the great fresco painters. The rear of the house has sweeping views over the aptly-named Valley of Silence, and its cypresses, olive groves and vineyards.

Equally scenic is the setting of the Villa Grimani-Maricello in Montegalda, south of Vicenza. It is an authentic 12th century castle, complete with working drawbridge, its walks and statuary-filled gardens lined with stands of cypress. Its collection of armor includes World War I helmets and a World War II bazooka.

Villa Lampertico, called La Deliziosa, in neighboring Montegaldella, has a fine garden collection of Marinalli sculpture in Venetian carnival masks.

The most romantic of the castles known as Romeo and Juliet are in Montecchio Maggiore, west of Vicenza in the Cordellina Lombardi; one of the strategic positions overlooking the Agno Valley and commanding the approach to the Brenner Pass.

ROMANTIC PRETZELS

Montecchio is Italian for Montague. And for all anyone knows one of the tunnel-linked castles may be the one the servant said Juliet was at when Shakespeare's Romeo came banging on the door in the middle of the night in the second act. (The original Romeo and Juliet story was written in 1507 by a Vicenzan, Luigi de Porto.) The Juliet Castle today houses a romantic restaurant which serves pretzels in the form of linked hearts.

North of Vicenza lie the quiet and ancient Venetian Empire towns of Marostica and Bassano. Marostica rests within thick ivy-covered Medieval city gates. Each September its town square is the scene of a colorful pageant involving a chess game with living figures in Medieval costumes, the moves accompanied by trumpet flourishes and stylized military gestures.

The outcome is different every year, but it always leaks out in advance.

Behind the square, like a scene from a Medieval painting, rises an arched ridge with the outline of the mile-and-a-half long turrets and parapets of the ancient city wall.

Bassano is famed for its unique covered wooden bridge designed by Palladio. It was destroyed in the Napoleonic, First and Second World Wars, and lovingly rebuilt each time. The bridge rests on inverted triangle beams supported by great shafts of pilasters sunk into the Brenta River.

It is a peaceful and timeless country, this land of Palladio, near enough but immeasurably far from the industrial bustle of northern Italy, and a quiet break from the tourist clamor of Venice. The merchant nobles must have seen it coming.

Canadian Sisters in Laos Doing Remarkable Job

By ELIZABETH TROTT

VIENTIANE, Laos (CP) — "You've come at a good time," said Keith MacLellan of Ottawa when I dropped into the Indochina truce commission office to inquire about Canadians working in Laos.

"I'm just on my way to visit a group of Canadians who are doing a remarkable job here," the commissioner said. "Would you care to come along?"

With other commission officers we drove along the muddy streets of Vientiane as far as car could go, then threaded our way on foot down narrow valleys until we came to the two-storey building that houses the Institut Oblates Missionaires de Marie Immaculee.

The Roman Catholic lay institute, founded by Rev. Louis Marie Parent, OMI, of Trois-Rivieres, Que., in 1952, has been operating in Laos for eight years.

Two days before our visit a rocket had exploded 20 yards away, killing five persons. No one knew what agency was responsible, or who the target was. But if it had been intended to intimidate the young Canadians it failed.

There were four young women at the headquarters when we got there—Annette Trudeau of St. Johns, Que., the director; Jeanne Rousson of Timmins, Ont.; Emilie Lafontaine of Bois Franc, Que., and Cecile Fortin of Shawinigan, Que

LAOTIAN-STYLE DRESS

All were dressed in a discreet version of Laotian costume—spotless white blouses, loose grey skirts. They went barefoot and wore their hair drawn tightly back in a knot.

The fair-haired director explained that they emphasize simplicity of dress so as not to attract the wrong kind of attention.

She added that, although the order accepts women as young as 18, it does not consider it wise to send any one under 25 to arduous service in a country such as Laos.

It was explained that one of the functions of the institute is to teach the women of Laos, not only reading, writing and matters of religion, but also better household management and hygiene.

Some of the members are domestic science graduates, others are nurses who dispense medicine and on occasion serve as midwives or dentists and even perform minor surgical operations.

Because of the customs of the people, it is difficult for a priest to talk to women or children. Only a woman has access here and she must be a woman regarded by the Laotians more or less as one of themselves. For this reason, it is felt that lay missionaries can operate more effectively than nuns.

LEARN LANGUAGE

Director Trudeau said it takes the novice at least a year to acquire a working knowledge of the language and for the first year the newcomers live, work and study together in the Vientiane headquarters.

Without heat, light or running water, the roomy structure at least has the merit of airiness—the breezes blow freely through the thin bamboo walls. Here, too, there is plenty of companionship of the kind they will miss in later months.

When ready, the women are sent out, alone or in pairs, to outlying posts. There they not only carry on their work of teaching and caring for the sick but also train young Laotian girls to do similar work in the mountain villages to which they alone have access.

"We teach these Laotian girls as much as we can so that they will be able to teach the Laotian women themselves," said Miss Trudeau. "We also have a special course for midwives."

There are 12 women in Director Trudeau's band First to arrive in Vientiane was Yolande Foley of Portneuf, Que., who has been in charge of a lonely station at Nong Pene for four years.

Others include Carmen Chapdelaine and Anne Bedard, both of Sherbrooke, Que., Elise Belanger of Anse Pleureuse, Que., Bernadette Letendre of Megantic, Que., Jeannine Marleau of Annonciation, Que., and Therese Senecal and Carmelle Gendron of St. Johns.

Two are at Paksane, one at Kung Sadok and two in the mountains.

Following the fivefold rule of the Oblates, they teach primary school, household management, act as social workers, instruct their young charges in religion and look after the sick.

They have little to say about the tribulations of their work, preferring to talk with faces aglow of the rewards—the trust and affection of the young.

Every five years they may return home for a visit, then they come back to the heat, the flies, the humidity and to the welcome of the Laotians who have come to trust them.

Church Moves Very Slowly Says Sister

VICTORIA (CP) — Mother Cecilia Mary believes her dispute with the Roman Catholic Church over running an animal shelter will lie quiet for a few months.

"But it will flare up again," she said in an interview Friday.

Mother Cecilia, 76, believes the dispute has reached an impasse—the church ordering the nuns to leave the shelter and the nuns refusing.

Faced with a church edict to return to a normal religious life or become a lay person, Sister Cecilia said:

"I can't do anything else but carry on at the shelter."

She didn't "think there was any time limit" to the edict—"the Roman Catholic Church moves very slowly."

The English-born nun who has been running the Good Shepherd Shelter about five years has already weathered one church deadline.

That was last May 4 when the shelter was ordered abandoned.

"They (the church) have no authority to close the shelter," said Mother Cecilia. "They don't own the property.

"I'm not terribly worried about it either."

She termed the edict as "just a threat I think."

Club Activities

The Milltown Birthday Club held their card party at the home of Leona Hinchey. The prizes went to first: Lillian Bennet; second, Grace Merry; consolation, Lena Fitzgerald and lone hand, Olive Vance.

The next party to be held at the new home of the former Beverly Kilpatrick who is now Mrs. Allan Gough and residing in Odessa.

TOO FEW HOME EXPERTS

MONTREAL (CP) — Increasing university enrolments have not ended the shortage of home economics specialists in Canada, reports the Canadian Home Economics Association. A total of 1,913 students in the subject, 300 more than the year before, were registered in 1964-65.

Women's Institutes

BONARLAW W.I.

BONARLAW — The Bonarlaw Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Cyril McKeown on Wednesday afternoon when 14 were in attendance.

The president, Mrs. M. Cassidy, presided and a discussion followed on the subject, "My pet beef about education." Mrs. W. J. Barlow read the minutes of the last regular meeting and gave the report of a recent bake sale which proved to be most profitable. It was noted that cards had been sent to two members.

Mrs. McKeown was thanked for opening her home for the meeting and congratulations were extended to Mrs. Everett Heath who celebrated her 56th wedding anniversary on Aug. 25.

Mrs. Ward McInroy and Mrs. W. J. Barlow, the conveners for education, provided the program. Mrs. McInroy read a splendid paper on the topic, "Education means developing the mind—not stuffing the memory." The item was prepared by Mrs. A. V. Brown who was unavoidably absent. Mrs. Barlow gave a humorous reading and Mrs. McInroy read an interesting paper, after which a contest was conducted followed by the serving of lunch.

The September meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. John McKeown on September 29, based on health.

Hair Designers Attend Course At Georgtown

That's the agenda for 22 hair designers from Canada, Mexico and the United States attending special classes in hair styling at a ranch near this town 20 miles west of Toronto.

A Toronto school of hair style designing is sponsoring the classes which include lectures in the helmet hair style and the fringe look. The school started Aug. 23 and will conclude Monday.

Guest lecturer is Raphael, 30-year-old stylist from London and former bullfighter. At the age of 15, he left the bull ring with an impressive record of 42 kills and turned to the finer art of hair styling.

Raphael conducts demonstrations each day in different methods of cutting and shaping hair, with special emphasis on the popular V-cut, considered to be his trademark.

And the horses?

Pakistan Bride 3,000 Miles Away As Wedding Ceremony Performed

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—It's not usual to start shouting at your bride until after the wedding ceremony.

Nor is the bride usually 3,000 miles away during the service. But that was the situation here today as Shuja Butt married Parveen Butt.

Shuja, 29-year-old biology teacher at Sacred Heart High School in nearby Walkerton, participated in the cermony via tlephone from his home here to his parents' home in Lahore, Pakistan, where the minister, 23 - year - old bride and relatives were on hand.

According to Moslem law he had only to say "I do" three times to complete his legal end of the marriage. He said he did, but the conversation was in Pakistani and almost all his friends listening in here could understand was series of shouted "hellos."

The call went to Montreal, hen by cable to London, and rom there by radio to Karchi, and finally to Lahore.

OUNDED CLOSE

"It sounded like they were n the next room," said Shuja, fter the service

"Why were you shouting, en?" someone asked.

"I don't know, I guess I was xcited and it was a long way way," he said.

His bride is a cousin, and now that she is Mrs. Butt, she will move into her in-law's home. Shuja hopes she can get a passport and come to Canada early in the new year, but if complications arise, he plans to return to Pakistan next June.

"This is a long-time dream that is being fulfilled today," said the groom, as he puttered about with his camera while nervously filling in time until the phone call was made. He has been away from Pakistan for five years, first holidaying in Europe, then getting his bachelor of science degree at the University of Western Ontario and getting established as a teacher in Newfoundland and later in Walkerton.

Shuja also is a lawyer and said he hopes to "get more into law" here before returning home.

MR. AND MRS. GARY SWEETMAN

Sweetman - Johnson

The Centennial Free Methodist Church, Belleville was the setting for the marriage on Saturday, August 21, 1965 when Vivian Jean Johnson, 11 Johnson Street, Belleville was united in marriage to Gary Wayne Sweetman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sweetman, Peterborough. Rev. Edith Mainprize officiated at the ceremony when music was rendered by Miss Elaine Wannamaker of Consecon.

The bride, given in marriage by Mr. Merle A. She wore a crown of lily-of-the-valley from which flowed a fine nylon tulle veil and carried a white Bible crested with sweetheart roses.

Miss Sheila Douglas as maid of honor and the junior bridesmaid, Miss Connie Sweetman, sister of the bridegroom were dressed in yellow nylon over taffeta gowns with apple blossom headdresses. Each carried a nosegay of pink and white roses.

Ann Landers

Natural for Bride to Be Closer to Own Kin

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Will you please tell me, when a couple gets married, why the bride takes her husband's name? After the wedding the groom's family may just as well disappear from the face of the earth because they are never heard from again. Why doesn't the groom take the bride's name and be done with it?

ANN LANDERS

Sunday suppers are always with the wife's family. When the grandchildren have birthdays, it is always the wife's mother who is right in the front with HER cake, HER gift, HER party favors and HER camera.

This is not a letter from a bitter mother, although I admit it has happened to me three times. I am speaking for at least a dozen friends who are also mothers of sons.—PUZZLED, HURT AND DISGUSTED.

DEAR P. H. and D.: What you say is true enough, although each of us knows exceptions.

Perhaps the newly-married couple lean toward the wife's family because the wife makes the social plans and she is closer to her mother than to her mother-in-law.

If anyone knows a better answer please send it on. I'd like to hear it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can anything be done about a husband who refuses to keep his part of a bargain? After ten years of marriage we found ourselves up to our ears in debt. I agreed to go back to work if my husband would help me out around the house. I really loved being home and considered it a sacrifice to go back to an office job, especially since it meant enlisting my mother's help with our three children.

Now my husband parks himself in the big chair the minute he comes home from work. He refuses to budge. His Lordship won't even take out the garbage. I'm knocking myself out from dawn till dusk, while he relaxes.

Yesterday I learned he bought himself $140 worth of fishing equipment because we are in better financial shape than we've been in for a long time. I am burning.

What do you suggest?—SPARKY.

DEAR SPARKY: Tell His Lordship to get off his throne and give Her Ladyship a hand or she will quit her job. If he doesn't straighten out and fly right, make good your threat.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I went with Dean for three years. We were in college and stone broke. No mention was made of marriage which suited me fine because I was dating others and Dean was never a guy who pushed for heavy romance. He was the tried and true type and I kept on the back burner in case of emergency.

I'm 23 now and still playing the field. Last night I heard that Dean and a mousy little blonde had announced their engagement. This news knocked me out. I realize I care for Dean more than I thought. I'm sure if he knew he stood a chance with me he'd break off with the Mouse

Would I be making a fool of myself if I let him know that I want him for my own?—TORCHING.

DEAR TORCHING It's funny how some fellows never look good until they get engaged — to someone else. There's something about a "Not Available" sign that makes the property seem twice as valuable.

Use that torch to light the way to another romance and forget about Dean.

Awkward and self-conscious? Unsure of yourself? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key To Popularity", enclosing with your request 35c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

"THE SINGING MINER" — In 1958 Maurice Ruddick was named Canada's man of the year for his morale-boosting folksongs and hymns while he and other miners were trapped for nine days by an explosion at Springhill, N.S. Although many of the 99 miners who survived the Oct. 23, 1958 explosion are still unemployed, Mr. Ruddick works on construction of a medium security prison in the district. Sevently-five miners were killed. (CP Photo).

Springhill Survivors View Return to Pits In Different Ways

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP) — Byron (Barney) Martin still suffers from back pains and jangled nerves from a nine-day entombment in an explosion-torn coal shaft seven years ago.

But he insists he would go back down the pit if he were well enough—"I wouldn't be scared."

And he thinks many other survivors would do the same—"the boys will return if given the chance,"

Ninety-nine miners survived the disastrous "bump" in the Cumberland Railway and Coal Co. No. 2 colliery here the night of Oct. 23, 1958. The sudden upheavel of the mine's floor took the lives of 75 nightshift workers.

Barney Martin, a miner for 18 years, has been unemployed since draegermen pulled him from the rubble of coal and stone more than 13,000 feet below the surface. He supports his wife and son on miners' compensation of $18.13 a week.

Gorley Kempt, who swore he would never re-enter the mines, is back working in a small Springhill pit and rumors of the opening of a new shaft might tempt others to return to their old way of life.

But not Caleb Rushton, now working in the employment office here. "I wouldn't go back unless I was so hungry I couldn't do anything else but crawl," he says. "I don't really know why I ever worked in the mines. I didn't like them. I was always chicken when it came to mining."

EARNS LESS NOW

Mr. Rushton, one of 12 men rescued after being entombed six days, is married and has three children. His wife's father and stepfather were killed in mining accidents. He worked as a miner for 11 years despite his dislike of the job, probably because the $11.54 he made a da was more than he could earn elsewhere in this town of 5,800.

Even after No. 4 colliery was shut down following an explosion that claimed 39 lives in 1956 and No. 2 was abandoned after the 195[illegible] disaster, Springhill clung tenaciously to the threats of existence. In between was a fire in 1957 that wiped out half of the town's main business district.

The economy was crippled. Many miners moved away while others lived from day to day on company and government compensation.

Caleb Rushton obtained part-time work in the post office before he got his present job. He isn't optimistic about Springhill's future although he realizes times are better now than at any time since the mines closed. Prosperity will only come if the pits are reopened, he says.

The town has received some outside help. A minimum security prison was built in 1960 and many miners worked on its construction. It now employs 30 townspeople including Mayor Rufus MacLeod.

SINGING MINER

A new medium security institution is going up on a hill overlooking the Cumberland Valley. Construction of the $9,000,000 project, to be completed in May, 1966, is giving employment to 300, including Maurice Ruddick, "the singing miner."

Maurice sang folksongs and hymns to help keep up the morale of the six men trapped with him for nine days two miles below the pithead. Newspaper editors voted him Canada's man of the year in 1958.

Now 52, he lives with his wife and 13 children across the street from the site of No. 2 colliery. He sets out each morning for the construction site, his first regular job since the disaster.

"There isn't an extra amount of work," he says, "but Springhill is far from dead."

MAY RETURN ORCHARD

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. W. W. Priddle of suburban North York is one step away from getting back his prized 29-acre orchard, expropriated last June to make room for a garbage incinerator. North York council will meet in a special session Monday to rule on an unanimous recommendation of board of control that the land be returned to its owner.

At the Park

"CAT BALLOU"

"Cat Ballou," with the hoydenish Jane Fonda in the title role, offers a wild and way-out view of the wild, wild west at the Park Theatre in Columbia color, continuous through Wednesday, Sept. 1st. A lusty package of brawling action, hilarious comedy, drama and romance, "Cat Ballou" is a colorful, happy take-off on the traditional characters and situations of the Western scene, cinema style.

Everyone involved in the Columbia Pictures release, a romping delight of a story, rates applause. Miss Fonda tops the starring cast, as a frontier lady of propriety who, when her father is murdered and his ranch seized, turns outlaw with a vengeance. An amateur in the fine art of Western skulduggery, she assembles a band of happy-go-lucky, albeit devoted, males equally as impractical as she is, and off they go train-robbing.

They include Lee Marvin, Michael Callan and Dwayne Hickman, and Jane's various exploits thereafter are celebrated in songs by the other stars of the rowdy romance, Nat King Cole and Stubby Kaye.

Marvin plays a dual role in "Cat Ballou," appearing as twin brothers— the one, dissolute, drunken and completely impossible as a gunfighter (and,. therefore, totally suitable to membership in Jane's renegade crew!); the other, cold-eyed, dudish and deadly, a gunslinger hired by the more refined of Wolf City's businessmen to murder and mayhem for their greater financial glory. Callan is seen as an amateur cattle rustler, and still more amateur gunfighter, who is more attracted to Jane than to the life of crime she embarks upon; and Dwayne Hickman, television's Dobie Gillis, poses as a young minister who conceals a gun behind his Bible.

A completely enjoyable spoof of the Western tradition, "Cat Ballou" also is a fast-paced action comedy which doesn't slow down even for its more romantic moments. It is entertainment on a grand scale—which is to say, it is entertainment pure and simple and continuing from opening scenes to hair-raising finish.

A colored Travelogue, "Voyageurs," and funny Cartoon complete the bill. Complete shows tonight, 3.35, 5.40, 7.45, 9.50. Monday complete shows 7.00, 9.15.

Three Sons Has New Cast But Will Be in Old Groove

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — New York, new cast, new hue. But My Three Sons promises the same chucklesome, male - oriented comedy for the coming television season.

"We'll be back in the same groove," assured Fred MacMurray, leader of the masculine household which provided ABC with a high-rated series for five years.

Come September, My Three Sons will be back at its same time slot, this time under the watchful eye of CBS. And in color, no less. There will still be three sons, but aging Tim Considine, 25, has been married off to Meredith MacRae; both will disappear into limbo.

The new son is Barry Livingston, 11, brother of the now-middle son, Stanlev Livingston, 14. Don Grady, 21, has been promoted to No. 1 son.

"So we're back where we started," MacMurray reported. "Don carries the romantic interest, as Tim used to do. Now Stanley is starting to date girls, and Barry plays the kid."

DEMAREST STAYS

William Demarest will continue as a replacement for Bill Frawley, forced off the show in mid-season last year because of illness.

MacMurray takes the changes calmly, as he does everything else.

"The addition of color hasn't changed things much," he observed. "Oh, I've got to be a bit more careful about what I wear. And we had to spruce up the set a bit; we didn't realize how dowdy it looked until we saw it on color film."

MacMurray, who almost quit after the third year, has signed for two seasons with CBS. at the end of that time he might renew his deal or perhaps he could just buy the network.

GETS TWO YEARS

MONTREAL (CP) — William Sigler, 48, who defrauded the creditors of five companies of almost $200,000, was sentenced Friday to two years in prison and was fined $2,000. Victims were creditors of United Surgical Supplies Ltd., Beacon Jewelers and Outfitters Ltd., Globe Industries Ltd., Lachine Merchandising Inc., and Cross Country Sales Corp. (1964) Ltd.

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

If the 1965 Los Angeles Dodgers win the National League pennant, they will have to rank as some sort of modern miracle.

Don't get me wrong, at least so early in the column.

I realize that the Dodgers have been perched atop the pennant race for all but 16 days of the schedule.

I am fully aware that they have the finest pitcher in baseball today, one of the best of all time, in Sandy Koufax.

Few will argue with Maury Wills' claim to fame on the base paths.

But - - - -

The Dodgers' batting averages are next to non-existent and their team fielding average is down near the bottom of the list, with the Mets.

Big Don Drysdale is the leading pinch-hitter on the squad—and as everyone knows he is a pitcher. Drysdale also stands fourth on the club in home runs, with six, and there is not a man on the team who has hit more than ten.

Drysdale wins a lot of games on the mound too, but unlike his buddy Koufax, he loses a good number.

Injuries have hurt the club considerably and right now have greatly reduced the effectiveness of the pitching staff.

That really hurts. If the Dodgers don't get the pitching they are from nowhere. Even Koufax is having trouble winning. He has been out three or four times looking for number 22, without success.

A loose knee joint is bothering Drysdale; top reliefer Ron Perranoski is suffering from a sore hamstring muscle; Johnny Podras and Jim Brewer have strained elbows and Bob Taylor also hurt his elbow this week.

Top that off with the fact that Claude Osteen was belted for seven runs in five innings, by the Mets no less, on Wednesday and one might get the idea that the Los Angeles pitching is faltering.

A wire story yesterday says that even the Dodger speed is slipping. "They are tired," says the yarn, "when four of six would-be base stealers are thrown out in a series against the Mets."

"Perseverence and hustle" was the answer given when Manager Walter Alston was asked why his club was up there.

That is quite true but this week at least they have stayed on top for the simple reason that the clubs close to them have also been getting whacked by the second-division squads.

Wes Westrum guided the Mets to three victories in a row over the leaders and then said he would not pick them to capture the pennant "even if they owned a three-game lead right now."

The club has faltered before but always managed to bounce back with key wins to hold back the challengers.

It is going to be a real dogfight from here out, with the Giants, Braves and Reds so close to the Dodgers that any can jump from fourth to first and back again on a weekend.

Then still within easy striking range come the Phillies and Pirates. And the defending champion Cards could still pull a repeat of last season's grand finish.

It seems for certain that with all the Dodger problems and all those clubs so close behind, one or the other of them will catch up to Alston's boys within the next few weeks.

Please don't ask us which one will take it all—we might have to say the Dodgers.

Coming up next week is the richest of them all when it comes to trotting, the famed Hambletonian, at Du Quoin, Ill.

The trotting classic is a $125,000 affair, loaded with the finest horses in the sport, and including much color.

This is the 40th running of the event, coming up Wednesday, September 1.

Armbro Flight is being established as one of the favorites, probably behind Noble Victory. The Brampton-owned horse will be driven by her trainer, Joe O'Brien, a two-time Hambletonian winner. Joe is a 48-year-old native of Alberton, Prince Edward Island. Armbro Flight is a daughter of Helicopter, owned by the ABC Farm and which won the race in 1953.

Local fans will be happy to hear that CBC Radio will be carrying the broadcast of the race, as well as descriptions and color, starting at 4.35 EDT on Wednesday. There is a good chance CJBQ will be one of the stations carrying the broadcast, along with stations in Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal, Halifax, St. John's, Nfld., and St. Catharines.

SETS RECORD

HAELSINGBORG, Sweden (AP) — Kipchonge Keino of Kenya set a world record for 3,000 metres Friday nightt, running the distance in seven minutes, 39.5 seconds in an international track and field meet. Keino's time for the approximately 1¾ miles clipped 6.5 seconds off the present world record for the relatively obscure distance, held by Siegfried Herrman of East Germany.

Crothers Wins 800 To Spur Canada

From AP-Reuters

BUDAPEST (CP) — Bill Crothers highlighted a big day for Canada at the World Student Games Friday by winning an expected victory in the 800 metres.

Before hitting the tape in 1:47.7, however, the bespectacled Mrakham, Ont., pharmacist nearly gave the small band of Canadian supporters heart failure. Lying well back during the first lap, Crothers was only seventh at the 400 metre mark, but he spurted ahead in the stretch to win by five metres.

These performances brought Canada's total on its first appearance in the World Student Games to three medals—one gold and two bronze. Harry Jerome of Vancouver finished third in the 100-metre dash Thursday.

Abigail Hoffman of Toronto, the only woman on the 10-member Canadian team here, had the fastest time of eight qualifiers for the women's 800-metre final.

She won her semi-final heat in a swift 2:09.1. Second fastest qualifier was Laine Erik of the Soviet Union in 2:09.6.

Heglund won the discus on a heave of 189 feet, 10 inches. Jiri Zemba of Czechoslovakia beat Puce out of the silver medal by almost the tiniest of margins, 184-5½ to 184-4¾.

Throughout the raw, cold day there were seldom more than a few thousand spectators on hand for the track and field events in the 93,000-seat NEPS Stadium.

Opening up with about 250 metres to go, Crothers hit the tape five metres ahead of George Germann of the United States, second in 1:47.8. Rudolf Klaban of Austria was third in 1:48.2.

"I left my kick late because the first quarter was fast, and the other runners looked strong and were all bunched up," Crothers said. "I didn't want to get elbowed.

"I was satisfied with the time. It was about what I expected.

"It was a good, fast race."

Crothers' best time is 1:45.6, which he posted in winning the silver medal at the Olympics last year behind Peter Snell of New Zealand.

TAKES PILLS

Crothers took pills all day before the race late Friday. He had been suffering from an attack of dysentery and was afraid he might be too weak for the race.

Canada's fortunes did not hold up in the preliminaries for the 200 metres. Jerome got through the first round of heats in a so-so 21.7, but withdrew from the semi-finals because of a pulled muscle in his left leg. Alan Brereton of Toronto also got through the first round, on a 22.3 clocking, but failed to get past the semi-finals.

The Russians captured the gold medals in men's and women's volleyball and Miklos Meszena won the sabre event to give Hungary five of the seven gold medals decided in fencing.

Ontario Canoe Crew Adds Win

KINGSTON (CP) — An Ontario crew, led by skipper Rick Betts, won its fourth straight 1,000-metre sprint here Friday to take a commanding lead in the centennial voyageur canoe trials.

Seven canoes, representing Ontario, Alberta, the Yukon, and the Northwest Territories, arrived Friday at Macdonald Park on the second-last leg of a 600-mile trip. An eighth crew, from New Brunswick, dropped out Thursday when they ran out of holiday time.

The teams leave here today and are due to arrive in Gananoque, 17 miles east of here, at 3:30 p.m. EDT where the trials will end after the usual sprint for points.

The 32-foot cedar canoes race in sprints for a trophy but the trials themselves are a test of equipment and not a race. Their journey began Aug 9 in North Bay, and has taken them through the French River, Georgian Bay, the Trent-Severn waterway and Lake Ontario.

Twins Pulling Away From Pack

Captures Southpaw Golf Title

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — John Nykyfortchyn of Toronto captured the Ontario southpaw golf championship on the first extra hole of a sudden-death playoff Friday.

Nykyfortchyn sank a 160-yard approach shot for a two-under-par two on the extra hole to defeat Ken Thorpe of Toronto.

The two were tied with six-over-par 77s at the end of the regulation 18 holes.

Tied for third place at 78 were D. J. Cotie of Toronto and Bill Zaduck of Guelph.

Pitching—Jim Grant, Twins, allowed only two hits as he became the American League's winningest pitcher by posting his 17th victory in Minnesota's 7-0 triumph over Cleveland Indians.

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jim Grant, who has just learned how to throw a curve ball after eight years in the American League, continued to zero in on the 20-victory circle Friday night, posting his 17th triumph with a two-hitter as the league - leading Minnesota Twins walloped Cleveland Indians 7-0.

Grant gives pitching coach Johnny Sain the credit for adding an effective curve ball to his repertoire and transforming him into the winningest pitcher in the league.

Singles by Pedro Gonzalez in the fourth inning and Fred Whitfield in the seventh were the only hits to fall in Friday night against the 30-year-old right-hander who never had won more than 15 games.

Grant, meanwhile, matched the Indians' entire output with two singles of his own and drove in four runs as he brought his record to 17-4 for an .810 percentage—the best in the majors.

The Twins' victory boosted their lead to nine games as the second-place Chicago White Sox split with Boston Red Sx, winning the opener 3-2 before the Red Sox took the nightcap 6-3.

Elsewhere, the third - place Baltimore Orioles dropped 10½ back after a 2-1, 10-inning loss to Washington Senators, Los Angeles Angels edged Detroit Tigers 3-2 and Kansas City Athletics nipped New York Yankees 1-0 behind John O'Donoghue's four-hit pitching.

Ron Hansen's single and Ken Berry's two-out double in the eighth inning produced the winning run in the opener for the White Sox despite Red Sox homers by Tony Conigliaro and Lee Thomas. Thomas also hom-in Boston's nightcap triumph while Dennis Bennett posted his first complete game with a six-hitter.

The Senators pushed across the winning run in the 10th inning when Ken Hamlin scord on Jim King's two-out single.

Jim Fregosi's two-run homer in the fourth inning and an unearned sixth-inning run built on a triple by Jim Piersall and an error by shortstop Ray Oyler got the job done for the Angels as Dean Chance won his third in a row for an 11-9 record.

O'Donoghue, now 7-17, was locked in a scoreless duel with Whitey Ford, who had allowed only two hits, until the ninth when the Athletics scored on singles by Wayne Causey and Jose Tartabull, a sacrific, a walk and Dick Green's single.

Marichal Says Was Provoked

NEW YORK (AP) — Juan Marichal, San Francisco Giant pitcher sitting out an eight-day suspension for clubbing Los Angeles Dodger catcher John Roseboro on the head with a bat, said Friday night Roseboro had provoked him into the act and, through another party, had threatened him.

"I'm not worried if he sues," Marichal said. "I don't think he can win. I have a witness, an umpire, who heard him say he was out to gett me."

Marichal named Al Forman as the umpire who heard the implied threats in last Friday's National League game at San Francisco.

Boys Ready For Today's 'Big One'

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP)—Young baseball players from Connecticut and Canada found it hard to relax Friday as they worked out briefly for the Little League world championship game today.

All the boys, 11 and 12 years old, wanted to do was talk about the "big one," according to their managers.

The title clash betwen Windsore Locks, Conn., and Stony Creek, Ont., will be the first appearance in a series final for both teams. A crowd of 20,000 is expected.

The Canadians entered the championship contest with two shutouts in the series. They whipped Rota, Spain, 6-0, and blanked Jeffersonville, Ind., 1-0.

Mike Roche, a 132 - pound right-hander, was the mound choice of Windsor Locks manager Bob O'Connor. He defeated Maracaibo, Venezuela, 5-3 in the series opener, and catches when he isn't pitching.

Junior Net Titles Decided

TORONTO (CP)—Dale Power of Toronto won the championship in the boys' under-18 division of the Toronto and district tennis tournament Friday and competitors from Galt captured titles in two other divisions.

Power defeaed Terry Leach of Ottawa 6-2, 6-4 in the final. Earlier Leach defeated Nigle Hess of Port Credit 6-3, 6-8, 7-5 in the semi-finals.

Galt winners were Vera Komar in the girls' under-14 division with a 6-4, 6-3 victory over Kay Barrell of Toronto in the final and Marg Kress in the girls' under-12 competition with a 6-1, 6-0 win over Susan Ross of Toronto.

Two Galt boys lost in final matches. Bob Kelly was defeated by Jim Boyce of Toronto 6-4, 6-1 in the under-14 section and Dana Castle lost 6-2, 4-6, 6-2 to Pat Gamey of Toronto in the under-12 division.

Trudeaus Earn 2-1 Decision

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Trudeau Motors got clutch hits and superb fielding to pull out a thrilling 2-1 decision over Kingston's Prince George Indians here last night.

The clutch victory evened their OASA Senior "B" playdown set at one game apiece. Indians won the first tilt 2-1. Kingston also won the flip for home park in the third and deciding game. It will be played tonight, if the park is available or Monday.

The game was as tight as the first in Kingston but the fielding was even better and a fair crowd turned out for the action.

Trudeaus scored lone markers in the third and sixth and cut off a ninth - inning threat by the losers with one run in and the tying marker at first.

Fielding highlights saw Bob Wannamaker make a great play to rob Don Senior in the sixth and Hugh Brennan equal the feat against the same player in the eighth. The whole Trudeau infield stood out, and Paul Zakos pulled in White's homer bid in the sixth. The losers were errorless afield but did not have the tough chances.

Kingston had a great chance in the seventh when big Charlie Pester blooped a lead - off triple. Trudeaus got the next three men in order, with Mavety's grab of a twisting foul - pop the key play, to leave Pester stranded.

In the ninth, Baldwin struck out pinch - hitter Brown but White and Pester rapped singles to put men on first and third. White scored as Pester was forced on Bob Senior's ground ball and Meeker grabbed Ferguson's chop to end the game.

Trudeau's first run came after two were out. Locke rapped a ball to centre and ran it into a double. Brennan singled to centre to bring him home.

What turned out to be the winning run came with one out, again on back-to-back hits. Weston doubled and Meeker singled up the middle to plate him.

Bill Baldwin threw a steady game to earn the victory with a six - hitter. He struck out only three but did not walk a man, getting most of the opposing batters on infield grounders.

Mike McMahon allowed seven hits on the Kingston hilltop and except for the first, third and sixth frames, had little trouble. He struck out 13 and walked one, that coming in the first.

Rick Locke had a double and single and Hugh Brennan two singles to spark the victor's attack. Pete Weston doubled, Tom Meeker and Bill Baldwin got the other base knocks.

Charlie Pester's triple and single were best for the Indians. Jack "Gabby" White, Bob Senior, Don Gilmour and Mike McMahon divided singles.

Girl Wins Second Gold

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP)—Elfin Beverly Boys, 14, of Pickering, Ont., completed a gold-medal double at the British National Diving championships Friday night by coming from behind to capture the junior women's springboard title.

The glitter of her second medal—her first came Thursday in the junior highboard—distracted attention from a painful black eye the dimpled blonde picked up in a practice tumble following her first victory.

"It shook me up a bit, but I was okay," Bev said. "The eye's still a little bloodshot."

After four of the seven dives, Ontario junior champion was lagging almost four points behind Britain's Lesley Grant, wh had 116.30 to the Canadian's 112.90. But on the fifth dive, a half twist, Bev went decisively in front with a mark of 33.25 to 24.0 for the British girl. She held the lead and won 218.80 to Miss Grant's 210.30.

John Eisel, 23, of Toronto finished eighth of 24 in the men's springboard final Friday and Terry Fitzpatrick, 17, of Vancouver was further off the pace set by winner Frank Carter of Wales.

Als May Pick Up Don Fuell

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference will ask waivers on defensive end John Kenerson to make way on their roster for linebacker Joe Williams, a recent cut from Baltimore Colts of the National Football League.

Coach Jim Trimble said Friday he planned to dump Kenerson in favor of Williams, who has been in the Als camp since last Sunday, and in addition is investigating the possibility of picking up defensive half and quarterback Don Fuell, cut by Toronto Argonauts Thursday.

Kenerson came to the Als this season after being cut by Ottawa Rough Riders.

Trimble said he is not sure whether Fuell will move to Montreal, as he understood the former Argo is attending dental college in Toronto.

Wrestling Returns

New Faces, Good Show

By ROBERT SNEFJELLA

Wrestling returned to Belleville last night, and it's here to stay. Every Friday night for the next few weeks Memorial Arena will be the scene of a strange mixture of axe-murders, blood-curdling shrieks from the female fanatics in attendance; bodies flying placidly through the air and all the other fanfare that constitutes the sport.

Yesterday evening's menu was extremely tasty, as the bad and good guys slugged it out for supremacy with the hearty approval of about 300 fans. Both factions had two decisions, although the villains invariably got in the most licks because they play it smart and follow this rule: If you're not on top, run!

In the main event of the night, No. 1 Hangman, wearing black mask and all, stepped into the ring against Gorgeous George Junior, who boasts a plumage of hair that would put a peacock to shame.

The Hangman's initial strategy was devastating. He attacked George's ego through his pride and joy topside. But the fabulous one, who did not enjoy having his manifest manacled, retaliated by throwing No. 1 into orbit.

After 10 minutes of grim battle, the tide turned once again, and soon George was obviously in need of a pep talk, or pill. A foot-stomp to the head finished George, and the bad guy had the first fall after 11 minutes.

Gorgeous revived his 216-lb. frame sufficiently to go on the offensive. A series of right hands, flips and the backbreaker enabled him to flop on top of the villain's prostrate form for the three count.

The last fall was won by the referee for George. After the Hangman had pummelled George with an assortment of blows, he turned on referee Harry Berry. Berry, who wrestles too, re-arranged the shape of the hangman's head with some solid punches, and awarded the decision to the half-conscious hero.

Frenchie then organized an attack on Littlebrook's eyes, and, with the man stumbling around half-blinded, several fine drop kicks proved effective enough to even it all up.

Littlebrook tried his hand at whipping Frenchie off the ropes and two fine shoulder blocks put him on the canvas for the final count.

In two preliminary bouts, the Garvin brothers, of the eye-gouging, kicking, biting wrestling class, were both successful.

The younger one of the set, Ron, defeated Vic Rosettanni of Italy in the first match with a couple of well placed drop-kicks.

Terry Garvin's victory over Doug Kinslow came unexpectedly. Garvin had taken a sound beating throughout. Brother Ron got into the act too, and he was chased out of the ring area by an enraged Kinslow. Terry Garvin was pronounced winner, when Kinslow did not make it back in time.

Giants In Second

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pittsburgh Pirates kept the pressure on the top four contenders in the National League race Friday night, edging Houston Astros 10-9 in 11 innings after staging a fantastic six-run rally in the ninth.

The victory, their seventh straight, kept the fifth-place Pirates 4½ games behind the league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers, who nipped Philadelphia Phillies 9-8, and moved them within three of the other three contenders — San Francisco Giants, Milwaukee Braves and Cincinnati Reds.

Only a week ago the Pirates were in sixth place, nine games from the lead.

Actually, the Pirates have made quite a leap to get where they are. In the first six weeks of the season they encounterd a stretch where they lost 22 of 26 games and tumbled into the cellar.

Winning streaks of 12 and seven games boosted them to fifth place. Then they dropped back to sixth and staye there seven weeks before their current challenge.

In other games Friday San Francisco whipped New York Mets 9-2, St. Louis Cardinals edged Cincinnati 6-5 in 14 innings and Chicago Cubs stopped Milwaukee 5-3.

Trailing 9-3, the Pirates came alive in the ninth with six singles, including a two-run hit by Andre Rodgers, plus a hit batsman and Donn Clendenon's sacrifice fly that tied it. Another single by Rodgers drove in Bob Bailey with the winning run in the 11th.

Don Drysdale won his 18th game and his first against Philadelphia in more than three years. Lou Johnson drove in three Dodger runs with three singles while Tony Gonzales and John Callison homered for the Phillies.

The Giants ended their four-game losing streak at the expense of the Mets and moved into second place, 1½ games behind the Dodgers and one percentage point ahead of the Reds and Braves.

Willie Mays slammed his 40th homer, tying Lou Gehrig with 493 career homers and equalling Ralph Kiner's league record of 16 homers in a month. Willie McCovey added his 31st and 32nd homers for the Giants.

Walks to Lou Brock and Curt Flood and Ken Boyer's double off Bill McCool gave St. Louis its victory in the 14th inning.

The Cubs broke up a scoreless duel with Milwaukee with five runs in the fifth inning off Ken Johnson. Billy Williams provided the big punch with the fourth grand slam of his career.

Nichols, Geiberger Lead

Palmer Trails By One

AKRON, Ohio (CP)—George Knudson of Toronto, currently enjoying his best season of the United States golf tour, went into the third round of the $100,000 American golf classic today just three strokes off the pace.

The smooth-swinging Canadian carded a par 70 Friday to go with his first round 72 and sat comfortably in seventh place.

Palmer was tied for third after shooting his second straight par-70 Friday for a 36-hole total of 140, one stroke behind Nichols and Geiberger.

Nichols, with a second-round 36-34—70 and 139 total, and Geiberger, with his 36-33—69, had no trouble passing first-round leaders Johnny Pott and Jim Ferrier. Pott and Ferrier soared to 78s after 68s Thursday.

Southpaw Bob Charles carded a 69 to go with his opening 71 for 140. Jack Rule shot a 34-34—68 to climb into a tie for fifth with Mason Rudolph, who had a 141 total.

Nicklaus, who vowed he would come back and make the cut for the final two rounds after an opening 80, kept his word. He shot a 36-33—69 for 149, two strokes less than necessary.

Five New Marks

Age-Class Records Take Sound Beating

By DON LeBLANC

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Five Canadian age-class records, including one which stood since 1957, fell Friday in the first day of the national age-class track and field championships here.

Toronto area athletes established four official marks, while Christa Leipert of Burnaby, B.C., hurled the javelin 139 feet, one inch, to smash Wendy Kellond's eight-year-old record.

Yaschyshyn crossed the finish line in 42.6 seconds to slice seven-tenths of a second off the mark held by Westdale Secondary School of Hamilton. Ed Hearne, national age-class champion in the 100-yard dash, Bob Brooks and Mike Ward were the other Toronto team members.

The Amateur Athletic Union of Canada must ratify age-class records before they become official. Records are reviewed once a year.

SETS RECORD

Sue Nigh of Don Mills, a Toronto suburb, leaped five feet, four inches, to set a juvenile high jump record. She broke a mark of five feet, 3½ inches held by Beverly Pierce of Hamilton.

Cathy Chapman, 17, also of Don Mills, tied her own official record of 11.5 seconds in the juvenile 80-metre hurdles. She established the mark last year at Winnipeg and unofficially lowered it by two-fifths of a second at the eastern age-class championships this year in Ottawa.

Ken Hamilton of Toronto ran the mile in 4:24.2, cutting three-tenths of a second off the midget record set last year in Summerside, P.E.I., by Dave Patterson, also of Toronto.

Bruce Simpson, 15, of Toronto cleared 12 feet, seven inches, to add a half-inch to the former mark set two years ago in the midget pole vault by Donald Gray of Vancouver.

Jana Lundy of Vancouver, one of Canada's best age-class competitors, tied her own mark in the midget high jump at five feet, four inches.

In new events, Garth Hilderman of Saskatoon was clocked at 4:35.4 in the juvenile 1,500-metre steeplechase, and Mike Haugh of Windsor, had a toss of 128 feet, one inch, in the juvenile hammer throw.

Leafs Fall 3 Games Off Pace

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs have probably seen the last of Larry Bearnarth, but they're wondering if he stuck around just one game too long.

Bearnarth, who reports to the National League New York Mets Sept. 2, celebrated his promotion by leading the lowly Buffalo Bisons to a 7-6 victory over the Leafs in International League action Friday night.

The loss could be especially damaging for Toronto, now three games back of first-place Columbus Jets. The Jets have only to win three of their six remaining starts to clinch the pennant.

Elsewhere, Rochester Red Wings walloped Syracuse Chiefs 7-2, Columbus edged Jacksonville Suns 6-4, and a scheduled game between Atlanta Crackers and Toledo Mud Hens was rained out.

Will Try To Settle Own Row

WASHINGTON (AP) —The top officials of the battling two big powers governing United States track and field affairs agreed Friday to meet and try to settle the row themselves.

They said they would announce later where and when the peace talks would be held, promising Senator Howard W. Cannon, who engineered the agreement, that the talks would be held before Wednesday. It will be their first face-to-face effort to talk it out in more than two years.

The new peace move came as a surprise in the final minutes of a Senate commerce committee investigation in which the senators sought ways to bring about a lasting peace between the Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Both Healthy

Cats Face Tough Stamps

CALGARY (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats will be seeking thir first win against Calgary Stampeders since 1961 when they meet the Stampeders in a Canadian Football League inter-locking game tonight.

Tiger-Cats, defending Eastern Football Conference champions and unbeaten so far this season, edged the Stampeders 36-35 in 1961 but since then Hamilton-Calgary games have all been won by the Stampeders.

In their two 1964 encounters, Calgary walloped Hamilton 33-7 in a pre-season match and nosed out the Tiger-Cats 20-18 in an inter-locking game.

Both teams have escaped from their last games this season without serious injuries and are strong and healthy for tonight's game, which will be seen on the CBC national television network. Game time is 11 p.m. EDT.

World Series Fever Grips Stoney Creek

STONEY CREEK, Ont. (CP) World Series baseball fever has gripped this Hamilton suburb of 6,700.

And it has nothing to do with the American or National Leagues.

The object of all the excitement is the Stoney Creek Little League baseball team — the first Canadian team ever to reach the world finals—which goes after the championship in williamsport, Pa., today.

More than 600 residents, including the mayor, nave spent the last week in Williamsport, watching their team—the boys are 11 and 12 years of age.

At 2 p.m., EDT., today the team meets Windsor Locks, Conn., for the title and the visiting Canadians are expected to number 5,000.

More than 20 buses have been chartered to carry spectators. In addition residents of nearby Dundas and Ancaster are expected to make the 275-mile trip by car.

Prime Minister Pearson has even sent personal congratulations to the boys.

CBC radio will also carry a play-by-play broadcast of the game, starting at 2 p.m.

CUT ANABO

EDMONTON (CP)—Jon Anabo, 24-year-old quarterback who had seen plenty of action this season, was cut Friday by the winless Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference. Anabo, hired by the Esks last year, was placed on waivers Tuesday after the club suffered its fifth straight loss. None of the other Canadian Football League clubs showed interest in him.

WHIPPER MAY RETIRE

TORONTO (CP) — Wrestler Whipper Billy Watson said Thursday he will retire from the ring if elecetd to Parliament in the next federal election. Watson has been nominated Progressive Conservative candidate in Toronto York East, currently held by Liberal Steve Otto.

International Ref. Says:

Canadian Hockey Still Best

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP) —Frank Daignault figures hockey's international sign language will solve his communications problems when he referees at an international series planned for Czechoslovakia later this year.

"I'm one amateur referee who is known for visual signals," Daignault says. "Also I have handled games played here by visiting Russian, Czech and Swedish teams and I've had less trouble with them than with some of the Memorial and Allan Cup games I've worked."

Gordon Juckes, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, announced in July that Daignault and William (Dutchy) Van Deelan of Edmonton had been chosen to referee games between Russian, Swedish, German and Czechoslovakian national teams Nov. 22-30.

The choice of the 41-year-old Daignault capped a 12-year career that started with Quebec's bush leagues and culminated in the handling of national junior and senior finals.

It means a lot to the Montrealer because he "came too late to refereeing" and guesses he's "too old for the NHL." He took up officiating to keep in shape after retiring as a player from amateur hockey in the Montreal area.

International rules are easier for a referee to follow than some Canadian rules, Daignault says.

NO ICING CALLS

"There's no bodychecking in the offensive zone and with less body contact a lot of the roughness is taken out of the play.

"There are no icing calls to make and no board-checking is allowed. With the elimination of the icing rule, the two - man refereeing team can actually split the ice surface in half and this cuts down the distance each man has to skate during a game."

Despite these differences, Daignault says he would prefer to see hockey played by Canadian rules.

"The European style of play misses a lot of the color we put in the game and I still prefer it our way, even though it is more work for me as an official."

Daignault, a former Junior A, intermediate and senior player in various Quebec leagues, took to refereeing in 1953 under the auspices of ex - NHL official George Gravel. At that time Gravel was referee-in-chief of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association and within 18 months Daignault had worked in every league in the province.

From 1953 to 1959, he officiated for the QAHA and in the spring of 1960 was named to handle the Allan Cup final series between Chatham Maroons and Trail Smoke Eaters for the CAHA. At the same time he became a minor official for the NHL and still acts as a goal judge for Montreal Canadiens' home games.

In 1961 he was appointed a member of the QAHA executive and was named to the board of referees.

The 1962 Memorial Cup final —a rugged six-game affair— featured Edmonton Oil Kings and Niagara Falls Flyers. The Westerners won in what Daignault describes as one of the hardest series he has handled. Two players suffered broken legs.

Daignault's work must have satisfied CAHA officials because in 1963 he was given the same assignment, this time in Toronto, where the Oil Kings defended their title against the powerful Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association.

"This was the first time an Eastern referee had been chosen to work a Memorial Cup series in his own territory, and I felt pretty good about it. Anyway it turned out to be strictly 'no contest' and the Marlies took it in four straight games."

Maccabiah Games

U.S. Adds Eight Golds

TEL AVIV (CP)—Led by its formidable swimming and diving team, the United States carried off eight gold medals Friday to dominate the day's action at the Maccabiah Games.

The youngsters flitted through the water to five first-place finishes for a total of 14 of 18 in swimming at the games known as the "Jewish Olympics."

Individual American swim triumphs were posted by Mark Spitz, winner of the 1,500-metre freestyle in 1:03.4. The U.S. also won the women's 400-metre medley relay and the men's 400-metre freestyle team event.

The fifth gold medal went to Dick Morse in the men's spring board diving event with 154.35 points. Mexico's Jorge Teich was second with 149.31.

Americans also won medals in the less familiar sports of fencing and cycling. Sam Zeitlin won the 500-metre bicycle sprint and the U.S. epee team finished first over Holland Israel.

DOMINATES FINALS

Israel, the host nation, dominated the boxing finals winning six of the nine gold medals Friday.

The U.S. continued to run away with the basketball championship, trouncing Venezuela 142 - 42. The Americans have won all three matches.

Canada's basketball team, which had won its opening match, bowed for the second consecutive time, losing 67-53 to second-place Brazil.

Toronto's Norm Mogul shot 73 in the final round for a 72-hole golf score of 296 and fourth place over-all.

Karen Ann James of Vancouver placed fifth in the women's 100-metre freestyle in 1:09.7.

Illness Fails To Halt Habs

By BRUCE KIDD

BUDAPEST (CP) — Although they cut the possibility of Vancouver sprinter Harry Jerome winning a second medal, injuries and ailments did not prevent Bill Crothers and George Puce from gaining more medals for Canada Friday in track and field events at the World Student Games.

It was hard to believe that Bill Crothers is suffering from an attack of dysentery by the commanding way he won the 800-metre run and the gold medal.

Using tactics similar to those of his indoor races, Crothers trailed the classy field until the final 120 metres, when he suddenly ran wide and charged into the lead. His winning time of 1:47.7 for a new games record was excellent in view of the brief downpour which soaked the track immediately prior to the race.

Puce, of Toronto, gave Canada its second bronze medal in as many days with his throw of 184 feet, 4½ inches in the discus, but was disappointed with his performance.

"It would have been nice to have seen the 'Pearson Pennant' flying in the centre," he said after the presentation ceremony, referring to the Canadian flag.

"My right leg has been a little sore so I rested it this week and didn't train. But I didn't expect to be this sluggish."

Lars Haplunnd of Sweden won the event with a throw of 189 feet, 10 inches. Jiri Zemba of Czechoslovakia edged out Puce for the silver medal by a mere inch.

A game Jerome was forced to succumb to a leg pull which has been bothering him off and on all week and to scratch from the 200 metres. Jerome easily qualified for the semi - final Friday, but limped so much that he decided to withdraw.

An American trainer said after examining Jerome's leg that he was surprised Jerome started at all. Thursday night Jerome placed a close third to Japan's Hideo Iljima and America's George Anderson in what was probably the most competitive century run this summer.

The other Canadian in the 200 metres, Al Brereton of Toronto, was eliminated in the semi-finals.

A pleasant surprise for the Canadian contingent was Abby Hoffman's victory in her 800 metre heat, setting a new national record of 2:09.1 in the process.

Miss Hoffman of Toronto had been pessimistic about her chances here, but raced into the lead about 200 metres from home and never was threatened. The other heat was won by Czechoslovakia's Marie Ingrova in 2:11.3.

Although six of the eight finalists have run faster than her, Miss Hoffman now is more confident.

"I'm sure I can better my time in the final," she said.

George Hungerford

Will Return To Rowing

TORONTO (CP) — George Hungerford of Vancouver, 21-year-old gold medal winner in the 1964 Tokyo Olympics rowing final, says he plans to return to rowing.

Hungerford was bothered by an attack of mononucleosis at the Olympics last year and suffered a blood disorder at the Henley regatta in England this summer.

In an interview Thursday, the 199-pound athlete said the blood disorder "was completely cleared up" and "I plan to return to a regular training program this winter."

Hungerford was in Toronto to accept the Lou Marsh Trophy at the Canadian National Exhibition Sports Hall of Fame. The trophy was presented to Hungerford and his rowing partner, Roger Jackson, 23, of Toronto because of their startling win in the Olympic pairs rowing competition last October.

NHL Brass Discuss Game Rules

TORONTO (CP) — National Hockey League teams will hold pre-game warmups separately and start them earlier this season because of the new two-goalie system.

The rule requiring each club to have two goaltenders dressed and ready to play was passed at the NHL annual meeting in June in Montreal.

Managers, coaches and officials, here for the annual meeting to discuss rules, decided Friday that since teams now must warm up two goaltenders, one at each end of the rink, they will practise separately before games. In previous years the teams warmed up at the same time.

One club will come out 45 minutes before game time and practise for 15 minutes. The other club will appear 30 minutes before the game for a 15-minute workout.

Brian Sopp of Montreal was hired as a linesman, replacing George Hayes, who was dismissed when he refused to take an eye test last spring.

Delegates felt the faceoff interference rule, making contactt during faceoffs a violation, should be more rigidly enforced. Officials will also be told to crack down on player falling to the ice and intentionally freezing the puck by pulling it under their bodies.

Brantford Win Ties Series With Chiefs

BRANTFORD (CP) — Brantford Red Sox scored all their runs in the second inning as they defeated Stratford Chiefs 3-0 Friday night to tie their Senior Inter - County baseball semi-final at two wins each.

The fifth and deciding game will be played tonight in Stratford.

The Sox started their ace, Ron Stead, on the mound but took him out after four innings to save him for the deciding game. Stead gave up only two hits.

Jim Bourne relieved him and held the Chiefs to three hits and two walks.

SEEKS TRIAL

OTTAWA (CP) — Andrew Rice, 24, a defensive lineman and end recently cut by the Chicago Bears of the National Football League, arrived in Ottawa Rough Riders camp Friday for a tryout with the Canadian Football League club.

Wins Trophy With Highest Point Standing

SEATTLE (AP)—Colin Park of Vancouver captured the O'Day Cup in the North American single - handed sailing championships Friday.

Park who took only one first place in nine races, had 109¼ points in over-all standings. Oyar Kuskis of Brockville, Ont., finished eighth with 83 points.

Ready for 1966

Seeks Support For Duck Stamp

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) —Canada's proposed duck stamp will add to the cost of hunting migratory birds but the Canadian Wildlife Service hopes there won't be too many complaints.

"Once hunters see the advantages and necessity of the system, I think they will support the program," says Dennis Benson, chief of biometry—statistical data—for the service. "The hunters have the most to gain and I'm sure they will realize this."

The idea, copied from a U.S. program, still has some details to be worked out but officials hope to be ready to begin issuing stamps for the 1966 season.

The stamps are expected to cost $2 and will be attached to provincial hunting licences. They will probably be sold through the post office.

"There have been misconceptions about the stamps," Benson says. "Some think it's just another type of licensing adding to the cost of hunting. But the purpose of the stamp is to get information, not revenue."

The biggest problem for the wildlife service is a lack of information on migratory bird kills in Canada, he says.

"How can you manage wild fowl when you don't know how many are being killed by hunters, or where they are killed? It's like trying to run a store without keeping an inventory."

PLAN SURVEY

Regional kill figures are provided by the U.S. duck stamp program and most Canadian kill figures are estimated on the basis of these.

The stamps will provide the wildlife service with a complete mailing list of all hunters of migratory birds in Canada so that an accurate sampling program can be set up. This is impossible under present licensing machinery in the provinces because many licences cover small game as well as birds.

An annual survey of about 30,000 hunters will be computed on a regional, provincial and national basis and the results will be made available to the provinces for their programs.

"We have to find out if there is an overkill or if bag limits and seasons can be extended in some regions without hurting the bird population," Benson says. "Right now this is a matter of guesswork and we have a real puzzle on our hands. In the Prairies, for instance, duck production rose between 1963 and 1964, as did U.S. kill figures. But fewer ducks came back to nesting grounds. We don't know whether there was an overkill in Canada so we can't be sure what action to take."

(Regulations announced for the 1965 hunting season reduced the mallard limit in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba to three ducks a day from four, with maximum possession reduced to six from eight.)

Dick Passmore, executive director of the Canadian Wildlife Federation, thinks most hunters realize the need for the duck stamp survey.

"There will be that small minority who will not take the trouble to understand the program and just complain because of the cost. But from our own membership there is every indication of strong support."

Clergymen Replace Atheists As Bible Critics, Charge

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Members of the clergy were criticized Thursday for lacking in faith and being too compromising by speakers at the opening sessions of the Jehovah's Witnesses district assembly here.

There is also a need for greater emphasis on the Bible as the word of God, the 7,750 delegates attending the evening program were told. The assembly continues through Sunday.

Arnold W. McNamara, convention chairman, who opened the program, said that clergy have replaced atheists as critics of the Bible.

Clergymen who preach the "new theology" have been conquered by the world, he said.

"It used to be atheists who attacked the Bible and the moral concepts of our society," he said. "Now it is the clergy themselves."

He cited as examples Rt. Rev. James A. Pike, bishop of the diocese of California, who has called the story of the Garden of Eden a legend and myth, and an Anglican bishop from England who has said the old testament was "full of folklore."

He said that one Toronto clergyman has stated the Old Testament is "full of fanciful tales told by some Hebrews who had no knowledge of science.' 'A Detroit cleric, he said, advocates a "new morality" in which teen-agers, with their parents' consent, be allowed to live together as if married.

"Surely it is obvious that these men have been conquered by the world," he said.

Transmission Tonic Good For All

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Many car owners and station mechanics swear by certain engine oil and gasoline additive products, and undoubtedly some of these do aid overall performance. Similar "tonics" are also available for automatic transmissions.

These are formulated to protect transmission parts against sludge and varnish accumulation, and to keep the transmission working smoothly by re-strengthening or replenishing fluid additives which tend to wear out after a time. They are also recommended and used for preventing or stopping fluid loss due to hardened, cracked seals.

This alone justifies their use, since leakage can cause transmission slippage, gas waste, power loss and even severe damage of precision parts. Auto supply stores and most service stations carry such transmission fluid additives.

From Q.F.: "I recently read that shock absorbers usually need to be replaced after 20,000 miles. As one who has owned seven new cars over the past 20 years, I don't believe it."

Neither do I. Not as far as average care use is concerned, at least. Twice that mileage is a more realistic figure.

H. G. asks: "Our car is over ten-years-old and we've had all sorts of overheating troubles. Now the garage tells us that excess lubricant from the water pump is causing this overheating. Is that logical?"

Yes. Lubricant can get into the cooling system, coat radiator passages and rot rubber hosing.

B.L. asks: "Does a clicking or tapping engine noise mean valve trouble?"

It could. But it might also be from the fuel pump. If so, a damaged rocker arm, spring or pin or a loose pump is the likely trouble.

From S. R.: "I'm at my wits' end trying to cure overheating in my '61 sedan. Radiator hoses, thermostat, radiator pressure cap and water pump were checked out. Then, the ignition, carburetor and fuel delivery systems were tested, but no one could find the answer."

How about the manifold heat control valve? If it's sticking, then engine overheating is a sure result.

Revision Of Church Canons Asked

VANCOUVER (CP) — Publisher Stuart Keate told delegates to the General Synod of the Anglican Church of Canada Thursday night he hoped they will approve proposals to revise the church's "rigid and unrelenting stand on the remarriage of divorced Anglicans."

Mr. Keate, publisher of the Vancouver Sun and president of The Canadian Press, spoke as an active member of the Anglican laity before a synod banquet.

He said he can attest to nation-wide interest in proposals to revise church canons on marriage and divorce.

The changes would make remarriage of divorced Anglicans possible in some circumstances, subject to the approval of tribunals headed by diocesan bishops.

Mr. Keate said:

". . . we cannot escape the facts that one marriage in every six in this country ends in divorce with all its attendant bitterness and suffering. We all know good Anglicans who have been through this wretched process, hope to build themselves a new life and find themselves turned away by the church they genuinely love.

"We have, in fact, been driving these people out of the church, at a time when they most need our compassion and understanding."

Parliamentary Notebook

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Enthusiastic high school students from British Columbia's Okanagan Valley were on Parliament Hill the other day talking excitedly about their first trip to Quebec.

The accounts given by the 24 centennial travellers —among 3,000 students the Centennial Commission and provincial education departments have on the road this summer—indicate the country's national unity problems might be helped by a little more travel by everybody.

The students stayed in Quebec City for two days and in Montreal for four, being billetted at homes where only French is spoken.

Like students in most other provinces, they found their secondary - school French inadequate for conversation, although some said they began to get the hang of it by the time they were leaving.

The most common comment was the different picture they gained of Quebec and its residets compared with the one they had picked up from living in B.C.

'JUST LIKE OURSELVES'

"Out home all we ever hear about are the separatists," said one. "But we found most of the people were just like ourselves and our parents.

"There are more separatists in B.C. than in Quebec. The only difference is that in B.C. the separatists paint obscene words in public places while in Quebec they paint FLQ."

In Montreal, they had three free days to tour where they wanted and to talk to as many people as possible. This, coupled with two days in Quebec City, was too short a time, some said, and many plan to pay another visit to the province when they are older.

Besides the 3,000 under direct sponsorship of the Centennial Commission and the provincial education departments, another 11,000 Canadian high school students have been on the move this summer.

Not all English-speaking students get to Quebec, but all have an opportunity to meet people in a province other than their own.

RECITAL 'INSPIRING'

B.C. BOOM TOWN — Houses are under construction at Gold River, B.C. which two years from now will be a community of 2,000 to 3,000 residents. It will house the families of workers at the logging and pulp mill operations of the Tahsis Company Ltd. The site is surrounded by the rugged mountains of the west coast of Vancouver Island. Vancouver Firm Building Town To House Married Lumberjacks

By STEPHEN SCOTT

GOLD RIVER, B.C. (CP) — This is a community with a grand view, a 14-carat name and nothing else.

It is a brown smudge on the green carpet of forests that rolls over the rugged mountains on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

You can reach Gold River by air, edging between mountain peaks, or by boat or along a twisting 50-mile logging road. Whichever the route, the trip is bound to be bouncy.

The community's school has the sky for its roof and a stagnant lake for its playground. The unnamed main street is a cloud of dust when it's dry and a sea of mud when its wet. Future lawns are still sunken gardens—literally.

Yet businessmen are bidding against each other to come here and the town's founder spends a great deal of money on publicity. It is being built by the Tahsis Company Ltd. of Vancouver to house married workers for its logging operations and to man the pulp mill now under construction.

Two years from now this beautiful but rugged plateau, 120 air miles from Vancouver and 50 miles from the nearest large community, should be a thriving municipality of 2,000 to 3,000 residents.

FIRST BEER PARLOR

The plans call for a shopping centre, complete with a theatre, a hotel and the area's first beer parlor, as well as a motel, stores and various recreational facilities. Sewage and underground electric wiring will be laid and television will be piped in from a mountain-top booster station.

The logging road to Campbell River on the east coast of the island will be turned over to the British Columbia government for improvement and maintenance.

The town's layout and facilities must be lavish because the company is in a stiff competition with other B.C. pulp firms for skilled workers from across Canada.

Mike Norris, project co-ordinator, says modern pulp mill technicians are not content with the rough bunks and open-air cookhouses of the old days.

"They are not transients as the old lumbermen were," he says. "To attract people we've got to have a town. People will come from inside and outside the province because we'll have a good place here."

The families who will settle in Gold River, situated where the Gold and the Heber rivers meet at the head of Muchalat Inlet, will be able to take out low-interest 30-year mortgages on $18,000 houses or live in rented garden apartments. . .

Three small lakes on the townsite will be drained and filled in. The elementary school, which will have boarding facilities, will be built on one of the lake beds.

The soil from the bottoms of the lakes will be used as top soil for the town's gardens.

Tahsis is spending $15,000,000 on developing Gold River but company officials stress that it will not be a company town. Private developers are expected to spend considerably more once the town opens up.

But the company has hired a permanent town planner and is building 44 houses that will be ready for occupancy by October.

For tax purposes the municipality also embraces the pulp mill nine miles away and a luxury logging camp for single workers. Taxes are expected to be about $22 a month for all services.

The pulp mill is expected to go into production in June, 1967, but the company hopes Gold River will be operating as an active community long before that.

Some 30 families now being displaced by the pulp mill will become the town's first citizens and will establish the first seven-man council.

QUESTION: Could you tell me where the Black Hills District is in the U.S.A., and if there are any good roads through the area?

ANSWER: The Black Hills are situated in South Dakota and Wyoming. Named by the Indians for the dark appearance given the slopes by a thick pine covering, they cover about 100 miles from north to south and about 60 miles from east to west, and lie entirely within the Black Hills National Forest. Harney Peak, 7,242 feet, is the highest mountain of the Black Hills, a range containing the highest points in North America east of the Rockies. In some places, particularly the Needles, erosion and weathering have removed all but the granite core of the mountains, leaving cathedral-like spires.

Several good highways traverse the mountainous area. U.S. 14, 16, 16A, 85 and 385, as well as state and forest service roads, cover various portions of the region.

QUESTION: I believe there is a very good zoo somewhere in the Eastern Townships of Quebec. Can you tell me where it is and something about it? — J. S. Belleville

ANSWER: The Granby Zoological Garden, Bourget and Pare Sts., Granby, P.Q., contains a fine collection of animals, picnic area and children's pony rides and miniature train. No pets allowed. Open April to Nov. daily 9 to 5; admission 75 cents, children under 14 free.

QUESTION: I am driving from Belleville to Kenora and have to call in at Toronto and North Bay. From North Bay, which is the shortest route — via Hearst or via Sault Ste. Marie? - P. L. Belleville.

ANSWER: The shortest route from North Bay would be via Sault Ste. Marie. The total mileage from Belleville to Kenora would be 1358 miles via the Soo and 1391 miles via Hearst.

QUESTION: We expect to be in Detroit during the first week of September and, if possible, would like to take in some of the Detroit Tigers' Baseball Games. Could you tell us if there are any games scheduled in Detroit during that period? — G. R., Stirling

ANSWER: There are games at the Tiger Stadium on Sept. 3rd, and 4th, and a double-header on the 5th against Washington; on the 6th and 7th against Boston, and on the 8th against Baltimore.

QUESTION: I am going to La Crosse, Wisconsin. What are some of the points of interest about this city and what would be my best route, using the Milwaukee Clipper Ferry across Lake Michigan? — B. T., Trenton.

ANSWER: Your best route would be by Highways 401 to London, 81, 22 and 7 to Sarnia, State route 21 from Port Huron through Flint to Grand Rapids, then U.S. 96 to Muskegon, where you take the Ferry for Milwaukee. From there, U.S. route 16 takes you right to La Crosse.

La Crosse was founded in 1842 as an Indian trading post, and is now the home of about 200 manufacturing plants. Located on the bank of the Mississippi River, it serves the trading needs of a territory extending into Northeastern Iowa and Southeastern Minnesota. It is the site of two colleges.

The Red Line scenic drive to the east of the city takes you past Grandad Bluff towering 500 feet above the city. From its summit it is possible on clear days, to see three states — Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota.

Riverside Park on the Mississippi River has one of the first aquariums established by the U.S. bureau of Fisheries.

MEET GRIFFON DISCOVERER

Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie Wells, accompanied by their son Charles and Mrs. Wells' sister, Miss Alice Daw of Scarborough, returned Sunday following a motor trip through the Bruce Peninsula, Manitoulin Island and Sault Ste. Marie.

At Tobermory they met Mr. Orrie Vail, who as a boy, found the wreck of LaSalle's boat, The Griffon. Mr. Vail's great-grandfather was the first white settler in Bruce County and his grandfather was the first white baby born among the Indians of the district. As a boy, when fishing in a cove in Georgian Bay, Mr. Vail used to bring in bits of an old wreck of a ship which had been put together with wooden nails.

In 1955, John McLean, a reporter for The Telegram, visited Tobermory and photographed underwater wrecks of old ships. Mr. Vail related his findings. After considerable research and chemical tests of the wood, the wreck was proved to be LaSalle's boat, Griffon.

Announcement has been made by Douglas Rumble, supervisor of the Marmora swimming program, that Herb Demorest and Sally Bleecker were successful in obtaining the Award of Merit of the Royal Life Saving Society of Canada. They were examined on Tuesday by Mrs. Patsy Forbes of the society, obtaining a standing of 90 per cent.

Two Montreal Men Awarded Molson Prizes

OTTAWA (CP) — Jean Gascon, a theatre director who first set out to be a doctor, and Frank Scott, a constitutional law expert who writes poetry, have won the 1965 Molson Prizes for outstanding achievement in the arts, humanities and social sciences.

The awards to the two Montreal men, worth $15,000 apiece, were announced Friday by the Canada Council.

Mr. Gascon, 43, is artistic director of Le Theatre du Nouveau Monde, associate director of the Stratford Sheakespearean Festival and founding director of the National Theatre School.

Mr. Scott, 66, retired last year after three years as dean of McGill University's faculty of law, where he still teaches. He has published several volumes of poetry, including the largely-satirical Blasted Pine.

The awards, created two years ago from a $600,000 gift to the Canada council by the Molson Foundation, go to the author or creator of a work or a person who has rendered a service that "will enrich the cultural or intellectual heritage of the nation."

Add Apartment to Son's Home At Cost of $8,000? - - Maybe

By THOMAS COLLINS

"We have about decided to spend $8,000 to build an apartment onto the home of our married son, and then move into it for our retirement . . ."

But the man is worried about it. So is his wife.

"I will be retiring early next year," he says. "My total income will be about $340, and if I should die my wife would end up with about $170 a month. We don't own a home, but we have savings of close to $14,000.

"On our $340 income we could not rent quarters as nice as the $8,000 apartment would be. My wife would fare worse on her $170. Also we like the idea of being so close to our son and the grandchildren. Our worries lie in the fact we will be surrendering over half of our savings and we aren't sure we could ever get the money back, and in the warning that retired parents have no business living under the same roof with their children . . ."

Under the arrangements being discussed with the son and his wife, the parents would occupy the apartment free for life. They would not have to pay any utility bills. They would furnish the apartment with their own furnishings — refrigerator, stove everything.

"Our son and his wife aren't looking for profit on our arrament. And of course we aren't, looking for profit on our arrangement. And of course we aren't," the man says. "But there are definite advantages for both parties . . ."

CHECK LIST

This retired couple may have a splendid deal in the works. But before you, or anybody, makes such a deal, you should go down the following list and check off each item to your satisfaction. . . because few allowances are made for people who have lived for 65 years to be stupid:

1. Get a firm contract on construction of the apartment to make sure it will be built, no matter what, for the $8,000 price, and will be completed by a certain date.

2. Kiss the $8,000 goodby, because when you have added improvements to somebody else's real estate title you seldom can make a legal claim against it.

3. Since you are, in effect, making your son $8,000 richer, make sure any other children you have know what's up . . . and approve.

4. Do all you can to design the apartment as a first-floor addition to the side or rear of the house and not an upstairs arrangement. The stairs may not matter now, but they will in 10 years.

5. Make sure the apartment is complete within itself, with bath, kitchen, etc., and that it is fully isolated from the son's family. Maybe a door leading from their quarters to yours would be all right if it were kept closed. It is a lack of privacy, all the way from naps and noise to television, that upsets these arrangements.

DON'T TAKE CHANCE

6. Is there any chance that the son might be transferred out of town on his job and want to sell the house? If so, don't take a chance with your $8,000. In any case, make a written agreement with the son and his wife on just what part of the sales price you would get if the house is ever sold.

7 In this written agreement, have a clause guaranteeing your status in the apartment in case your son should die and his wife remarries. Naturally this is not going to happen — but it does. And new husbands don't think much of their predecessor's parents.

8. Have a general understanding with the son and his wife that both parties will come and go as they please, will look in on each other only on occasion, and will lead separate and independent lives.

Retired parents living in an apartment attached to a son's or daughter's house could be good company when his or her spouse is out of town, baby-sitters on all sorts of occasions, house-watchers when the family goes on vacations, nurses and errand runners in times of illness. In return they would have their loved ones near, tender loving care in times of illness or other crisis, security and consolation when one of the parents is finally left to go it alone. And $8,000 for a lifetime home at age 65 isn't bad. In 10 years it would average out to only about $70 per month.

Lines on Life

World Is Full of People Talking to the Wall

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

"Go talk to the wall!"

Researchers working on a great Yiddish dictionary presently being developed have tracked down the origin of this folk-phrase which has been evoked for so long, but whose origin had been lost.

"Talk to the wall," it seems, was the legal and moral advice given by a sixteenth-century Rabbi who was asked a thorny question by a befuddled husband. Apparently, this man had made a "religious" vow, in the presence of witnesses, never again to speak to his wife. Concurrently, she had made a similar vow never to listen to any comments he would address to her.

Confronted by the fact that he could not even advise her that he wanted his dinner, the husband consulted a religious sage whose brilliant solution was: "Talk to the wall!" In this way, he was told, the husband would be in a position of fulfilling his vow and at the same time quite capable of making his wants known. His wife could "overhear," without being directly addressed, and all would still be well!

Admittedly, it was a "brilliant solution." But there is no evidence on record that the man got his dinner. Indeed, it seems quite probable that he ultimately starved to death — since "talk to the wall" has since come to mean, "to talk in vain" or to talk and receive no answer!

Somehow, this bit of linguistic history has a modern echo. The plays and novels of our day are filled with heroes who are really victims — victimized not by their inability to speak, but by the fact that when they do, no one is listening. The breakdown of the lines of communication produces much of the "absurdity of life" about which our talented "communicators" are presently writing.

A typical example of this can be found in almost any contemporary play: Two characters converse in what is supposed to be a "dialogue." Inevitably the dialogue becomes a "double monologue": two people talking, not to, but at each other; each is speaking and neither is listening.

Multiply this example an infinite number of times and you get a picture of a world full of people "talking to the wall." Children and parents, teachers and students, statesmen and nations — all find "getting through to one another an almost impossible task.

Not every problem will be solved when two meet in encounter. But if they were more true encounters there might be fewer unwanted conflicts. One of the simpler ways to add meaning to our own speech and depth to our own feelings and hopes is to pause in the midst of our effusiveness to do but one thing: to listen!

A Lift for Living

World Profits From Persons With Dedicated Imagination

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

The power of imagination has been given a bad name by street corner sages and park bench philosophers "He imagines things!" is a criticism that supposedly indicates the individual is on the brink of lunacy. The person who makes a hobby of worrying or complaining is scoffed at: "His trouble is all in his imagination."

We have all known people who brood over their neighbors, hatching the vilest suspicions of wicked deeds performed in secret. Some people guess wildly at what evil motives prompt even the most innocent acts of others. And we blame such suspicions and guesses on "an evil imagination."

"Day dreaming" and the building of "air castles" seem like inconsequential wasteful trifling to a world that idolizes efficiency, and we can hardly ridicule a person more cynically than to say to him, "He's a dreamer!"

Yet, some of the best things that ever happen occur because someone's life is dominated by a vivid imagination. When it is controlled by worthy aims, imagination produces poetry, drama and novels, music, painting and sculpture. Or imagination synthesizes a collection of facts into a scientific theory like Newton's hypothesis of gravitation. Or it makes for invention, like Edison's incandescent light bulb.

NOBLE USES

The good life, too, depends upon the noble uses of a vivid imagination, for goodness in social conduct involves a person's imagining he is in another's place. ". . .All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them; for this is the law and the prophets," said Jesus.

"Put yourself in another's shoes" is our modern equivalent of Jesus' teaching. And that takes imagination, for we are not actually in someone else's shoes; we are in our own.

One of the most powerful forces for good in the present century has been the American Friends Service Committee, an organization founded by Quakers for offering their services to the world in every kind of philanthropic and charitable endeavor. Established in 1917, the organization has engaged unnumbered selfless people in relieving suffering around the globe.

The chairman and moving spirit of the Committee during its formative years was Rufus Jones, a professor of philosophy, the world's best-known historian of mysticism, a writer, lecturer and religious statesman.

As his biographer, Elizabeth Vining, said about him, "Rufus Jones saw always the human faces beyond the deadly statistics of need and he had the gift of making them vivid both to the workers and to the public to whom he appealed for support." That's it: seeing faces beyond statistics and then doing something about their need!

VITAL DIFFERENCE

Would it not make a vital difference in our behavior if our imaginations were sharpened until we all saw faces beyond statistics?

Would we not drive more carefully if, instead of merely knowing that nearly 40,000 people a year are killed in traffic "accidents" — and hundreds of thousands injured — we saw faces and bodies behind the statistics? Faces that stare vacantly from blood-smeared pavements; faces with mouths that scream in pain; stony faces masked with mixed unbelief and grief — these are the faces behind cold, unfeeling statistics.

Would we not be more concerned and more charitable toward the world's underfed, the unclothed, the persecuted, the displaced persons, the orphans, the sick, the aging who feel lonely and futile, if we could see faces beyond the statistics? We would spend more of our time, money and prayers on the needy if we dedicated our imaginations to seeing suffering people where now we see only collections of facts and figures.

And we will be still more compassionate if we imagine ourselves in their places.

Even if only a few of us will "imagine things" in this fashion we will move a little farther in the direction of making a world brotherhood of our earthly neighborhood.

LIGHTING THE WAY

By Walter S. Crone

HE WAS RICH BUT DIDN'T KNOW IT

In 1959, a 16-year-old youth in Denmark, bought a violin from a second-hand dealer for $10. He wanted to play the violin, and because this one was cheap he bought it.

Four years later, he showed the violin to an expert who found an inscription which read "Joseph Guarnerius, 1HS, Fecit 1700." The expert sent the violin to an English Company to have it examined. After completing their examination, the company notified the youth that all the tests have been positive, and that his violin is a genuine Guarnerius, about 265 years old. Ranking with a Stradivarius, this violin is worth $200,000!

Looking at the instrument, the youth only saw a ten-dollar second-hand violin. It took the discerning eye of the expert to see the real value.

Life holds tremendous values for us, though we may not be aware of them. If all we look for is in things material and physical, we will lose the best life has to offer. Earthly things are not ours for long. The things of the Spirit, like faith, hope, and love, are the abiding, the eternal things. May God give us eyes to see them.

TEXT FOR THE DAY: "The eyes of your understanding being enlightened, that ye may know what is the hope of God's calling, and the riches of the glory of His inheritance in the saints." (Ephesians 1:18)

Healthy Spacemen Qualified Crew For Moon Trip, Plan More Flights

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) —Space agency officials are confident they can move ahead with two more Gemini flights this year despite problems which plagued Gemini 5.

Gemini 6, during which astronauts Walter M. Schirra and Thomas P. Stafford are to link up with another satellite, is set for Oct. 25.

The radar system they plan to use in the manoeuvre received a trial run on Gemini 5 and caused some concern because at times it could measure the angle of a target but not the range.

Gemini 7, a 14-day mission by astronauts Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr., is scheduled for December But difficulties with a fuel cell system, jet thrusters and 10 other pieces of equipment—some of it possibly because of long space exposure—will require re-design.

FIVE REMAIN

Five more rendezvous and docking flights remain after Gemini 7. They all are scheduled next year will attempt to perfect the technique for later Apollo moon shots.

In 1967, three-man Apollo teams will be hoisted into earth orbit to practice for moon trips. The first manned lunar landing is scheduled for 1969, but could be advanced to 1968 if there are no serious problems.

In 1968, the air force will start launching manned orbiting laboratories the size of a house trailer to determine if man can perform useful military missions in space. Two men will ride each laboratory.

By Harold R. Williams

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) —Doctors began investigating the physical condition of the Gemini space champs today — while officials here already spoke enthusiastically of having qualified men for an eight-day roundtrip to the moon.

A sharp eye was kept on astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr. to see whether disturbing symptoms might yet crop up in exhaustive medical examinations.

So far, in tests aboard the aircraft carrier Lake Champlain, no such symptoms had been reported. But the tests will continue for weeks.

Officials here expressed their confidence in a press briefing shortly after the astronauts were toted aboard the Champlain by helicopter Sunday.

Dr. Robert Gilruth, manned spacecraft centre director, said: "As you all know, we are driving forward to go to the moon during this decade, and someone said there in control centre, 'We've now qualified one of the subsysteme for the mission. That's the crew.'"

Dr. Charles Berry, flight surgeon: "We don't like to necessarily consider the crew as subsystems . . . but we certainly have the first of many parts of the Apollo system (the moon rocket project) that are qualified for eight days . . ."

SECLUDE ASTRONAUTS

The space heroes were to sleep as long as they liked today. After more examination, the two men were to be flown to Cape Kennedy, about 400 miles from the aircraft carrier, for the start of 11 days of seclusion.

The two-hour flight will be a snail's pace compared to the 17,500-mile-an-hour speed of the space chariot that carried Cooper, an air force lieutenant-colonel, and Conrad, a navy lieutenant-commander, for almost eight days of weightless flying.

First examinations Sunday indicated the men were in remarkable physical condition.

"They have no symptome of any kind," said Flight Surgeon Howard Minners. "They are in wonderful shape."

"We're glad you're back," President Johnson said in a phone call from his Texas ranch. "God bless you both. We shall be everlastingly proud of you."

Cooper, a 38-year-old veteran of two space trips, and Conrad ended their record-shattering space voyage at 8:55 a.m. EDT Sunday after circling the globe 120 times in seven days, 22 hours and 55 minutes.

Incident Over In A Hurry

By JOHN McLEAN

The incident, which was over quickly in a flurry of handshakes, occurred Saturday at the northern British Columbia construction site of the giant $700,000,000 hydro project on the Peace River, 70 miles upstream from Fort St. John.

The six Russians, travelling across Canada as the guests of the Canadian government, had just completed 10 days of hedgehopping across the Far North.

On one side of a snowy tablecloth in B.C. Hydro and Power Authority's dining hall sat Andrei Ivanovich Slivinsky. Opposite him was H. P. (Pat) O'Donnell, a 61-year-old Irish-American who has bossed many of the world's great construction projects.

Mr. Slivinsky, a member of the council of ministers of the U.S.S.R. and deputy chairman of his country's state committee on construction, had been absorbing the staggering statistics of the Portage Mountain dam.

HEARS FIGURES

He had been told more than 100,000,000 tons of silt would be piled 600 feet high to shape the great dam, that $10,000,000 had been spent alone on a 15,000-foot long conveyor belt which can deliver 12,000 tons of fill each hour and load a 100-ton dump truck in 30 seconds.

Mr. Slivinsky, jotting the figures down in his crammed notebook, was interested in how B.C. Hydro arrived at a cost structure in advance.

He was repeating questioning he began early in the tour—how do Canada's builders arrive at estimates, how do they fix their budgets, how can they say a project will cost $700,000,000 and come out even at the end?

Not satisfied with the answers he got from Dr. Gordon Schrum, co-chairman of B.C. Hydro, Mr. Slivinsky turned his guns on Mr. O'Donnell, construction manager, and began by quoting an article in a U.S. construction magazine.

"I'm an American," said Mr. O'Donnell, pointing his finger at the Russian minister in a manner that suggested they might be getting on thin ice.

ALLOW LESS

Mr. Slivinsky said the article indicated Americans allowed about 15 per cent on their estimates to provide for contin-

Viet Cong Overruns 6 Outposts

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B-52 bombers from the Strategic Air Command again hit suspected Viet Cong positions in two weekend raids in South Viet Nam, a U.S. military spokesman announced today.

Communist gunners shot down an American plane over North Viet Nam and Viet Cong guerrillas attacked six outposts south of Saigon, overrunning three of them.

One of the B-52 strikes was made Saturday 325 miles north of Saigon. The other, on Sunday, again hit Zone-D, the 600-square-mile jungle area which starts 30 miles north of Saigon.

The spokesman said an F-105 Thunderchief was downed by ground fire Sunday on a bombing mission 80 miles northwest of Hanol.

Another F-105 was lost Sunday when it developed engine trouble over North Viet Nam.

The Communists stepped up activity in the Mekong Delta and also attacked and briefly

Steel Negotiators Called To White House for Parley

WASHINGTON (AP) —President Johnson summoned steel negotiators to a White House meeting today in an attempt to end what he called a stalemate and to head off a strike.

The president dispatched his personal plane to Pittsburgh to bring the 10 principal spokesmen for unions and steel producers to the conference table at the White House The chief negotiators are U. W. Abel, president of the United Steelworkers Union, and R. Conrad Cooper, representing 10 major producers.

The plane is expected to get them to Washington in time for an early afternoon session with Johnson, Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz and Commerce Secretary John T. Donnor.

The strike deadline is Tuesday midnight.

Johnson's decision to take a personal hand in the steel dispute at this point followed a report from the fact-finding team he sent to Pittsburgh Saturday. The word from the two members, Senator Wayne Morse (Dem. Ore.) and Undersecretary of Commerce Leroy Collins was that the negotiators were getting nowhere and the negotiations were stalemated.

So Johnson decided, a White House statement said, "to request the principal negotiators of both parties to come to the White House immediately."

The White House said Johnson got a thorough, compre-

Diefenbaker Thinks Reds Would Win Southeast Asia If U.S. Quit Viet Nam

EDMONTON (CP)—Communism would sweep through Southeast Asia if the United States without negotiation withdrew from South Viet Nam, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Sunday.

He told reporters at a press conference it might be popular for him to say that the U.S. should leave Viet Nam. However, he was "convinced" U.S. withdrawal would result in a sweep of Southeast Asia by communism.

Later in a speech, Mr. Diefenbaker told 1,500 persons attending Ukrainian Day celebrations that Canadians must never take freedom for granted so long as "millions of people remain in bondage to the U.S.S.R."

The Opposition leader arrived here Saturday night and left late Sunday for Calgary and Ottawa after talks with Alberta Progressive Conservative leaders.

During his address to the Ukrainians, Mr. Diefenbaker said Canada must take every opportunity to let the Soviet Union know that the "bondage" of the Ukraine, Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia and other countries is an affront.

"Your great contribution as a people is your abiding belief in the guiding principles of democracy and freedom," he told an overflow crowd in the auditorium of the Ukrainian Greek Orthodox Cathedral of St. John's.

He said the outcome in Viet Nam will determine the freedom of many nations.

The Ukrainian Day celebrations were to be held at Elk Island Park, east of Edmonton, but rain forced activities indoors.

At the press conference, Mr. Diefenbaker scoffed at the idea that Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta is the only real conservative spokesman in Canada.

"The voice of conservatism cannot be the voice of reaction," he remarked.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he does not believe his Progressive Conservative party must oppose all social advances such as medical care insurance schemes in order to qualify as a Conservative party.

Commenting on Mr. Pearson's nine-day tour of Western Canada, Mr. Diefenbaker said the political climate on the Prairies hasn't changed. He felt Progressive Conservatives have great strength in the West.

Winter-like Weather Brings Out Woolies

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With hundreds of Canadians still on vacation, Arctic weather swept down into Alberta, Quebec and Ontario during the weekend, setting off a late-summer scramble for woolies.

Snow fell near Edmonton and Knob Lake, Que., and record low temperatures for August were reached in five Ontario cities.

At Knob Lake, near Hudson Bay, four inches of snow fell and six to eight inches blanketed isolated sections of the Rocky Mountains near Edmonton.

The sudden eastern arctic blast swept across Hudson Bay from Iceland and Greenland after a low pressure area in

Only Day For Vote In Doubt

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Apparently spurred by the results of a nine-day visit to Western Canada, Prime Minister Pearson flew back to Ottawa Sunday in the grip of election fever and, as he prepared to report to his cabinet Wednesday only the exact date of a fall election seems to be in any doubt.

The prime minister, who is believed to have gone to the West Coast with fairly firm plans to call a general election this fall, obviously strengthened his stand during the nine days. By Saturday night in Edmonton he was giving 700 listeners the most rousing campaign-type speech since the 1963 election.

Far from discouraging the almost-unanimous belief that Canadians will go to the polls this fall, the prime minister consistently shovelled more fuel on the speculation.

Saturday night he referred—on two occasions—to the party challenges in "the weeks and months" ahead. He even used the term "forthcoming election" before changing this, with a laugh, to "future."

At no time during the nine days did he say anything to indicate that no 1965 election would be held. Nov. 8 is the date around which most of the speculation is centred.

SAYS TRIP WONDERFUL

The prime minister described his western trip as "wonderful," and he was reported to be highly buoyed over the reception he received in British Columbia and Alberta.

"If he harbored any doubts about an immediate election," said a source close to him, "the last nine days apparently eliminated them."

In both provinces, Mr. Pearson met strong party pressures for a fall vote. In British Columbia party organizers told him they were highly optimistic of gaining two seats, and there were lesser hopes in the others.

In Alberta, Mr. Pearson also was told that prospects are high for two additional seats—Agriculture Minister Hays now is the only Liberal member from the province—and some party workers were talking in terms of four and even six, more seats.

Although the pressure for an early election was believed to be less unanimous and strong in Alberta than in B.C., Mr. Hays is known to be among those who is anxious for the

Dominican Rebels and OAS Troops Trade Heavy Fire

SANTO DOMINGO (AH) — Rebel troops and the inter-American peace force engaged in a heavy exchange of fire during the night in the most serious outbreak in the Dominican Republic since June.

Rebel headquarters reported at least five dead and 10 wounded in the sharp, two-hour exchange.

Organization of American States sources said rebel casualties had been reported to them as nine dead and 31 wounded. An unconfirmed report said a Paraguayan soldier of the inter-American force had been slightly wounded.

There were indications the shooting was touched off by mortar fire directed at the rebel sector of the city by troops of the civilian-military junta.

The incident occurred amid reliable reports that an agreement was imminent on an OAS formula for ending the four-month Dominican crisis.

U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker of the OAS political committee told reporters he did not believe the latest shooting incident would affect the peace efforts.

A peace force spokesman claimed earlier the shooting started when the rebels attacked the presidential palace in the demilitarized zone.

The rebels denied this and said it started with mortar fire from junta-held territory north of the presidential palace.

Magistrate Declines to Hear 2nd Count Against Accused

A young Marlbank man today was fined $150. and costs for leaving the scene of a car crash in Belleville.

After convicting Winston DeShane, 23, Magistrate T. Y. Wills decided he would not hear a further charge of resisting arrest against the man.

He suggested another magistrate take the case and remanded DeShane to September 28.

His decision after evidence was given by two city police constables on circumstances surrounding DeShane's arrest during which they said they had to use their billies on the accused. Afterward, DeShane was given treatment at the outpatients ward of Belleville General Hospital.

The incident occurred July 30, when an automobile collided with a Trenton taxi at the intersection of Coleman and West Moira Streets.

Anton Dangenov, an airman stationed at Trenton RCAF base and working part-time as a cab driver, said vehicle was struck in the rear by another car. He spoke with the driver of the car who drove off before police arrived — but not before Dangenov had taken its licence number. However, he agreed with defence counsel Robert Temple it was difficult to positively identify DeShane as the driver.

DeShane's automobile was stopped later by Provincial Police on Highway 50 at Marysville and city constables Doug Martin and Barry Titterson were sent to the scene.

ADMITS DRIVING CAR

Both city officers testified DeShane told them he had been driving the car all night.

DeShane resisted when they were placing him in their cruiser and in the fracas they hit him with their billies.

Constable Titterson described DeShane as "a very powerful man" and said the accused was swinging and kicking at the time.

DeShane also was treated for a broken toe at Belleville General Hospital. The officers said they believed he may have suffered the injury when his foot kicked the wheel of his automobile. His shoe was later found under the wheel.

The OPP officers did not draw their billies nor did they hold the accused, said Constable Titterson.

Constable Martin said he did not swing his billy at full strength because "I realize the damage a billy can do."

Detective Dale Ashbury, city identification officer, said damaged car parts found at the scene matched with damage on DeShane's car.

"As far as I'm concerned there is no basis for reasonable doubt whatsoever," said the magistrate, summing up the evidence and convicting the accused.

86 Football Clubs Asked To Resign

LONDON (Reuters)—Eighty-six English Football League clubs were ordered today by league secretary Alan Dardaker to submit their resignations to the Football Association within the next three days.

Last week the association asked all English League clubs to sign a declaration within seven days that they will not pay amateurs.

All but two, First Division Chelsea—whose chairman Joe Mears is also chairman of the Football Association—and Third Division Peterborough, have refused. Most of the clubs said they consider it an insult that their chairmen and secretaries should be asked to sign such a declaration.

Resigning from the Football Association would mean that clubs would no longer be required to sign the declaration, but they would, at the same time, retain their link with the governing body through affiliation to the county associations.

The four Welsh clubs in the league—Cardiff City, Swansea Town, Newport County and Wrexham—do not come under the FA.

Joanne McNevin Top Cow Girl At Rodeo

The Glen Roy stables, headed by Joanne McNevin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don McNevin, made an excellent showing at the Rodeo held at the Community Gardens in Kingston over the weekend. At the conclusion of the events, Miss McNevin took centre stage when she was presented with the Cow Girl trophy.

Miss McNevin, riding her registered quarter horse, King's Crystal, won the barrel racing on Saturday night and Sunday afternoon and her horse was only two tenths of a second off winning the top horse of the show. On Saturday night she won the pole bending race and was fourth in the Pick - Up and Keyhole races, while on Sunday she was second in the pick - up event, fifth in the pole bending and fourth in the keyhole.

Over 2,000 were on hand for the Saturday night's performance and 3,500 crowded into the Gardens on Sunday to watch the events. The sponsors are already preparing for a bigger and better show next year.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, West Germany (Reuters) — Chancellor Ludwig Erhard said Saturday night the West German government intends to address "frank words" to Canada and Britain in an effort to clarify differences over Western security.

Erhard said that, on his instructions, Foreign Minister Gerhard Schoroeder has been in contact with the Canadian and British governments in an attempt to clarify important questions.

"We want no atomic weapons, but we want a guarantee for our security," he said.

Erhard's statement, made to the news agency Deutsche Presse - Agentur, followed recent concern by Bonn leaders over Britain's announced intention to remove Corporal nuclear missiles from its Army of the Rhine.

Alarm also has been expressed over a Canadian proposal at the Geneva disarmament conference that the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union should hold discussions to allay Soviet suspicions of the proposed NATO nuclear force.

IS CAMPAIGNING

Erhard, on a campaign tour for the Sept. 19 general election, said his government regards itself as responsible for the security of the German people, who are part of a firmly established Atlantic community.

The government would therefore have frank words to address to Canada and Britain because it believes that "in this important sphere, important questions must be clarified."

West Germany is prepared to make any reasonable contribution towards solution of the world's great problems, he said.

An internal squabble between Erhard and former chancellor Konrad Adenauer in the ruling Christian Democrat party continued to be the dominant issue as the election campaign reached its halfway mark.

Erhard, facing a two-pronged attack from the 89-year-old Adenauer, appeared to have yielded some ground with his statement that the government would have to address frank words to Canada and Britain to clarify differences over defence strategy.

MOVES CLOSER

Already Adenauer, still party chairman, appears to have forced Erhard to move closer to his views on suspected dangers in British, Canadian and also American moves in the disarmament and defence fields.

Meanwhile the government, under pressure from Adenauer and those who follow his lead, will be an awkward partner in NATO until Sept. 19 as it seeks assurances from London, Ottawa and Washington that German interests will be respected in any international disarmament negotiations.

The root of the trouble is West Germany's suspicion that its allies would be ready to "sell out" its political and security interests in exchange for a deal with the Soviet Union on disarmament and other world problems.

Adenauer, foremost advocate of the "hard line" against Moscow, ignited the row with a speech attacking an American draft in the Geneva conference for a treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons.

WELCOMED DRAFT

Erhard, who originally welcomed the draft, was forced to move closer to the Adenauer line under factional pressure and re-emphasize Bonn's demands that West German security interests be respected.

Canada added more fuel to the flames when its chief disarmament delegate, Lt-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, suggested negotiations among the United States, Russia and Britain to soften Soviet suspicions of the proposed NATO nuclear force.

Apparently not reassured by its allies' explanations, the government will press the matter further in Ottawa and London.

Knowing the party and electoral pressures Erhard is under, the U.S., Canadian and British ambassadors in Bonn appear only moderately concerned about the present crisis of confidence. But they admit that, with another three weeks of the election campaign ahead, this could develop into a searching examination of Germany's position in the alliance and its fate as an important country.

Five Are Dead Of Suspected Encephalitis

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The number of suspected cases of encephalitis among humans on the Prairies this weekend rose to 118. Five persons with suspected encephalitis have died.

Dr. J. G. Clarkson, Saskatchewan's deputy health minister, said Saturday the number of suspected cases in Saskatchewan totalled 95.

Health officials reported 15 suspected encephalitis cases in Alberta and eight in Manitoba.

The term encephalitis means an inflammation of the brain, Dr. Clarkson said. The disease, commonly known as sleeping sickness, is difficult to identify and there are several varieties caused by different viruses.

Dr. Clarkson said the mumps viris appears to be one of the leading causes of the current outbreak in Saskatchewan. Four cases have been identified as mumps encephalitis.

Encephalitis can be a complication of mumps, but this type of mumps is not the classic kind with swollen glands, Dr. Clarkson said.

IDENTIFY TWO

In Saskatchewan two cases have been identified as being western equine encephalitis.

The western equine variety is believed spread by mosquitoes, which have been heavier than usual through Western Canada this year. The equine disease, which also attacks horses, is not contagious among people.

INCLUDE CHILDREN

Dr. Clarkson said 15 of the suspected encephalitis cases in Saskatchewan appear caused by an entero virus, which gives rise to a variety of illnesses but can also cause encephalitis.

He added that a large number of patients with suspected encephalitis appear to be recovering but that some are seriously ill.

Health authorities advised Prairie residents to take precautions against mosquitoes. The outbreak likely will die out with the first frost which kills the mosquitoes, they said.

Meanwhile two cases of encephalitis were reported in the Matheson region 42 miles east of Timmins. Both victims are reported recovering.

Negro Admits Cutting Tongue From Aged Man

GREENSBORO, Ala. (AP)—State and county authorities said Sunday night that a young Negro admitted beating an 87-year-old Negro, cutting his tongue out and then robbing him of $26.

The victim, Perry Smaw, of near Greensboro, was found crumpled in the doorway of his home a week ago. He died five days later without being able to identify his assailant.

Hale County Prosecutor Richard Poellnitz and Col. Al Lingo, state public safety director, said in a joint statement that 21-year-old Roosevelt Long signed a statement Sunday night admitting the attack on Smaw.

There had been speculation that the elderly Negro might have been killed because he allegedly had spoken out against recent civil rights demonstrations in Greensboro.

But Poellnitz and Lingo said Long was not a civil rights leader.

A preliminary hearing on a murder charge will be held today.

Two Kingston Youths Jailed For One Month

Two Kingston youths today were jailed for a month by Magistrate T. Y. Wills for heaving a brick through a service station window.

Gus de Costa, 19, and Ronald Alfred Kehoe, 20, both pleaded guilty to wilful damage — in an incident police claimed had overtones of attempted burglary.

They were arrested after George McGillivray, operator of a service station on Highway 2 west of Belleville, was awakened by the shattering of the window and called police.

Six Children Die in Fire At Sherbrooke

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Six children of the same family, ranging in age from seven to 17, died in a fire in their parents' home in this city 100 miles east of Montreal Sunday.

Dead are six of the 11 children of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Dupre, Gerald, 17, Gerard, 16, Pierre, 12, Carole, 11, Jocelyne, 8, and Marie-Ange, 7.

Three children of the family and a cousin, who were in the wooden house when the fire broke out, escaped the flames. Two other children and the parents were absent at the time.

Police said the cause of the fire had not been determined. They were questioning the father of the family, who was reported to have been away at a summer cottage with Mrs. Dupre for the weekend.

Three Malaysian States Target for Infiltration

By JOHN CANTWELL

KUCHING, Malaysia (AP)—Suddenly the tiny Chinese clapboard house was surrounded by Dyak police.

Some carried parangs — the dreaded long knives they used to part heads from bodies back in their head-hunting days. Most toted modern sub-machine-guns.

They had slipped silently through the lush green lines of pepper trees that edged on the house. Now they ordered the Chinese inside to come out.

The door of the house, covered with Chinese good luck characters faded by the fierce Borneo sun, opened and a Chinese in blue pyjamas shuffled slowly out.

The police then searched the house, turning it upside down in their search for arms. A report had been received that the Chinese was hiding weapons for the Clandestine Communist Organization — the pro-Peking terror group that has threatened to take over this Malaysia state.

Scenes like this are an every day occurrence in Sarawak—a still largely primitive backwater the size of England.

EXPECT REPETITION

With the encouragement given to Indonesia by the separation of Singapore from Malaysia—the first crack in the federation Jakarta has promised to break up—these scenes are likely to be repeated in Malaysia's other Boreo state, Sabah, and the British protectorate of Brunei.

These three states now are likely to be top priority targets for Indonesian infiltration. British authorities believe the Indonesians will make an all-out effort to stir up internal trouble.

In Sarawak, 15 per cent of the 244,000 Chinese are believed pro - Peking Communist and anti-Malaysia. The Indonesians will find these elements willing subjects for revolution. The Chinese make up nearly one-third of the state's population.

Already Chinese Communists led by Indonesian regulars have attacked a police post and left nine dead.

In Brunei, an oil-rich state, the threat comes from about 1,800 rebels living in the jungles. They tried to overthrow the sultan in 1962.

Sultan Omar Ali Saifuddin, 53, does not help lessen the threat. Despite British pressure he still pockets the greater part of the royalties that come in from the Seria oilfields operated by Shell. This and his autocratic ways have made him unpopular among the Malays who form most of the 90,000 population of the country. His attitude was mainly responsible for the revolt in 1962, which British troops quelled quickly.

One British official said recently that the present situation in Brunei is worse now than it was before the last revolt.

The largest town in the state is Brunei. Except for the imposing gold-minaretted Omar Ali Saifuddin mosque and the artificial lagoon that surrounds it, the sultan's palace and a handful of government buildings, the rest of the capital is little more than a shanty town.

At one stage the sultanate of Brunei extended over most of the islands of Borneo. The name Borneo in fact is an early variation of Brunei.

It started to decline toward the end of the 16th century. By the 19th century most of its territory was taken over by the English adveturer James Brooke, who became the first white rajah and made Sarawak his private domain.

In the other Malaysian state in Borneo, Sabah, the threat of internal unrest is posed by some 19,000 Indonesians who work in the state's large timber industry.

British intelligence officers believe Indonesia already has tried to make use of these Indonesians for subversion and feel sure that they now will increase their efforts.

Sabah also faces all-out Indonesian aggression along its southern border—especially in the Tawau area.

Tawau is one of the areas of heaviest Indonesian pressure along a 900-mile border based largely on a natural watershed that divides Malaysia and Indonesia.

The internal threat to Sarawak, Brunei and Sabah is summed up by Britain's director of Borneo operations, Maj-Gen. George Lea.

"The Indonesians will try to infiltrate small parties of saboteurs, terrorists, assassinators, subverters and spies to spread alarm and despondency and to lower civilian morale," Lea says.

"We can be sure that the Indonesians will not rest with what they have achieved so far."

Armored Car Takes Beatles To Concert

The armored car and elaborate police security measures worked: There were no riotous incidents despite the huge throng in and outside the bowl. But about 100 youngsters were arrested as they tried to crash the show, seen by a sellout crowd of 17,600.

Quiet was something no one succeeded in imposing. The throng shrieked from the moment the Beatles appeared until they finished their numbers half an hour later—with only a slight decrease in noise level during the numbers.

Gemini Trip Longer Than Moon Voyage

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — When man goes to the moon he won't travel as fast as Gemini 5 astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr. did in their eight days around the world.

It's only 240,000 miles to the moon but it will take as long to get there and back as it took the Gemini 5 space twins to whirl 3,338,200 miles around the world.

The reason: Gravity will try to pull a moonbound spacecraft back toward the earth. Going to the moon will be like riding a bicycle uphill.

The Gemini 5's speed was 17,500 miles an hour, but a lunar shot will have to be launched with a speed of at least 25,000 miles an hour to escape the earth's gravity.

Little League Ball Sets Town in Whirl

STONEY CREEK, Ont. (CP) Stoney Creek All Stars' loss in the little League Baseball World Series at Williamsport Saturday didn't dampen the spirits of most of the 6,500 population of this community.

"The excitement was almost mass hysteria," said Mayor Jack Watson, who accompanied a third of the population of Stoney Creek to Williamsport to see the All Stars lose 3-1 to Windsor Locks, Conn.

"Everybody was caught up in the glorious turmoil."

The town is planning the biggest celebration in its history for the boys when they arrive home Wednesday. They will be paraded through the town in convertibles, behind brass bands to the community baseball park.

Some residents suggested re-dedicating a 100 - foot monument — marking a battle between American and British troops during the 1812-14 war—to the team.

Mayor Watson said that each boy will be presented with a gold ring with the town's crest on it and "the whole town will turn out for the shindig."

The parade will also honor the town's senior Little League team who won the Canadian title, but were defeated by a team from Texas in the senior Little League world series in Iowa two weeks ago.

N.B. Couple First Canadians To Get Award

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. K. C. Irving of Saint John Sunday night became the first Canadians to receive the Eleanor Roosevelt Humanities Award.

They received it from James Roosevelt of California, eldest son of the late United States president and Mrs Franklin D. Roosevelt, at a dinner given by the Saint John Israel Bond Committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving, who received the award in tribute to their humanitarian efforts, were given a standing ovation by the gathering of more than 400 persons.

Only other persons to receive the international award have been former U.S. president Harry Truman, U.S. Vice-President Hubert Humphrey and film star Edward G. Robinson. Mrs. Irving is the first woman to receive it.

Others speaking briefly at the dinner were Premier Louis J. Robichaud, D. Lou Harris, national chairman of the State of Israel bond organization and Allan Bronfman, Canadian industrialist, philanthropist and patron of the arts.

Mr. Roosevelt, newly designated U.S. representative to the United Nations Economic and Social Council, in his speech called for a swords - to - plow shares approach in Middle East diplomacy.

He said that if peace and understanding can be established in the Middle East "before the time bomb explodes, we will have set an example for the rest of the world to follow."

Train Hits Car, Farm Fugitive And Sister Die

HAMILTON (CP) — A man who escaped June 19 from Burwash Industrial Farm near Sudbury and his sister were killed Saturday night when the car in which they were riding was hit by a train while being chased here by a motorcycle policeman.

Dead are Terrence Stewart Leach, 22, and Mrs. Judy-Ann Schuermann, 16, both of Toronto.

Reported in satisfactory condition in hospital are John Dennis Leach, 18, brother of the dead pair, George Schuermann, 13, of Thessalon, the dead girl's brother-in-law, and Catherine Muller, 15, Toronto.

Provincial police said the car was reported stolen Aug. 20 from Kinsale, near Whitby.

Police said the car, driven by Terrence Leach, had been racing alongside a Toronto-bound CNR passenger train while being chased by Constable G. W. Shields.

Attempting to place the train between the car and motorcycle, Leach sped past a crossing barrier in front of the train which struck the car broadside.

Police said Leach had been living in Toronto under an assumed name since he escaped from the prison farm while serving 12 months for breaking, entering and theft.

Clerk Resigns After Lie Test

TORONTO (CP) — A civilian clerk with the metropolitan Toronto police force has resigned after 12 clerks were given lie detector tests during an investigation of $10 missing from the accident bureau.

Deputy Chief John Murray said the clerks took the tests voluntarily.

Police began an investigation two weeks ago when two $5 bills sent to the bureau for photostat copies couldn't be found. Police said no charges will be laid.

Results of lie detector tests cannot be used as evidence in court. Police, who do not own such a device, borrowed one from a private investigation firm.

Survival Test Continuing Despite Snow

CALGARY (CP) — Hal Werner decided Sunday to continue the "running bear survival project" and remain in the Kananaskis wilds despite near-freezing temperatures and 1½ inches of snow.

Ron Dubrick, who dropped the project last week and left the woods, said Mr. Werner was in high spirits despite the weather.

Mr. Werner, 35, recreation director at Mount Royal College here, went into the Kananaskis Valley, 60 miles west of Calgary, Wednesday after Mr. Dubrick was forced to abandon the project.

The project is designed to show that persons lost in the wilds can survive if they don't panic. It was hoped that Mr. Werner will be able to survive until Tuesday.

Mr. Werner is clad only in a sweater, shorts and running shoes. The only equipment he has with him is a leather thong that was to be used to start a fire. However, it was too wet and matches were used.

Bricklayers, Plasterers Back on Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — Members of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union CLC returned to work today, ending a construction strike that tied up the building industry here for nearly three months.

The union voted Sunday to accept an agreement negotiated with the general contractors section of the Toronto Construction Association.

The industry-wide strike began June 11 when the Operative Plasterers and Cement Masons' International Union CLC walked off the job. The bricklayers and stone masons struck June 25.

Donald Williams, union business agent, said the four-year agreement provides for an increase of about 90 cents an hour in wages and 16 cents in fringe benefits.

Four Teen-agers Sustain Cuts, Bruises, Car Hits Tree

FRANKFORD — Injured and taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital were five teen-age passengers of a 1964 vehicle that struck a tree after leaving the road one mile north of here. Time of the accident that caused some $400 damage was placed at 2.30 p.m. on Sunday afternoon.

Taken to hospital with face and head cuts were Judy Woodward, 16, and twin sister, Joyce, both of Glen Miller; Cecile Sweet, 15, of Trenton, who received face cuts and Larry Richardson, 16, of Frankford, driver, who had face cuts and a broken wrist. All four were kept in hospital over night.

Donald Sager, 15, of Stirling, the fifth passenger, was released after being treated for shock.

Constable William "Bill" Reynolds of Frankford police force, said he went to the scene only to find no one in the vehicle. Checking with a nearby resident he found the accident victims in a dazed condition at the home of Cory Hearns. The constable stated two of the victims were badly cut and bleeding so "I packed all five in the police car and rushed them to hospital."

Police chief Ed McGeachy of Frankford was kept busy untangling the traffic jam; cars by hundreds of Sunday motorists attracted to the scene by the wail of sirens, emitting from several police cars and ambulances.

Misery for Millions If No Rain in India

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—Five million villagers in northern India are the victims of the severest drought in a decade. Unless monsoon rains break out soon, only misery is in store for many more millions in rural India.

The worst affected areas are in the states of Bihar, West Bengal, Rajasthan and Uttar Pradesh.

Paddy fields have become parched and burnt; wells have dried up; village streams are no more than dusty streaks of rock and sand; and in many rural areas even the fruit - giving mango trees have shrivelled up.

The Amrita Bazar Patrika, Calcutta's leading daily, says that "near starvation" conditions prevail in some Bihar districts. It says that tribal people in the forests have been forced to live on leaves and jungle shoots.

Official sources admit that the position is serious but point out that the drought has affected only a small part of the country's cultivated area.

A good ministry source said that the drought will not make any "sizable difference" to the national food position.

India has been rallying from a severe food crisis. The country only recently turned the corner after serious grain shortages.

Opposition and ruling Congress party politicians have cautioned the government not to be "complacent" over the drought situation.

Bhagwat Jha Azad, a Congress party MP belonging to Bihar, said in a statement that in the Bhagalpur region of his state there was "near famine."

The district magistrate of Bhagalpur is quoted in the press as having described the drought situation as "alarming."

The Bombay Times of India says 1,700,000 persons in 3,400 villages of Rajasthan state have been hit by scarcity conditions.

Reports speak of migration of men and cattle from Rajasthan to the neighboring state of Madhya Pradesh which is a food surplus area.

In some Bihar and Rajasthan towns water is said to be selling at one rupee (18 cents) a gallon.

The government has organized relief works on a large scale in the affected areas. Peasants are being advanced interest-free loans to help tide them over the crisis.

Some 200 persons have so far died in northern India because of the intense heat wave.

A dozen New Delhi residents died in the heat wave which sent affluent Indians and members of the diplomatic colony to Kashmir, Simla and other cool mountain resorts.

No Additional Detonators Are Recovered

TRENTON — Trenton police say no further detonators have been turned in since last Friday, when more than 600 of the highly explosive pieces of blasting equipment were given to RCAF service police by an unidentified youth. The caps had been taken from a Carr's Electric construction shed on North Byron Street earlier in the week, after the door to the hut was forced.

Police think the bulk of the caps has been recovered, but issued an appeal to parents to be on the lookout for the dangerous caps, which are described as being copper or silver color, an inch and a half to two inches long, some with wires, others, without.

Changed Keys Delay Mail

TRENTON — Businessmen and secretaries who ordinarily collect the mail shortly after 8 a.m. found themselves in long lines at the new federal building this morning, as keys to boxes in the old post office had to be replaced by keys to boxes in the new building. Other than that, business was being conducted "as usual" by the post office staff in their new quarters.

Sunday's Low Of 38 Equals Aug. 29 Record

TRENTON — Last night's low of 38 degrees reported by the duty forecaster at RCAF Station Trenton, equals a record low set in 1934 and which occurred again on this same date, Aug. 29, in 1940.

Unofficially a resident of Orland, near Brighton reports 32 degrees at 6 a.m. today.

At the Smithfield Dominion Experimental Farm, temperatures were 41 Saturday night and 40 Sunday night.

Ernest Wilson reports from the farm that tomatoes and corn won't do much ripening in the cold weather, but hopes the situation will get better.

gencies. "In Russia," he said, "we allow only three per cent."

Jabbing his finger again at an invisible wall, Mr. O'Donnell pointed out that the Russians had more control of costs, labor and other factors. There was no mistaking his argument: In the U.S. things didn't just happen because a state committee willed them to happen. There were unions and rushing cost of living and things that cost so much today would cost a lot more several years from now.

Mr. Slivinsky changed the subject and the tension in the room dropped several degrees.

The use of galvanized steel siding at several projects they saw in Canada's North drew the greatest enthusiasm from the Russians.

They have indicated they may be in the market either for Canadian materials or Canadian know-how in the setting up of production plants.

WANTS EXCHANGE

The Russians, accompanied by Arthur Laing, minister of northern affairs, later flew to Prince George where Mr. Laing told a meeting of civic leaders Canada would like to formalize an exchange of scientists with Russia in the interests of northern development in the two countries.

"I want our contacts and exchanges to continue to grow," he said.

Mr. Slivinsky said the northern tour had "made a very great impression upon us." He said Canada is engaged in a vast undertaking in the North. What he had seen was well organized and the use of natural resources in construction was "at a maximum."

Cars Roll Over, Drivers Escape

TRENTON — Arthur Bruce Forsythe, 18, of R. R. 1, Wooler, escaped injury when his 1955 Dodge went out of control on a curve on the Trenton Suburban Road, just north of the town line, around 7 p.m., Saturday, and flipped over on its roof. The car was damaged to the extent of $500.

Pamela Meridal Lake, 23, also escaped injury in a similar accident on Highway 401, west of the Little Lake overpass, around 6.30 p.m. Sunday. Her car rolled over three times and was damaged to the extent of $500.

Both accidents were investigated by provincial police from the Brighton detachment.

Seeking New Industry

"[illegible] Belleville for Industrial Sites" is the ad[illegible] poster that greets visitors to some of the approaches to the city.

The poster adds: "Live and Work in Pleasant Surroundings."

Recently we referred to the absence of new industries in Belleville, noting that existing ones have been here for some years.

The poster reflects the city's desire to attract new enterprises, but it may be that the community will have to blow its own trumpet a little louder. It may be that the Industrial Commission will have to sell the city's attractions a little harder.

One attraction the city will be able to hold out as bait is the new Canadian National freight terminal which, when completed, will ensure greatly increased efficiency and volume for the shipment of products from plants here.

A tip we might take from the British is the practice throughout the United Kingdom in recent years of building "advance factories." This policy proved very successful in Northern Ireland, with many American firms being encouraged to set up subsidiaries by reason of the fact that plants were available and ready for occupation.

Missionary Zeal

Father Bernard Brown, the Roman Catholic missionary accompanying the Indian and Eskimo canoeists from the Northwest Territories has spent 18 years at Colville Lake, 950 miles north of Edmonton.

This is the sort of dedication that perhaps is lacking among the whites who come in contact with Arctic dwellers.

Only this week, the government-sponsored Carrothers commission on a fact-finding tour of the Arctic was told that a main problem in the North is the big turnover in government personnel.

Jim Clark, manager of the Hudson Bay Company store at Tuktoyaktuk, N.W.T., said nurses, teachers and others were just beginning to realize the problems of their communities when they were either transferred to other northern towns or went back south.

David Anderson, a hotelier, said major projects require four or five years before they are decided upon outside the community concerned.

Significantly, the commission, headed by A. W. R. Carrothers, Dean of Law at the University of Western Ontario, is to advise on the development of government in the Northwest Territories. It is people like Mr. Clark, Mr. Anderson and Father Brown who really know the Arctic and its inhabitants who are best qualified to speak on the region's needs.

At the moment the administration of affairs in the far north might be described as government by remote control. This vast region might well be served more effectively by the establishment of local government.

There must be many in the far north of the calibre and dedication of Father Brown and this augurs well for the establishment of a greater measure of self-government there. Local control would give fresh impetus to the region and instil a new sense of purpose in its residents.

Charter Flights

Charter flying has become an increasingly popular means of making overseas trips inexpensively. Clubs band together to make up an aircraft complement and off they go—to Europe or even farther afield.

The history of charter flight, however, is punctuated with tales of delay, indifferent service compared with established commercial carriers, and even instances of passengers being stranded overseas when aircraft failed to turn up on schedule.

Attention was focused on this mode of travel recently when the Air Transport Board suspended the licence of World Wide Airways—a small company running flights between Canada and Europe—on the ground that the airline was not financially able to meet its charter commitments. The board was also reported to have considered complains from passengers.

Among those hit by the suspension are the 70 employees of World Wide who are claiming between $35,000 and $45,000 in back pay they maintain the company owes them. An employees' delegation told government officials in Ottawa Wednesday that most of the air crew will have to leave Canada to obtain jobs.

This serves to emphasize the difficulties posed by the operation of charter flights, including the risks involved in the use of old piston-engined aircraft, delays and frequent inability to meet commitments.

Charter flight does offer an inexpensive means of travel overseas, but in the case of smaller companies operating old equipment and without sound financial backing it is a case of getting what you pay for.

Norway's Tax Varies With Jobs

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Reading another of those depressing (and depressingly true) articles about the shortage of teachers, in the U.S. and the poor salary scale they still get, I was reminded of the experience an American actress had in Norway a few years ago.

At the end of her engagement, she was called in by the authorities in Oslo, to determine the amount of tax she would have to pay on her earnings. According to Norwegian law, if she were a "variety artist" she would have to pay a 30 percent tax; but a "serious artist" would be nicked for only 9 percent.

This strikes me as a sensible and adult approach to the vexing problem of taxation — not only because it judges citizens in relation to their value to society but also because it provides incentive for persons entering less remunerative but more essential occupations.

For instance, Dr. John J. Morton of the University of Rochester, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, said many of our finest young medical men have left cancer research "because they cannot afford to stay in it."

Cancer research, Dr. Morton added, requires more than 15 years of preparatory study for a specialist "at salary scale that would not interest an ordinary laborer."

If society isn't prepared to pay as much for its serious musicians, researchers, teachers and nurses as it is for perfume salesmen, bricklayers, auto mechanics and investment counselors, why can't we adopt the Norwegian procedure and tax people according to their contributions to the general welfare?

There is something pathological, it seems to me, about a civilization in which an entertainer makes more (even after taxes) in a month than a basic researcher makes a year. The fact that the researcher doesn't want more is irrelevant; the young potential researcher cannot even afford to stay in the field.

When it becomes more profitable, in any nation, for a man to be bartender than a teacher, we may legitimately suspect something is seriously wrong. And, if we don't feel we can raise teacher's sadaries, then it behooves the rest of us to ease the tax burden of those who are concerned with giving service while we are making money.

Mother's Place

(Christian Science Monitor)

A mother's place is in the home, caring for her children, especially if they are young. This is an almost universally held sentiment, at least in the non-communist world.

It is, therefore, a shock to hear that there are 12,000,000 children in America under the age of 14 whose mothers work.

One million are left without anyone to care for them, not even an older brother or sister. Countless of these apparently suffer serious neglect.

Retarded Child Differs From Emotionally Disturbed

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

(This is the first of a series of two articles.)

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain the difference between an emotionally disturbed child and a retarded one. Do they reach average level in time? Should they be put in special schools? — V. A.

There is a world of difference between the emotionally disturbed child and the retarded one.

First let's discuss the retarded child. He isn't as smart as we might wish. His brain is impaired.

This impairment may be mild or may be severe. The dividing line between the slightly retarded child and a normal child can be a fine one. Or it may, of course, be a vast chasm between the normal and severely retarded.

The slightly retarded child won't have much abstract reasoning power, but will be able to learn to do mechanical work. A good many slightly retarded children support themselves and, indeed, are happy and useful citizens even though they will never be able to understand such abstractions as democracy or ratios, or chemistry or contract bridge.

A somewhat more retarded group may make beds, shine shoes, run simple errands. Some may mow a lawn but not weed a garden because they can't learn which is a weed and which a flower that hasn't yet blossomed.

A still more retarded group may learn to sweep a front porch but not read or write.

This goes on down to the pitiful children who never comprehend what a spoon is for, or never learn to talk.

There are all gradations of retardation, from the highly trainable children who will get through life very well, to the severely retarded who will be "crib cases" and be infants as long as they live.

Measuring the mental capability of a child (or an adult, for that matter) is not easy. And as any parent, including me, can tell you, even smart children can, as they gradually grow up, do some of the dumbest things. Even when we are grown up, we can do things which make us say afterward, "How could I have been so stupid?"

See why it is difficult to write a simple definition of retardation, and even more difficult, to measure it precisely?

To sum up, after careful testing and observation, the trainable retarded will do all right, within their limitations — earn a living but never understand Montaigne's essays.

Some won't even learn to say "mama" or "daddy" or "yes" or "no".

In between are all gradations.

The retarded child should be trained as far as his ability to think will permit. Some do excellently in special schoole; some must forever be cared for, whether by the family or by an institution.

That's the retarded child, and such a child will advance as far as his brain will permit, but will not reach average level in time.

Tomorrow, I'll explain the difference between this type of child and the emotionally disturbed child.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter chews gum and swallows it although I tell her not to. Will it accumulate in her stomach? — Mrs. D. D.

It will be digested, or pass on through. However, there can be other reasons for curbing the gum habit. Too much of it can be harmful from the standpoint of dental hygiene. In small youngsters there is the risk of getting a wad of gum caught in the windpipe when the child is playing, crying or excited. That can be very dangerous.

Note to L. M.: Mumps, whether in a child or adult, can cause sterility if both testes or ovaries are affected. I cannot guess from your description whether this has been the result in this case. Neither can anyone else, but medical tests can give the answer. If damage from the disease was severe, there is no way to correct it and restore fertility.

The Dawes Plan for the rearrangement of Germany's war reparations payments went into effect 41 years ago today—in 1924—at the same time as the German government set up a new currency system. The new Reichsmark was fixed at 1,000,000,000,000 of the old worthless marks. The inflation of late 1923 nearly ruined the country and wiped out thousands of people's savings as the government printed paper money by the bushel to try to meet its needs. A newspaper cost 200,000,000,000 marks, which by pre-war values would have been $50,000,000,000.

With the principals of 21 cases all paying their respective fines out of court, holding of the regular modning police court proved unnecesaary today with the result that court officials were able to enjoy a holiday from their customary duties. The 21 cases represented the complete police court docket.

All cases listed were of a comparatively minor nature. Five persons paid fines of $4.50 including court costs for disorderly conduct, while another five paid a like amount for failure to stop at stop streets, and seven paid customary fines for infractions of parking regulations One motorist paid $7.50 including costs, on a careless driving count, while another resident enriched the city coffers by $15.5[illegible] on a charge of intoxication.

United States' Global Rule

Montreal Gazette

The Soviet Union made a detailed attack upon American foreign policy a few days ago. This criticism is of unusual interest because, in spite of the obvious bias, it points out a very significant problem now facing the American government.

The theme of the attack is "Johnsonian Globalism." It says that President Johnson has made a major change in American foreign policy. Under his leadership, the United States no longer has specific, limited commitments in various parts of the world. Instead, President Johnson has taken the entire, non-communist world under his wing, and has shown a willingness to use American power anywhere he feels American interests are in danger.

The Soviet statement says that "American strategists are deceiving the people of the United States. They are striving to create the impression that they can achieve everything, solve all the problems, and, what is most important, that they can achieve their unlimited 'global goals' with the help of limited means."

The statement goes on to declare: "The new doctrine — Johnsonian Globalism—consists of unqualified treatment of the entire territory of the capitalist world as the zone of the United States' interest. The United States arrogates the right to intervene wherever in the opinion of the American ruling circle their rights are infringed upon . . ."

The germ of truth in the Soviet article lies in the fact that, with the exception of very limited help by such countries as Britain, the United States is the only Western country today with the power to play a major military role in the underdeveloped world of Asia, Africa and Latin America.

This is a recent development. The cause is the death of the former European empires, and the extent to which the European countries have withdrawn their power to their original bases in Europe.

Although it was the Second World War which sounded the death knell of the British, French, Dutch and other European empires, these survived in part for a number of years. The French were in Indo-China until 1954. The British are only today clearing up the remnants of their empire in Africa. The Suez crisis happened less than ten years ago. It was not until President de Gaulle's return to power that France withdrew from Algeria.

But today ,there is practically nothing. There are still a few French and British military connections in Africa. There are still a large number of small islands under colonial rule. Britain still has a commitment in Malaysia—but it should be noted, a commitment which is straining British military resources.

By and large, however, there is today no Western country except the United States with the will and the means to play an effective strategic role in these vast regions that sweep around the globe.

This is the basis of "Johnsonian Globalism." The United States is having to assert a global role, because a global role has been virtually forced upon it. The alternative to accepting this role is to desert large areas to war, to anarchy, to the mercy of expansionist powers like Communist China.

The United States is responsible for this in a direct sense only to the degree that it urged the European powers to withdraw—not realizing, perhaps, that someone would have to fill the vacuum, and that in many cases communist powers would seek to do so. It might be noted that the United States has now changed its attitude to European power, and is, for example, worried about the consequences of a further British withdrawal from the Indian Ocean.

The United States could, of course, leave these areas to themselves. But this does not mean others would leave them alone. Communist China certainly would not. The United States would have to count on countries like India being willing and able to play a major role. This has not happened however. India, for example, has turned out to be a weak power, easily defeated by China. Indonesia, for another example, has allied itself with China.

The United States has therefore had a role of globalism practically forced upon it. And this would probably have happened whoever was President. It is probably not a peculiarity of Lyndon Johnson. The withdrawal of the European powers to their home bases means that unless the United States guards Western interests around the world, no one will. That is the significance of Johnsonian Globalism.

Marriage Bonds in Jeopardy

St. Thomas Times-Journal

A former director of social work at the Toronto Psychiatric Hospital, Dr. Frank Rubenstein recently suggested young couples should live together for six months or a year before getting married to get an idea of what marriage involves. He would go further than that. He would make it difficult to get married by charging $500 for a licence.

Dr. Rubenstein would make it easy to obtain divorce, however. It should cost, he declared, $3 and take 24 hours. Adultery should no longer be considered grounds for divorce and no person should be forced to live with another he or she detests. He bases his suggestions on statistics that show that 40% of all U.S. marriages end in divorce and 10% in separation. Of the remainder, he says 50% exist in misery. This leaves 75% of all marriages in trouble.

The good doctor admitted he had no formula for a new morality, but insisted that whatever morality emerges will have to be "functional." By that, we suppose he means openly promiscuous.

Every once in awhile one of these tiresome nuts like Dr. Rubenstein comes along to promote free love. And it is well that society pays little heed. The family unit is still the main stay of society, whether some of the marriages are "in trouble" or not, and quite able to withstand the foolish persuasions of men like Dr. Rubenstein.

The Russians tried a "functional" kind of society after the Communists took over only to discover that it was anything but "functional." They were quick to embrace again the solidarity of family life, the sanctity of marriage, and the stabilizing influence of the home and what it means to children. And it is the effect on children of a so-called "functional" society that Dr. Rubenstein and others of his ilk treat with such cavalier and callous indifference.

Marriage has always been something of a problem for a few because of its monogamous restrictions, but it is still the most civilized of all human institutions and the most valuable. Dr. Rubenstein might put his time to better use helping to improve and encourage family life rather than destroying it.

More Jobless In Maritimes

Fredericton Gleaner

Mid-July's unemployment figures confirm a general impression that more work is going on than at any time in the recent past. In Canada as a whole the unemployment rate was 3.3 per cent. But the boom trails off as one travels eastward, the Atlantic region figure being 4.6 per cent as compared with 4.9 per cent a month earlier.

The continuing economic lag of these provinces can be shown in one striking comparison with the prosperous Prairie region. Atlantic's unemployment total was an estimated 30,000, the Prairies, 25,000. Yet the Prairie region has a work force of 1,299,000, and the Atlantic Region, 654,000, only a little more than half that many.

It is also disconcerting to see the regional disparity in the eastern provinces, instead of being conquered, actually spreading into Quebec, whose unemployment rate of 4.7 was a fraction greater than that of the Atlantic Provinces.

Another matter of significance was that this region's total of unemployed was exactly the same as a year ago. The better showing, percentage-wise, was due to the fact that the labor force of the area has increased by 17,000 in the past twelve months.

Statesmen, Scientists, Press Combine to Praise Astronauts

By REUTERS

World statesmen, scientists and newspapers competed for superlatives today to praise Gemini 5's around-the-world record flight.

Everyone from a Russian TV announcer who hailed the "historic, record-breaking feat" to Pope Paul, who said it "opens spectacular prospects," praised the two U.S. spacemen and their feat.

In London all of Britain's eight national morning newspapers made Gemini the headline of the day.

News that the two spacemen would make a world tour brought an immediate bid from the other side of the world to have New Zealand included in the itinerary. Prime Minister Keith Holyoake sent President Johnson a cable of congratulations and said Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad would be "very welcome" there.

Heinz Kaminsky, director of the Bochum Observatory in West Germany said the U.S. now has "taken the lead in all fields of space research."

Among other world leaders sending their congratulations were Chancellor Ludwig Erhard of West Germany and his election rival, West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt, President Giuseppe Saragat of Italy and Austrian President Franz Jonas.

BUILDS A TEMPLE

One of the most enthusiastic reactions came from the Sicilian village of San Giovanni whose mayor announced that the village planned to build "a temple to the glory of Gemini 5." He said he would like Cooper and Conrad to be honorary citizens, and hoped they would attend the cornerstone-laying for the temple, next Aug. 21 — the anniversary of Gemini 5's launching.

In Russia the science correspondent of Tass news agency said Gemini's main purpose — to study the effects of long periods of cramped, weightless space flight — was achieved.

Sir Bernard Lovell, head of Britain's Jodrell Bank Observatory, said he thought the most important results of the flight would become known only after medical examinations of Cooper and Conrad. If they were safe, he said, "then it can be assumed that manned flights to the moon are possible."

Tens of millions of Russians were shown television pictures of the two astronauts and heard news flashes of their landing. Tass news agency gave a 500-word account of the story and acknowledged that the U.S. now held the space record.

Beachcombing Big Business In Australia

SYDNEY, N.S.W. (Reuters)—Beachcombing is big business in Australia.

Turnover running into millions of pounds a year makes the golden sands tourist-poster image of Australia more true than most visitors, and many Australians, realize.

The 50-mile stretch of surf beaches along the south Queensland coast earned the name of Gold Coast because of its year-round summer climate, its beautiful golden sands and, of course, the cash brought in by tourists.

But, as the tourist lies sunning himself on the beach at this surfers' paradise, he little realizes that professional beachcombers have sifted some of the world's most precious minerals from that very spot.

Beachcombers claim mining of the beaches has in fact made them whiter and cleaner for sunbathers.

Although there is gold in the form of tiny flattened flakes on the beaches, it is rare minerals such a rutile, zircon, ilmenite, monazite, garnet and cassiterite that the beachcomber seeks.

By far the most important of these rare minerals are rutile, zircon and ilmenite. More than 90 per cent of the rutile and 60 per cent of the zircon produced in the world today comes from Australia's beaches.

Rutile, which contains about 97 per cent titanium dioxide, is used mainly in the manufacture of pigments for paints, coatings for welding electrodes and titanium metals for the aircraft industry and the United States space program. The zircon's main uses are in foundry sands, ceramics and refractories.

Father of 3 Faces Charge Of Murder

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—Shirley Edwin Johnston, 47, of Chatham, was charged with capital murder Sunday after the shooting death of Leonard Noah, 26, at the Moraviantown Indian reserve.

The father of three faces the charge today in Kent County court.

Police said Noah was apparently shot with a rifle at about 10:30 a.m. on the second floor of a house owned by Georgina Hopkins. He was found about 10 feet from the house.

Police also seized a car about half a mile south of the house.

CRASH KILLS 12

CHAMPAGNOLE, France (AP)—The overnight Milan-to Paris Express, crammed with returning vacationers, ground into the ear of another passenger train before dawn Saturday, killing 12 persons including seven children. Thirty-two persons were taken to hospital, six of them in critical condition.

Police Ram Car to Stop It

OAKVILLE (CP) — Douglas Cummings, 20, of Port Credit was charged with criminal negligence Sunday after police rammed a car to end a 100-mile-an-hour chase.

Port Credit and Oakville OPP and Toronto township and Oakville town police pursued a car for about 27 miles on the Queen Elizabeth Way and Highway 2.

The car avoided a road block set up on this town's main street as cruisers going more than 100 miles an hour tried to catch it.

The car was finally rammed to a stop on Highway 2 near Port Credit.

Cummings will appear in Milton court today.

White Man Charged With Slaying Negro

ANNISTON, Ala (AP)—Sheriff Roy Snead said Sunday a white man has been charged with murder in the shotgun slaying of a Negro father of seven children.

The victim, Thad Christian, 54, was killed Saturday night by a blast from a 16-gauge shotgun on a road about eight miles northwest of Anniston.

The sheriff said Robert E. Haynes, 41, of Jacksonville, Ala., was charged with murder. Snead said Haynes lives about 300 yards from the scene of the shooting.

The sheriff said he did not know al lthe details but, "apparently Christian and a companion were fishing in a creek, and this fellow Haynes went down to run them off'.

Harv Haddix Sold to Braves By Baltimore

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves announced Monday they have purchased pitcher Harvey Haddix from Baltimore for an undisclosed amount.

Haddix, who has a 3-2 record with the American League team this year, pitched a perfect no-hitter against the Braves for 12 innings on May 26, 1959, but was beaten 1-0 on the 13th inning. He was hurling for Pittsburgh.

Claims Women Should Have Greater Role

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Anglican Church of Canada should give women a greater role than tea-making, its general synod was told on the weekend.

"We should give women work in the councils of the church and eventually expect to receive them into the ministry," said Rev. Tom Greenwood, assistant bishop of Cariboo.

"Let us give women a real place, not grudgingly but willingly."

"All we've asked them to do in the past is to make tea."

Bishop Greenwood was commenting at a meeting Saturday on a report on full-time women workers approved by the synod.

It revealed the Anglican Church does not have a generally accepted pattern concerning the employment of women workers.

It also said there is no agreement as to how such workers should be related to the structure of the church.

The report suggested questions with respect to the role of the woman in the church be studied by all members of the church and a complete report be prepared by the next general synod.

Driver Failed To Make Curve At Intersection

PICTON (Staff) — At 1.30 a.m. Saturday a one car accident at the Milford Road intersection in Cherry Valley sent four persons to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital. Their injuries were not serious and they were released following examination and treatment.

The driver and owner of the car Allan Lott of Picton was accompanied by Glen Burns and two girls. Lott failed to make the sharp curve at the intersection and crashed head on into a large tree. The vehicle, a 1956 Chrysler was badly damaged to the extent of approximately $500. Investigating Ontario Provincial Police stated that the driving was hazardous, the roads were slippery and wet and that the car was uncontrollable.

Cement Co. Will Sponsor Soap Box Derby

PICTON (Staff) — Plans are being made by Lake Ontario Cement Company here to hold its first annual Soap Box Derby in cooperation with the Picton Municipal Recreation Committee in early October of this year.

In order to enter the contest, each boy will be required to build his own racer. Advice may be given by adults, but each entrant must actually build his car himself starting from scratch.

The contest will be for boys who have but attained their fourteenth birthday, by the day of the derby. All contestants must be residents of Prince Edward County.

Safety equipment will be supplied by the cement company at the place of competition on the day of the race. All contestants will be required to wear protective head gear. The date set for the event is Saturday, October 2, 1965, at 2 p.m.

BIG DANCE CROWD

Approximately 500 persons attended the annual chicken barbecue sponsored by the Prince Edward Junior Farmers Saturday evening, at the County Centre in Picton. Following the supper which was a great success, a dance was held in the centre. Music was provided by the Murney Towers singers from Kingston.

Bearded Leader of Militant Sikhs Going to Meditate

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — Mysticism and politics seem to go hand in hand in this democracy of 460,000,000 people.

A few days ago a front-rank opposition politician, Fateh Singh, bearded leader of the militant Sikhs, began one of his "meditation sessions."

After several days of lonely reflection on the state of his community, India and the world, Singh will return to his headquarters near New Delhi with additional reservoirs of spiritual strength.

Two years ago Singh vanished for a month, and when he returned he said: "I feel stronger now. The communion with God and nature has renewed my faith in the justice of the Sikhs' demand for a separate Punjabi-speaking state within the Indian union."

Meditation and reflection in some lonely forest, cave or mountain is becoming more and more popular with Indian politicians.

Home Minister Gulzarilal Nanda, who is in charge of internal security, recently went to Rishikesh in the Himalayas for a spell of "spiritual replenishment," as he likes to call it.

Rishikesh on the banks of the River Ganges, sacred to the Hindus, is the favorite refuge of meditating politicians because of its scenic charms.

During his three days in Rishikesh Nanda was accompanied by some government officials. But he took time out for solitary walks and cross-legged prayers on the banks of the great river.

TIME FOR THOUGHT

Nanda also joined groups of Himalayan monks in their prayers. He is president of the all-India Association of Monks which has a membership of more than 10,000.

Morarji Desai, 65-year-old leader of the right wing of the ruling Congress party and a former finance minister, says every politician must find time for reflection and heart-searching in order to be of better service to his people. Desai meditates at least an hour a day.

One Indian weekly even suggested that Prime Minister Shastri should make efforts to bring the disputing statesmen of the world to a monastery in Rishikesh for "a weekend of prayers, congregational singing and meditation."

SHAPING the EARTH
ANIMALS OF THE FUTURE!
It is most logical to expect animals of the FUTURE to develop from those animals of today that are very SIMPLE and LITTLE NOTICED. The spider, illustrated by some science-fiction authors, is not a good example! It is ALREADY HIGHLY SPECIALIZED with spinnerets, poison glands and a muscular, suction-type stomach.
In the reptile era, ancestors of the mammal were SMALL and FEW IN NUMBER. Yet mammals now dominate the world!
Today, there are animals of all sizes and types. Their early ancestors must have been unable to develop in many ways to fit the natural surroundings of their time. It is believed that these animals were about THE SIZE OF A MOLE and not particularly SPECIALIZED.

GNP Growing Faster Than Was Predicted

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's gross national product and gross national expenditure now appear to be churning over at a rate even faster than Finance Minister Gordon's April 26 budget prediction of $50,000,000,000 for 1965.

The GNP in the first three months of the year was at the annual rate of $49,676,000,000 and available statistics for the second three-month period indicate the gap has been closed. Unless there is a serious slump in the last half of the year, the GNP appears destined to go beyond the $50,000,000,000-mark for the year.

The GNP is the total value of all end-product goods and services produced by the nation in a year—excluding the value of imports, and computed in such a way that the value of goods doesn't get counted more than once between primary production and manufactured end-products.

Steel

hensive report from Morse and Collins at the breakfast table, with Wirtz and Connor also present along with William Simkin, director of the federal mediation and conciliation service.

In Pittsburgh, meanwhile, negotiators for the United Steelworkers Union and 10 major steel firms suspended their deadlocked bargaining sessions. The largest steel producer, U.S. Steel Corp., said it was in the process of shutting down some facilities as the strike deadline approached. It started cooling coke ovens.

If he chooses to, Johnson could invoke the Taft-Hartley law to forestall a strike 80 days. He already has said a strike could damage the economy and that he'll act in the national interest if a settlement is not reached "in the American way."

The chances of a negotiated settlement dimmed despite efforts of his special mediators, Senator Wayne Morse (Dem. Ore.), and Undersecretary of Commerce Leroy Collins. Sent to Pittsburgh Saturday by the president, they left for here Sunday night. Morse said management and labor were in "an inexcusable and unjustified deadlock."

Still, Morse said "our mission was not a failure." And Collins said "I am satisfied that this can still be resolved."

The Steelworkers are asking increases of 53 cents an hour over 39 months. Steelworkers average $4.40 an hour in wages and benefits.

I. W. Abel, president of the union, and R. Conrad Cooper, chief negotiator for the 10 major U.S. steel producers, met secretly Sunday for two hours—their first session alone.

"There is no agreement," Abel said afterward.

Morse declined to say whether he and Collins might recommend that Johnson invoke the Taft-Hartley Act for an 80-day cooling off period if the union strikes. But he added that it had been made clear to both union and management that the case was not ended as far as the federal government is concerned.

In a Johnson City press conference the president had said he wanted to give the parties a chance to work out a settlement through collective bargaining.

"If not, we will have to look to the national interest and see what it requires and carry it out," Johnson said.

However, some union sources interpreted Johnson's comments as indicating he would not intervene at least for a while if the union strikes.

summer palace, Castel Gandolfo, in Italy, said:

"We express the wish that all this great work will result not as a damage but as an added perfection for mankind."

The Russian people heard praise of the Gemini 5 astronauts as Soviet television made the Gemini 5 space mission the lead item on the evening news.

Prime Minister Wilson of Britain called the flight "a quite remarkable feat which is a triumph of technology and human courage."

As for the astronauts, they couldn't wait to eat after being plucked from the Atlantic ocean.

"For lunch, they had steak, potatoes, peas, salad, soup and mushroom gravy," Dr. Minners said. The men will be on a strict calcium-free diet for a few days so tests can be made to determine whether weightless flying drains calcium from bones.

HEARTS 'DAPT

Dr. Berry said one significant preliminary finding showed the two spacemen's hearts adapted to weightlessness by slowing down. It was the first time such a pattern definitely had showed up during space voyages.

Charles Mathews, Gemini program manager, said none of the numerous malfunctions during the flight would keep the United States from going ahead with its plans for a two-day flight in October.

Gemini 5 was a make-believe trip to the moon, in a sense. The eight days equal the estimated time needed to go to the moon, stay a day, and come back to earth.

Many of the experiments aboard the 4,500-pound vehicle pertained to the Apollo mission—the projected moon flights—the most important being radar tests. The moon trip plan calls for rendezvous and docking of two space ships for a successful mission.

ARE OFF TARGET

The final equipment failure came after the spacecraft had landed 103 miles from its target—an error caused by wrong information fed from a ground-based computer to the spacecraft's computer — when the communication system quit.

The first frogman to reach the spacecraft, Lieut. John P. Hunt of Boston, said he was a bit anxious because of the failure.

After he had plugged a special telephine into the spacecraft, Hunt said: "How are you?"

"Oh, good," an astronaut shouted back.

Hunt asked again: "Are you all right?"

"Oh, great!" came the reply.

"From the tone of their voices I knew they were all right," Hunt said.

With word of a thumbs-up signal to a hovering helicopter, indicating the two men were all right, a traditional box of cigars was broken out in the Gemini control room in Houston.

Later, on board the recovery ship, Cooper said:

"We were hanging on a cliff all eight days of the flight. It could have ended at any time."

Tropical storm Betsy caused the flight to be cut short one orbit. It was the first U.S. manned mission to be shortened.

On the 120th orbit—the last before re-entry began—the two astronauts' wives stood in their yards in suburban Houston and watched as it twinkled past.

"It was funny," Jane Conrad said, "watching my husband go by looking like a star."

The dangerous re-entry started southeast of Hawaii at 8:27 a.m. All four of the 100-pound retro rockets fired perfectly, braking the spacecraft into its descent.

Gemini 5 headed down, slowing from 17,457 to 17,150 miles an hour. The cut in speed meant that the capsule couldn't maintain its orbit any longer. The thickening atmosphere slowed it more as it plunged earthward.

The spacecraft blazed on down in the dawn sky, its bottom end red-hot from the atmospheric friction.

"Drogue chute open," Conrad said calmly, although Dr. Berry revealed later the jaunty astronaut's heart was pounding at a record rate of 180 beats a minute—a high for the flight.

After being stabilized by the drogue chute, the big, orange-striped main parachute blossomed out. Four minutes later the spacecraft splashed into the Atlantic.

"We are on the water and feeling fine," came the voice of Cooper in a faint radio transmission and then there was no other word from the astronauts until the frogmen arrived about 30 minutes later.

Sailors lined the carrier deck for a look at the new space heroes who bounced to the carrier deck and started to kid each other about their personal appearance.

"Frankenstein meets the wolf man," Mrs. Conrad observed after seeing photographs taken of the two men on the carrier. "Look at them. They still love one another after eight days."

Each had a beard. Cooper's was flecked with grey and was heavier than Conrad's.

President Johnson told them he wanted them to be space public relations men as soon as the 11-day debriefing was over.

"Are you ready to see some of the world at ground level?" he asked. He said he wanted them and other astronauts to accept invitations "to share your achievements with the peoples of other lands."

In going 3,338,200 miles, Cooper and Conrad broke every space record for endurance.

Mrs. Cooper and Mrs. Conrad talked to their husbands on a special telephone hookup between the carrier and Gemini control.

"It was a private conversation," Trudy Cooper said. Sunday was the 18th anniversary of her marriage. "I will wait until Gordon comes home for a celebration," she said.

Mrs. Conrad remembered what she said to her husband:

"Pete said: 'I'll see you in three days,' and I said: 'That's what you think.' I told him it will be 11 days. But I keep hoping they (space officials) will change their minds and let us see them before 11 days."

Government forces were said to have suffered heavy casualties when Communist guerrillas overran two outposts 55 miles southwest of the capital of Kien Tuong province. The positions were later preoccupied by the government. No Viet Cong casualties were reported.

An estimated two Viet Cong companies also overran an outpost 50 miles southeast of Saigon, inflicting moderate casualties on government troops. Seven guerrillas were reported killed.

Three other government positions were mortared by the Communists with light casualties reported to the defenders.

Sudbury recorded a low of 33 degrees, two below the previous August record set Aug. 30, 1934; while the 29 degree mark at Timmins was one degree below the Aug. 23, 1951 record.

Toronto International Airport recorded an August low of 34 degrees, three under the previous record set Aug. 25, 1942.

Hamilton's 40 degree mark was one lower than the previous record of Aug. 24, 1913, while Trenton tied its previous August low of 38 degrees set on Aug. 24, 1940.

TOPS ALSO LOW

Sudbury, Ottawa and North Bay set new low maximum temperatures for the day. Ottawa and Sudbury both had readings of 54 degrees, while in North Bay the maximum temperature reached during the day was 52 degrees.

Windsor set the widest margin, breaking a 51-degree low record for the day when the temperature there dropped to 42 Sunday.

Ottawa airport reported snowflakes and ice pellets, while ground frost warnings were issued for low-lying regions in Ontario.

A gradual return to more seasonable weather is expected this week.

At the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto the weather was considered a major factor in the far-below-record attendance Saturday.

Among the arguments being made in favor of an election is the belief that 1966 could be a difficult year in labor-management relations, particularly in the steel and auto industries, and the government would rather face any such problems from a majority position.

DEALS WITH GROWTH

In both Vancouver and Edmonton, Mr. Pearson hammered away at the country's economic growth, her fast-expanding trade and the wheat business. But he gave a clear indication that national unity, and the need for an understanding and optimistic approach, would be an over-riding issue in the next campaign.

He told western audiences about the "legitimate concerns" of French - speaking Canadians and the need for patience and understanding on both sides in the building of "a great new Canada."

"We are making progress," he told his Edmonton audience. "We can do it and we are going to do it. Why don't we show more faith in our country instead of fear?"

When he spoke of government achievements, the prime minister received the biggest burst of applause with mention of the new maple-leaf flag.

Mr. Pearson shot back at charges of weak government leadership by saying that leadership, in sport or government, means taking charge and showing the way.

Many opposition distortions of the government's record would be dealt with in the weeks and months ahead, he said.

His energetic, hustings-style oratory Saturday night capped a day that could be taken straight from the pages of any campaign. A party-sponsored picnic, with a predicted 3,000 to 4,000 people, was rained out in Edmonton. But some 300 supporters gathered in an assembly hall to greet Mr. Pearson with banners, dancing girls and bands. Both Mr. and Mrs. Pearson seemed to be having a ball."

Mr. Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker shared the same Edmonton hotel Saturday but they did not meet.

Sextuplets Born in Brazil Doing Well

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters) A woman at Humaita in the far west of Brazil has given birth of sextuplets and she and all six babies are doing well, two Sao Paulo newspapers reported.

The reports Saturday said the woman was the wife of a rubber plantation worker at Humaita, on the border of the Amazonas and Acre states. The births took place Thursday.

Except that priests assisted at the births, no other details were immediately available.

Dentists Protest Reported Behavior of Fellow Member

ANN LANDERS

DEAR READERS: Recently I printed a letter from a mother who was fairly steaming. Her son had developed a severe toothache during the night. The following morning she called six dentists but was unable to get an appointment for her boy.

She wrote, "I was not askin gfor charity. We are in average circumstances and are in the habit of paying our bills on time. All I wanted was someone to relieve my son of the pain."

I offered to print an explanation from dentists or anyone else who might have something to say on the subject. And the avalanche began.

One of the best responses came from a commander in the dental corps of the U.S. Navy. He wrote:

"While I cannot condone such unethical action by the civilian members of my profession, I would like to say that approximately 999 out of 1,000 so-called dental emergencies occur in teeth so badly broken down, due to neglect, that such a situation can scarcely be called an emergency.

"A person who is in pain should go, in person, to the dentist's office and be prepared to wait. If a patient cancels or is late, the dentist would be inclined to work in the emergency patient or take him at the close of the day. It is inconceivable to me that any dentist, worthy of a degree, would walk out of his office and leave a suffering patient in the waiting room.—D.D.S."

Dentists from San Bernardino, Saginaw, Minneapolis, Columbus, Detroit, Philadelphia, Houston and Binghamton, suggested that such a deplorable lack of professional ethics be reported by letter to the American Dental Association, 222 East Suprior Street, Chicago 11, Illinois, stating names, dates, and details.

A La Crosse, Wis. reader wrote: 'O. City Mother lives in the wrong town. She should come to La Crosse. Very early on a Sunday morning, I fell and broke the cap off a front tooth. It was not only painful but disfiguring. I called Dr. R. at 7:30 a.m. He told me to go to his office at once and he would meet me there. When I arrived he was ready to go to work."

Wichita, Kan.: "As a mother who has had 100% co-operation from two dentists I feel I should speak out in response to O. City Mother.

"One evening several months ago our 12-year-old son fell at play and knocked out four front teeth. I called my dentist and he left an important conference to round up a specialist. The specialist got a baby sitter for his children and brought his wife to his office to assist him. They worked until midnight re-rooting my son's teeth."

The responses from my readers ran 25 to 1 in support of dentists. The vast majority of critical letters came from the smaller towns.

I decided to run my own survey and learn, firsthand, what goes on with the dentists, in my own city. Two Ann Landers assistants, plus myself, telephoned 30 Chicago dentists whose names we selected, at random, from the yellow pages of the telephone book. The plea went something like this:

"I just moved to Chicago from Wisconsin and I don't know anyone here. I work in the Loop as a salesperson. I've been up all night with a terrible toothache. Can you possibly see me today?

Tomorrow I will give you chapter and verse on the results of the telephone calls.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Outlook For Christianity In Asia Bleak

VANCOUVER (CP) — President Sukarno of Indonesia may soon slam the door to Western missionaries, Most Rev. Isabelo de los Reyes, Supreme Bishop of the Philippine Independent Church, said in an interview Friday.

The outlook for Christianity in Asia is bleak because of the rising strength of nationalistic and anti-Christian native religions, he said.

Alberta's Fort McMurray Nation's Latest Boom Town

By RON MacDONALD

FORT McMURRAY, Alta. (CP)—"Fort McMurray is the only place in the world where you can be sloshing through mud and choking on dust at the same time."

That joking reference by an oil company employee only applies in summer. In winter the dust and mud vanish but the temperature can drop to a chilling 45 degrees below zero—cold enough to liquefy propane gas and thus wreck the heating systems of many of the homes here.

If all goes well, however, residents in this newest of Canadian boom towns will soon be warming themselves by oil-fed furnaces and the oil should be as cheap as it is in Texas.

For Fort McMurray is situated at the edge of the biggest and most unusual oil deposits in the world—the Athabasca oil sands. Officials estimate the sands are steeped in about 700,000,000,000 barrels of black gold.

For decades Fort McMurray held its breath waiting for someone to move in with a practicable method of extracting crude oil from the sands. Now that it has happened the amenities brought by prosperity are beginning to make up for the discomforts of the climate.

Since Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. won approval from the Alberta government to invest $100,000,000 in a plant, the town's population has risen by 1,000 to 2,200. By 1970 the population is expected to be 8,000.

About 30 new men arrive here every week looking for work connected with the plant. It is expected to start producing 45,000 barrels of crude a day in September, 1967.

"There's hardly a skilled man among the newcomers," says one official. "They heard the streets were paved with gold but we just have to tell them there's no work."

So far Fort McMurray's boom has not been plagued by fly-by-night operators. Claire Oeden, head of the local administration, believes this is because there will be no road into the town for another year.

"They have to come in by rail or air and it's easy to keep tabs on people like that," he says.

Only two years ago the town, situated in a spruce-lined valley where the Clearwater and Athabasca rivers meet 260 miles north of Edmonton, had only one hotel, one cafe and one bar.

Now there are three hotels, three motels and five restaurants. On Franklin Avenue, the dusty pot-holed main artery, a sprawling new shopping centre is going up across from a new government building.

The provincial government has turned thumbs down on the concept of a company town at the plant site 25 miles north of here, so all permanent staff—about 500 workers and their families—will live in Fort McMurray. It seems likely that more extraction plants will be approved for the area and the town will soon become an important industrial centre.

This has brought a boom in land prices as house construction strives to keep up with the population influx. Rents in new buildings range between $175 to $250 a month.

Building lots that sold for $400 five years ago now are going for anything between $1,500 to $4,000. Value of building permits rose to $2,044,000 last year from $160,000 in 1963.

New buildings for a bowling alley, churches, banks, bakeries, barber shops, beauty parlors, a dairy, a department store, a laundry, service stations and a weekly newspaper are helping to transform a one-time frontier outpost into a glass-and-concrete community complete with all modern conveniences.

The transformation put a strain on the municipal budget so Fort McMurray was granted New Town status by the Alberta government, given increased borrowing powers and planning help by government officials.

When the road opens next year, town officials plan to promote the oil sands and the magnificent fishing in Fort McMurray's nearby lakes and rivers as twin tourist attractions.

Most of the town's new workers are young, married, come from Edmonton and earn $3.17 an hour. That's an average wage for similar work in Edmonton but the men take home more pay because they work nine hours a day, six days a week at the construction site.

Food prices are generally five to 10 per cent higher than they are in the city but they are expected to come down when the road opens.

The town has only one doctor and the lack of adequate health facilities is the one big complaint by residents. But a new 56-bed hospital will be opened next year to replace the present 19-bed institution.

Successful Living

Daughter Should Know Of Fiance's Bad Debts

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS: Our daughter recently became engaged. This young man has held down two places of employment, one days, one evenings. Yet he is always in debt. Some months ago he borrowed $75. from us, to be repaid as soon as possible.

He is here every weekend and two weeks' holidays and no mention of the loan. We really could not afford it. My daughter does not know of this. Should I tell her?

To me it seems to keep him out of debt she will be working forever. He has never even said a thank you after spending all the weekends here. He is most anxious for them to marry after her graduation in nursing next year.—ASSET OR LIABILITY?

DEAR A. OR L.: "Where does the money go?" Unless the air is cleared soon this is going to be your girl's refrain, later on. Besides, this nickel-pincher doesn't even have the manners to bring a hostess gift or provide a treat.

Tell your daughter, by all means.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: My sister, who has just got a divorce, is getting married again. We would like to put an announcement in our local paper.

Would you put her name when she was married or put her single name?—WANT TO BE SURE.

DEAR WANT: Since your divorcee is young, her parents issue the announcement, using her Christian names with her surname by her previous marriage, like this:

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Sea have the honor of announcing the marriage of their daughter Mary Joan-Bliss to etc.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: My husband likes people, all people, which is fine, but he likes to flirt with young girls and even older women, which I find extremely embarrassing at times. Not only this but at the least provocation he will tell any friends about some girl he used to take out way back when. All this with apologies to me, of course, which I think shows me up to be jealous.

We have been married for 20 years and I have voiced my disapproval many times. He just gets mad and this is why he apologizes first. This is becoming most intolerable to me and I think shows his contempt of my feelings in preference to his own ego.—BOTHERED AND BORED.

DEAR BOTHERED: Let him have his fun. Introduce an old flame of yours into the conversation. Then get everybody laughing about their own wild oats! Ridicule is about the best weapon I know against childish boasting. And, after all, you are the one he married!

(Don't just muddle along. Doris knows human behavior and can help. Write to her and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

WEDDING

BARNARD — MacMILLAN

Rev. W. H. Stobbart of Northport assisted by Rev. W. C. Cox officiated at the recent marriage ceremony in White Lake Bethesda Church, when Lois Mae MacMillan, daughter of Mrs. James MacMillan of Crookston and the late Mr. J. MacMillan, became the bride of Walter Wayne Charles Barnard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Barnard of Ivanhoe.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. Reg. Haggerty, who also accompanied the soloist, Mr. Bill Reynolds, in appropriate nuptial selections.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Raymond MacMillan of Foxboro, the bride wore a floor length bridal gown of peau de sole featuring a fitted bodice with deeply scalloped neckline of French lace and long lily-point sleeves. A flowing train edged with matching French lace extended from the shoulders. A short bouffant veil fell from a crown of mohair studded with seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Miss Elsie Barnard, sister of the bridegroom as maid of honor and the bridesmaids, Mrs. Raymond MacMillan, sister-in-law and Miss Sharon MacMillan, sister of the bride were identically attired in gowns of blue peau de soi, highlighted with overskirts of French lace with bows at waistline. They wore matching lace headdresses adorned with seed pearls and each carried a bouquet of feather Shasta 'mums. Miss Sherry MacMillan, niece of the bride as flower girl wore a dress of baby blue chiffon with white accessories and carried a basket of feathered Shasta 'mums and baby red roses.

Mr. Allen Barnard attended his brother, while Mr. Bobby MacMillan, brother of the bride and Mr. Larry Barnard, brother of the bridegroom were the ushers. Master Ricky Barnard, cousin of the bridegroom was the ring-bearer.

For the reception in the basement of the church, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a coffee brown crepe dress, beige accessories and a corsage of yellow Sweetheart roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a two-piece light beige ensemble with white accessories and a corsage of coral colored Sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to Sudbury and to Windsor and points in the United States, the bride chose a two-piece ivory white suit with black accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnard will reside at 44 Ferguson Avenue, Brooklin, Ontario.

SURPRISE PARTY FOR NEIGHBORS

Before I forget the details I want to tell you about a surprise party because it was a success.

Normally I think that surprise parties are corny. But they have the virtue of spontaneity. If a friendly crowd will conspire to keep it a secret, the honored ones are ever so much more impressed with their fondness.

To say that Eleanor, my beloved secretary and right hand, is moving to another city, is the understatement of the year. I am losing a very dear friend because Bruce has been promoted to Head Office.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Casserole of Pork, Eggplant and Rice with Tomato Soup-sauce; Crisp Cole Slaw with Cress and Parsley; Lattice Plum Pie; Cheddar Cheese; Iced Tea.

So with the eager co-operation of our neighbors I planned a party. At my behest, Bruce's grown-up niece, Margie Duncan, telephoned from out-of-town to ask her Uncle Bruce if they would be home on Sunday evening, and if so, could she and her fiance Paul visit them for a few hours. "Sure, come along!" That anchored them to their house and we could make firm plans.

In all, couples from six neighboring houses gathered at mine at 8.30 p.m. and each one, carrying trayloads of food and equipment, marched single file across the road to Eleanor and Bruce's back door. Luckily she answered the knock, and as the leaders were invited in, then more and more kept appearing and pushing past her, she was surprised and astonished and laughing and nearly crying kissed us all. Puzzled, she asked me how I could plan it with her at my side all day long. I told her we had countless backyard over-the-fence conferences.

We gave them a copper chafing dish, suitably inscribed on the lid, but it is the food I want to tell you about: sliced ham, buttered buns and rye bread, bread and butter pickles, a specially made cake frosted with "Au Revoir but not Goodbye" and coffee.

I took my large platter to the store and asked my friend the butcher to slice 5 lbs. ready-to-eat boneless ham as thinly as possible on to it. It was beautiful and bountiful looking. The buns and bread were sliced and buttered, the second side of half the buns with mustard relish.

The slickest idea was the paper plates and cups and plastic forks and a double shopping bag to receive all garbage. When we left at 11 p.m. there was not one leftover for Eleanor and Bruce to clear up.

I should add one cogent item: Neighbors are not often intimate friends so as a catalytic agent to speed up the merriment blender cocktails were served. Into your blender put one 6-oz. can frozen lemonade concentrate. Add 1½ cans (using lemonade can as measure) rye whiskey (or scotch or light rum), then fill blender goblet with ice cubes. Cover tightly and buzz at high speed for 15 seconds or until ice is broken into tiny pebbles. Five such blendersful were sufficient for eighteen people, some of whom did not drink. Give you an idea?

Full Line of Cosmetics Being Planned for Men

TORONTO (CP)—Men, do you feel washed out at the end of the day? Have trouble with fly-away hair? Are you embarrassed by your shiny nose?

Your salvation is near.

One large company has introduced a full line of cosmetics for you. Another plans to market a facial mask for men next year and to offer men's hair coloring.

The company offers a pale yellow lipstick to protect and heal rough or chapped lips. For chafed skin, facial abrasions or wind burn, a face cream applied for a few minutes before you go to bed should help.

About weariness and that run-down feeling. . . . The other company suggests you try its 20-minute cream mask pickup conditioner

For shiny noses, a pale green powder is supposed to hide blemishes and dull the finish.

Then there is a spray to keep loose hair strands in place. No hairnet is required.

HIDES THE SHADOW

And for men who like to appear publicly both day and night, a powder with a tint of makeup is intended to hide five o'clock shadow.

Handsomely packaged, the cosmetics are aimed at suavely masculine males—the young executive who is going places, the man eager to be well groomed.

They will be promoted as aids to better grooming rather than as cosmetics.

Bubba Marriott, quarterback with Toronto Rifles of the Continental Football League, consented to try some of the beautifiers for the benefit of photographers.

Afterwards he commented: "I don't think it's quite for me. Everything smells like lemon."

Cross-Canada Survey

Little Agreement on Exactly What Changes Should Be Made In Basic Training of Nurses

By BRENDA LARGE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Educational leaders in the nursing profession across Canada agree that basic training courses for nurses need to be changed.

But a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows there is little agreement on exactly what changes should be made and how to make them.

The survey shows that while a high percentage of Canada's nurses are still trained in the traditional three-year hospital school of nursing course, there is growing support for the idea that this type of training is not meeting the needs of the profession.

The major criticism of the hospital school is that students must spend a compulsory amount of time, varying from hospital to hospital, dong apprenticeship work in the wards. In this way, they pay for their nursing education and also help to reduce the cost of staff salaries for the hospitals.

Critics of the hospital school have contended for years that student nurses cannot possibly be well-prepared in their duties if they have to work long hours in hospital wards at what is often described as sheer drudgery rather than actual nursing.

Interest in nursing education picked up with publication a year ago of the report of the Hall royal commission on health services.

It recommended the education of two streams of nurses in Canada.

TRAINED FOR TOP JOBS

The first stream, destined for positions as instructors, supervisors, administrators, and other top jobs in the profession, would graduate from a four- or five-year integrated basic university program.

They would eventually fill the 25 per cent of all nursing positions which the Hall report says should be held by university-trained nurses.

The second stream would be graduates of a new type of two-year diploma program and would function as clinical or bedside nurses.

The commission recommended an immediate crash program to expand the existing 14 university schools of nursing, and to create at least 10 more university schools.

These recommendations came as no surprise to most nurses.

Some of the changes recommended have been suggested for many years and in some provinces, particularly Ontario and Saskatchewan, two-year diploma courses already have been set up.

But while the Hall report met with cautious approval from most nursing school directors, they have been following a go-slow policy on changing their education programs or adopting new ones.

The president of the 77,000-member Canadian Nurses Association, Dr. Helen Mussallem of Ottawa, said in an interview:

"We're at a point now where we can make great strides, but we don't want to go forward too quickly. Poor planning now could set back the educational progress of the profession for years."

PLANS DEGREE COURSE

This cautious but optimistic mood was reflected in developments across the country.

In Newfoundland, where three hospitals in St. John's operate the only schools of nursing and give the traditional three-year course, Memorial University has announced it plans to start a degree course in nursing in 1966.

Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick, which have a total of 27 hospital schools giving the three-year course, are encouraging more student nurses to enter the five university schools of nursing in the area.

In addition, both New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island nursing associations are making formal studies of their educational systems with a view to recommending changes.

Quebec's 42 English- and French-language hospital schools all offer the traditional three-year program. There is a university school for graduate nurses at McGill University in Montreal.

The three-year course has been standard in Quebec since 1946, but since the Hall report there has been much discussion about developing two-year courses.

The Quebec Association of Nurses has applied to the provincial government for changes in the length and content of the course.

OFFER SHORT COURSES

Newest development in Ontario is the success of four independent schools of nursing which offer two-year courses, and operate under a curriculum established by the 24,000-member Registered Nurses Asociation of Ontario.

Modelled after the Metropolitan School of Nursing in Windsor which ran experimentally from 1948 to 1952, the four Ontario independent schools now operating are the Nightingale School, the school at Ryerson Institute and Quo Vadis School, all in Toronto, and the Hamilton and District School of Nursing.

Ontario hopes to make increased use of independent schools and thus eventually replace all three-year courses with two-year programs.

Jean Watt, director of the College of Nurses, says plans in Ontario indicate that hospital schools will eventually be amalgamated with the independent school system.

Independent schools will likely be called "regional" schools, be run by their own boards, be independent financially and use the facilities of all the hospitals in their region.

PROVIDE DUAL PROGRAM

The University of Manitoba has a new nursing program, started in 1964, which is divided into two parts. There is a four-year course for girls coming out of high school and a two-year-plus-two-credits course for registered nurses.

Dr. M. E. Hart, director of the University of Manitoba school, said the education system there anticipated the main recommendations of the Hall report.

No new schools of nursing are being opened in Saskatchewan, but there are hopes that a second baccalaureate program will be established on the Regina campus of the University of Saskatchewan. The university already has a five-year course for nurses at its Saskatoon campus.

In addition to a number of three-year programs run by hospitals, Saskatchewan has four shorter courses which range from two years, with one year internship, to 2½ years.

"The Saskatchewan Registered Nurses Association supports two-year training programs," said Linda Long of Saskatoon, the association's adviser to nursing schools.

In Alberta, there are 12 hospital schools giving three-year courses and a five-year university course for a bachelor of science in nursing at the University of Alberta. No new schools or changes in course are immediately planned.

STRESS ON TRAINING

But a complete change in nursing education is proposed. The most important problem appears to be one of financing new courses, say Alberta nursing education leaders.

Miss M. E. Shumacher, adviser to schools of Nursing in Alberta, says the Association for Registered Nurses there thinks any new nursing program should be linked to junior colleges. The course should be controlled directly by the colleges and contain less hospital service "but more training."

In British Columbia, the provincial nurses association is drawing up recommendations on development of nursing education.

It is urging rapid expansion of university facilities. It also says schools of nursing which fulfil certain qualifications should be permitted to develop training programs of less than three years, but not less than two years.

Despite the temporary confusion in the profession being caused by the various proposed changes in its educational system, schools all over the country report there is no difficulty in getting recruits.

A typical comment from a nursing education adviser in Alberta:

"Nursing schools receive more applications than there are places available, especially in the large city hospitals."

INJURED IN CRASH

RED WING, Minn. (AP)—Twenty-five persons were injured Saturday, none seriously, when the Milwaukee road's Hiawatha passenger train crashed head-on into a switch engine here. The train, carrying 252 passengers, was eastbound on its way to Chicago. Another passenger train locomotive was brought in and the passengers who were not injured in the crash continued on their way, after a delay of about five hours.

Must Revamp Training Program for Student Nurses Says Director

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—The woman who has probably done more research on Canadian nursing education than anyone else in the country says that all the facts now are in and the profession must cautiously revamp its training programs for student nurses.

Dr. Helen K. Mussallem of Ottawa, executive director of the 77,000-member Canadian Nurses Association, said in an interview the facts support the basic belief of the association that the education of nurses should be carried on within the general educational system of the country.

This means that schools of nursing should become increasingly university-oriented.

"One of the most important needs is for financial separation of nursing schools from the hospitals, but the important thing for us to remember now is that we must go slowly in planning new schools and changing old ones, so that we do not disrupt the continuity of patient care and the life of established schools."

In 1960, Dr. Mussallem completed a 138-page report on the Canadian Nurses Association pilot project for evaluation of schools of nursing.

DEFICIENCIES REVEALED

The report, which she wrote after travelling 57,551 miles back and forth across the country visiting schools of nursing, indicated that only 16 per cent of 25 diploma or hospital schools of nursing she saw met standards set down by Dr. Mussallem and the nurses' association for a good over-all educational program.

Dr. Mussallem's study, undertaken to find out whether the nursing schools were ready for a national accreditation program, revealed serious weaknesses in the hospital schools.

She says some of these weaknesses now have been overcome.

"But there is still much to be done. I am very hopeful that nursing education will move forward quickly now. The Hall royal commission report on health services has sparked a great deal of activity. There is a growing awareness of people in general of the importance of improvements in the health care field."

The association president said she feels one of the most important trends in nursing education, aside from the emphasis on more university-trained nurses, is the development of new two-year diploma or hospital school courses.

"The important thing to remember about these new courses, particularly the ones in Ontario, is that they are not simply shortened versions of the old three-year course. Some nursng educatonsts seem to be overlooking this point.

"You don't just take the old curriculum and shorten it. The new courses will have less detailed procedure and concentrate more on the human relationships between patient and nurse."

AIR REUNION SET

TORONTO (CP) — Some 600 former Canadian fighter pilots who fought during the Second World War will meet here Sept. 17-19 for a reunion. Guests of honor will be former members of No. 1 Squadron who flew during the Battle of Britain.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

AT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Grills will be "At Home" to relatives and friends on Wednesday September 1 from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. at the residence of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton M. Grills, Belleville R. R. 6, on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Reed, formerly of Brockville, but now living in Portland, Maine, left for their home on Sunday, after visiting Mrs. Reed's sister in Hamilton, whom she had not seen for 17 years. In passing through Belleville they visited their friends, formerly of Brockville, Mr. and Mrs. J. Tuepath, at 204 North Front Street.

Mrs. Walter C. Barnard who was recently married in White Lake Bethesda Church was entertained previous to the marriage at a pantry shower given by Mrs. Roy Evirengham and Mrs. Margaret Hensil at the home of the bride's mother in Crookston. The management and staff of Elaine Footwear in Stirling presented the bride with a pole lamp, ash tray and vase; also a pyrex casserole dish from her co-workers. The bridegroom was honored at a presentation by his fellow workers at General Motors in Oshawa.

PM's Wife Finds Self In Limelight

OTTAWA (CP) — Maryon Pearson, who has never indicated much enthusiasm for publicity or platform politics, got a great deal more attention than she bargained for when she spent nine days in the West with her prime minister husband.

In Vancouver she was presented with a painting, and in Edmonton she held centre stage for longer than she probably wished.

She was given special attention by David McDonald, president of the Alberta Liberal Association, who introduced the prime minister. He paid tribute to her role as wife of the prime minister and her courage and endurance in accompanying him everywhere.

He didn't say that Mrs. Pearson was not enthusiastic about a campaign-type of existence. He merely said "she loves home life." But everyone, including the prime minister, indicated by their laughter that the message was received. Mrs. Pearson joined in.

"I am glad you mentioned her," Mr. Pearson said later. "You know, when she married me 40 years ago she had every right to expect a more calm and peaceful existence. I was an assistant history professor and a football coach. . . . I paid my bills from being a football coach.

"She married me to get through her fourth year—I was her teacher. She got through her fourth year alright but I don't know how she got through the next 40.

NO CLOUDY GLASS

Hi, My Friends: I didn't believe it would happen, but it did! A most remarkable result — and if you can make it happen too, then we've really hit on something.

Lather half your bathroom mirror with lots of wet, sudsy cake soap — wipe it off carefully with a towel until it is perfectly clean, but try not to rub hard.

Turn on the hot shower full pelt.

See what happens — or does not happen? Half the mirror steams up as usual but the half we worked on stays clear!

Mrs. Richardson, who wrote in telling us about the discovery uses the principle described here to keep her glasses from steaming while she is cooking dinner and working over bubbling pots on the stove.

Just think what this idea could mean to bone-weary businessmen coming back into the warm office from those long, dreary mid-winter trips. No steamed up glasses. — Susanna

OHHHHH, THAT'S BETTER!

Hello there: During the hot summer months you will be glad if you slip into something cotton, because it's cooler.

The experts tell me (and you know, I think they're right) that we won't be so warm at night if we change from nylon nighties to drip dry cotton ones — much cooler. — Susanna

Humphrey Sees Problems As Hunter Views Game

By ARTHUR EDSON

.VASHINGTON (AP) — Often ibert H. Humphrey will pause a prepared speech, grin eerfully and burst out with: "What a magnificent time to alive!"

The United States vice-presint will add:

"Yes, our problems are eater—but so is our knowlge. What an exciting time!"

For Humphrey looks on probms as a hunter looks on ame: Something to be systeatically sought out and enthuiastically shot down.

"What will be the gut issues the future?" An admiring asciate asked Humphrey rently.

"They'll centre around cities nd around our long term dence posture," Humphrey said. His face brightened at the hought of so many still unenisaged problems. "Don't orry," he said reasuringly. There are many big issues head of us."

Millions of Americans are omforted, millions are frightened and all are tied to the following political facts of life and death: Hubert Horatio Humphrey is but a heartbeat away from being responsible for the solution of the problems facing the nation—and President Johnson has had a severe heart attack, in 1955.

SHOWS LEADERSHIP

In his first half-year as vice-resident, Humphrey has tried to show by word and deed that eneath his oratorical torrents and behind his effervescent exerior lurks a responsible, knowledgeable leader.

"If anything should happen to he president," Humphrey says, there must be confidence at ome and abroad."

Being vice-president can be a icky business.

Politicians hunger so greedily or power they put up with endess discomforts and indignities to obtain it. Yet, under the U.S. constitution, a vice-president is a political eunuch, so impotent that after almost two centuries it is still not known whether he should be ridiculed or pitied.

Fortunately for Humphrey, Johnson is fresh from the vice-presidency and its frustrations and humiliations. Humphrey has been so flooded with assignments that he had little time to worry about what he is or what he is not.

Fortunately for Johnson, Humphrey is the most willing of workers. He has taken on such chores as lining up summer jobs for 700,000 youngsters, acting as federal go-between in dealing with local officials, and making speeches that glorify the Great Society. Each month Humphrey receives 1,200 invitations to speak, and accepts about one in 100.

FOLLOW PRESIDENT

The Johnson-Humphrey setup has a flaw: What Lyndon gave, Lyndon can take away. As Humphrey himself has put it: "You're the kind of a vice-president that the president wishes you to be."

Gossips repeatedly hint that Johnson has made crude cracks about his energetic vice-president, and hence is cooling toward him. But a more realistic assessment would be that, with minor fluctuations, an equable relationship is likely to continue.

Humphrey, now 54, and still incredibly energetic, has no choice but to go along with Johnson. Publicly and privately, he loyally praises the president and sturdily defends the administration.

Those nearest Humphrey say he is particularly sensitive to two criticisms: That he talks too long, and that he is always late. He has conscientiously tried to reform, but the results are hardly spectacular.

TAKES JOB SERIOUSLY

Although few people, including those who have occupied the post, have taken the vice-presidency seriously, Humphrey does.

He meets regularly with the treasury secretary, the president's economic advisers and budget bureau experts to keep informed on economic policy.

The odds are against Humphrey ever using his information as chief executive. Despite Johnson's 1955 heart attack, or possibly because of it, the president keeps in excellent health, and, except through the death of a president, vice-presidents are rarely promoted. Only three have made it on their own, and none since Martin Van Buren in 1837, although Richard M. Nixon came close in 1960.

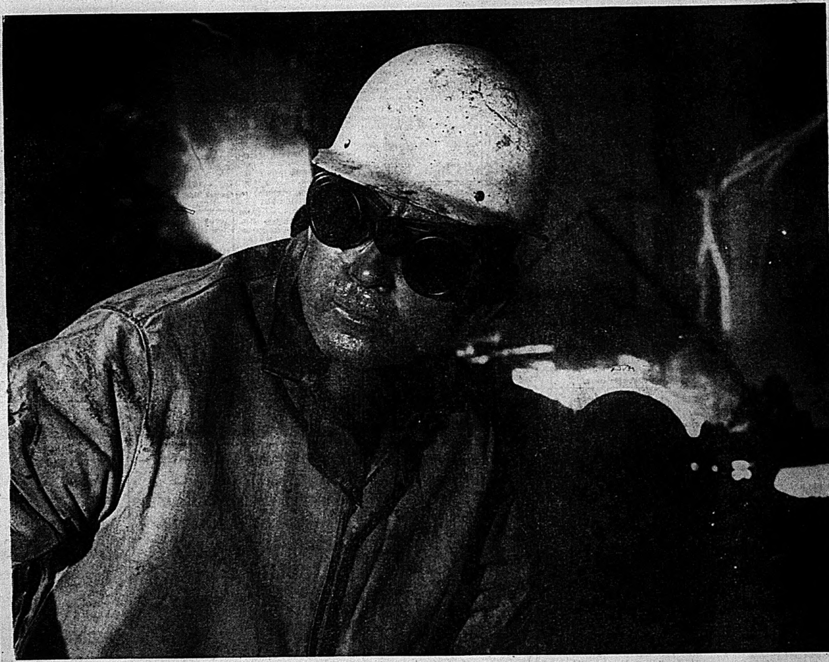
The Canada Pension Plan and its benefits

Here is what the Canada Pension Plan will do for people like Steve Sawchuk, a 45-year-old steel mill worker who earns $110 a week ($5,720 a year).



If Steve works full time until age 65 he can look forward to a monthly retirement income of $104.17 from the Canada Pension Plan and $75 from Old Age Security—a total of $179.17 a month. When his wife receives her Old Age Security pension, their monthly income will rise to $254.17.

If Steve becomes disabled after 1970, having contributed until his disability, he will get a disability pension of $103.13 a month.

If, when he becomes disabled, Steve has children under 18 or under 25 and continuing full-time education, benefits of $25 a month for each of the first four and $12.50 for each additional child will be payable. Thus if Steve has five dependent children, the total will be $215.63 a month.

If Steve dies anytime after 1967, having contributed until his death, his wife will receive a widow's pension of $64.06 a month. In addition, orphan's benefits of $112.50 a month will be paid for her five children if they are under 18 or under 25 and continuing full time education. At the time of Steve's death Mrs. Sawchuk will also receive a lump sum payment of $500.

All benefits under the Plan will maintain their value. The actual benefits payable will probably be higher than those given here since benefits will be adjusted to meet changes in living costs and in wage levels before they are paid and changes in living costs after they become payable.

What will the Plan cost you?

If you, like Steve, are employed and have earnings of $5,720 spread evenly over the year, you will, commencing in January, pay at the rate of $1.77 a week until your contributions for the year amount to $79.20. Your employer will pay the same amount.

This advertisement is one of a series which relates some of the important benefits of the Canada Pension Plan to individual circumstances.

Muscovites Crowd Station Buying Vacation Tickets

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—At a hole-in-the wall ticket office near the Kiev railway station here, hundreds of people wait expectantly in a straggly and fortuously slow-moving line.

They fill the cramped waiting room and overflow onto the sidewalk, a chattering and sometimes fretful crowd, collectively vigilant to ensure that no one usurps a place in the queue.

They are waiting to buy train tickets to take them on vacation. Like workers anywhere they want a holiday in the sun and are prepared to wait all day—and sometimes come back the next day—in order to arrange transportation.

Similar scenes are re-enacted at ticket offices in other parts of the city.

Not all vacationers have to buy their tickets the hard way. Many can apply for them through their officer, factories or trade union organizations.

Trains out of Moscow these summer days are packed with holiday-makers heading for the fashionable resorts in the Baltic republics and on the Black Sea.

Sochi, a Black Sea resort situated just inside the Russian federated republic near the border of Georgia, is the Miami Beach for what might be called Russia's middle classes—office personnel, junior executives and some professional men.

LEGENDARY BIKINIS

Pert young office girls come back from vacation after a couple of weeks with tans any Californian would be proud of and when asked where they got it the usual reply is Sochi.

With its bikinis and fat women—and gruesome combinations of the two—Sonhi has become legendary among the fad-conscious younger set.

Less crowded and a little more exclusive are Sukumi and Batumi on the Georgia coast of the Black Sea. Further along the coast are Yalta in the Crimea, where Sjalin once spent the summers, and Odessa.

All the resorts have an array of sanatoria and rest houses where vacationing Russians arrange to stay through their trade union or office organizations. They range from palatial residences in well - groomed grounds to small hostels for working families.

There is also heavy traffic around the Black Sea in vacationers who stay with friends of friends back home In these cases boarding costs are negotiable.

A young Muscovite girl explained the standard travel pattern for vacationing Russians:

"Moscow people go south or to the Baltic republics. People from the Baltic republics go south or come to Moscow. People from the north or Siberia come to Moscow or go south."

What about those who cannot afford to travel?

REST HOME HOLIDAYS

"They visit friends or relatives around the city or spend their vacation in a local rest sanitorium." There are lots of nice comfortable places for them right around Moscow."

The girl herself was headed for the Lithuanian coast which, along with the other Baltic republics of Latvia and Estonia, is beginning to rival the Black Sea as a popular resort.

The most favored spot is probably Riga, capital of Latvia, where there are miles of choice sandy beaches. As in the Black Sea resorts, home-owners in the Baltic states often make a little money by accommodating holiday visitors

In turn many Baltic residents travel eastwards to Moscow and other landlocked cities. They are mostly Russian families who have moved into the Baltic republics in the years since Russia absorbed and occupied the three tiny states in the Second World War.

Viet Cong Deals Harshly With Hostile Women Caught

SAIGON (AP) — Women are caught up in the war in South Viet Nam—some as active combatants, others as spies or saboteurs and others as innocent bystanders.

Both the South Vietnamese Army and the Viet Cong guerrillas deal harshly with hostile women they catch. Some are executed, others tortured in an effort to extract information.

The Viet Cong relies more heavily on women, although the South Viet Nam government recently announced plans to induct those between the ages of 20 and 25 into a reserve army to help defend villages against the guerrillas.

The Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda says the deputy commander of the Viet Cong guerrillas is a widow, Mme. Nguyen Thi Dinh.

The U.S. Army's 173rd Airborne Brigade reported that women in a 200-member Viet Cong force threw grenades at them in an operation 25 miles north of Saigon.

Many South Vietnamese women are enlisted as spies or saboteurs by the Viet Cong. Some ply the bars of Saigon, hoping to prey on U.S. soldiers.

Last month a laundress tried to smuggle powerful explosives in her girdle into a U.S. helicopter base at Soc Trang. South Vietnamese security police caught her, questioned her, then took her out into a nearby rice field and executed her.

On the other side, the Viet Cong has been known to torture women to try to get information from them.

Non - combatant women are frequently killed or wounded by fire from either side in warfare around villages.

CELL REMEMBERS

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—A biologist has found that a single nerve cell remembers its lessons long after being cut away from an animal, and that this feat of memory may be due to an acid in its nucleus called RNA. The California Institute of Technology said Saturday a nerve cell cut from a slug-like mollusk called a sea hare continued for 48 hours to put out signals indicating it remembered the periods of dawn and dusk, and even the fortnightly high-water tide.

Rednersville

REDENRSVILLE — Mr. and Mrs. Jim Sopha visited recently in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken McQuarrie spent a few days in Huntingdon, Quebec with the later's mother Mrs. George Clauesson.

Mrs. Pat Duivan flew to Glasgow Scotland to visit her sister who is ill.

Aquanauts Finish Setting Up For 45-day Endurance Trial

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP)—Ten aquanauts finish setting up housekeeping today for their 45-day endurance test in Sealab 2, 205 feet below the Pacific Ocean surface.

"Our views of marine life are tremendously exciting," team leader M. Scott Carpenter radioed to the surface Sunday.

"Visibility down here is much greater than we had hoped for," he said. "We should be extremely successful with our marine biology experiments."

The divers descended Saturday to their 12-by-59 foot steel cylinder on the ocean floor 1,000 yards from this southern California resort. They dove down wearing skin - diving gear.

Using underwater breathing apparatus, they later swam to a rocket - shaped personnel transfer -capsule 30 feet away to inspect its workings. The capsule, clearly visible from Sealab 2, will be used to bring the aquanauts to the surface in emergencies or for final decompression on ascending at the end of their tours.

Four men who had electrodes attached to their heads prior to their descent plugged them into black boxes to record their brain waves Sunday.

The rest was the first of a series scientists will conduct to see whether wave patterns vary due to living and working at pressure six times that of sea level.

Anglicans Shed Many Trappings

By DENNIS ORCHARD

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Anglican Church of Canada is determined to employ its 22nd general synod to shed ponderous trappings and make bold advances against society's secularism.

No office, function or performance of the church has escaped questioning. The clergymen have led the way.

"We have long suffered from clericalism," admonished Rt. Rev. E. S. Reed, Bishop of Ottawa during last week's opening sessions.

"We've bumbled along for 72 years without a proper executive," said Archdeacon Terence Crosthwait of Toronto.

The self-examination is not new to Anglicans, but it came at a time when major decisions about the church's direction could be made.

Thursday's sessions, electrified by the promise of union with the United Church of Canada, approved the theological guidelines for the difficult planning of merger.

Friday, after six years of trying, a major reorganization of the synod won approval. It streamlined the legislative body itself, as well as its standing executive councils.

STAND ON DIVORCEES

Perhaps the most difficult decision for the synod still lies ahead: how and whether to change its stand against remarriage of divorced persons.

Independent proposals are on the agenda. A commission under instructions of the 1962 synod has delivered a recommendation that defines marriage, requires bride and groom to sign a declaration, and suggests establishment of tribunals headed by bishops to rule on applications by divorced persons for remarriage.

Under another motin bishops would decide on application for remarriage, although any priest could on his own authority refuse to marry any divorced person. A person found guilty of adultery by any court could not remarry.

Some clergymen are concerned that the divorce canons will not come to a vote before the synod ends Thursday night. The report is scheduled for debate Thursday morning.

STARTS FINAL WEEK

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP)—A three-man commission looking into the development of government in the Northwest Territories today begins its final week of public hearings in this gold - mining community. Since July 31, the commission has travelled about 7,000 miles and visited some 35 settlements in the Eastern and Western Arctic, collecting views on the shape of future territorial governments.

Christian Theology Remote From World, Left to Experts Says U.C. Moderator

KINGSTON (CP)—The moderator of the United Church of Canada says that laymen today have a part in shaping the thought of the Christian church.

Rt. Rev. D. M. Howse told the fourth convention of United Church Men's Clubs Saturday that Christian theology is remote from the world because it has been left to experts.

He told the gathering of more than 450 members and their wives that the second mark of Christianity in the 20th century after the ecumenical movement will be "the new place in Christianity of the laity."

He said the Roman Catholic teaching that the church was a two-fold society of the clergy—the upper heirarchy—over the multitudes of the faithful was an unstated practical assumption of the Protestant churches. He added that this teaching is no longer true of the Roman Catholic Church.

The resurgence of the laity and the return of the church to a one - fold society could move Christianity into the 21st century indelibly changed, Dr. Howse said.

WOULD BE BETTER

He said a recent report of a committee looking into union of the United Church with the Anglican Church in Canada would have been improved if a layman had been among those representing the United Church.

He added: "I'm all in favor of the movement to unity between the United Church and the Anglican Church. Any criticism I ever make will be a criticism not to impede it but to encourage it and make it possible."

Earlier, Dr. Howese said too many practical difficulties stand in the way of recalling the 22nd general council before the fall of 1966 to consider a plan of union with the Anglican Church.

Commenting in an interview Saturday on approval by the Anglican general synod in Vancouver of a joint United-Anglican document on suggested principles of union, Dr. Howse said the 1966 council probably will approve the principles.

Meanwhile, however, both denominations should accept members from the other church at the Lord's table and agree not to build competitive churches.

"There could be no more impressive testimony than that each church receive members from the other at the communion table," he said.

A vote in favor of the principles will empower the council to send the document to more than 100 presbyteries in Canada for approval. Final decision could not be reached before 1968.

"This particular document is not a blueprint for union," he said. "It is not to be expected to be a final document."

Union must transpire without causing major splits in either denomination, he added.

"It would not be wise to begin with two churches and afterwards have three. This must not be. We want to carry both churches without a split."

Conservatives, liberals and modernists equally must be free to work as Christians and to hold differing theological concepts.

"They must be conscious that they differ in these concepts but have the same belief in Jesus Christ."

Dr. Howse said he looked forward to a possible union between the United Church and the 10,000 member United Evangelical Brethren next year. Brethren are located mainly in the Kitchener area.

PRESIDENTIAL AIDE DIES

NORTHFIELD, Vt. (AP) — William D. Hassett, 85, press secretary to presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S Truman, died Sunday of a heart attack. He was appointed press secretary for Roosevelt in 1944 and remained at the post through the administration of Truman. He retired in 1952. As press secretnary he announced the death of President Roosevelt at Warm Springs, Ga., on April 12, 1945.

Sen. O'Leary's Wife Dies In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Mary Honorie O'Leary, wife of Senator M. Grattan O'Leary, died at her home in suburban Rockcliffe Saturday.

She had been in ill health for some time.

Born in Antigonish, N.S., she was a graduate of St. Bernard's College at St. Francis Xavier University. She came to Ottawa to work in the auditor-general's department after a brief teaching career in the United States. She and her husband were married July 1, 1913.

Surviving besides her husband are three sons, Dillon and Brian of Ottawa and Maurice of Montreal, and a daughter, Moira McGee. Another son, Pilot Officer Owen O'Leary, was killed during service with the air force in the Second World War.

Funeral mass was held Sunday morning at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church in Ottawa followed by burial at Notre Dame Cemetery.

Principals Ask For Explanation Of Marking

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario high school principals are asking the provincial department of education to explain disparities in Grade 13 English marks.

The Ontario Secondary Schools Headmasters Association, which represents about 85 per cent of the high school principals in the province, passed a resolution remarking on the "inconsistency between the marks obtained and the competency of the student, as reflected in the teacher's term mark and writing mark." The resolution asks the department to explain the reason.

Alfred W. Bishop, the education department's registrar, said Sunday night that the percentage of failures on the English examination is higher than normal. He said many students have appealed their mark.

Papers of appealing students will be reread and a special revising board will decide whether the mark should be raised, he said.

But Mr. Bishop said the department won't be able to assess whether there is anything wrong with the paper or marking scheme until the appeals are adjudicated and full statistical background are obtained in late fall.

Excess Fuel Cell Water Will Be Drunk

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Astronauts on future space flights will have a simple way of taking care of the excess fuel cell water which was a major problem on Gemini 5. They will drink it.

The water produced by Gemini 5's fuel cell threatened to "drown out" the eight-day mission. It caused the astronauts to fly most of the time powered-down because the more electricity that is used from the cell, the more water it produces. Excessive production, if not drained off, can ruin the fuel cell.

Original plans called for Gemini 5 space twins L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr. to drink the water, but the pre-launch tests showed that the liquid produced by the fuel cell was not drinkable.

"It was black with little things floating in it," said Conrad. So two 139-pound tanks of drinking water were placed in the spacecraft.

Engineers at the manned spacecraft centre are developing a filter system that will purify the water, making it potable.

William Dusenbury and Roland Rice, space centre fuel cell experts, said the new system would be ready for use on Gemini 7, a 14-day flight expected late this year.

68 Fatalities Across Canada Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 68 persons died in accidents across Canada during the weekend, 53, of them in traffic mishaps.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday, local times, included six fire fatalities, six drownings and three deaths in other accidents.

Ontario reported 24 deaths—20 in traffic, three drownings and one man in a fall from a roof.

New Brunswick had two traffic fatalities. Newfoundland had one road death and Manitoba had a drowning

Prince Edward Island reported no accidental fatalities.

Lawyer Urges Cottage Owners To Form Assoc.

TORONTO (CP)—Lawyer L. Grieve Robinson of Toronto is urging Ontario cottage owners and ratepayers associations to unite into a political pressure group to lobby against the provincial government.

In a letter to cottage owners, Mr. Robinson said the lack of central organization limits the influence cottagers have on the government. He hopes to have 1,000,000 members join a proposed group, the United Cottagers of Ontario.

His proposed plan has been rejected twice by the 50,000-member Federation of Ontario Cottagers' Associations.

Mr. Robinson said he wants equality in municipal voting through mandatory advance polls to give cottage owners more representation.

The proposed new group would seek fair treatment in various matters, including government takeovers of private cottages or beaches.

Pearson Will Have to Leave Capital If He Decides to Call Dissolution of House

OTTAWA (CP) — If Prime Minister Pearson decides to dissolve Parliament before Sept. 7 for a fall general election, he will have to go out of the capital to do it.

The dissolution proclamation must be agreed to by Governor-General Vanier. He will be at his summer home at Tadoussac, Que., until Sept. 7—except for a visit to Montreal Aug. 30.

After Gen. Vanier's return, Mr. Pearson will have only to drive across Sussex Street to see the head of state. Their residences face each other.

The prime minister says he will make an announcement on an election "one way or the other" after meeting his cabinet colleagues this week. In the event there is an election, he could choose to get dissolution quietly or openly.

John Diefenbaker used both methods when he was prime minister.

On Feb. 1, 1958, a Saturday when the Commons was sitting, Mr. Diefenbaker slipped unnoticed from Parliament Hill into a government aircraft.

Reporters who noticed his absence were told he had gone to Winnipeg but he turned up in Quebec City and within hours was back with the dissolution proclamation signed by Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, then governor-general.

In 1962 Mr. Diefenbaker reversed the procedure by first announcing he would seek dissolution, then flying to Quebec City where Gen. Vanier was at his other summer residence in the citadel.

Dissolution was the occasion for controversy in 1940, and for the country's greatest constitutional rhubarb in 1926. Both times Mackenzie King was prime minister.

In 1926, his minority Liberal government defeated by a vote in the House, Mr. King went to Lord Byng, the governor-general, to seek dissolution.

Lord Byng accepted Mr. King's resignation but refused to dissolve Parliament. Instead, he asked the Opposition leader, Arthur Meighen, to form a government.

Meighen's Conservative government lasted only three days before it, too, was defeated in the Commons. Lord Byng then acceded to Mr. Meighen's request for dissolution and the next election returned the Liberals to office.

ACCEPTS PMS ADVICE

The King-Byng fight established the practice that the governor-general accepts the advice of his prime minister in dissolving Parliament.

The 1940 controversy began in 1939 when Parliament met briefly to approve the declaration of war. Mr. King made a commitment to meet Parliament again before calling an election.

Later he decided on an election but the commitment stood in his way. He went through the motions by recalling Parliament and including the announcement of an election in the throne speech.

This action resulted in an angry debate, with the Opposition leader, R. J. Manion, protesting that not even a token session had been called.

The argument continued until the dinner adjournment. Mr. King obtained dissolution during this period and the after-dinner bell never rang to summon MPs back for the evening sitting.

Pro-Communist Elements In Dominican Republic Still Provoke Grave Concern

It now is four months since revolt swept the Dominican Republic and President Johnson sent in the U.S. marines. In the following story a correspondent who has spent much of the last six years in the country gives an analysis of the situation today.

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — The shooting has died down, but the Dominican people are still caught up in a flood of frustration fed by suspicion and widespread feeling against the United States. Offstage, Communist elements seem to be waiting to take advantage of any openings they can find.

Revolution exploded in the Dominican Republic four months ago. U.S. troops came in, first to protect American lives, then avowedly to prevent a Communist takeover.

Later, peacekeeping troops were internationalized under the banner of the Organization of American States.

Today pro - Communist elements in the rebel sector of this divided capital still provoke grave concern among Western and Latin American diplomats. Even some among the top-level rebel officials now seem worried about left-wing extremist control or influence in the rebel movement.

Some progress has been made in the search for a solution to the political crisis but prospects for a lasting settlement remain cloudy. The economy is in a disastrous state.

MAY HAVE TO STAY

The reconstruction task looks so complex that some feel the inter-American peace forces may have to stay much longer than Dominicans want — perhaps all through 1966.

The drama really began Sept. 23, 1963, the day militarists overthrew Juan Bosch, the first democratically - elected president in nearly 40 years.

Last April, a counter-revolution erupted with the announced aim of restoring Bosch.

The April revolt revived deep resentments against the military, among people who indicated they felt cheated by the loss of their first constitutional government in decades.

Rising anti-yankeeism is a byproduct of the U.S. troop landings. Left-wing extremism is thriving on this.

U.S. aid since the revolt started has passed $43 million, excluding $10,000,000 monthly going into the economy as a result of dollar salaries to U.S. government officials and troops. The requirements ahead can be staggering.

The capital's division keeps it in a state of paralysis.

There are about 9,000 U.S. troops and 2,000 from Brazil, Costa Rica, Honduras, Nicaragua and Paraguay in the forces which control the international security zone, a buffer between rebel boundaries and the area controlled by the civilian-military junta.

Sympathy for the rebels seems widespread throughout the country, perhaps less from support of personalities or ideologies than through antipathy to the military hierarchy and to corrupt political forces deemed responsible for the collapse of constitutional government.

Especially among the mass of less privileged Dominicans, the prevailing sentiment seems to be that the army had too heavy a hand on the helm in the past. This is largely what the fighting is about.

The rebels and many Dominicans sympathizing with them say the military has not been purged of corrupt influences.

Space Techniques Showed Watts Area Riot-prone

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Space engineers said today they pinpointed the Watts section of Los Angeles as violence-prone before recent riots broke out in the area.

Their report backed up what social experts in many fields had foretold without avail prior to the several days' rampage that left 36 dead, almost a thousand injured, more than 4,000 jailed and millions of dollars damage done.

But the report was unique in that Space-General Corp. had put California crime under a six-month laboratory test by techniques of data processing normally used to advance man's conquest of space.

"Tough space engineers," Governor Edmund G. Brown said in making the report public, found "that the burdens of crime, school dropouts, low income, and dense population heighted more heavily on the Watts area than on any other section of Los Angeles."

"It is a clear warning," Brown remarked, "that we must move to find jobs for people in areas like Watts; to improve the schools; and to wipe out the other roots of crime."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Mayor W. Yorty and Police Chief William H. Parker agree that it was law officers' mishandling which led to the Watts riots.

But both blamed the California -highway patrol, not the much criticized Los Angeles force.

California highway patrolmen made the arrest which triggered the riots Aug. 11, Parker said on NBC's Meet the Press Sunday.

In Los Angeles, Yorty said bad judgment by the patrolmen, possibly the result of inadequate training, set off the riots.

Montreal Students Oppose Quebec 'Young Canadians'

MONTREAL (CP)—The University of Montreal Students' Association thinks the Company of Young Canadians, recently formed by the federal government, should stay out of Quebec.

The association at a weekend convention, called on the Quebec government to assert what the students called its exclusive jurisdiction over the matter of student action.

The association urged the province to increase its support of student action programs already being sponsored in Quebec by the students at the universities of Montreal and Laval in co-operation with some labor groups.

The Company of Young Canadians was established so that Canadian youth could work in the development of backward countries overseas and in social programs in Canada. It is similar to the United States peace corps.

The association said Ottawa should pay Quebec the money the federal government would otherwise use in youth action programs in the province.

The organization, which claims a membership of 10,000 said its own program has sent students to assist in the development of low-income districts and was characterized by grass-roots spontaniety.

NAMED MINISTER

MOSCOW (AP)—Further evidence appeared Sunday that the Soviet government is overhauling its sales and price program to bring into more active play laws of supply and demand. Vladimir K. Sitnin, chairman of the state committee on prices in the government production administration, has been promoted by the presidium of the Supreme Soviet to the full rank of minister. He has been a deputy minister of finance since 1960.

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Maybe it's been the cool summer.

More than likely it is simply a matter of Father Time collecting a bundle of overdue debts.

At any rate, the summer of '65 has been a rough one for many of the sporting world's veteran campaigners.

Baseball has been the hardest hit. Lefty great Warren Spahn heads the list but there are plenty of others who have indicated that the end of their stardom has either arrived or lurks just around the corner.

Included on the list are Robin Roberts, Mickey Mantle and the old professor, Casey Stengel, to mention but a few from the ranks of baseball's elite.

Switching to a different sports' track, the fall from the winners' circle of Peter Snell is probably the most surprising.

Snell can hardly be classed as an old man at the tender age of 26. His failure to continue as one of the world's greatest, if not the greatest, runners came suddenly and apparently without warning.

The New Zealand ace appeared to reach his peak last October at Toyko when he set the Olympic 800-metre record of 1:45.1 and took another gold medal for his brilliant 3:38.1 clocking in the 1,500 metres.

That effort made Snell the first man since 1924 to achieve the double victory—and at least from here it appeared that he would produce plenty more of the same. Snell, a steady competitive runner for seven years, won his first gold medal at Rome in 1960, in the 800 metres.

A world mark for the mile was established by Snell at Wellington, New Zealand, on January 27. 1962. He ran the distance in 3:54.4 and the mark stood until this summer when France's Michel Jazy became the hottest thing to hit the tracks for some time, erasing Snell's record with a 3:53.6 mile.

The beginning of the end came early in June this spring when Toronto's talented Bill Crothers beat Snell to start him on the downhill path. That was near the start of Snell's seven-week tour of North America and Europe, a tour that proved dismal from start to finish.

Early losses to lesser opponents were thought to be because of illness. Such may have been the case but when Snell made his formal retirement speech to the press on July 26 he admitted that he was unable to maintain his world class form.

"I've hung up my spikes," he said. "I'm most disappointed I could not finish my career on a high note, but the tour made me realise the difficulty in maintaining world class form. I could not carry out enough training each week to be able to compete against improved overseas standards."

Snell's followers, and there were many, thought that Jazy's tremendous feats might make Snell, a man of fierce pride, snap out of his slump and go on to regain his records. Instead his consistently poor showing, especially in Europe near the end of his tour, sped his retirement plans.

Comebacks are numerous in all phases of sport, so at this early date Snell can hardly be classed as completely out of the picture. However, the odds are not the kind we would care to sink our Christmas bonus into.

Back to the horsehide boys for a moment, where Spahn, Roberts and Yogi Berra have all been up for grabs at the $1 tab; Stengel has hinted at retirement, even before the unfortunate accident when he broke a hip on the eve of his 75th birthday; and Mick the Stick has suffered through another summer of physical pain that has cut his games-played total far below par, even for him.

Roberts claims he is a long way from through and backed his point by seeking release from Baltimore Orioles, objecting to spot starts and relief chores. It was much the same story with Spahn earlier this year with the lowly New York Mets, before he joined the San Fran Giants.

The New York Yankees (yes, we still love 'em) are holding a "Mickey Mantle Day" in September, something they do only in rare cases for the great ones like Ruth, Gehrig or "Joltin' Joe." Many think the day will mark the end of Mantle's career. If it does not, Mickey may wind up doing pinch-hit and spot duties in another year.

As much as we hate to see the likes of Snell, Spahn and Mantle calling it a day, perhaps Bob Feller put it best when advising Warren to quit: "People remember your last years when you are trying to hang on, like Joe Louis or Y. A. Tittle, and it can ruin your image for life.

"Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams and Stan Musial were the smart ones. They quit while on top. That's the only way to go."

Latta Win Ties Series With Read

Lorne Cronkright pitched Latta to an 8-0 win over Read to even their best-of-seven South Hastings baseball series at two games each. Cronkright was touched for only a pair of hits in hurling the distance, and got plenty of support from his mates at the plate.

Latta notched two runs in the first frame and kept chipping away until they reached their total of eight.

Cronkright struck out three and walked four men.

On the opposing mound, Frank Farrell was battered for 10 hits including two homers. He whiffed five and walked six.

Larry Mavety spearheaded the Latta offence with a home run, double and single. Doug Chisholm lashed three base-hits and Howard Meeks slammed a homer and singled, while Bob Smith and Garry Ray added singles.

Pat Enright and Carmen Milligan stroked base-hits for Read.

Ethier Pitches Win * * * * * * * * * * Muirhead Scores Run

Juniors Edge Brockville 1-0 In 23

By ROBERT SNEFJELLA

BROCKVILLE — Stu Muirhead raced home on a wild pitch to score the only run in the 23rd inning of a fantastic softball battle here Saturday between Ellis' Juniors and Brockville Diggers.

Muirhead's score broke up an incredible 22 inning shutout pitching duel between Bob Ethier of Belleville and Rodger Hodgekinson of the Diggers.

The game is believed to have established records in several categories.

Another amazing feat achieved in the marathon was a strike-out total of 71, with Hodgekinson getting 39, Ethier 32.

The entire contest rested on the 23rd inning, for the Saturday night curfew would have prevented it from continuing any further. Had Belleville not managed to squeeze in a run, the game would have ended 0-0.

The loss was a heart-breaker for Brockville, as they out hit the winners by a 13-7 margin, and left 24 men stranded to Belleville's nine. Ethier's clutch pitching and key plays in the field by his team-mates kept the scoresheet clean.

The second game in this OASA Junior "A" playdown series is slated for Tuesday night, at the Belleville Fairgrounds. Game time is 8.30.

The struggle had many highlights.

In the 10th frame, Ethier singled and reached second when the fielder juggled the ball with none out. But Hodgekinson, who looks like Paul Bunyan on the mound, struck out two batters and got another to fly out to get out of trouble.

Ethier and Muirhead both slammed base - hits in the fifteenth with only one out, but again the threat was snuffed out by Brockville. The preceding situations were the only times in the first 22 innings that Belleville threatened.

The losers came close many times but could never finish what they started. They left men on second eight times, and on third on three occasions.

BOB ETHIER

With the bases loaded in the tenth, Stu Muirhead raced in to make a shoe - string catch of a blooper over second base, and thus end the rally.

In the 13th inning, left fielder Larry Soule was the workhorse for the Juniors. He caught a line-drive for the first out, and with men on second and third, pulled down a long fly ball and whipped it home to beat the runner and end the inning.

But in the last frame, Ellis' Muirhead lined a double with two out. Ethier was walked purposely, and Mike Chatland drilled a shot to load the bases. Hodgekinson then threw a splendid effort out the window when he lobbed a pitch out of the reach of his catcher, enabling Muirhead to streak home, safe by inches.

The drama was not over, however, when the home-towners came to bat in their half of the inning. Hodgekinson, who had four hits off Ethier in the game, came to the plate with two out. Ethier struck him out.

The game was witnessed by only a sprinkling of fans who braved the October temperatures and winds.

Leading Belleville's modest attack were Bob Ethier and Stu Muirhead, having two safeties each. Don Gardiner, Wayne Woods, and Mike Chatland added singles.

Bloomfield Loses 4-1 To Lindsay

Lindsay handed Bloomfield a 4-1 setback on the winner's field Saturday evening to grab a 1-0 lead in their OASA Intermediate "B" playdown series.

Second game of the two-of-three set will be played in Picton this Wednesday night. Game time is eight o'clock.

Bloomfield held a healthy edge in the hit department but could not get them when necessary, leaving a number stranded.

Lindsay built up an early lead, on a bases-empty homer and Bloomfield errors. The loser's lone run came late in the game, on a solo homer by Warren Ostrander. Earlier, Ron Weese had collected three hits in four trips but to no avail.

Buzz Hodgins was the winning pitcher and Ken DeMille hurled the loss for Bloomfield, allowing only four hits.

Extreme cold bothered both teams and rain also had its effect, halting action for about ten minutes early in the contest.

Booth's Rally Falls Short By One Run

Peterborough staved off a seventh inning Belleville rally and managed to come away with a 7-6 decision in the final EOBA Tyke playdown contest between the two teams on Saturday. Booth TV Tykes were the only Belleville team remaining in the playdowns.

Peterborough now meet Brampton in the finals.

John Hughie hurled a five-hit victory. He whiffed six and walked four.

Ron McTaggart and John Mulvihill combined on the loser's mound and allowed seven safeties while striking out 15 and giving up six free passes.

Peterborough's offensive was headed by Rob Davidson and Martin Petarelli.

Elginburg Defeats Point Anne

Unable to hold a first-frame 2-0 lead, the Point Anne Cementmen suffered a 6-3 defeat at the hands of Elginburg, at Sydenham, Saturday night in the first game of their OASA Junior "D" playdown series.

Second game of the two-of-three set will be played at Point Anne next Saturday, at four o'clock.

A walk, errors, a hit batter and G. Maher's hit helped the Cementmen to their early 2-0 lead. That was it however, until they got one in the ninth when Whalen's pinch - hit double led to their final marker.

Elginburg worked away with lone runs in the first, second, fourth and fifth, plus two in the sixth, to grab the decision. Errors and passed balls were costly and homers by Ducette in the fourth and Cordukes in the fifth were key blows.

J. Leiman hurled five - hit ball to register the victory, striking out 17 and walking seven.

Dennis Hull allowed nine hits in a losing cause. He struck out 12 and issued only one free ticket.

Perry Ellis collected two Point Anne hits while the others going to Vern Whalen, Gerry Maher and Rick Rosebush.

J. Deline, J. Irwin and J. Harvey got two safeties each for Elginburg. R. Cordukes, H. Ducette and W. Clapp had the others.

Pester Sparks Kingston Win

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

KINGSTTON — Charlie "Goose" Pester took matters in his own hands here Saturday night and the Prince George Indian slugger carried a mighty big bat in those hands.

Pester slammed three hits, one a tremendous homer, and drove in four runs as Kingston blanked Trudeau Motors 5-0.

The defeat knocked Belleville out of the OASA Senior "B" playdown picture two games to one.

Only a handful of fans braved the cold and wet to watch the game in McGaffin Stadium here.

It started out as another tight one, scoreless for four innings.

The only error of the night put Kingston's leadoff man on in the fifth and the next batter was hit by a pitch. The cheap runners were costly. Don Senior singled one home and Pester's base hit to centre plated two more.

Trudeaus saw their hopes dim in the seventh. Senior singled again and Pester drove a low screamer to the deepest part of centre field for the 5-0 score.

The losers had their chances in every inning from the fourth out but could not get hits when they counted. They got a double and single without a run in the fourth; had leadoff hits in the next three frames; loaded the sacks in the eighth and got the first man on again in the ninth. Reg Beatty had the fielding gem of the series in the final frame when he ran a mile to steel an extra-base hit from pinch-hitter "Shaker" Baker and doubled Zakos off first.

Sportswriter Ron Brown pitched his second win of the series on the Kingston rubber. He scattered seven hits, struck out 11, walked one and hit one. His early-game control was perfect but he tired a bit later.

Bob Green took the loss before giving away to Bill Baldwin after Pester's seventh-inning homer. He allowed seven of the Indians' eight hits, fanned five and walked six. Baldwin struck out two and walked one.

Don Senior backed Pester's three-hit effort with a pair of key singles. Jack "Gabby" White doubled, Haven Ferguson and Bob Senior split the others. In all, Pester had six hits during the series.

Hugh Brennan completed a great series for Trudeaus with a double and several big fielding plays. Other base hits went to Bob Wannamaker, Rick Locke, Pete Weston, Tom Meeker, Larry Mavety and Paul Zakos.

Kingston now meets an Oshawa-Peterborough winner while the loss ended Trudeaus' action for the season.

Stamps Stop Ticats On Late Major

Lions Rip Argos

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Four years ago, when interlocking games were inaugurated in the Canadian Football League, Toronto Argonauts went to Vancouver and Hamilton Tiger-Cats visited Calgary on a September weekend, and came away with victories.

Both games were close—the Argos downed British Columbia Lions 15-7 and the Ticats nipped the Stampeders 37-36. And both have been amply avenged by the losers in the intervening years. Neither eastern club has picked up a point from that particular opponent since.

The Tiger-Cats and Argonauts revisited the scene of the crime during the weeknd and found the natives still unfriendly. Hamilton lost to the Stampeders 18-11 Saturday night while the Lions clobbered the Argos 36-1 Sunday.

Calgary's win before a home crowd of 18,800 helped Stampeders to a share of first place in the Western Conference with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, who have a game in hand. The Lions are fourth, three points back.

Argos, who made another half-dozen changes in their personnel for this game, lost their fourth in a row.

A Stampeder victory was a bad bet as late as the seven-minute mark of the final quarter, when the Ticats led 11-8 and Calgary needed 45 yards for a first down.

ROMPS 34 YARDS

But the Stampeders got out of the jam on a Hamilton penalty, then sent Lovell Coleman on a 34-yard romp for the winning touchdown.

The Hamilton defence was like a rock against everyone but Coleman, who ran 138 yards, and flanker Bobby Taylor, who took a pass 74 yards to score on Calgary's first play of the game.

Larry Robinson converted the Calgary touchdowns, and kicked a single and 28-yard field goal. Fullback Art Baker burst through Calgary's line for a 67-yard touchdown run that gave Hamilton its brief lead in the fourth quarter. Don Sutherin kicked a 40-yard field goal and Joe Zuger quick-kicked nearly 70 yards for two singles.

The Lions didn't have a halfback left by the time the gun sounded before 30,855 fans at Vancouver. Willie Fleming was shaken up and sat dizzily on the bench for most of the second half, while Ron Morris nursed a pulled hamstring muscle in his left leg.

Standing in were two fullbacks, Bob Swift and Bill Munsey, and a pair of flankers, Mack Burton and Senny Homer.

SCORES B.C. TDs

Swift, Munsey, Homer, end Jim Carphin and quarterback Joe Kapp scored the B.C. touchdowns, Neal Beaumont kicked a 36-yard single and Peter Kempf converted four of the touchdowns, adding a single when he missed a field goals.

Dave Mann's second-quarter single was all the Argos could muster.

The Lions intercepted four of Pete Liske's passes and one thrown by Jackie Parker, hit Liske for losses totalling 39 yards, and held the over-all Toronto ground gain to 12 yards.

The B.C. defenders also blocked an Argo kick behind the Toronto goal-line, but it rolled out of bounds. B.C. took possession at the Argo four for the next play and the Argos put up a sturdy wall to prevent a touchdown.

Munsey, a CFL all-star as a defensive halfback, relished a new assignment as fullback and halfback. He gained 121 of the Lions' 154 yards on the ground, including a 48-yard burst to set up Carphin's touchdown.

The Lions made changes at six positions for the game, and all worked well.

The Argos started with only three of the Americans from last year's club.

Jets Fail To Clinch Pennant

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Columbu Jets were within one pitch of clinching the International League baseball pennant Sunday, but Jacksonville Suns' Ed Spiezio kept the champagne corks from popping—at least temporarily.

The Jet were leading 2-0 with two out in the ninth and two strikes across. Spiezio then connected for a three-run homer to give the Suns a 3-2 victory.

Columbus, 7-6 winners in the opener of the doubleheader, needed a sweep to clinch firs' place over the second-place Toronto Maple Leafs, who stayed alive by beating Buffalo Bisons 3-0.

Syracuse Chiefs, meanwhile, moved into a tie for the fourth and last playoff berth by drubbing Rochester Red Wings 15-6. The winners scored nine runs in the eighth inning and sent 18 men to bat against four pitchers.

Atlanta Crackers edged Toledo Mud Hens 6-5 but were mathematically eliminated from the pennant race despite the victory.

SCOTS QUALIFY

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Scottish qualified for the Western Canada soccer final by defeating Regina Concordia 3-0 Saturday night. The Manitobans will meet the winner of the Alberta-British Columbia semi-final.

Parsons Earn 5-0 Victory

Belleville Parsons Cleaners whitewashed the Crusaders 5-0 in a Kingston and District Soccer League game, played at Kingston, Saturday evening.

Parsons make their next start, also in Kingston, against the second place Dunkirks next Saturday. Kick-off time has been moved up to 6.00 p.m. because of earlier darkness.

The clubs were scoreless at half time, despite fine chances by Rutherford and Iasenza, of Belleville, and Kingston's Jesperson, the latter on a free kick. Strong winds effected play throughout the game.

Parsons took complete control in the second half and Joe Iasenza banged the first goal through the goalies' hands after taking a pass from Jim Patterson.

Iasenza fired his second goal on a three-way pass with Brown and McLeod. Alan Brown was credited with the third goal when his hard shot deflected in off a Crusader defenceman.

Bob Rutherford fired the final pair of goals to put the game in wraps. His first came after a Brown pass and his second on a play with Iasenza.

In league games played to date, Rutherford is Belleville's leading scorer, with twelve goals, followed by Brown, with eight.

Palmer Second

Al Gieberger Captures Classic

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Al Gieberger didn't need any peanut butter and jelly sandwiches to capture the $100,000 American Golf Classic Sunday. But he took them along and ate them anyway.

Gieberger took a five-stroke lead into the final round and, although he shot a two-over-par 72, no one offered a challenge as he won his first major tournament and pocketed the top prize of $20 000.

Gieberger, six foot 2½, said he has dropped to 155 pounds. The winds which buffeted the Firestone course during the first three rounds failed to ruffle him as he finished the 72 holes at an even-par 280.

Bobby Nichols, second to Gieberger as the final round opened had a 76 and a 289 total to drop into a fifth-place tie with Johnny Pott, Tony Lema and Jack Rule Jr.

Arnold Ualmer, who opened the day one stroke behind Nichols, finished with a 70 and 284 for second place and $12,000 to his bankroll.

'NOT STRONG ENOUGH'

Gieberger, who has a pattern of skipping every fourth tournament because "I'm just not strong enough", revealed his peanut butter and jelly routine while being questioned about his obvious lack of stamina.

"Most golfers don't like to eat on the course while playing but I'v learned it helps my endurance," said Gieberger, who began packing his own lunch because of Palmer's tremendous following.

"In one tournament I was grouped with Arnie and there were so many people around I couldn't get to a refreshment stand," he said. "So I decided to make my own sandwiches."

Jack Nicklaus turned in the poorest four pounds of his career and finished with a 303 total. It was the first time Nicklaus had failed to finish in the money after playing four rounds of golf.

Cannifton Drops 3-2 Thriller

Cannifton lost a tough 3-2 decision to Campbellville on the winners' home diamond Sunday afternoon in the first game of their OBA Intermediate "C" playdown series.

Second game in the two-of-three set will be played at Cannifton next Saturday afternoon, at two o'clock.

Campbellville jumped ahead 2-1 in the opening frame and made it 3-1 in the fifth. Cannifton got one in the ninth to make it close but could not plate the equalizer.

Bill Latchford tossed nine-hit ball on the losers' hilltop over the distance. He struck out seven and walked three.

Hamilton was the winning chucker, with relief help in the final frame. He gave up nine hits, fanned an even dozen and walked three.

There were but two errors in the contest, one per team.

Moore sparked Campbellville's attack with a double and two singles. Wingrove contributed a double and the other hits were one-baggers.

For Cannifton, Gerry Hill hit three singles, Bill Latchford two and Ron Urch a double. Don Forsythe, Ross Empey and catcher Len Harvey also hit safely.

Trainer Given Suspension At Fort Erie

FORT ERIE (CP)—The Ontario Racing Commission Saturday suspended trainer John J. Mack for 60 days after tests showed a drug had been given to a horse.

Mack will not be able to train horses on any track in North America until after Oct. 26.

The commission said in a statement the horse, Peterry, owned by L. W. Millard of Toronto, showed the presence of a drug "of the nature of codeine" in a urine sample taken after it had won the third race Aug. 10.

The purse was redistributed after Peterry was disqualified.

Stoney Creek Defeated

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (CP)—A pair of man-sized Americans combined Saturday to lead Windsor Locks, Conn., to a 3-1 victory over Stoney Creek, Ont., and frustrate the Ontario team in an attempt to become the first Canadian squad to win the Little League World Series.

First baseman Dale Misiek, a five-foot, 10-inch 180-pounder and the biggest player in the series, provided the winning margin with a two-run homer in the fourth inning.

Mike Roche, a 132-pound right-handed pitcher who was touch in the clutch, allowed only three hits and struck out 14, whiffing the side three times—in the second, third and sixth innings. The only run scored by Stoney Creek came on a throwing error in the scond inning by Misiek.

An estimated crowd of 20,000—including approximately 5,000 Canadians who came to watch the first Canadian team to reach the finals in 19 years of Little League World Series history—watched the Connecticut team win the world championship in its first try.

Joe Palango allowed only five hits and had only one bad inning—the fourth—but the right-hander still lost the game.

LACK POWER

The Stoney Creek team, from the Hamilton suburb of about 6,700, proved to Americans that the calibre of Canadian play is improving but didn't have quite enough firepower to win the game.

Stoney Creek was in the game all the way and had the tying run at the plate in each of the last two innings of the six-inning game.

Palango allowed only five hits, all but one of them in th fourth. The other was Roche's sixth-inning single.

He struck out five and walked three.

More than 600 Stoney Creek residents including the mayor spent the last week in Williamsport watching the team of 11- and 12yearold boys. More than 20 buses were chartered to carry Canadian spectators to the game. Prime Minister Pearson sent his personal congratulations.

By DON LOVEGROVE

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (CP)—The finest display of defensive baseball ever seen at the Little League World Series.

That is the way Williamsport fans described the performance of a scrappy young team from Stoney Creek, Ont., Saturday even though the Canadian boys were defeated 3-1 in the dramatic 1965 final game before a crowd of 21,000.

Only a booming two-run homer by husky Dale Misiek of Windsor Locks, Conn., spoiled the Stoney Creek bid to become the first Canadian team ever to claim the world championship.

Tuesday Stoney Creek became the first Canadian team ever to win a first-round contest by defeating Rota, Spain, 6-0. Wednesday Stoney Creek shocked the tournament by downing favored Jeffersonville, Ind., to gain the championship final.

For Bert Carrigan, the popular manager of the team, it was almost the answer to a dream for five years he has been coaching the all-star team from the six-team Stoney Creek Little League. Four times his team has made the Canadian final, and the 1965 trip to Williamsport was his second as Canadian representative.

FIVE RETURNED

Of the 14 players, only five were back from last year's team that dropped a 5-4 decision to Valleyfield, Que., in the Canadian final.

Joey Palango, who pitched Tuesday's win then wound up a loser in the thrilling final, and diminutive Ricky Ferron, who was the talk of the World Series with his fielding, were regulars in 1964.

Third baseman Karl Betz, second baseman Darrell Ostrosser and utility man Jim Ulajkov were alternates in 1964. The rest of the team are rookies.

"They laughed at us," Carrigan claimed after Wednesday's semi-final triumph.

"They won't laugh any more."

Ferroni, four-foot-seven and weighing only 80 pounds, made what veteran Little League officials claim was the greatest play in 10 years of World Series play when he plowed into the dirt to cut off a sharp grounder in the third inning.

TAKES IT WELL

Like most of the players he wasn't too disappointed about losing.

"I'm just glad we got down here," he said like a seasoned pro. "When we go back we can brag about winning two games. That's more than any Canadian team."

"We showed them some defensive plays they've never seen before," said coach George Bender proudly.

Despite the loss the team chalked up an impressive record, winning 10 of 11 tournament games. They had won six by shutouts and allowed only seven runs while scoring 50.

"You know what this means," one proud Stoney Creek parent declared. "We will have to come back again."

Athletes Honored At CNE

TORONTO (CP)—Athletes of yesterday and today were honored by the Canadian National Exhibition Saturday, when they were inducted into the Hockey Hall of Fame and Sports Hall of Fame on the CNE grounds.

Eleven hockey greats and three from other sports were awarded Hall of Fame crests by Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, at a directors' luncheon during International and Athletic Day at the CNE.

Among those who attended were broadcaster Foster Hewitt of Toronto and Tommy Lockhart of New York, long a supporter and promoter of hockey in the U.S. Both were cited for their contributions as builders of the sport.

Former NHL players attending included Bill Mosienko of Winnipeg who played with Chicago Black Hawks; Red Horner of Toronto, one of the league's outstanding, and most penalized, defencemen with Maple Leafs; Syd Howe of Ottawa, a perennial star with Ottawa, St. Louis, Toronto and Detroit, and Marty Barry of Halifax, a member of Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings.

ARE ABSENT

Also honored in their absence were Clint Benedict of Ottawa, netminder for Ottawa and Montreal Maroon teams who was unable to attend because of illness, and former pro players now deceased—Fred Scanlan, Arthur Farrell, Jack Marshall, Ernie Russell and Blair Russell.

Northern Dancer, Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor's outstanding three-year-old thoroughbred and winner of the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Queen's Plate among other top stakes races, also received Hall of Fame crests. Mr. Taylor accepted the crest.

Joe O'Brien, a native of Alberton, P.E.I., regarded as the top trainer-driver of trotters and pacers in North America and now a resident of Shafter, Calif., flew from Chicago for his crest.

Michael Young of nearby Port Credit, a member of the 1965 Canadian bob sled team that won the world championship at St. Moritz, Switzerland, was the third athlete inducted into the Hall of Fame.

Rocket Resigns Position

MONTREAL (CP) — Rocket Richard is resigning as vice-president of Montreal Canadiens because "it's no fun sitting behind a desk all day with nothing to do."

The former super-star with the National Hockey League club announced his intentions Sunday in his column Maurice Richard Vous Parle in the French-language weekly Dimanche-Matin.

"The title of vice-president or assistant to the president—take your choice—was never more than honorary," Richard wrote. "I never had time to do it justice, though I would so much have liked to contribute constructively to the cause of the Canadiens. But I never was more than a good-will ambassador."

He will remain good-will ambassador, the 44-year-old right-winger, who retired from the ice in 1960, said.

As vice-president, 'I was never invited to a meeting behind closed doors, never asked for an opinion on anything whatsoever."

The Rocket became club vice-president during a reorganization last year. His salary was never announced.

SEES MILK PRICE RISE

GUELPH (CP) — The retail price of milk in Ontario may rise as much as five cents a quart by early next spring, the president of the Ontario Farmers' Union said Saturday. John Dolmer said in a telephone interview that his organization has proposed that producers of whole milk receive $7 a hundredweight instead of $5 and producers of milk for manufacturing purposes get $5 a hundredweight, instead of $3.15.

Mays Sets Homer Mark

Four Leaders Get Even Weekend Break

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The gopher ball is putting Milwaukee Braves in a hole.

Chicago Cubs orbited five homers Sunday for a 10-2 victory over the fourth-place Braves that dropped them 2½ games off the National League lead with their sixth consecutive defeat.

And the gopher ball has proved the Braves' undoing in all six games. During that stretch the opposition has scored 31 runs—23 coming on 12 homers.

Billy Williams proved a one-man wrecking crew for Chicago over the weekend as his grand slam took care of Friday night's 5-3 victory. His two-run shot featured Saturday's 3-1 victory and he wound up the weekend with a solo homer while Ernie Banks and Ron Santo chipped in with two apiece in Sunday's massacre.

Los Angeles Dodgers, meanwhile, held on to their 1½-game lead despite a 13-3 clubbing by Philadelphia Phillies as the chasers continued to hop up and down the standings.

Willie Mays hit a league-record 17th homer in one month as San Francisco Giants belted the New York Mets 8-3 and moved into second place. Cincinnati Reds dropped to third, one percentage point behind the Giants and 1½ games back of the Dodgers, after a 10-4 loss to St. Louis Cardinals.

PIRATES SURGE BACK

The streaking Pittsburgh Pirates climbed back to within 4½ of the top by downing Houston Astros 4-2 for their eighth victory in nine games.

That gave the four leaders an even break for the weekend as the Dodgers bombed the Phillies 8-4 Saturday while the Reds pounded the Cardinals 8-2, Houston outslugged Pittsburgh 9-6 and the Giants bowed to the Mets 3-0.

The Phillies blasted five Dodger pitchers starting with Claude Osteen, 11-13, for four homers and three triples, Richie Allen collecting one of each. Alex Johnson, wound up with four hits, Pat Corrales and Bobby Wine also homered.

Mays broke Ralph Kiner's record for most homers in one month, and moved within one of Rudy York's major league mark, when he hit a three-run shot that climaxed the Giants' five-run outburst in the third inning. The homer was Mays' 41st of the season and No. 494 of his career, moving him ahead of Lou Gehrig into fifth place on the all-time list.

The Cardinals got the job done against the Reds with two surges. Dick Groat keyed a five-run outburst against Sammy Ellis, 17-8, with a two-run single in the fourth inning and Juan Javier stroked a two-run single in a four-run fifth.

Willie Stargell drove in the Pirates first two runs with a single before Bill Mazeroski singled and Jim Pagliaroni doubled in the sixth inning and broke a 2-2 tie.

Peyton Place Wins Battle Against 'Golden Hours' Pay

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Peyton Place is a television series that interests the industry as much as it does the audience. It is called a night-time soap opera by its critics; a "continuing dramatic series" by its network; a "television novel" by its producer. But it is handled like a small war.

The enemy is Golden Hours, as over-time pay is called. But after a year and more than 100 episodes, turned out at a rate of two and three episodes a week, the enemy has been in control for only four or five hours.

Peyton Place is scattered all over the 20th Century-Fox lot. It occupies five sound stages, two major outdoor sets and several minor ones including the public square with bandstand outside the studio commissary whose exterior doubles as Peyton Place's hospital.

Because the drama steams along at a rate of three episodes a week and often takes a month or more to work through a situation, the America Broadcasting Company issues occasionally a "directory," identifying the important members of the cast and their current situation. The most recent listed 26 principals and took up four pages of single-space typing.

Its "stars," such as Dorothy Malone, Mia Farrow, Ed Nelson and Barbara Parkins, are only part of the troops. The Peyton Place army numbers around 200, including cameramen, stagehands, electricians, seven writers and three directors.

Paul Monash, its executive producer, is the commanding general, and much of the work is done in a sort of war room where a "story board" of three writers and Monash meet.

PLAN PLOT

"We lay out the main plot lines," explained the producer, "and then break them down into episodes for assignment to the writers."

Although there are three Peyton Place directors — one for each weekly episode — it is filmed by only two crews. Part of the meticulous planning and color cards insures that the same performer will not be scheduled in scenes being filmed at the same time.

As in the day-time serials, incidental characters appear — and disappear usually for keeps. But cast vacations require considerably more advance notice and planning—two months minimum.

When regular Mia Farrow departed recently for the Frank Sinatra cruise, Monash had been prepared only for a two-week absence. He was upset to read in a gossip column that she might be away for six weeks. The war room went into emergency session and decided to put Mia in a Peyton Place coma, from which she may or may not emerge.

At July's end, Peyton Place was shooting episodes for October broadcast. Story lines and ber broadcast. Story lines and vasion plans, but it is violating no confidence to suggest that there is violent death ahead for a minor character, followed by a trial of one of the male principals. And if Miss Farrow's vacation takes any unexpected turns, Monash and his strategy board are ready with an alternate emergency plan which would get her character, Allison Mackenzie, out of the story for as long as necessary—"and let us get some good dramatic results as well," Monash concluded.

DEVELOPED SERIES

Monash, a writer turned producer, joined the studio to develop a series based on the Grace Metalious novel. He originally thought of the show as a series of complete one-hour shows, with TV's usual "continuing" characters.

Then he decided it would work better as a weekly half-hour anthology series, but with the green light from ABC, eventually decided "to take a big chance and go with a continued story at night."

Expansion of the series in late June to three from two episodes a week was not as complicated as it sounds. The cast was expanded to match a fatter story line, several ne wwriters were added and so was one director.

The producer has been using the past month's shows—one of the few evening programs on television using fresh material—to woo the audience so that when the new season starts next month it will stay loyal.

"We don't think our audience tunes in every episode," he admitted. "But we do think that about 40 per cent of it is our hard core. And that's pretty good."

Stewart Dives To Gold

LONDON (CP)—Petite Judy Stewart, 20-year-old Canadian diving and gymnastics expert, won her second medal of the British national diving championships Saturday night, defeating the reigning British champion in the women's springboard event.

Her gold medal came after a second-place silver medal in the high-board championship Thursday.

Miss Stewart, who stands four feet 11 inches and weighs less than 100 pounds, was born in Halifax but lives in Toronto. Her points total in the springboard final was 131.133, compared to defending champion Kathy Rowlatt's 126.683. Kathy McDonald, 17, of Saskatoon placed fourth with 121.733.

In the men's high-board final, European champion Brian Phelps of Highgate, England, won handily with 161.017 points. Seventeen-year-old Terry Fitzpatrick of Vancouver placed fifth with 124.817 and John Eisel, 23, of Toronto was sixth with 101.517.

Miss Stewart's gold medal gave the five-member Canadian team victory in three of the six events at the three-day championships here. Beverly Boys, 14, of Pickering, Ont., won both springboard and high-board championships for girls earlier in the meet.

Rifles Get Third Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Rifles extended their unbeaten string to three games by crushing Newark Bears 53-35 at Newark Sunday in a regular Continental Football League game.

The Bears hung on with two second-quarter touchdowns after Toronto built a 27-7 lead, but the Rifles closed the half with a converted touchdown and added 19 more points in the last half despite a leg injury which forced regular quarterback Bubba Marriott to the sidelines.

Bowmen Defeat Pistoleers

The Belleville Bowmen gained revenge for an earlier defeat and proved a point for local archers over the weekend.

The boys of the bow defeated the Quinte Handgun League by a score of 781 to 709 in their second annual challenge match.

Last year the handgunners won by 19 points but it was a different story yesterday.

The Bowmen had two scores higher than the top man on the handgunners.

The top six scores were tabulated on each side to produce the team scores of 781-709.

The Bowmen's Royce Doxtator fired 142 out of a possible 150 to pace the field. Geoff Calvert was second with 139 while Flora Donaldson and Floyd Armstrong both scored 130. Other Bowmen on the team were Leola Doxtator, with 123, and Mike Calvert, with 117.

Reg Sprackett scored 131 to lead the handgunners. K. Armstrong was second with 126 and Carl Partrick took third with 116. Three shooters, Frank Allin, Don Parks and Jack Brasford, followed with scores of 112.

There were approximately fifty people in attendance for the friendly competition and plans call for another match next August.

Sox Keep Pennant Race Alive

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ron Hansen set a major league record by handling 28 chances and helped Chicago White Sox improve theirs in the American League pennant race.

The White Sox swept a pair of 3-2 games from Boston Red Sox Sunday and moved within 6½ games of the league-leading Minnesota Twins, who lost to Cleveland Indians 3-1. Hansen had a total of 18 assists and putouts in the 14-inning opener and 10 in the second game, erasing the old record of 26 for a shortstop in a doubleheader, established by Arky Vaughan of Pittsburgh Pirates in 1940.

His first-game total also tied the league mark for an extra-inning game shared by four other players.

Besides catching and throwing everything he could grab, the 27-year-old veteran hit a double in the opener that set up the winning run.

STREAK ENDS

In other games Sunday Detroit Tigers edged Los Angeles Angels 2-1, Washington Senators nipped Baltimore Orioles 5-4 in 12 innings and New York Yankees halted Kansas City Athletics' four-game winning streak 4-3.

In Saturday's games the White Sox downed the Red Sox 5-3, Cleveland nipped the Twins 6-5, Washington edged Baltimore 5-4 the Athletics whitewashed the Yankees 4-0 and the Angels edged the Tigers 4-3.

Hansen's key double in the 14th inning of Sunday's first game put Al Weis on third from where he scored on J. C. Martin's sacrifice fly. Danny Cater's run-scoring single in the seventh inning won the nightcap.

Rookie pitcher Steve Hargan halted repeated Minnesota threats in the first six innings. The Twins got 10 runners in scoring position in that time, but only one—Zoilo Versalles—made it home. Fred Whitfield drove in two Cleveland runs with a sacrifice fly and a single.

New York snapped its scoreless string at 21 innings and went on to defeat the Athletics behind home runs by Elston Howard and Jake Gibbs.

The Senators downed Baltimore for the sixth straight time, scoring the winning run in the 12th when Brooks Robinson threw wildly on Ken Hamlin's single.

Ray Oylr's seventh-inning homer brought Detroit's four-game losing streak to an end and extended Fred Newman's losing string to six.

Browns Whip Detroit

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cleveland's National Football League champions have been wrecking the West in pre-season play—which means nothing but trouble for the East when the Browns open their title defence next month.

With big Jim Brown playing part-time—but producing the same devastating results—and rookie Dale Lindsay sparkling on defence, the Browns whipped their one-time nemesis, the Detroit Lions, 28-14 Sunday for a 4-0 exhibition record.

It was the Browns' eighth straight pre-season victory after an opening loss to San Francisco last year.

Brown scored two of the three Cleveland touchdowns in the first half, one on a 43-yard burst, before calling it a day.

The Dallas Cowboys loomed as the major threat to the Browns in the spotty Eastern Division after stalling Green Bay 21-12 Saturday night for their first victory ever against the stacked Packers. The Cowboys, beaten in their first two starts, limited the Green Bay attack — which had averaged 37.5 points per game in two victories—to four field goals.

MINNESOTA WINS

Elsewhere in the NFL Saturday, Minnesota held off Washington 20-16, extending its unbeaten exhibition streak to nine games; Baltimore riddled Pittsburgh 38-10; Chicago, paced by rookie Gayle Sayers, downed Los Angeles 28-14 and Philadelphia overpowered the New York Giants 34-13.

The New York Jets blanked Boston 17-0 despite a sub-par passing performance by prize rookie Joe Namath; San Diego whipped Oakland 46-17; Kansas City surprised Buffalo 18-16 and Houston bombed Denver 25-3 in American Football League action Saturday.

At the Park

"CAT BALLOU"
BY A NOSE

By his nose audiences will know Lee Marvin as a deadly varmint-type western gunman killer, meaner than a rattlesnake with arthritis in "Cat Ballou," Columbia Pictures way-out action comedy at the Park Theatre in Columbia color and holding until Wednesday.

Co-starred with Jane Fonda, Michael Callan, Dwayne Hickman, Nat King Cole and Stubby Kaye, Marvin plays a dual role; he is Kid Shelleen, drunken and defeated ex-gunman, and he is his own twin brother, the ruthless killer Strawn. Strawn is a sagebrush bogeyman with a silver nose curved and cruel as a hawk's beak. Somewhere in his evil life, Strawn's actual nose had been cut from his face by a bullet, and now he has taken refuge back of its sinister facsimile. According to make-up chief Benny Lane, the nose "had to have that makeshift look, as though Lee, himself, might have put it together and tied it on his face with leather thongs."

Marvin here picks up the news about his mock schnozzola. "It's a horror to look at and a horror to wear," the star said. "There are no nostrils, so I'm obliged to breathe through my mouth. That respiratory action seem to increase the menace of my appearance, but it isn't comfortable.

"Me and my nose," Marvin grinned. "I wore it home sometimes from the studio. My youngsters love it.

Gemini 5 Flight Coverage Cost Networks $3,000,000

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The eight-day space trip of astronauts L. Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad had all the audience-holding elements of a well-knit action-adventure show. After all the drama and danger came the happy ending.

Coverage of the long flight, even with much of it on a pooled basis, is estimated to have cost the three major U.S. networks a sum in the neighborhood of $3,000,000 — a lot when one realizes that the only real live television was the actual launching of the rocket.

The cancellation of the first launching date after hours and hours of TV coverage resulted in some public squabbling between the networks' news department, but it did result in having CBS at least take a hard look at the common television practise of over-covering a story more to compete with its rivals than for the benefit of the viewer.

However, after the space journey had encountered some mishaps, and great public concern over the safety of the astronauts had built up over the days, all three networks went back to their old Early Bird policy and started their coverage of the descent almost two hours ahead of the actual splash-down.

The experienced and knowledgeable commentators of all three networks did their usual fluent jobs, filling in the time between verbal reports from the space control centre, explaining and demonstrating what was happening.

Perhaps the palm for the greatest felicity of phrase Sunday should go, not to the smooth professional talkers, but to Jane Conrad, wife of one of the astronauts. NBC's Aline Saarinen was interviewing her after the men were safely aboard ship, and asked about her reaction as she gazed into the night sky during one of the capsule's passes over Texas.

"It seemed funny to see your husband going by looking like a star," said Mrs. Conrad.

Hollywood's masters of make-believe can make a plump star looks' slim and aging actresses look like young girls—well, almost.

They can erase wrinkles and double chins with cosmetics and elastic chin straps. They can fortify a receding hairline with the discreet use of a small toupee or cover a shock of hair with a hairless wig to simulate baldness.

They can manufacture dust, cobwebs and frost with a spray gun, and simulate rain—from sprinkle to typhoon—with a few twists of some handles.

They can turn blazing noon on the studio back lot into the darkest night on the lone prairie merely by unrolling an oversize awning over artificial trees, bushes and plaster-of-paris rocks.

One item, and one alone, resists simulation: Beer.

When your favorite hero steps up to the bar in the last chance and demands whisky, he tosses down a tasty belt of cold tea. But if he orders beer, it is certain to be the real thing. No one has found another palatable potion that, when poured, makes a realistic, foamy head.

Tennis Trophy Captured By Kingston Team

Kingston completed a sweep of the two-game tennis series for the Doug Grant Trophy by defeating Belleville 10-5 here over the weekend.

The Belleville players put up a better show this Sunday than last, however, having lost the opening games 13-2, and thus the total matches 23-7.

Mike Black, the most active player on the Belleville squad, came up with two victories yesterday, one in a singles match and another in a doubles match while teamed with cousin John Black.

James Hurst and Doug Grant also chalked up singles wins for Belleville, while Tim Cook was in a doubles victory.

Dave Hurst and Bill Moffatt extended top Kingston players in other matches while teenagers Don Desaulniers and Doug Grant Jr. also showed promise of providing stiffer competition for Kingston next year. Other players on the Belleville team were Bill Redquest, Tom Woodley and Don Brearley.

Maccabiah Games

Still Looking For Gold

TEL AVIV (CP) — Canada gathered in its biggest medal harvest of the Maccabiah Games Sunday but was still looking for that elusive gold.

The Sunday collection was two silver and one bronze, in three different sports, bringing the total to four silver and a bronze.

At least one more either gold or silver, was a certainty today, when Vicky Berner of Vancouver squares off against a South African opponent, Esme Emanuel, in the women's singles tennis final. She trounced American Nadine Netter 6-0, 6-3 in the semi-finals.

John Erdely of Montreal, Canadian sabre champion, put on a fine, polished performance to win the silver medal in sabres here. He had five victories and two defeats in the championship pool, a record beaten only by American gold medallist Walter Farber's 7-0 record.

Another Montrealer, Phil Sla-botsky, repeated his silver-medal performance of the 1961 games in the bantamweight division in Greco-Roman wrestling. The gold went to Yosef Suisa, one of three Israeli wrestlers who took gold medals Sunday.

The United States also won three gold medals in Greco-Roman wrestling, and Mexico and Denmark took one each.

Kiwa Kadysiewicz of Toronto, with only a year of competition behind him, finished third in the 3,000 metre walk. The event was won by Henry Laskau, an American who came out of retirement at 48 after having been out of competition for eight years. Laskau previously won the event in the 1950, 1953 and 1957 Games. Robert Reimer of Switzerland was second.

After the victory Laskau announced his retirement again.

The U.S. basketball team defeated Argentina 84-58 and Israel 74-66 in weekend play to clinch the gold medal.

Canada won its last two games to grab fifth place.

A willowy South African brunette, Lorraine Lottzof, became the star of the track and field competition by winning her third gold medal. She won the 200 metres in 25 seconds flat to add to earlier wins in the 100 and 400 metres.

The British cleaned up in the table tennis competition, taking four of five gold medals. Australia got the other.

The Games continue for two more days.

Narrow Victory

Canoe Title To Canada

GANANOQUE, Ont. (CP)—One of the most powerful canoeing clubs in Canadian paddling history led Canada to a narrow victory over the United States Sunday in the annual North American Canoe Club championships.

Montreal's Cartierville Boating Club, winner of the last nine Canadian team titles, accounted for 16 points in Canada's 40-32 victory.

The Canadian triumph was the country's 11th in the 13-year history of the championships. The U.S. captured the event in 1962 and again last year when they whipped the Canadians 51-21 at Washington.

Canada won five of the eight races held in sunny but chilly weather on the wind-whipped St. Lawrence River at this resort town 18 miles east of Kingston. The six men's races were held over 1,000 metres while the two women's events were 500-metre races.

Cartierville's total of 16 points won it the individual club championship by two points over another Montreal area entry, the Lachine Canoe Racing Club, and by five over the Michigan team. The Potomac Canoe Club of Washington was fourth in the 10-team field with 10 points.

WIN TWICE

Norbert Heese, 24, and his brother Fred, 22, of Cartierville were the only paddlers to take to the winner's circle twice. They combined for a one-length win over Terry Leswick and Mac Hiscox of Port Credit, Ont., in the canoe tandem, then followed up by paddling for the winning Cartierville entry in the canoe fours along with George Wallace and Bob Kay.

Canada jumped into an early lead and after three races held a commanding 22-5 lead.

With the Canadians needing at least a second-place finish in the final race to clinch the championship, a team from Lachine, won the kayak fours by about the width of a paddle over a crew from Washington. A second Washington entry came third.

Cold winds from the northwest, estimated by a regatta official at 12 miles an hour, kept most of the times well above record performances and no marks were established.

Vesper Third In Rowing

DUISBURG, West Germany (AP)—Germany's famed Ratzeburg crew handed the Olympic champion Vesper eight of Philadelphia a convincing half-length defeat in the featured race of the European rowing championships Sunday.

Vesper, which defeated the Germans in a preliminary heat Thursday, was only able to finish third.

A Russian crew stroked into the lead at the start of the 2,000-metre race and yielded its lead to the powerful German crew only within the last 200 metres. The Russians were beaten by only two metres.

The Soviet Union's oarsmen surprised the favored Germans by making the best showing at the 53rd annual championships. A crowd of 30,000 spectators lined the sunny Wedau rowing course and saw the Russians win the opening coxed fours race and later add two in a row in the coxed pairs and coxless fours.

WINS TWO

The Germans had just two victories. One was their win in the big boat event and the other was captured by Jochen Meissner in the single sculls, the one race the host country had been thought to have no chance of winning.

Denmark scored a victory when Hans-Joergen Boye and Peter Christiansen won the coxless pairs.

The remaining title was taken by Switzerland's Melchior Buergin and Martin Studach, who defeated Russia's Olympic and defending European champions, Oleg Turin and Boris Dubrovskij, in the double sculls.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (AP) — Buckpasser charged through the stretch and moved a notch closer to the 2-year-old championship Saturday with a 1½-length victory in the 61st running of the $110,175 hopeful Stakes at Saratoga Race Track in Saratoga Springs, N.Y.

Under a perfectly judged ride by Braulio Baeza, the strapping son of Tom Fool and Busanda from Ogden Phipps' barn took the lead as the field of seven juveniles straightened out for the final one-quarter mile dash.

Running straight down the middle, Buckpasser won going away in 1:16 over 6½ furlongs. His stablemate, Impressive, was second. Mrs. Edward Lasker's Indulto trailed by another three-quarters of a length.

For his seventh straight victory, after finishing fourth in his debut, Buckpasser earned $71,613.75 to run his total bank account to $184,875.75, tops for 2-year-olds this year.

With the Bill Winfrey pair going off the short price choice of the closing day crowd of 20,848, Buckpasser and Impressive returned $2.60, $2.40 and $2.20. Indulto, the second choice, returned the minimum $2.20 to show.

Tom Rolfe, a 3-to-10 favorite, had to hustle in the final sixteenth of a mile to beat Royal Gunner by a neck in the record running of the $107,500 Arlington Classic at Chicago's Arlington Park Saturday.

A crowd of 27,396 saw Sum Up finish third almost four lengths farther back in the one-mile event for three-year-olds.

Tom Rolfe, the Preakness champion and a leading contender for three-year-old honors, was clocked in 1:34 4-5 under Bill Shoemaker.

The colt earned $62,500 to push his two-year career earnings to $435,105.

Easy Meet Winners

Don Mills Shatters Records

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Fresh from a big victory in the eastern championships at Ottawa, the Don Mills Track and Field Club of Toronto shattered three Canadian records in winning 15 events here during the weekend to place an easy first in the national age-class track and field championships.

Don Mills athletes, led by Cathy Chapman, Cameron Crosby, and Sue Nigh, collected 320 points to finish 108 up on second-place British Columbia. Upland Harrier of Ottawa was third with 168 while Quebec had 167, Nova Scotia 119 and Alberta 107.

Marjorie Turner of Lockeport, N.S., a top prospect for Canada's Olympic Games track team who set a record in the 220-yard dash, won the 100 yards and anchored a Nova Scotia team which placed first in the 40-yard relay, was declared top female athlete of the meet.

Tagg also placed second to

Miss Turner, 17, hit the finish line in 24.9 in the 220, a tenth of a second better than the record held by Abigail Hoffman of Toronto in the juvenile women's event.

BEATS KIDD MARK

A record established in the junior men's three miles five years ago by Bruce Kidd of Toronto's East York club was one of 16 that fell at the championships. Four records were equalled.

Mike Tagg of Great Yarmouth, England, was named top male athlete of the meet after he was clocked in 14 minutes, 5.1 seconds, in the three miles. It was 2.5 seconds faster than Kidd's time.

teammate Chris Stewart of Bournemouth in the one-mile run. They were members of a six-man team representing the English Schools Athletic Association.

Miss Chapman, the blonde 17-year-old who paced Don Mills in the eastern championships, was back at the record books. She broke the juvenile women's broad - jump record by 3¼ inches with a leap of 18 feet, 3¾ inches, and ran the 80-metre hurdles in 11.5 to equal her own mark set last year at Winnipeg.

Clubmate Sue Nigh measured five feet, four inches, in the juvenile high jump to add a half-inch to the record held by Beverly Pierce of Hamilton.

BREAKS DISCUS MARK

Six-foot-two Cameron Crosby broke the juvenile men's discus record for Don Mills. The big 16-year-old was measured in 165 feet, nine inches, excelling by one inch the former mark of Michael Mercer of Oakville, Ont.

Ed Hearne of East York Track Club and 19 - year - old Judy Dallimore of Ottawa's Uplands Harrier also had fine performances. Hearne ran the junior men's 220 yard heats in 21.9 to set another record for the Toronto club, won the 100 yard dash and helped East York to a record in the 440 yard relay. The team finished in 42.6, clipping seven-tenths of a second off the record.

Miss Dallimore was awarded five gold medals for her victories in the junior women's 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes, broad jump and 440 relay.

At Student Games

Canadian Medal Total Small

BUDAPEST (CP)—One gold and three bronze medals made up the tally for the small Canadian forces as the World Student Games wound up here Sunday, Abigail Hoffman adding the last one on a third-place finish in the women's 800 metres.

Star of the 10-member Canadian contingent, first team Canada has ever sent to the Games, was Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., who won the 800 metres Friday in 1:47.7.

Other Canadian medallists were Harry Jerome of Vancouver, third in the 100 metres Thursday, and George Puce of Toronto, third in the discus Friday and beaten out of the silver medal by only three-quarters of an inch.

The host Hungarians had the biggest team at the Games, in various sports, and they won 16 gold medals to lead the victory parade. The United States had 14, the Soviet Union 13.

Laine Erike of the Soviet Union won the women's 800 in 2:06.2 Sunday, one of several gold medals picked up by the Russians during the weekend in a belated effort to catch up with the Hungarians and the Americans.

SETS CANADIAN MARK

Antje Gleichfeld of West Germany won the silver medal in 2:06.6. Miss Hoffman, an 18-year - old Toronto girl, was clocked in the Canadian record time of 2:07.8.

After Hungary's Olga Kazi had set the pace through the first 450 metres, Miss Erik and Miss Gleichfeld went to the front on the back turn and they were shoulder to shoulder turning in the stretch. Then the Russian lunged ahead to win by about a stride.

Tired but happy after her bronze-medal finish Miss Hoffman said she might have run faster if she had not lost her wind when elbowed on the last bend.

Other Russian track and field victories on the final two days included Edvin Ozolin, a surprise winner of the 200 metres in 21.0, Igor Ter-Ovanesyan in the broad jump at 26-10½ and Tamara Press in the women's shot put at 60-1.

The Americans took the men's basketball title, the exceptionally tall Russians the women's. Neither team had any trouble winning all its games.

The Hungarians were particularly impressive in fencing, winding up with a sabre team victory for their sixth gold medal in eight events, but they also shone in track and field. They got weekend wins from Jolan Kleiber, who upset Tamara Press in the women's discus and won with a heave of 182-7, Henrik Kalocsai in the hop, step and jump with 53-8, and Gyula Zsivotzky in the hammer throw with 222-3.

The Germans got another victory when Bodo Tummler won a slow 1,500 metres in 3:46.2.

Hamilton Swim Ends In Tie

HAMILTON (CP)—Abdel Latif Abou Heif of the United Arab Republic and Rejean La Coursiere of Montreal, Que., split first-place money of $2,500 Sunday after a gruelling 10-mile Lake Ontario swim that ended in a tie.

The two men battled high winds and chilling waters to complete the triangular course in five hours 18 minutes and 54 seconds.

In third place was Nabil El Shazly also of the UAR, who finished in five hours, 36 minutes and 32 seconds. He won $600.

George Park of Hamilton and Dennis Matuch of Chicago finished fourth and fifth respectively.

Only 15 of the scheduled 22 competitors started the race Sunday and only five completed the course. Cliff Lumsdon of Toronto was pulled out after completing four miles.

At the start of the race, water temperature was 54 degrees and it fell throughout the day. Winds out of the west were always against the swimmers, who had to combat gusts of up to 35 miles an hour.

Jenney Van der Merel of Hamilton was awarded $350 although she didn't finish. She was the only woman competitor.

U.S. Steel Walkout Is Delayed

By NEIL GILBRIDE

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson keeps firm hand on steel labor negotiations today after winning eight days of grace from a scheduled strike he said would endanger U.S. economic and military strength.

Talks resume today between the AFL-CIO United Steelworkers Union and 10 major firms that produce 80 per cent of the steel made in the U.S.

"They (negotiations) will continue, hopefully, until a settlement is reached," said White House press secretary Bill D. Moyers.

Less than eight hours after the negotiations were shifted from Pittsburgh to Washington at Johnson's request, agreement was reached to postpone the strike deadline from 12:01 a.m. Wednesday to 12:01 a.m. Sept. 9.

"I am sure that as they return to their negotiations . . . they will be aware of the importance of their efforts to every man and woman in this country of ours, and to the health and vitality of our economy and the security of America all around the world," Johnson said Monday night.

LEADERS UNSMILING

Johnson announced the postponement in front of television cameras and radio microphones. Union President I. W. Abel and the chief industry negotiator, R. Conrad Cooper, stood by, unsmiling.

After the postponement was announced, steel makers promptly began firing up furnaces they had begun to shut down in anticipation of the scheduled strike.

Federal mediators, headed by Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz and Commerce Secretary John T. Connor, now have the tough job of trying to reconcile what Johnson described as the "very hard positions" of the two sides.

The union is demanding a 17.9 - cent hourly increase in wages and fringe benefits in each year of a three-year contract. The industry's last offer was 13.5 cents an hour.

Each penny means some $10,000,000 a year in labor costs to the industry.

Johnson has clearly indicated in the past that he expects a settlement within White House wage - price guidelines that would limit the raise to 3.2 per cent with no price increase.

The guidelines are based on

Public Scheme Cheaper

OTTAWA (CP)—A study on a nation-wide medical care plan for Canada concludes the program could be carried out with administrative cost about one-third that of private carriers.

Dr. Charles H. Berry, an Ottawa-born economics professor who has been appointed associate professor of economics and public affairs at Princeton University, carried out the study for the Hall royal commission which investigated health services in Canada.

In the published version of his report just released by the commission, he says in his chapter on voluntary medical coverage and public policy:

"The point made here . . . is only that, in comparison with the record of the voluntary carriers as a whole, a centrally administered program on uni-

WHERE AVALANCHE OBLITERATED MEN AND MACHINES—This is the scene in the Swiss Alps near Saas Fee where a huge avalanche of ice thundered down upon men and machines building a hydro-electric plant. Arrow shows the lower part of the Allalin Glacier from which the huge chunks of ice broke. Some of the blocks were as big as a two-storey house. It is feared that the avalanche took between 40 and 100 lives. (AP Wirephoto by cable from Zurich)

New Slide Fear Halts Rescuers

SAAS FEE, Switzerland (AP) — Helicopters dropped explosives on the Allalin Glacier today after rescuers, imperiled by a new ice fall, halted operations at the site of the Mattmark avalanche disaster in whcih 99 men were trapped.

Sirens wailed over the valley where one of the largest icefields in the Alps tumbled down on a hydroelectric construction site Monday night.

Rescuers feared the glacier threatened a new fall and decided to blast away its most dangerous parts from the air.

According to the latest reports, six bodies have been recovered from under a thick layer of ice blocks. A total of 93 more workers—mainly Italian—are missing.

"If they were not killed on the spot, they would have frozen to death during the night," a foreman told reporters.

More than 1,000 rescue workers evacuated the disaster scene after the Allalin Glacier began cracking shortly after dawn.

A dull rumbling sound swept through the valley. Warning sirens sounded.

The giant glacier split Monday and sent millions of tons of ice and rocks crashing down on the power project site.

With the threatened new icefall, rescue workers scurried from the danger zone. They had little headway hacking at the icy debris despite an all night effort, during which they recovered only six bodies.

Scientists at the scene said the cracked parts of the glacier might have to be loosened with mortar shells before digging could be resumed.

MAY TAKE 2 MONTHS

Officials said it may take up to two months to recover all the bodies. About 20 construction workers were injured.

"There's no hope for the men under that mass," said one rescue worker. In some places, the ice and rocks lay more than 100 feet deep.

The avalanche struck near Saas Fee, a ski resort in southern Switzerland less than five miles from the Italian border.

The mass buried men, machines and barracks at the Mattmark power project near the resort. Some of the ice blocks were as large as two-storey houses.

One witness said the avalanche struck so quickly that the workmen, mostly Swiss and Italian, "were buried without even looking up."

Officials said about 1,000 workers were on the 6,000-foot-high site when the bottom half of the glacier, one of Switzerland's biggest, suddenly broke away, sending millions of tons of ice and rock cascading onto the construction site. The dam itself was saved by an avalanche corridor which channeled most of the tumbling ice past it.

PC Chief Claims WestSafe

OTTAWA (CP)— Opposition Leader Diefenbaker flew here Monday night from a two-day visit to Edmonton and said "there's no change out there" as far as support for his party is concerned.

"The hopes of the Liberal party that the wheat sales would make any difference are not going to be achieved," the Conservative party leader said in an airport interview.

"The people realize that it was the government which I led that changed the policy, and under widespread criticism by the Liberals, that agreed to advance credit to communist countries for wheat purchases."

Western farmers know it was the present Liberal government that cut wheat prices 18 to 20 cents a bushel despite a shortage of wheat all over the world, Mr. Diefenbaker added.

"This meant a loss of $140,000,000 in the crop year and that's a high cost for any government."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he had talked to many farmers who said it was the present government that promised $2 a bushel for wheat along with a two-price system and both these promises had gone down the drain.

CHANGES MIND

Mr. Diefenbaker had planned to go to South Vietnam following his trip to Edmonton, where he addressed a Ukrainian gathering Sunday. But he changed his plans because of Prime Minister Pearson's indications of a fall election. He said he would reschedule his Viet Nam trip if there is no fall election.

Asked whether he thinks an election is definite for the fall, Mr. Diefenbaker replied that peregrinations by the prime minister know no analysis by ordinary minds.

The Edmonton trip was made after a tour by the opposition leader through eastern Quebec communities. Mr. Diefenbaker said he plans to return to Quebec in the near future but no definite plans have been made.

At Calgary Sunday, Mr. Dief-

Con-men Again Try To Fleece Women

For the second time in two weeks Belleville police have issued warnings against con-men out to fleece elderly women of their lifesavings.

Detective Inspector Harold Reid said the tricksters were repeating attempts of two weeks ago — posing as bank officials investigating supposed thefts.

"If anyone, particularly a woman living alone, receives phone calls or visits from any such person, she should call us right away," the inspector said.

So far no one has fallen victim to the latest operation — but two women had a close call yesterday, the inspector said.

"These artists prey mainly on older women — particularly those living alone, spinsters or widows," the inspector added.

The latest investigation was touched off when one of the intended victims became suspicious and called police.

So far, detectives have not revealed whether they may have tracked down any clues on the identity of the con-men.

"All anyone has to do is to check back with their bank after receiving any suspicious calls," the inspector said.

Police worry lest someone already has been victimized without yet realizing it.

Two weeks ago — during Belleville Fair Week — plainclothes details staked out several city homes when a similar operation was uncovered. However, the dragnet failed to pull in any suspects — although a number of women still have their savings as a result of police action. They had drawn them out at the behest of an unknown voice on a telephone.

As police and bank officers continue surveillance today, Inspector Reid — for public awareness — outlined the operation.

It is simple, but brazen:

The victim receives a phone call purportedly from her bank. Her co-operation is enlisted in catching a dishonest employee. All she has to do is withdraw a named amount, take it home and it will be picked up later by bank officials.

The "officials"—of course—are the con-men.

Usually, they have an uncanny knack of guessing how much may be in the account of a victim, said the inspector. They rarely shatter the illusion by overnaming a sum — thus revealing their ignorance of their prey's affairs.

Two weeks ago, however, this was their undoing. Police first were called in after one woman drew out the requested amount. An alert teller spotted the fact it was her total savings and conveyed her suspicions to superiors.

Industry Has Duty to Air Views

TORONTO (CP) — Industrialists were told today that they created an affluent Canada and have the right and responsibility to make sure it stays that way.

H. B. Style of Toronto, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said industrialists have a "clear obligation" to make known their views on government policies "loudly enough to be heard not only in Ottawa, but across the land."

Mr. Style told a director's luncheon of the Canadian National Exhibition the first half of the 1960s was a period of notable economic advance for Canada because of high industrial productivity, massive capital investments and labor-management harmony.

THREATENS RISE

Threatening this rise in affluency is an excessive reliance on foreign-made goods and an under-educated labor force, he said.

In the last six years, industry has provided 1,000,000 additional jobs for Canadians, and

Inadvisable To Pledge No Vote

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trade Minister Sharp said Monday a pledge to postpone a federal election until after constituency redistribution would be "contrary to the public interest."

In Winnipeg to attend a testimonial dinner for William Riddel, retiring assistant chief commissioner of the Canadian wheat board, Mr. Sharp told a reporter he personally would welcome a fall election.

But, he said:

"To say that no election will be held until after redistribution would place both the government and the opposition in a position where one could not dissolve Parliament, and the other could not defeat the government.

"It would be contrary to the public interest for either the government or the opposition to give such a pledge."

Mr. Sharp said he does not know whether Prime Minister Pearson plans a fall election.

In Liberal eyes the main objective in a federal election will be to gain adequate Prairie representation, Mr. Sharp said as he predicted increased support from an area which elected only three Liberals in 1963.

Mr. Sharp said large grain sales made under the Pearson administration have shown Prairie voters that "the Liberal party is seriously interested in the problems of Western Canada." He added that he expects China to open negotiations for a new purchase of Canadian wheat "very soon."

New Political Upheaval In S. Viet Nam Feared

SAIGON (AP)—Student demonstrators have emerged again on the South Vietnamese scene and U.S. authorities expressed fear Monday of a new political upheaval.

South Viet Nam still is nursing the wounds of previous political battles in which the students successfully participated.

Now the students have taken to the streets again in the cities of Hue and Da Nang, traditional seeds of unrest. Saigon students have indicated they may join in soon.

The Saigon government appears unwilling, or unable, to do anything about it.

The agitation was touched off by a government decree that made holders of baccalaureate degrees under the age of 37 eligible for drafting into the army.

Many of the professors at Viet Nam's universities fell under this decree and, at their urging, the students began agitating. However, within a few days agitators began to urge the overthrow of the government and a reassessment of the U.S. buildup in Viet Nam.

These demands now appear dominant.

The students have singled out Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, chairman of the ruling military junta, for attack. They charge that Thieu, 42, a Roman Catholic who also is chief of state, attained power illegally.

A student newspaper being distributed clandestinely in Hue attacks Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, a Buddhist.

—A status-of-forces agreement should be drawn up between the South Vietnamese government and the United States to govern U.S. troops here, with firm controls put on inflation and "social problems" such as venereal disease which the students allege the U.S. troops have created in Viet Nam.

—The present government, appointed by the military junta, should resign and be replaced by a National Assembly. This National Assembly would be elected by members of the municipal councils which were elected by popular vote in South Viet Nam's main cities last April.

—The draft decree should be modified to permit holders of baccalaureate degrees to work within the armed forces in specialized jobs befitting their knowledge, such as psychological warfare. The students say they are prepared to help in the fight against the Communists.

But if the recent history of student agitation is any indication, these demands are just the beginning.

CN Pressured by Cabinet To Adopt Federal Code

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal cabinet is reported to be preparing to put pressure on the CNR to adopt the federal labor code's $1.25 hourly minimum wage for workers in seven CNR hotels across the country.

Immediate concern is the Chateau Laurier here where 450 employees have threatened to begin a wildcat walkout next Monday—Labor Day — if the CNR persists in its refusal to adopt the minimum wage. This strike would coincide with the arrival of 800 delegates to the interparliamentary conference Sept. 6-17.

The decision was reached at a cabinet session Friday. Transport Minister Pickersgill was assigned to inform the CNR of the cabinet's request that provisions of the labor code be applied immediately to the hotel chain. The code went into effect July 1.

The CNR maintains that its hotels do not fall under federal law but, like all other hotels in the country, come under provincial jurisdiction. This stand has twice been rejected by Labor Minister MacEachen who says he is determined to apply the federal labor code to this situation.

One railway spokesman said adoption of the $1.25 hourly wage would cost the Chateau Laurier $250,000 a year and put it deeply in the red.

Applied to all CNR hotels, new wage level would have the effect of forcing the publicly-owned railway out of the hotel business, the spokesman added. It would be impossible to maintain competitive prices.

Other hotels are the Newfoundland at St. John's, Nova Scotian in Halifax, Fort Garry at Winnipeg, Bessborough in Saskatoon, Macdonald in Edmonton and Jasper Park Lodge.

Not involved are the Queen Elizabeth in Montreal and the Hotel Vancouver, both owned by the CNR but operated by the Hilton chain.

FRENCH ARRIVE

OTTAWA (CP)—A five-man delegation from the French National Assembly arrived here Monday to study, in conjunction with a Canadian delegation, establishment of a France-Canada interparliamentary association.

Coming Events Cast Their Shivers Before

Eastern Canada continues to shiver in the grip of unseasonably cold weather today but warmer air is spreading into Ontario and is expected to reach the Maritime provinces by Wednesday.

The temperature at Sherbrooke, Que., dropped to 30 degrees overnight. Other parts of the Laurentians region and central and eastern Quebec had temperatures below the freezing point.

The Maritimes, Halifax and Summerside, P.E.I., set low temperature records for Aug. 31.

Most of southern Ontario was near 50 degrees during the night while readings from 40 to 45 degrees were general in northern parts of the province. Cloud and scattered showers accompanied the warmer air moving into the province.

British Columbia had seasonable weather while Alberta skies were sunny today following a week of rain.

Manitoba and Northern Ontario expected cool weather and rain today.

Will Exchange Paintings With India

The Belleville Jaycees have been asked by the Junior Chamber International to participate in an unique exchange of paintings by Belleville and Boroga, India, school children.

The Belleville Jaycees are to gather 12 paintings from Grades 1, 2 and 3 children through the co-operation of the schools and teachers. They are then sent to Boroga, India, a city near Bombay with a population of about 100,000.

In turn the Boroga Jaycees are sending 12 paintings to Belleville to be displayed in our schools.

The Belleville Jaycees feel honored to be the first unit in the western world to be chosen for this project. It is hoped that this will become a world wide annual exchange of arts and crafts between the children of different countries and cultures.

Douglas Says NDP Is Ready

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas sees a mixture of fear of Parliament and fear that Liberal fortunes are slipping in Prime Minister Pearson's dalliance with the idea of a fall general election.

Mr. Douglas, who plans to await Mr. Pearson's election decision in his Burnaby-Coquitlam riding, accuses the prime minister of dishonesty in suggesting that redistribution of parliamentary seats may rule out a general election next year.

"The real reason Mr. Pearson wants an election this year is that he sees that fortunes of his party declining and his choice is between calling one now or taking his chances next year when they'll be worse," Mr. Douglas said in an interview.

"Also, he's not happy about having to meet Parliament in view of some of the things that have come to light."

Mr. Douglas referred to the Dorion judicial inquiry into bribery and coercion charges against ministerial aides and to court testimony that former justice minister Favreau was informed of influence-peddling accusations against Yvon Dupuis, former federal minister without portfolio, months before action was taken.

WANT CLEANUP

He figures the four opposition parties will insist on a "real cleanup" of the Pearson ministry if Parliament meets as scheduled Sept. 27.

If Mr. Pearson calls an election, the New Democrats will make the main issues "this whole question of the lack of leadership in domestic policy and international affairs."

"Then there's the whole matter of morality in government, the 'new politics' that didn't materialize and the Pearson team which was supposed to be so efficient but has been bumbling and fumbling as never before in history."

Mr. Douglas said the New Democrats, who hold 18 seats in the Commons, would prefer an election "on a proper basis of representation rather, than on one 20 years out of date."

But the party was prepared to fight a campaign on the current distribution of seats "and is quite confident of making very substantial gains."

Mr. Douglas said that financially the party has raised about 60 per cent of the $1,000,000 war chest he requested months ago in expectation of a 1966 election.

Impaired Driving Charge Dismissed

A charge of impaired driving was dismissed today against Samuel Vigodda, 67, Belleville scrap dealer and one of six men charged in the disappearance of cobalt from the Deloro government stockpile.

Mr. Vigodda was charged after being stopped by a police officer on North Front Street July 30. The case had since been remanded twice.

Today Magistrate T. Y. Wills dismissed the charge after Crown Attorney John Pringle offered no other evidence than the testimony of the arresting officer.

Non-op Workers May Mount New Wage Demands

OTTAWA (CP)—Fifteen unions representing 100,000 non-operating railway workers are reported to be under heavy pressure from their rank-and-file membership to mount a massive wage demand on the railways this fall.

The current two-year contract expires Dec. 31 and the individual unions now are preparing the groundwork for the demands they will present jointly to the first bargaining session with the railways, probably in mid-November.

One informant close to the situation says the unions probably will bid for a pay increase of 40 cents an hour, "and don't be too surprised if it is even higher."

This would mean discarding the durable goods yardstick that the unions have clung to for the last 15 years. Under it, wage demands were tied to average earnings in the durable goods manufacturing industries —appliances, autos and such.

The so-called "non-ops" are those railway workers who do not actually operate the trains —telegraphers, shop workers, track crews, signalmen, porters, clerks and others.

Average wage of the non-ops now is about $2.20 an hour. The most recent figure available in the durable goods industries is for May, when it was $2.29 an hour.

Post Office Staff Moves Into New Federal Building

TRENTON — Trenton's new federal building opened Monday, and the post office staff moved their operations to Front Street.

The question on everyone's lips now is: "What are they going to do with the old post office?" (not so old, really; it was built in the latter part of last century).

A suggestion which crops up (from the man in the street), frequently, is that the town could use the building for a police station.

Others have suggested it would make a good local museum.

Nobody very much seems to be in favor of council's thinking that the building should be torn down to make open space in the downtown area.

"It's the last of our old landmarks," some say.

"People know Trenton by the clock tower," say others.

"They'll (council) plug it full of parking meters," say still others.

Meanwhile, there the building now stands . . . empty . . . and it's only useful function at the moment is to support the air raid warning siren.

IN MEMORIAM

CLARK — In loving memory of a beloved grandmother, Mrs. Lillian Clark, who passed away August 31st, 1955.

What we would give her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to see,
To hear her voice, see her smile,
As in the days that used to be,
But someday we'll meet again,
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each others hands again,
In heaven that happy life.

—Ever remembered by grandson Oscar.

CLARK — In loving memory of a beloved mother and grandmother, Mrs. Lillian Clark, who passed away August 31st, 1955.

Though her smile is gone forever,
And her hand we cannot touch,
Still we have so many memories,
Of the one we loved so much,
Her memory is our keepsake,
With which we'll never part,
God has her in His keeping,
We have her in our hearts.

—Ever remembered by daughter Lenna and grandson Earl.

Judge J. C. Anderson, right, of the Belleville Rotary Club, wields the gavel in welcoming three guests to the club's labor day celebration meeting yesterday. From left they are, Dave Foster, proprietor of six Foster's Chicken Take-outs in Peterborough, Trenton and Belleville. Charles H. Millard, guest speaker, member of the Board of Trustees for the Maritime Transport Union, and Col. Harland Sanders, founder of the Kentucky Fried Chicken empire.

Collective Bargaining Without Right to Strike Pure Fiction

-- Millard

The Belleville Rotarians were told yesterday that strikes are obsolete.

Guest speaker was Charles H. Millard, a member of the government - appointed three man Board of Trustees for the Maritime Transport Union.

Speaking to Rotary, at the club's annual labor day celebration meeting, Mr. Millard said, "Recently it has been stated that Canada's civil servants are soon to have the right of collective bargaining.

"There is still considerable ambiguity as to civil servants having the right to strike and I submit that collective bargaining without the right to strike is a pure fiction.

'However, at the same time, one must add that the strike as an instrument of bona fide collective bargaining is already almost 100 per cent obsolete. Something more positive and more effective must be found."

The speaker suggested that more self - government in the industrial relations field is the answer. "By that," he said, "I mean contractul provision for experienced mediation and arbitration services in place of Legislative conciliation and strikes."

Mr. Millard was the Director of the World Organization of the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions overseas until his retirement in 1961. He was appointed to his present trusteeship when trouble developed with the Seafarer's Union under Hal Banks.

HAD TO ACT

"Few people realize how important our International waterway between the U.S. and Canada has become and how it effects all our lives," he said.

"And so, when trouble developed on the waterways, the government had to act or the consequences would have been very serious indeed.

"New ground must be broken and broken soon in the whole area of industrial relations. I refer specifically to the Toronto newspaper strike and the more recent postal workers' dispute.

"The Toronto newspaper strike has not been solved because they are using outmoded methods. The strike is like the atom bomb—we don't use it any more because it doesn't accomplish what it was meant to.

"Strikes are really only a basis for recognition of the problem. That is already accomplished through legislation, so what's the point of striking? Strikes always end up on the mediation table anyway, so why not start there?"

Mr. Millard continued, "We've come a long way from the old master-servant complex. We are now dealing with management in many forms—big business, big unions and big government.

"Things are changing so fast that we often don't even recognize that they've changed. We must always strive to recognize these changes and keep in stride with them.

"There must be a new sense of partnership between management and labor. All the different areas of industry are interdependent now, unlike the old master-servant system, and management and labor must realize this.

NEED MEDIATORS

"Unfortunately, we in Canada are woefully short of qualified mediators and arbitrators who can command the confidence of both sides in disputes.

"Mediation and arbitration are the only answers to today's complex industrial relations problems."

Mr. Millard was introduced and brought to the Rotary Club by his long - time friend, Judge J. C. Anderson.

Col. Harland Sanders, founder of the Kentucky Fried Chicken recipe, was also a Rotary guest.

"I'm greatly impressed by your little town," Col. Sanders said. "It looks real progressive.

"I don't eat chicken that often," he said, referring to the chicken dinner supplied by Foster's Take Home, "but I ate it today, and the bones came out clean as a hound's tooth."

L. A. Kells Nominated for Kiwanis Post

Lawrence A. Kells, superintendent of the Belleville Public School Board, was nominated for 1966 lieutenant governor of Division 6A, Kiwanis.

The caucus, held at Tops Motel last night was attended by 75 Kiwanians from Port Hope, Cobourg, Trenton, Madoc, Tweed, Kingston, W. Kingston, Belleville Quinte and the Kiwanis Club of Belleville.

Following the caucus and social hour, a business meeting was held under the chairmanship of Belleville Kiwanis president Brad Bradley.

Lieutenant Governor Harold Marans of Kingston outlined the accomplishments of all Kiwanis Clubs in Division 6A since January 1, 1965. He commended all clubs for their achievements in community projects.

An appeal was made for representation by all clubs at the Ontario, Quebec, Maritimes Convention, slated for Montreal September 26 to 29.

Lieutenant Governor designate, Lawrence Kells, presented a short address in which he pledged his support for all clubs in the Division during 1966 and stated he would do his utmost to provide the guidance and assistance given by his predecessors in that office.

CF-5 Shown For First Time at CNE

TORONTO (CP)—The CF-5, latest addition to Canada's armed forces air strength had its first public showing in Canada at the Canadian National Exhibition Monday and it was immediately apparent the aircraft had become the centre of attraction at the armed forces exhibit.

Some 1,000 persons were filing through the exhibit each hour and armed forces officials said most of the visitors concentrated on the plane.

The CF-5 will also give its first Canadain public demonstration in the CNE's annual air show Friday and Saturday in which planes from three countries — Canada, United States and Britain—will take part.

Now being built at Canadair Ltd., Montreal, 125 CF-5s will be built for Canadian forces over the next four years at a cost of about $400,000 each.

Powered by two J85-15 jet engines, the plane has a top speed of 1,000 miles an hour, climbs at a rate of 35,000 feet a minute and has a combat altitude of more than 48,000 feet. It has a flight range of about 1,500 miles.

Old 'Enemies' Enjoy Reunion

Old "enemies" held a happy reunion in Belleville the other day. Councillor D. J. Howells, Deputy Mayor of Carmarthen, Wales, is visiting his niece, Mrs. Malcolm McQueen, 21 Willow Drive. The other day at the Belleville Plaza he happened to overhear a boy say he was from Carmarthen. He questioned the youth and discovered, to his delight, that the boy was the son of Sahatore Marino, whose acquaintance Mr. Howells had made when Mr. Marino was an Italian prisoner of war at Carmarthen, around 1941.

At that time Mr. Howells was visiting inspector of war prisoner camps. He had struck a friendship with Mr. Marino and both were delighted to meet again after such a lengthy interval.

Founder of Kentucky Fried, Col. H. Sanders Visits City

His snow white hair and identically colored moustache and goatee glistened in the narrow ray of sun that had worked its way through the half opened binds.

His flashing, full - of - fun eyes peered out from behind scarlet red cheeks.

He stroked his goatee softly, shifted a bit in his chair, cleared his throat and said, "Just because a man is over 65 doesn't mean that he's ready for the shelf."

Speaking was Colonel Harland Sanders, a man who didn't begin his famous Kentucky Fried Chicken Company until he was 65. He visited Belleville yesterday.

'A man at 65 has learned a lot through experience," he said. "A man will rust out from inactivity much faster than he'll wear out from work. I never was idle. I don't believe in loafing."

The story of Col. Sanders is a Horatio Alger epic. In fact, on May 17, 1965, he received the Horatio Alger Award in recognition of his tremendous success.

Born in Henryville, Indianna in 1890, Col. Sanders started to work when he was 10.

"Yes sir," he said, a slight Kentucky drawl noticeable in his voice. "I was just turned 10 when I got a job clearing brush on a farm for $2.00 a month and board. I worked there a month and I guess I didn't clear enough brush because the farmer told me I was through.

GOT TONGUE LASHING

"When I went home and told my widowed mother that I'd been fired, she gave me such a tongue lashing that I resolved then and there I was always going to give the best that was in me, no matter how much hard work it involved.

"That was a lesson I've never forgotten."

The Col. worked on the railroad for seven years. He has also been a painter, street car conductor, soldier, blacksmith's helper, ferry boat operator, Justice of the Peace — he studied law for three years — tire company representative and a service station operator.

"When I was about 40, I took a look around at all my kin and saw they were white collar workers and all had steady jobs, so I said to myself that it's time I got something permanent.

"So in 1929 I added six tables to my service station and began to serve food. My dining room gradually grew from those six tables to about 600 tables. Everything was going fine until they changed the fork in the road in front of my place, then business dropped by 75 per cent.

"You know, it's a funny thing. You learn a lot from getting knocked down. I never quit. I sold my dining room, motel and service station in 1956 and went out on the road trying to talk restaurants into selling my Kentucky Fried Chicken.

BUILT CHICKEN EMPIRE

"I've been thrown out of more good restaurants in the U.S. than anybody. When you walk into a place and tell a man his chicken isn't as good as it could be, he often doesn't cotten too well to you."

Things went slow at first, but eventually the "finger-lickin' good" chicken caught on and the Colonel built an empire of over 600 franchised dealers in Canada, United States, England, Porta Rica and Jamaica.

He recently sold his U.S. business and moved to Cooksville. He now plans to build a plant in Grimsby and introduce canned chicken and dumplings to the Canadian market. He is also opening a country ham and eggs business.

"I love Canada more than any other place I've ever been," he said. "Chances are Southern hospitality started up here, because I've never seen such hospitable people.

"The greatest satisfaction I get is to help small businessmen who sell my product make a success for themselves."

And the Colonel helps a lot of them. The company's more than 70 franchised dealers in Ontario alone dispose of three and one-half million chickens in the province.

"You know, I got two million dollars when I sold my U.S. company, but nobody needs that much money. My wife and I recently built a Salvation Army Citadel in Georgia and I've willed all my estate to the Col. Harland Sanders Foundation to be used for Canadian charity and educational work."

MARRIED 57 YEARS

Col. Sanders has been married 57 years. He has two daughters, six grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

"I don't drink or smoke," he said, "because neither one does anything for you. In fact they'll cut years off your life."

He is a man who has made a fortune and doesn't like being called a millionaire. "I'm just a simple farm boy," he says.

And what kind of man is he to work for? Dave Foster, proprietor of Foster's Kentucky Fried Chicken outlets in Belleville, Trenton and Peterborough says, "We send the Col. a five cent royalty on each chicken we sell. In the five years I've been selling his product, he has never once come around to check my books and see if I'm cheating him or not.

"He refers to all his dealers as his family, and he is just not the kind of man you would want to beat. By the same token, he would never try to beat you."

Of his honor system, unusual to modern business, Col. Sanders says, "If you can't trust a man then you shouldn't be working with him."

Boy Scout Dance Held at Presqu'ile

BRIGHTON — On Thursday, August 26, the annual Brighton Boy Scout Dance was held at Presqu'ile Pavilion, with the added attraction, this year, of a corn roast being enjoyed at intermission. The weather was favorable and there was a good turnout.

Proceeds from the dance, which were approximately $140.00 will be used to further the work of the Cubs, Scouts, and Rovers of Brighton.

Former Head Will Try to Get Job Back

KINGSTON (CP)—A former president of the Canadian Postal Employees Association said Monday he will try to unseat the present head, Les Hood.

Dan Cross of Kingston told an interviewer he will make his move at the postal union's convention Oct. 22 in Toronto.

Mr. Cross accused the postal brotherhood — which represented all three postal unions in the midsummer national strike —of not being militant enough. Mr. Hood was in the brotherhood.

Mr. Cross said he has the support of the Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa branches of the postal employees associations, which represents inside workers.

Retake Post Set Ablaze By Viet Cong

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP) — Government forces today retook an outpost overrun by the Viet Cong and set ablaze during the night, a U.S. military spokesman said.

Casualties to the regional force company defending the post were described as moderate. Viet Cong casualties were not known.

Troops were lifted in by helicopter shortly after noon and reoccupied the post 330 miles northeast of Saigon, the spokesman said.

A belated report disclosed that the Viet Cong hit a government convoy Monday about 140 miles northeast of Saigon and inflicted what were called light casualties on Vietnamese government troops.

Archdeacon Opposes Change In Sunday School Curriculum

By DENNIS ORCHARD

VANCOUVER (CP)—A fiery archdeacon put the case for the Anglican old guard Monday on changes that will sweep the church's Sunday schools next month.

"Don't throw out the baby with the bath water," he admonished.

"Don't throw away the glories of the old curriculum."

It was another one of the stormy contributions Ven. Alford Abraham of Sarnia, Ont., has made regularly to the general synod of the Anglican Church of Canada. This one had a lot of support.

Many clergymen and laymen of the church believe the new Sunday school curriculum is ignoring much of the Bible's contents.

Most church leaders disagree, and consider this one of many reforms necessary to stem dwindling interest and attendance in Sunday school, Young People's group of men's and women's lay associations.

Over-all church membership is about 1,365,000 and growing slowly, but far behind the rate of the Canadian population as a whole. There are fewer Anglican families now than last year and the church is baptizing and confirming fewer persons than it did in the 1950s.

LOSE ARGUMENT

Most of the argument went against the detractors of the new material and methods. Designed as a "people-centred" program, the curriculum identifies the needs and conflicts of every - day life as a starting point, and shows how Holy Scripture applies to them.

The standard Sunday school lesson in the Anglican tradition concentrates more on the content of the Scriptures.

F. L. Hallett of London, Ont., said the new curriculum has been tested in his grandson's class and the youngster understood and remembered what he was taught.

Declining membership is discussed in a straight-from-the-shoulder report by Rt. Rev. Godfrey Gower, Bishop of New Westminster, on the statistics and state of the church.

He said the church has lost the confidence of its people and must regain it by more clearly defining—not whittling away—the Incarnation.

He said the secular society is beating the church in its competition for the attention of young persons, but that society "has not yet destroyed the need for faith and its works."

Moon in 1968?

The successful conclusion of the record-breaking Gemini 5 space flight augurs well for even more extensive explorations of the cosmos.

Space agency officials are confident two more Gemini flights can be made this year and five more are scheduled next year to perfect the technique for Apollo moon shots.

In 1967, three-man Apollo teams will be shot into orbit to practise for moon trips. The first planned lunar landing is scheduled for 1969, but could be advanced to 1968.

One of the most encouraging aspects of the Gemini 5 flight was the excellent physical condition of astronauts Cooper and Conrad, despite eight days aloft in the cramped space capsule.

And although the public has long since become accustomed to such feats, the technical aspects of sending men on these orbital missions stagger the imagination. Sometimes, though, even scientists can err, for we learn that incorrect data, accumulated over eight days of flight at the mission control centre in Houston, misled a computer aboard the spacecraft and resulted in the astronauts coming down nearly 90 miles away from their planned landing area.

In all essentials, however, there have been no serious errors in the planning of any of the space flights and it is everyone's hope that none will occur.

Meanwhile, the Soviet program is shrouded in mystery. The Russians have shown a marked ability to keep one or two jumps ahead of the Americans. Now they have lost their initial advantage. The question is, will they pull ahead again with another spectacular space feat, maybe even a landing on the moon?

Viet Nam Overtures

For all its involvement in the war in Vietnam no one can accuse the United States of failure to seek an end to the fighting through negotiation.

President Johnson has made several efforts to persuade the North Vietnamese government to agree to talks, only to be rebuffed each time.

The Americans have not given up, however. The latest overtures by Washington were revealed last week by State Secretary Dean Rusk. They involve a gradual slackening of military activity. For example, Washington will consider stopping the bombing of North Vietnam if the Hanoi government undertakes a compatable peace step, such as calling home its 325th division from South Vietnam.

Washington has made it clear it will not withdraw its own forces as a condition for negotiations. To do so would be to leave South Vietnam at the mercy of the communists. The integrity of South Vietnam and of that entire region of southeast Asia is the reason for the American involvement there.

Mr. Rusk is said to have left open a wide range of possibilities under which the U.S. might be willing to participate in peace moves. Now it is up to the North Vietnamese, whether or not the fighting is to continue indefinitely.

"Battle Fatigue"

Globe and Mail columnist Scott Young took his family out west recently. With his wife, two daughters and a dog they drove across Canada to Victoria, covering a distance of about 3,000 miles.

When the time came to head back east Mr. Young just did not feel up to it—not by car at least. His family were also tired following the long car journey.

He described all this in a recent column called "Battle Fatigue." It was an apt title, for anyone who has driven even a fraction of the distance from coast-to-coast knows exactly what this state of grinding weariness is like.

The Youngs decided to return to Toronto by air and to ship the car by rail. But three days' relaxation in Vancouver made them change their minds. Rested and invigorated, they decided they would drive back after all; they even made a side trip to Seattle.

It just goes to show how resilient is the human spirit and how robust is the human frame. On day you feel you cannot go on, the next you find you can—and do. And that, after all, is life.

I was met by a friend who had been asked to lecture at the University and was staying in [illegible]via. He rushed me around from church to church, casting scraps of information at me, as to a hungry dog, until I refused to digest any more. This is a familiar moment to strangers in Italy. The riches of the country, architecturally, historically, artistically, become at times intolerable . . . One must find one's own way in one's own time and make one's own selection—H. V. Morton in A Traveller in Italy.

Nothing makes me happier than journeying away from something towards something, something just around the corner, just over the horizon, the other side of the hill.—Writer Kevin Fitzgerald.

Ottawa Offbeat

Million Dollar Security Eases Hay's Vote Jitters

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Some Parliamentarians may be terrified — and many are, doubly — but not that l'il ol' barefoot boy from Calgary, as Agriculture Minister Harry Hays modestly calls himself. As he puts it, he just doesn't give a durn.

The Parliamentary terror comes in two nerve-rasping political nightmares.

The frightened ones — and there are more who are shaking in their shoes than aren't — are scared out of their wits by the election they all fear.

And scared, too, that if they survive the election slaughter, there are 182 of them whose constituencies will be cut from under their feet in the long-delayed Redistribution of Parliament's seats.

Which means that more than half of the 265 Members of the Commons in the newly-elected Parliament will be sitting there representing ridings that are going to disappear from the electoral map.

The average political "death rate" in Federal elections in post-war years has been just over 50 percent.

So out of every two MPs who set out hopefully on the campaign trail, only one makes it back to Parliament Hill.

And this is what has so many of them whimpering in sheer economic fear.

For $18,000-a-year jobs with such fringe benefits as weekly anywhere-in-Canada return trip air tickets, car mileage, phone allowances, free mail, railway passes (often for the entire family, too) and all-expense junkets to Europe and even around the world just aren't easy to come by.

And so, this time, the competition is going to be terrific.

At rates of pay and perquisites like these, everybody, or almost everybody wants to be an MP, and a lot of them are going to be in there trying.

By what you hear from some of the nervous MPs, especially the uncertain freshmen who made it here for the first time only two years ago and still hopefully think that once aboard the Parliamentary gravy train they eventually may get to help drive it from a Cabinet Minister's or even a PM's chair, the nominating conventions could turn out to be mob scenes.

There might be more candidates scheming for the party nominations than there are voting delegates at some of the conventions.

In many constituency political associations, one dollar, or at most $2, forked over perhaps a week in advance of the convention, gets you a membership and the right to vote for your choice of candidates for the nomination.

On that basis, a small boom in new memberships can confidently be forecast, with aspirants for the nomination all out pushing the party cards like madly inspired door-to-door brush salesmen, trying to "pack" the convention with their own friends and partisans.

Some will even tap out the required $1 or $2 themselves in sizeable wads and present memberships to as many acquaintances as can be persuaded in the name of friendship to become card-carrying Party adherents long enough to promise to show up at the convention and cast the all-important ballot for the nomination.

And just because the lucky winner of the convention jackpot gets the nomination, it doesn't mean he still isn't going to be up against tremendous competition at the polls.

GOOD BET

Not just from rivals from the other parties—at least three, and sometimes four in many constituencies — but from a flock of take-a-chance "independents."

These candidate who can't or don't manage to get the party nomination will be running as "Independent Liberals" or "Independent Conservatives." In the past there have always been a few of these mavericks who usually manage only to lose their $200 deposit—if, by promise or payment, they aren't persuaded to stand down.

But with the stakes this time so rewarding — an MP, so say the National Revenue Department Income Tax Division tables, has the nation's top-paid job, better than doctors, lawyers, architects or accountants — it is worth the $200 deposit to take a shot at it. The odds are big, but so is the prize.

Election?

Be more like a sweepstake.

But to get back to Harry Hays. He just doesn't worry, as he says, "not worth a durn."

So he gets a licking?

Who cares?

Not H. H.

"If it turns out the folks back in Calgary South don't want me," says Harry, "that's okay, for I'd just as soon be shaking hay down home on my spread 'long side Pekisko Creek."

But then, not every MP has that warm, secure feeling that having a couple of million bucks in the old sock must give a man.

The Japanese fleet bombarded Port Arthur, China's biggest naval base, 71 years ago today—in 1894 — and captured it a few months later, after the conquest of Korea. When peace was made the next year the European powers insisted that the port be returned to China, and Russia quickly secured its use as the only ice-free base available for the Pacific fleet. In the meantime, Japan began to menace the Korean government, nominally neutral, which appealed for Russian protection. Thus the stage was set for the Russo-Japanese war of 1904.

"Hail, Hail, the gang's all here," was the theme of the merry picknickers from the Red Triangle Club as they left from the Y.M.C.A. Sunday morning to proceed to the Outlet Beach and then to go on to the Sandbanks. Approximately 84 attended the picnic with the boys from the army, airforce and navy being well represented. The ride was a merry one with everyone enjoying the journey by truck as long and as loud as their lungs would allow.

As soon as the joyous bunch had reached their destination, the athletic ones took to the water, while the individuals who consider Sunday a day of rest stretched their blankets on the sand and were well kissed by the sun. The members of the club supplied appetizing lunches for two meals of the day while the War Services Club provided refreshments for their campfire which the picnickers had built when they noticed the sky was losing its brightness. Expressions of appreciation are to go to Smith's Cartage for transportation..

Emotional Disturbances Can Often Be Overcome

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

(This is the second of a series of two articles.)

Yesterday we described the mentally retarded child.

Now what is an emotionally disturbed child?

Like retarded, disturbed covers a multitude of gradations. The emotionally disturbed child's troubles stem from the fact that emotional pressures submerge and swamp his ability to act logically.

There is no way to make a child, or anyone else, smarter than he really is. All you can do is train him to make the most of what he has.

The emotionally disturbed child, however, can overcome his troubles provided a way can be found to bring his emotions sufficiently under control so they do not overwhelm his native capabilities.

His problem may be relatively minor — too jittery, unable to keep his temper, too little ability to cope with frustration so he "blows up" when things don't go right. He may be overburdened with anxiety, whether real or imagined, or through some set of circumstances be intensely resentful of those around him or of the world in general, and thus take out his spite in ways that may not just harm others but may (and usually do) harm the child himself.

Or to go to the extreme of emotional disturbance, we have the child who is truly psychotic. The psychotic person is one who, however much mental ability he may have, is so much in the grip of emotional tensions that he simply cannot evaluate and cope with the realities of the world in which he lives.

Some psychotics withdraw into an inner world of their own. Some explode into frantic and futile efforts to "control" an environment which, in their emotional state, they do not correctly comprehend. Some lapse into hallucinations. Yet some of them can be of very high IQ. Emotional illness can affect the genius as well as the mentally deficient.

Yes, a child may be both retarded and emotionally disturbed.

Thus, in dealing with an emotionally disturbed child, one must determine the degree and the nature of the disturbance before any intelligent treatment can be instituted. One must not confuse the problem with retardation.

Diagnosis is neither simple, nor easy. In the more serious cases, we must depend on psychiatrists. For some of the less severe ones, physicians other than psychiatrists, special teachers and others with training in such problems can do a great deal to overcome tensions.

Parents naturally can quietly exert helpfulness by love and understanding. But whether retardation or emotional disturbance is involved, get the best guidance available, and then heed and follow the advice you get.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is 'aplastic anemia," and what causes it? — Mrs. J. S.

This is anemia which results from failure of the bone marrow to produce sufficient red blood cells.

Poisoning is a common cause, from chemicals, fumes of some hydrocarbons, or even prolonged use of certain medications. In still other cases, particularly among the elderly, no identifiable cause can be determined.

Steroid drugs sometimes help but usually patients need blood transfusions periodically as well.

Strictly Personal

Folk Confuse Authors and Characters

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"After all, Shakespeare said: 'Neither a borrower nor a lender be,' " remarked the man at lunch, trying to justify his lack of generosity toward a colleague.

"No, he did not," I demurred. "Polonius said it — and Polonius is one character we may be sure Shakespeare despised. He is depicted as windy, pompous, obsequious and hypocritical."

It has long annoyed me that people confuse authors with their characters. In Shakespeare you can find every kind of sentiment expressed. His greatness consisted precisely in bringing to life all types of personalities and viewpoints and letting them speak for themselves.

This does not mean that Shakespeare agreed with them. In many cases, it is obvious he did not; in some, it is apparent that he did; but in the great majority, we do not know how Shakespeare himself felt about many matters. He presents all the conflicting evidence, and lets us draw our conclusions.

The reason Shakespeare stands on a higher level than Dickens, for instance, is that Dickens always made his sympathies plain. He adored his heroes and heroines, and despised his villains. This may have made him a better moralist, but a vastly inferior artist.

The Bible, too, which was the work of many hands over a long period, is misused in the same subjective fashion. The man who assures us that the poor will always be with us, as the Bible says, is often the same man who is busy laying up treasures on earth, as the Bible says we should not do. He picks the parts that make him feel most comfortable with himself.

Even though the Bible has a basic continuity in the moral sense, nevertheless one can find in its pages enough divergent comments seemingly to justify witchburning, slavery, monarchy, and a score of other practices which the world now generally recognizes as iniquitous.

It is not the fault of the Bible, any more than it is the fault of Shakespeare, that the human animal tends to select what is most gratifying to itself, and to ignore the fundamental for the trivial. Many sects have sprung up, based on one obscure passage in Scriptures, and its adherents have foolishly made this into the basic principle of religion.

Only when we learn to discriminate and to evaluate for ourselves can an author — even as inspired as the authors of the Bible — be sure that he will not be distorted and debased by future generations.

Cool Reception For Canoeists

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Can we each as citizens of Belleville take time to evaluate and re-assess ourselves?

Twenty some years a[illegible] came here to live. At [illegible] time I was told "You are coming to live in a city known as The Friendly City," with 10,000 maple shade trees. Twenty years ago I did indeed feel it was a friendly city.

Today, twenty years later we still have our beautiful shade trees. But where is our friendliness? The reason I question this is: Wednesday evening to our shores came some northern visitors by canoe, unnoticed, and unwelcomed with the exception of the press and two elderly ladies.

I feel we as friendly citizens should hang our heads in shame. I'm sure our Northerners on their map of the waterways will mark in their memory a landing at the [illegible] of Quinte as a dark and [illegible] friendly one. What a shame!

Mrs. Audrey Davies,
288 William Street,
Belleville.

P.S.—Gord and I did go down to see them, but it was later after their arrival time. We were so shocked to read the next day in your paper that there had not been an official welcome for the visitors.

Took Turns to Supervise Kiddies

Editor,
The Intelligencer

With reference to the convention of the board of [illegible]ernors of the Ontario Tea[illegible] Federation and their problem of extra - curricular activities. May I say this:

When I was living in Whitehorse, in the Yukon three years ago, I spent a short time as secretary at the Camp Takini School, (Grades 1-8).

The teachers set up a roster for supervision of lunch room and playgrounds, and each teacher was on duty for a week. There were twelve teachers. Granted it was an exhausting week, but the problem didn't arise again for three months. The teachers had kitchen facilities, staff room, full lunch period and their time was their own.

It seems to me this would be a better solution than tryi[illegible] to hire extra adults for super[illegible] of children outside school hours.

As for helping a child with his galoshes being beneath the status of a teacher, I can't believe most teachers feel this way. The majority of children can manage overshoes, mittens and whatnot after Grade I. I'm sure parents have taught their offspring the fundamentals of dressing themselves and have provided galoshes large enough to slip on the child's foot without said child dying of acute frustration.

Harking back to the Yukon again, there, buttoning up was a matter of survival and few children hadn't mastered the knack — mother - teacher help or not.

Mr. Outram, president of the Ontario Public School [illegible] Teachers Federation giv[illegible] impression that worrying about his status, and doing up galoshes leaves him little time for the job at hand - educating the children.

(MRS.) DOROTHY E. GREGORY

Worn Tires

Napanee Banner

Skids resulting from bald tires could be the biggest killer on the highway. The Rubber Association of Canada warns that a motorist driving with tread-worn tires may be taking his life in his hands.

A car with smooth tires is a potential threat to everyone it passes on the road. This is particularly true during [illegible], slippery weather when [illegible] tires can skip completely out of control.

The Canadian Highway Safety Council joins the Association in urging all motorists going on long trips to have their tires inspected before departing. Proper inflation and good tread can mean more mileage as well as safety. Under inflation can weaken tires rapidly to the point where they fail. Also, when a motorist stops for gasoline or food, he should periodically check his tires to make sure they have not picked up any nails, glass or other tire damaging debris.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were fractionally lower in light trading on the Toronto stock exchange today.

In the main list, Massey-Ferguson dipped ½ to 30⅛, Algoma Steel ⅜ to 64½, Imperial Bank of Commerce ¼ to 63¾ and Toronto-Dominion Bank ⅜ to 60¼.

Gunnar Mining dipped 7 to $1.84 after trading as low as $1.75.

In base metals, Inco fell ½ to 93. The index climbed .04 to 78.85 due to a number of 5-10-cent gains by junior issues.

Speculative mining issues were lower across a broad front.

On index, industrials were down .12 to 165.08, western oils .47 to 97.29 and the TSE index .12 to 155.16. Golds were up .09 to 169.16. Volume at 11 a.m. was 940,000 shares compared with 830,000 traded at the same time Monday.

Price changes Monday were fractional in light trading.

The industrial index, a measurement of investors' confidence and participation in the market, climbed .05 to 165.20.

Union Gas had the best gain, up 1¼ to 30¼. Royal Bank climbed 1 to 77 while Massey-Ferguson tacked on ⅛ at 31¼. Bank of Nova Scotia climbed ½ to 73¾, but Bank of Montreal fell ⅛ to 61⅛ and Toronto-Dominion ⅜ to 60⅛.

Gunnar Mining fell 24 cents to $1.91 in active dealings. A report on the company's financial condition is expected soon. The report was requested last week by the Toronto Stock Exchange after the company's stock fell sharply and Gunnar management merely said that its construction division, McNamara Corp., was in financial trouble.

Over 4,000 H.S. Students To Open New Term Tuesday

More than 4,000 students will usher in the 1965-66 school year next Tuesday as the three secondary schools under the jurisdiction of the Bay of Quinte High School Board reopen for another school term.

The expected enrolment of 4,083 represents an increase of approximately 300 students over last year's registration and an increase of 218 per cent over the 1953 enrolment, when all students were accommodated in the one building — the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School.

Anticipated enrolments for this year are as follows: B.C.I. and V.S. — 1,493; Moira Secondary School — 1,170; Quinte Secondary School — 1,420.

Since the normal accommodation of the three schools is for 3,470 students it will be necessary to introduce a shift system of classes at Belleville Collegiate Institute with classes operating from 8.00 a.m. until 5.00 p.m.

Students in Grades 13, 12 and 11, most students in Grade 10, and one class taking the two-year program in Grade 9 will begin classes as usual at 9.10 a.m. With a shortened lunch period regular classes for these pupils will end each day at 3.10 p.m. Some Grade 10 students and those students living in East Belleville, Douglas R. Akins School District and Point Anne taking a four or five-year program in Grade 9 will begin classes at 8.00 a.m. and continue until 1.50 p.m. Two Grade 10 classes and all Grade 9 classes for students living in West Belleville, Frankford, Batawa, Middleton Park and School Section 2B of Sidney Township will be on a late shift beginning at 11.10 a.m. and ending at 5.00 p.m.

3 ADDITIONAL ROUTES

This arrangement has been made in an effort to cause as little interference as possible with school bus schedules and routes. However, three additional routes have been established to transport pupils on the early and late shifts. One of these will provide for Grade 9 pupils from Point Anne and the Atkins School District of Thurlow township on the early shift while the other two will transport Grade 9 pupils from Frankford, Batawa and Sections 2B and 6G of Sidney township on the late shift.

At the same time boundaries within the city have been changed for Grade 9 pupils, excepting those taking Occupational Program so that students living west of Herchimer Ave. on the east and those living in West Belleville south of Moira Street and the C.N.R. will attend Belleville C.I. & V.S.

Grade 9 students living in Belleville east of Herchimer Avenue and those in Ameliasburg and Tyendinaga townships will attend Moira Secondary School. Grade 9 students living in Belleville north of the C.N.R. and Moira Street and those in Sidney and Thurlow townships not included in the special groups listed above will attend Quinte Secondary School. Both of these schools will remain on a regular schedule with classes from 9.00 a.m. to 4.00 p.m.

CLASS LISTS POSTED

In general, students in the senior grades will continue to attend the school in which they were enrolled last year.

Classes in all of the schools have been organized on the basis of information supplied by the students last spring. Class lists are now posted in all schools and pupils would be well advised to consult these lists and their class timetables this week to make sure they have been given the proper program of studies. Students who have moved into the Bay of Quinte District recently and any others who have not registered should arrange for registration at the schools this week. Principals and Vice Principals are on duty in the school offices this week to discuss special programs and students' problems.

On opening day students will be given general instructions and assigned to classes. Free textbooks will be issued to students in Grades 9, 10, 11 and 12. Grade 13 students will purchase their textbooks from the booksellers as usual. All students will, of course, be required to provide themselves with the necessary supplies, including running shoes and a gymnasium outfit for Physical Education classes. So that all rural students may obtain the necessary supplies all buses will leave the schools on Tuesday at the regular times.

The three schools will have a total teaching staff of 187, an increase of 22 over last year. At Belleville Collegiate Institute Principal D. C. Stirling will have a staff of 68 teachers. At Quinte Secondary School Principal L. F. Reid will have a staff of 67, and at Moira Secondary School Principal L. D. Read will head a staff of 53.

ACCOMMODATION TAXED

Curricular changes being introduced by the Department of Education this year include new courses in Grade 13 Biology, Grade 13 Physics, and Grade 12 Mathematics. In general the Reorganized Program of Studies, introduced in Grade 9 in 1962-63 and extended into Grade 10 in 1963-64 and Grade 11 last year, will move into Grade 12 this year.

Since Belleville's fourth secondary school scheduled for construction on Palmer Avenue will not be ready for occupancy before September, 1967, it appears now that secondary school accommodation will be taxed even more severely in 1966-67 and a much more extended shift system of staggered classes will have to be put into operation a year from now.

Registration for evening classes will take place at Moira Secondary School on September 27 and at Belleville C. I. &V. S. on September 28. Evening classes will be offered at both schools from October to March.

It is expected that Program 5 classes for the retraining and upgrading of unemployed persons will be offered at Quinte Secondary School beginning about October 1st. Mr. E. J. Buckley will again be in charge of these classes, which are held between 4:00 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. each day.

Cashing Dud Cheques Brings 3-year Term

A 42-year-old man today was sent back to jail — this time for three years — after cashing dud cheques worth nearly $1,000 since his reformatory release only five months ago.

Gordon Fralick earlier pleaded guilty to cashing 15 cheques in the Belleville area and six more in Brampton. They totalled $916.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills noted Fralick began cashing the cheques in April—shortly after serving a sentence for similar offences at Guelph reformatory.

"Reformatory doesn't seem to have done you any good," commented the magistrate.

Fralick would have to be kept "out of circulation for an appropriate time having regard to the offences. I think the appropriate sentence is three years in Kingston Penitentiary," concluded the magistrate.

Urge Students Take Active Role in Society

LENNOXVILLE, Que. (CP)—Some 120 delegates attending the annual conference of the Canadian Union of Students spent Monday voicing views that seemed to add up to one message—the student should take a more active interest in society around him.

The views, thrashed out in abstract form, now will be put into specific resolutions for presentation to the conference, which continues until Saturday in this community 90 miles east of Montreal.

The union also accepted applications for membership from students at Brock University, St. Catharines and Laurentian University, Sudbury.

When the conference opened Sunday, the union said it represented 120,000 students at about 45 universities, colleges and technical schools.

SEES PROGRESS

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson sent a message of congratulations to President Johnson Monday on "the triumphant conclusion of the Gemini 5 mission." He said it was "dramatic evidence of the progress made by the United States in the conquest of outer space."

Canoeists Chat With Pearson In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Twelve Indians and Eskimos from the Northwest Territories who completed the centennial commission's first voyageur canoe pageant Saturday stopped here on their way home Monday for a chat with Prime Minister Pearson.

The two six-man crews left North Bay Aug. 9 on the 550-mile trip to the resort town of Gananoque, Ont., 18 miles east of Kingston on the St. Lawrence River. Along the way they competed in sprints at Orillia, Peterborough and Kingston with six other crews.

The voyage was a trial run for the 1967 voyageur canoe pageant, scheduled to start at Edmonton and at the site of the Montreal world's fair.

Mr. Pearson congratulated the paddlers on their successful trip and quickly admitted he "wouldn't last very long" on such a jaunt.

Los Angeles Buys Winnie's Funeral Car

LOS ANGELES (AP) — City of Industry, an industrial suburb, recently purchased for $980 the railway car which carried the body of Sir Winston Churchill from London's Waterloo Station to Hanborough, near Bladon, on the last stage of the funeral procession. The car is intended for use as a museum piece.

But Richard Marsh, member of Parliament and chairman of Britain's state-owned railway system, recently protested the sale. "It's a ridiculous price," said Marsh. "No effort seems to have been made to keep it here."

Darius Johnson, City of Industry councilman who negotiated the purchase, said Monday:

"The railroad was going to junk it. We thought it should not be destroyed, and got in touch with the railroad and arranged to buy it."

Crown Council May Be Called By Greek King

ATHENS (Reuters) — King Constantine is expected to summon a crown council composed of Greece's political leaders Wednesday to seek a settlement of the seven-week political crisis, informed sources said today.

Meanwhile leftwing trade unions disclosed they would stage a series of strikes and mass rallies this week to demand general elections as the only solution.

They are supporting the call of former premier George Papandreou for the king to name him premier again or order elections.

King Constantine Monday night accepted the suggestion of outgoing premier Elias Tsirimokos to call a crown council. Today the 25-year-old monarch consulted with his advisers about the composition of the council.

Let Critics Beware

Many golfers of the Bay of Quinte Country Club have, I'm certain, heard complaints and yes, probably even offered some, whenever it has been necessary to wait for a few minutes on the first tee before blasting off.

As Thomas Fuller said, "Of 10 lepers, only one returned to give thanks, which shows that by nature, without grace over-swaying us, it is 10 to one if we be thankful."

This column is directed at that one in 10. The others, if they wish, can go on grumbling, but for that one person who wants something to be thankful about, then read on.

I was in Toronto Sunday—you'll remember Sunday, a cold, rainy, windy kind of a day when only a few real diehards should be out on the links.

Anyway, I arrived at the course, along with three other people, at 8.00 a.m. and went directly to the starter to put in my name and get a starting time.

The golf course in question is a municipal course. There are no members and you can not phone in starting times. It is simply a first come, first serve operation.

When I walked up to the starter, there were 20 or 30 persons standing around, but that didn't upset me. I figured, heck, that is only a few foursomes and then we can tee off.

"Name please," the starter said.

"Hoy."

"How many of you?"

"Four."

"Thanks."

"How long will we be?" I asked.

"Two hours."

He said it so matter-of-factly that it didn't even hit me at first, not until I took about three steps, then boom!

"Two hours?" I asked. "Are there that many people ahead of us?"

"Things are settling down now," he replied. "You should have been here at 6 this morning and seen the crowd waiting to tee off."

Our second mistake—our first was going there in the first place—was to go into the clubhouse and have breakfast and decide to wait two hours.

Then the showers came and the tee was held up. The rain stopped and things started to move again. More rain. More holdups. Sun. Tee offs. Rain. Holdups. And so on, until finally it was our turn to tee off.

By this time, the sun was shining and it was warming up a bit.

"Nice to be off isn't it Ed?" I said to my friend.

"It sure is. Boy, that was a longer wait than usual."

"What time is it anyway?"

"The time? Oh, it's about five after one."

Astronauts Quickly Regain Lost Weight

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) Astronauts Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad, quickly regaining the weight they lost during an epic eight days in space, huddled today with technical and medical experts who sought to learn everything possible about the flight of Gemini 5.

Cooper and Conrad flew here Monday from the aircraft carrier Lake Champlain, on which they had landed by helicopter after splashing into the Atlantic Ocean Sunday at the end of their record mission.

The astronauts immediately were bustled to a medical centre for exhaustive tests which did not disclose any adverse symptoms.

Cooper and Conrad were turned topsy-turvey on a rotating device called a tilt table to check their blood pressure.

Dr. Charles A. Berry, Gemini flight surgeon, reported the pilots were in extremely good physical condition. But he said examinations would continue for weeks in case something shows up later.

CANADIAN MODEL IN NEW YORK — Heather Hazell is a former Toronto television director's assistant who has become one of the leading high fashion models in New York. The 27-year-old native of Winnipeg earns up to $250 a week and is regularly used by such famous milliners as Mr. John and Emme. Here she wears a snowy fox Hussar hunting hood from Mr. John's fall collection. (CP Photo)

Her Midnight Curfew Is Work Insurance

By MARGARET NESS

NEW YORK (CP) — Winnipeg-born Heather Hazell's rise to the top as a fashion model is not exactly a rags-to-riches story but there is at least one parallel to Cinderella—she's always home by midnight.

At 27, after less than three years in New York, she earns $200 to $250 a week during the busy seasons and is never without regular work. She shares a penthouse apartment with another Canadian model, Pat Roberts, who came here 10 years ago.

She has a steady beau who takes her to dinner and nightclubs on evenings when she isn't working, but the midnight curfew still stands. Miss Hazell calls it work insurance.

An unlined, no-shadows-under-the-eyes face is essential for a model, especially one who is consistently used by such famous milliners as Mr. John and Emme. That's because the audience looks at both the hat and the face underneath. For the same reason, Heather doesn't drink.

Raised in Toronto (her widowed mother Mrs. Jessie Hazell lives in suburban Islington), Heather left Etobicoke Collegiate in her fourth year to work in an advertising agency as an assistant to a television director.

WORKED IN TV

Then she became style co-ordinator for fashion photographer Ken Bell and from there naturally moved to fashion modelling. In 1960 she was planning to try her luck in New York when she was offered a challenging job as assistant to the director of sales and marketing for CFTO - TV Toronto. Later she and the director moved to the Toronto office of Hamilton's CHCH-TV.

When she finally moved to New York, it was still in TV, as producer's assistant at NBC.

Miss Hazell finally got back to modelling after two years, catching on as a "house" model, that is, one who works for only one firm. She spent eight months with Elizabeth Arden, then took a vacation trip to Paris last summer. She had a friend there who was already established as a model with the Givenchy couture house.

When one of the other models became ill, Heather stepped in and was so successful that she remained for the rest of the summer as a substitute.

Back in New York last fall, she had no trouble getting top jobs with her Paris background. Now she works an average of four days a week at $40 for a one-hour show.

Professional fashion models are not usually used as photographic models but at Mr. John's press preview in July, Mr. John's partner Peter Brandon rushed around snatching hats, furs and earrings in which Heather could pose for a newspaper photograph.

It was fascinating to watch the pretty, smiling blonde suddenly freeze into a fashion pose, her face immediately becoming the aloof, almost disdainful mask that is assumed by all haute couture models before they step on a runway.

Try Living in North Year Says Author

EDMONTON (CP) — Anyone wanting to escape the hustle and bustle of modern life should try a year in Canada's north, says an American woman author who recently completed a 1,100-mile trip down the Mackenzie River in a canoe.

Connie Helmericks of Tucson, Ariz., and her two teen-age daughters spent eight weeks sailing down the Mackenzie from Yellowknife to Inuvik in a 20-foot freighter canoe driven by an outboard motor.

Mrs Helmericks said she believes it's the first time women have made the 1,100-mile trip to the Arctic Ocean this way. She began the trek last year when she sailed from Taylor Flats, B.C., to Yellowknife.

"There's not a human being who wouldn't benefit from a year in the North," she said in an interview here after the trip.

Mrs. Helmericks has written seven non-fiction books dealing with nature in Alaska and her experiences living in the wilds. Her trips from Taylor Flats and from Yellowknife will supply background for her eighth book, she said.

USE SLEEPING BAGS

She and her daughters, Jeanie, 15, and Ann, left Yellowknife July 1 in a wood-canvas canoe capable of carrying 3,000 pounds. They took sleeping bags, an 11-foot-square tent, fishing gear, two rifles, a nine-horsepower outboard motor and tanks for 35 gallons of gas.

Except for occasional paddling, the trip was by motor power.

The women ate canned food and fish they caught.

The girls' father, Bud Helmericks, who owns his own airline, is a big-game guide and runs an arctic fishery business in Alaska. Jeanie hopes to become a bush pilot.

STILL USE BEADS

Accountants in many Japanese banks still work with an electric calculator at one elbow and an abacus (bead-frame) at the other.

OLD MILLS DISAPPEAR

The last of Canada's five windmill manufacturers ceased production in 1965 but will continue to make spare parts for a few more years.

Historic Tea Sponsored by Conservatives

WELLINGTON — The pre-centennial historic tea given by the Ladies Progressive Conservative Association was held at the home of Mr. H. G. Patton and his daughter, Mrs. H. A. Burnett at Wellington.

Mr. Patton and his son-in-law, Doctor Burnett, were hosts, while Mrs. Burnett and her daughter Elizabeth were hostesses in their lovely home. The lawns running to the edge of the lake, amid the beautiful flower gardens, made a pretty background for the event.

The president, Mrs. George Pitt, welcomed the guests as they arrived and Mrs. C. Drurie looked after the donations.

Mrs. J. N. Bailie, convener of the tea, invited the guests to the dining room. Each table was arranged with a large centre of cut flowers. Silver candelabra's graced each arrangement, with six tall candles on a pretty lace cloth.

Antique silver services, at either end of the table gave a feeling of the olden days and the warmth left behind from our forefathers. Dainty sandwiches were served from antique platters.

Pouring tea for the first hour were Mrs. Norris Whitney and Mrs. Charles Patterson, and for the second hour, Mrs. Douglas Alkenbrack and Mrs. Harold Bonter.

Serving were Mrs. J. N. Bailie, Mrs. Ken Wood, Mrs. R. Hurst and Mrs. B. Kingsley. Convener of the kitchen was Mrs. Walter Nind, assisted by Mrs. James Rutter and Mrs. Sam Tripp.

One of the highlights of the tea was a tour of Mr. Patton's workshop, open to view for the day. Of interest to the visitors was an old brass telescope found on the shores of Prince Edward County. Guests had an opportunity to operate an old butter churn, and also viewed many pieces of old pine furniture, beautifully refinished by Mr. Patton, and a selection of Westward Ho glass.

Short-skirted Secretaries Are Demanding Modesty Boards

LONDON (AP) — Tailor and Cutter, which calls itself the authority on style and clothes, took an editorial swipe today at short-skirted secretaries who demand modesty boards.

A modesty board is a strip of wood across the front of a secretary's desk. A recent poll of British secretaries revealed the majority want modesty boards to prevent revealing too much leg.

"Women resort to any trick in order to attract a man's attention," says Tailor and Cutter, "and then they get morally affronted when you look."

"All they are after with their little short skirts and their modesty boards is power without responsibility."

The short - short skirts, much in vogue in Britain, present special problems when the wearers sit down. The skirts ride high and expose a great deal of the wearer.

"Tailor and Cutter naturally feels a duty to support development of new fashions, and gives the short skirt trend its full blessing," says the magazine, adding:

"But we are not allowing modesty boards in Tailor and Cutter House. A secretary with a pair of pretty legs has always been regarded at board level as a fringe benefit in an organization which has few other seductive attractions to offer."

The magazine says girls and women wear the new thigh-high skirts in order to excite men by showing off their limbs.

"They thus make short skirts fashionable in order to be able to reveal their legs—and then cover up their desks so that men are not allowed to see the legs they have bared. . . ."

Tailor and Cutter concludes:

"Isn't it nonsense? The modesty board has about as much sense and reason as the little strips of linen women fasten across their chests to hide from sight the cleavage that their decolletage was designed expressly to reveal."

LABOR DAY MENU

Four critics agree and I'm full of glee. It is my Labor Day menu for you that is the topic:

LABOR DAY MENU:

Baked or Barbecued
Chicken Bundles
(see below)
Pan-fried Marble Potatoes
(see below)
Sweet Gherkins
Cottage Cheese and Chive
Stuffed Tomatoes on Lettuce
Labor Day Spanish Bun
(see Thursday)
Cantaloupe Halves
Milk (for Children)
Coffee (for Adults)

I made and baked 4 variations of Chicken Bundles. Others included bacon, onion and almonds. The one which follows won without one dissenting vote.

BAKED OR BARBECUED CHICKEN BUNDLES (quantities given for 6 whole chicken legs):

NOTE:

If you have tall hungry males to feed you should allow 1½ whole chicken legs (drumsticks and thighs attached) for each person. Average appetites, especially female, will be satisfied with one whole chicken leg.

Crumb Coating Mixture: ½ cup fine unsalted cracker crumbs, ¼ cup packaged Parmesan-Romano grated cheese, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon accent (MSG), ¼ teaspoon paprika, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 beaten egg.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Baked Stuffed Calves' Hearts, Pan Gravy; Mashed Potatoes; Sliced Zucchini; Sliced Tomatoes and Cucumbers; Peach Ice Cream; Ginger Cookies; Coffee.

Dry the chicken legs. On your counter or table line up six one-foot squares of foil. Butter each one near centre, using 1 tablespoon butter for each, and rubbing it on with your finger tips. On each buttered area place a slice of buttered bread. Mix together in a shallow bowl the crumbing ingredients. Beat the egg in a shallow bowl — I used an old-fashioned wide soup plate. Dip the chicken legs, one at a time, in the egg to wet them, then dip them in the crumbs to completely coat them. On top of each slice of bread deposit a chicken leg, pressing drumstick close to thigh, then enclose them by folding foil corners over neatly and snugly. Refrigerate until 45 or 50 minutes before mealtime. Arrange foil packages on cookie sheet and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes then reduce heat to 350 deg. for 35 minutes longer or until chicken is tender. If desired fold back foil corners and brown top of chicken legs under hot broiler for 1 minute.

Or cook the foil-wrapped chicken legs the same length of time on your barbecue, at least 6 inches from glowing, but greying, hot coals.

PAN-FRIED MARBLE POTATOES:

Select the tiniest new potatoes. Scrub them under running water and parboil 5 minutes. Drain and peel. For each 1 lb. tiny peeled potatoes melt 3 tablespoons butter in large frying pan, add potatoes, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and fry over rather high heat until brown on all sides, moving them about almost constantly. This may be done well in advance of mealtime. A second reheating and frying at mealtime, especially over barbecue fire, makes the potatoes crustier.

NOTE:

See Thursday for recipe for Labor Day Spanish Bun.

Successful Living

Teenager Wise to Perils Of Too Steady Dating

DEAR DORIS: I find that there are many girls between 12 and 20 years who are worrying about steady dating. Well, I'm 18 and have found out what this kind of relationship can do to a girl.

DORIS CLARK

We had a group of about 20 girls and boys who would come to our house at least twice a weekend. My mother didn't mind. She said she would rather see my sister and me at home than on the streets. After a year the group started coupling up; and I was no exception! Well, there isn't any group any more. The jealousy of the boys towards the girls started some quarrelling and bickering which resulted in a homemade disaster.

After two years I left my childhood sweetheart — under my mother's advice. I found myself completely stranded; no girl friends, no boy friends. I had a clear conscience though because my parents insisted on double-dating and a curfew — and still do! I'm happy that I took my mother's advice because now I'm finding out what real freedom is like; something I'd missed out on before.

Even better, my ex-boy friend thanks me for leaving him. We're the best of friends and still enjoy each other's company without dating. He comes here every so often and stays a couple of hours to talk to me and the family.

I wrote this letter to let you know that your advice is working on someone because you see my mother got her advice from your column.—HAPPY WITH FREEDOM.

DEAR HAPPY: You've no idea how happy that makes me!

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I am the captain of a cheerleading team of our high school. I would like to know if there is somewhere I may acquire a booklet on new yells and routines?—CHEERLEADER.

DEAR CHEERLEADER: Yes, there's a good book on cheerleading, and I'm sending you the name of it.

The words can be nonsense so long as the zip is there. Good cheerleading can make all the difference to the spirit of a ball team and to the fun of the spectators.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: My son who is quite big still wets his bed. His father says to take him to the doctor's. Is there anything I can do instead of the doctor?—MOTHER OF FOUR.

DEAR MOTHER: Just be glad we have doctors to go to, and get there soon. If your family doctor, or the one at your children's clinic, says nothing physical is the matter, he'll put you on the track to the kind of help your little fellow needs.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO UNDECIDED: There is no law against liking both of them. You will be making new friends for quite some time yet.

* * *

(When writing in, allow Doris four weeks for private reply, which will be sent if a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed.)

Fitted Midriff Returns To Fashion in Showing

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters)—The fitted midriff came back to fashion at Hubert de Givenchy's public showing of autumn and winter styles Monday.

The young designer develops a sophisticated classical approach based on snug fitting, while Balenciaga, who shows today is said to have launched the youngest, most jazzy collection of his career.

Givenchy's shift was a definite shape compared to the loose - waisted chemise silhouettes seen in other top Paris fashion houses.

He uses wider padded shoulders, with a new deep-cut sleeve with fullness across the shoulder blades. His basic wool jersey dresses have deep-cut cap sleeves and simple boat or scooped necklines.

They are belted with three-inch-wide suede sashes featured in a contrasting color. Some models have slender straight skirts, while others are gathered below the tightly - fitted waist yoke.

REDINGOTE FAVORED

The tubular narrow redingote emerges as the number one coat silhouette. It has a high collarless neckline or small rolled collar to contrast the dramatic dolman or bat-wing sleeves cut out from the waistline.

Givenchy buttons his redingotes from neckline to hem, and adds a narrow leather thong belt.

Cocktail and formal coats in damask patterned heavy silks or cut velvets are trimmed with small jewelled buttons. Matching court shoes are made of the same relief patterned velvets or silks.

Evening clothes feature the classic "robe de style" with all the emphasis on cut and color. A typical black velvet gown has a puritanically high neckline, long tight sleeves, and the incongruous zest of a slit up to the knees at the centre front.

The fitted midriff is emphasized with curved seaming or brassiere cuts intended to play up the bosom. There are gold and silver lame hostess ensembles, with wide-legged pyjamas, long tightly fitted overblouses, and floor-length coats.

Survey Shows Majority Of Dentists Co-operate

ANN LANDERS

DEAR READERS: In yesterday's column I promised to report on the results of the 30 telephone calls made by myself and two Ann Landers assistants in an effort to learn firsthand how Chicago dentists respond to emergency calls.

The plea went like this: "I just moved to Chicago from Wisconsin and I don't know anyone here. I work in the Loop as a salesperson. I've been up all night with a terrible toothache. Can you possibly see me today?"

Here is a sampling of the responses:

Dr. B. B.: "If you are in pain I will see you during your lunch hour. I'll skip my lunch if necessary."

Dr. J. S.-Z.: "I will take you as soon as you can get over here."

Dr. W. E. S.: "I'm sorry but I don't practise dentistry in the general sense. I make plates. I suggest you telephone the Chicago Dental Society emergency service. The number is ——."

We phoned as instructed and were told an emergency visit costs $10 minimum. They asked for a name, and address and a telephone number and promised to call back with the name of an available dentist.

Dr. A. H.'s nurse: "Please give me your name and telephone number. You will hear from us if we get a cancellation today. If you don't hear by 5:30 p.m. that means there were no cancellations. In that event, come to the office and the doctor will see you after his last patient.

Dr. J. W.'s nurse: "The doctor will not be in the office today because of a death in the family. Try Dr. S. whose telephone number is ——."

Dr. S. G.'s nurse: "The doctor said he will take you any time during the day if you are willing to wait until he is finished with the patient he is working on when you arrive. In the meantime, dear, take two aspirin."

Dr. XXXX (I prefer not to print this doctor's initials.): "I hope you won't misunderstand but since this is an emergency and you are not a regular patient, you must be prepared to pay for the visit in cash. It will be at least $15.

Dr. P. R.: "Come over whenever you can and I will manage to work you in somehow. I never refuse to see a patient who is in pain."

(The Landers assistant who made this call added, parenthetically: "This doctor asked many questions and was so genuinely concerned that I am going to consult him next January when my dentist retires.")

Dr. XXXX: "You have a very pleasing voice. Have you ever considered working as a receptionist in a dentist's office? It so happens I am looking for someone. Come over at 3.00 p.m. and I'll look at your tooth and we can discuss the possibilities."

I told him I was happy with my job and not interested in doing anything else. (I did, however, agree to come in at 3:00 p.m.)

Suddenly it occurred to me that several lovely dentists were saving time for an "emergency" patient who was not going to show up. I phoned back those who had offered time and told them a dentist across the street had agreed to see me immediately. Without exception, every dentist and nurse said, "Thank you for letting us know."

So, dear readers, according to the Ann Landers Survey, 26 out of 30 Chicago dentists came out smelling like roses. Today I am sending by special messenger a single rose to each dentist who said "yes".

Susanna's Family Fare

I'VE HEARD ENOUGH!

Dear Susanna: A pair of ear plugs work wonders when one is trying to do serious writing or studying in a normally noisy household — just try it! It is a trick I learned last summer when I had a part time typing job at home.

Not only did I need to concentrate, but I was also easily distracted listening to all the interesting activities outside. My solution came about like this:

I had shampooed my hair, and decided to dry it while I did my work, so that I would be all set to comb it out and be ready for my date when I finished. I put on the hair dryer, plugged it in and began plugging away at my typing. Gradually I realized how well I was concentrating, how original and uncluttered my thoughts were and what wonderful progress I was making with my work. All the disturbing sounds had been blocked out.

Ear plugs have exactly the same effect, and, as I said before "What a boon they are when it's time to get down to really tough slugging in the study department!" — Lena Davidson

The first rule of concentration little gal, — you must tune out before you can tune in! — SUSANNA

A NATION OF COOKIE MAKERS

Dear Susanna: I love making cookies, all kinds, I am always trying out different ones and do enjoy giving them to friends. Sometimes I spend a whole day making and packing them in fancy boxes. They are such a cheerful little gift for someone who is laid up or who is temporarily unable to do her own baking.

But there's a difference in the boxes I give. I always tuck the recipe in the bottom of the box so that when the cookies are gone there is the recipe. If my friends like them, then they can make some for themselves and their friends. — A Cookie Maker

. . . and if their friends like them. . . — SUSANNA

One thing about your daily newspaper...

you can take your own sweet time reading it

You can pick it up when you want to. Put it down. Go back to it in your own sweet time. No one ever stops you in the middle of a sentence to make you read an ad. You can take the ads or leave them alone. But you prefer to take them. We know that.

A survey of 42,000 homes from coast to coast revealed that 93% and 94% of the people in the middle and upper income groups respectively prefer daily newspaper advertising to other types of advertising.

Another survey validated by the Canadian Advertising Research Foundation showed why: they find newspaper advertising more reliable (41%), and less irritating (92%). In fact, they use their paper as a daily shopping guide (83%).

So you might be led to assume that newspaper advertising has a greater influence on Canadian buying habits than other advertising. You'd be bang right.

Most advertisers, of course, are well aware of the tremendous buying influence newspaper ads have. Which is why they continue to run ads. And why you continue to read them. Even though you take your own sweet time about it.

To Consider Northern Offer At Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Hourly-rated employees of Northern Electric Co. in Montreal will meet next Tuesday to accept or reject a company offer in the current wage dispute.

In case of rejection a strike vote is expected to become part of the decision.

The employees want an hourly increase of 10 cents for incentive workers, 15 cents for day workers, and 20 cents for tradesmen. Present basic wages run from $1.85 to $1.92 an hour for all but tradesmen who get between $2.47 and $2.89.

A strike could affect some 12,000 Northern Electric workers in Ontario.

In Belleville, a new wage contract was signed in July. The only effect the Montreal vote could have locally would be in the availability of parts and this would not have any great influence on operations here.

enbaker charged the Liberal government will call an election because it is afraid to face questions about the Dorion report when Parliament convenes in September.

Mr. Diefenbaker told a Calgary press conference the Dorion report, its complications and redistribution are preying on the mind of Mr. Pearson.

If there is no election, Mr. Diefenbaker said, the Rivard case will be fought out on the floor of the House.

"Never before has such a person (Lucien Rivard) received so much solicitude from so many for so long," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

He added it was strange that the government worked so hard to capture Rivard after his escape from jail, then managed to get him out of the country so fast.

federal estimates that production per man hour has been rising at the rate of 3.2 per cent a year and that industry therefore can raise wages that much without boosting prices.

A 3.2-per-cent wage increase would amount to about 14 cents an hour added to present wages and fringe benefits averaging $4.40 an hour for the approximately 450,000 Steelworkers involved.

Johnson could invoke the Taft-Hartley Act to impose an 80-day cooling-off period and further delay a strike.

versal coverage could accomplish not only an extension of protection to those areas where none now is in force, but also a very marked reduction in the realized costs of those insurance policies that are already provided.

Dr. Berry based the study on a 1961 survey of all Canadian organizations licensed to issue medical insurance or contracts for prepayment of medical costs.

VARIATIONS WIDE

The study points up wide variations in the cost of such programs and the benefits provided under them. It noted some contracts which in 1961 would have provided benefits of $30 for a caesarian birth when the average benefit was about $150.

He also reported that the cost exclusive of medical claims for a universal program for all Canadians would be less than 10 per cent of the total cost of all medical services provided. This compared with the 1961 average of all private insurance carriers, including the prepayment plans, of almost 30 per cent.

Dr. Berry found that "roughly 47 per cent of the Canadian population appeared in 1961 to be without direct insurance or prepayment coverage against the costs of medical care and a further nine per cent held coverage extending only to physicians' care in hospital."

Then he posed the question of the social issue.

"The central question, of course, is whether this less-than-universal coverage constitutes a social problem with costs borne by the society as a whole, or whether this partial coverage should be viewed only as a natural consequence of differing individual tastes, values and circumstances."

DIFFICULT CHOICE

He also says the wide variety of voluntary plans currently open to the citizen makes it difficult to choose wisely among them.

A person buying a pair of shoes and finding them unsatisfactory has made a minor error in choice.

"The selection of a medical prepayment or insurance cannot be viewed as a simple process, as in entertainment or apparel, where the product is sampled and, if it fails to please, another brand is tried. The consequences of an unwise choice can be too far-reaching.

". . . Hindsight frequently comes too late."

there was every indication that the 1965 gross national product will pass the $50,000,000,000 mark for the first time in Canada's history.

Mr. Style said that for most Canadians this has meant not only higher wages but also a significant increase in consumer purchasin, power. It had also made possible federal legislative action in the field of hospital insurance, a national pension plan and increased government grants toward higher education and social welfare.

"I hope it is widely understood that none of this would have been possible if, first of all, the companies concerned had not made a profit and if the shareholders involved had not been prepared to allow a high proportion of company earnings to be re-invested at the cost of lower immediate dividends for themselves," he said.

Shortcomings of Parliament Discussed by Bar Association

TORONTO (CP)—A long catalogue of the shortcomings of Parliament was listed Monday by three prominent members of Parliament in a panel session at the annual convention of the Canadian Bar Association.

A certain amount of agreement—notably on the theory that members of longer service are slowing up reforms—was reached among members of the Liberal, New Democratic and Creditiste parties. A Progressive Conservative spokesman was unable to attend the forum on "what's wrong with Parliament?"

Liberal Pauline Jewett of Northumberland, Gilles Gregoire, deputy leader of the Creditistes, and Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) also came close to unanimity on abolition of the Senate.

"Its main function is for handing out political plums," said Mr. Fisher, in reply to a question from the floor as to the "significance" of the upper chamber.

"I, too, am for abolition despite the fact that I'm a member of a party that uses it for a political lubricant," said Miss Jewett in a reference to use of Senate appointments for political wheelhorses.

Mr. Gregoire said he would like to see senators named by labor unions, farm unions, financial groups, even student groups. In its present form, the space it takes up might be better utilized with a gymnasium.

In the Commons, Miss Jewett found that among the members of longer standing there was a tendency to resist change. As a result, "what seems an enormous time" was taken up on things that could be settled promptly.

"We may get the main improvement when we get the 19th century politicians out of there," Mr. Fisher said. "The longer you're there, the longer you get into the partisan role."

Miss Jewett said she is bothered by "repetitious and long-winded" debate, giving an inflated impression of the importance of a discussion.

Generally, she said, too many politicians of the old school took the messianic approach in preference to lucidity.

"John?" someone suggested from the floor in an evident reference to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

"There are others," Miss Jewett said.

Mr. Fisher said the basic point was that Parliament had become "rather decadent" and unsuited to the needs of Canada as a whole. It had a ceremonial overlay that obscured its workings. There should be a move in the direction of the Americ system of dividing the legislative functions.

Mr. Fisher suggested Parliament should be "put on the road"—holding sessions across the country—so its members could get the feel of Canada.

Urge Division for Aging In Ontario Health Dept.

TORONTO (CP)—A new division for aging should be established in the provincial department of health to direct and co-ordinate the work of various agencies concerned with old people, the department recommended Monday.

The recommendation was one of 10 submitted in a brief to the legislature's select committee on aging. Health Minister Dr. Matthew Dymond, who submitted the brief, said the suggestions contained in it were purely the thinking of his staff and there has been no consultation with other provincial departments.

Several groups appearing before the committee previously have recommended a government agency to look after the needs and problems of the aged.

The health department's brief also recommended that its proposed division for the aged take control of nursing homes. Dr. Dymond said control of homes should include setting of standards and policing. Homes now are not licensed by the province unless they receive patients from Ontario mental hospitals.

Dr. Dymond said many old people staying in nursing homes have inadequate funds and are completely helpless. The brief said loneliness and intellectual malnutrition are more widespread and devastating than dietary malnutrition, and cause greater suffering.

The brief also recommended:

—That a senior interdepartmental committee be set up to study problems of the aging and the aged, with instructions to study laws, administration and finances and recommend changes. The committee should include representatives of private, voluntary and academic agencies.

—That home care for older persons be brought under the control of the department of public welfare.

—That people be educated early in life to meet the problems of aging.

The government will encourage industry to relax its retirement policies so that older persons could be used on a part-time or advisory basis.

Through the Ontario Hospital Services Commission, general hospitals will be asked to provide more adequate geriatric assessment and treatment services for both mental and physical disorders.

Few Believe Smoking Is Health Hazard

OTTAWA (CP)—Nine out of 10 Canadians have heard or read reports that cigarette smoking is hazardous to health but only six of them believe it.

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said Monday in a statement that these statistics were reported in a sampling of opinion last winter.

Her statement said the survey was conducted across the country. It found that 91.1 per cent of males and 88.2 per cent of females 15 years of age and over had heard or read reports about harmful effects of cigarette smoking.

Of the sample surveyed, 57.8 of the men and 61.6 of the women said they believed cigarette smoking is a health hazard, and 40 per cent of the men and 33.4 per cent of the women doubted or did not believe that smoking is a hazard.

More than 60 per cent of residents in Ontario and the western provinces were convinced of the health hazard, but less than half of the residents of Quebec believed it.

"Obviously," Miss LaMarsh said, "the continuing task is the educational program which we share with the provinces and the various professional and voluntary organizations.

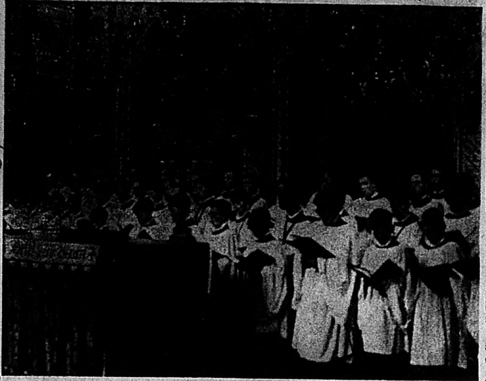
"We not only must convince those who still downgrade the hazard, but assist those who, recognizing it, have yet to meet it with preventive action."

Papers' Delegates Walk Out of Meeting

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Mailers Union says that representatives of Toronto's three daily newspapers walked out of a conciliation meeting Monday called by Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree in a bid to resolve differences between the newspapers and the union, a local of the International Typographical Union (CLC).

Printers of ITU Local 91 with a membership of 680 went on strike against the three papers July 9, 1964, and the Mailers' 220 members refused to cross picket lines. A back - to - work agreement between the Mailers and publishers in May was vetoed by ITU international headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo. The papers have continued to publish.

A statement from the union negotiators issued Monday night by Mailers President Robert Earles said the walkout rejected on the publishers "who continually cry out editorially for settlement at the bargaining table in all labor-management relations" for refusal "to accept the advice they so freely give to others."



CANADIANS SING AT ABBEY SERVICES—The choir of St. George's Cathedral of Kingston, sings in London's famous Westminster Abbey during services Sunday. (AP Wirephoto via cable from London)

Press Gallery Taken to Task By Two MPs

TORONTO (CP)—The parliamentary press gallery took some knocks from two MPs Monday at a forum discussion on Parliament before the Canadian Bar Association's annual convention.

Douglas Fisher, New Democratic Party member for Port Arthur said the press "tends to sycophantism" or to flying trial balloons for officials to get the inside track to good stories. It was very hard for a gallery reporter to "be his own man" if he wanted access to information from the best sources.

However, Mr. Fisher conceded that the over-all performance of the gallery is "as good as the performance of the people the newspaper men are watching."

Gilles Gregoire, deputy leader of the Creditistes, said his "reproach" is that the press gallery is "more thirsty of the spectacular than of real news." It should present more facts and less "comment" such as the current election speculation.

Mr. Gregoire said election comment was placing the people and business in uncertainty. It was dangerous for the economy. Prime Minister Pearson should be allowed to make up his mind.

Kingston Choir Sings Before Big Crowds

LONDON (CP)—The choir of St. George's Cathedral in Kingston, Ont., sang to a capacity congregation at Westminster Abbey, continuing the success it has had since it began a four-week tour of major English cathedrals Aug. 8.

Every seat in the huge, historic abbey was filled for the Sunday evening service, a series of hymns, congregational singing and spoken words.

The choir, which comprises 32 boys and 22 men under organist and Choirmaster George Maybee, led the congregational singing and sang three anthems, including two specially written for the Kingston group.

One was In God's Command by Graham George, professor of music at Queen's University, Kingston, written for last November's memorial service for the late president Kennedy at Washington, and the other was I Will Love Thee, O Lord by Dean Leo Sowerby of Washington.

Leading the service was Canon Christopher Hildyard of the abbey, who became an admirer of the Kingston choir when it sang at services at the abbey for three weeks 11 years ago.

SINGS AT ST. PAUL'S

The choir opened its current tour with a week of services at the Great York Minster Cathedral, then came to London to sing for two weeks at that tourist mecca, St. Paul's Cathedral.

It winds up its series at St. Paul's today and goes on to Cambridge for five days of singing at King's College.

In between, there have been both recorded and live performances for the BBC.

"Some of the most critical and knowledgeable people in England have come along to the services," said Dr. D. G. M. Diaper, professor of chemistry at Royal Military College, who serves both as a bass in the choir and as secretary-treasurer to the group.

"We have had some most complimentary letters and statements," he said in an interview Monday. Composers, choral conductors, organists and others steeped in the Anglican tradition of choral music had listened to St. George's choir and been enthusiastic.

"It makes one feel quite humble that a group with our level of training has managed to attain this degree of acceptance," Dr. Diaper added.

"Each service has to be as near perfect as we can get it. It's the sort of game at which you can't relax.

"For amateurs — and we're strictly amateurs—it means being keyed up all the time. We're beginning to appreciate how demanding this sort of thing is."

The boys have been strictly supervised since their arrival with organized sight - seeing jaunts, boat rides and receptions to fill in the time between church services and practising.

They leave London by air next Sunday to be home in time for the beginning of school Tuesday.

Not Rape Case Says Lawyer For Brewery

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Edward J. Williams, an executive of the Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co., testified Monday there has been a continual deterioration in the finances of General Brewing Corp., of San Francisco.

Williams was a defence witness as the third week of the U.S. government's anti - trust suit against the Milwaukee firm got under way in federal court.

His long testimony was interrupted at one point by a General Brewing lawyer, Lloyd McCormick, who angrily asserted:

"This is not an anti-trust trial. All we've had for the last three days is about morals. It's a rape case and General Brewing is the rape victim."

The U.S. justice department contends Schlitz sought to dominate the California beer market when it bought 39 per cent of John Labatt Ltd., of London, Ont., in February 1964. Labatt's owns controlling interest in General Brewing.

Wreck EMO Tower

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Police said today vandals cut five of 15 guy wires on Grey County's 150-foot Emergency Measures Organization's radio tower, causing it to topple to the ground.

The wrecked tower was worth about $1,500.

Senior Citizens Hold Meeting In Guelph

GUELPH (CP)—Senior citizens from across Ontario arrived at the University of Guelph Monday for their seventh annual convention. Some 350 delegates were registered.

Jack Lerette of the Retirement Club 232 of Toronto and president of the United Senior Citizens of Ontario welcomed the delegates who anticipate discussion on old age pensions, comprehensive hospital and medical care insurance and the end of education taxes on a municipal level.

Petitions to the federal government for assistance in erecting and furnishing senior citizens' centres, and a rise in the basic income tax exemption from $1,000 to $3,000 will be among resolutions presented to the assembly.

'Flying Dragon' Invades Swamplands

Vietnamese troops launched a massive operation recently into Viet Cong-infested swamps long thought to be impenetrable. Associated Press writer Hugh A. Mulligan accompanied them.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

AP LA GHI (AP)—Until recently, Vietnamese government troops seldom dared to tread—or sink into the ooze—in the mangrove swamps of the Mekong Delta along the South China Sea.

Last week, inspired by intelligence reports of huge Viet Cong arms caches and anxious to bring the war to the most privileged Communist sanctuary, the army and navy of South Viet Nam struck the swamplands in the delta with a two-day offensive. The U.S. Air Force gave a thunderous assist.

Operation Flying Dragon began near midnight with more than 1,000 troops of the 9th Infantry Division moving down to the ferry slip at Can Tho, on the muddy Bassac River. They boarded the landing craft of two Vietnamese Navy river assault groups.

The flotilla of 15 boats slid swiftly down the river.

Just as sunrise broke over the swamplands, flights of F-100 jets and Skyraiders rained explosives on the impenetrable thickets. Huge curtains of fire rose from the constant cascade of napalm.

Then all 14 boats in the river assault group opened with 40 and 20mm guns, 81mm mortars and 50 and 30-calibre machine-guns.

Tracer bullets skipped off the water and danced into the jungle. The fleet moved up a narrow canal and disgorged wave after wave of troops which disappeared into towering mangrove thickets.

When the guns stopped, all that could be heard was the noise of machetes as the long columns pressed forward.

A Viet Cong defector led the way under close guard.

As sun rose Maj. Don Old of San Antonio, Tex. and Capt. Ed Parchinski of New York City kept tabs on the tactical situation, calling for air strikes, keeping track of the casualty and prisoner charts.

At 12:30 the first Viet Cong was killed. At 1:25 p.m. the government troops found some Russian-made rifles some grenades and a few maps in grass shacks at the edge of the water. They set fire to the hamlet.

The troops settled down to an uneasy night in the jungle, fighting off bugs and mosquitoes.

Next day the sun again rose high and scorching The troops ashore hacked ahead into the dense foliage.

Another prisoner, another casualty, then nothing.

At 3 p.m. the powers in the big boat, far out in the China Sea, called a halt. The landing barges returned down the narrow canal and opened their jaws to receive the troops.

Three miles upstream a sampan was picked up by a roving spotlight. The megaphone on the bridge ordered the occupants to heave to. The men in the sampan struggled in the stiff current but quickly lost headway.

Capt. Phong, the Vietnamese skipper, faced a decision: Was the sampan the forward observer for a Viet Cong mortar squad or was her crew one of hapless fishermen too uneducated to understand complicated curfew regulations.

Two tracer bullets well above the people in the sampan showed the big boat meant business. The paddlers tried to move toward the big boat but the current swept them away toward shore.

"Let them live," Phong said wearily. "God, I am sure, must grow tired of playing God."

On that note, Operation Flying Dragon sailed away from a fruitless but daring venture into the no-man's-land of mangrove swamps.

Dominican Junta Quits, May Mean End of Strife

SANTO DOMINGO (Reuters) The end of the four - month Dominican Republic crisis seemed closer today following the surprise resignation Monday night of Gen. Antonio Imbert's "national reconstruction" government.

Imbert, 44, one of the two surviving assassins of dictator Raphael Trujillo, and the four other members of the civilian-military junta signed their "irrevocable resignations" during an unheralded television broadcast.

Meanwhile, Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States, said the OAS peace mission would probably meet today with Col. Francisco Caamano's "constitutionalist" government, the Imbert regime's rival.

News of the junta's move was received with mixed feelings in the Caamano forces' sector, where the radio station warned troops to remain on the alert "until the motives for the resignations are known."

The radio added the junta left office with the "scorn" of the Dominican people on it but urged that no celebrations be held until the picture was more clear.

The resignation announcement came nearly four months after the national reconstruction government was formed under U.S. auspices following the outbreak in April of civil strife in the Caribbean island republic.

Informed sources here indicated the move may have been the result of pressure put on Imbert Monday by the U.S. following a mortar barrage in the capital Sunday night which left five dead and a widening confusion of charges and counter-charges.

When the barrage started, officers of the inter - American peace force first thought it came from the constitutionalist side. Later the OAS reported it had come from the national reconstruction side. The Imbert forces denied the charge.

The confusion was compounded when Caamano put the blame for the attack on the inter-American force — particularly the Brazilian contingent.

Gemini 5 Flight May Stiffen Space Race to the Moon

By HAROLD MORRISON

In the remarkable eight-day voyage of Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad, much of the world now appears finally convinced it may one day catch a glimpse of an American soaring to the moon.

Reaction from dozens of countries salutes the feat of Gemeni 5 as an unparalleled achievement. After years of following in the shadows of the Soviet Union's pioneering space accomplishments, the United States finally has established leadership in duration of space flights.

It is unlikely the Soviet Union will allow the American space record to remain unchallenged for long. Indeed the American demonstration that humans, under the right conditions, can remain in orbit for some 190 hours is likely to intensify the space race, with the Russians and the Americans pitting all their ingenuity, money and technical talent into extending the period in orbit and preparing the space stepping-stones to other celestia bodies.

But for many people, the drama of the race to the moon is saddened by the growing realization that the giants of the earth are deeply concerned about opportunities to outwit each other in attempts to dominate space for military purposes.

Some seem surprised that U.S. President Johnson should give precedence to the development of a costly military space laboratory, which, they fear, may only lead to the possibility of war beyond the global rim. Johnson's announcement could fortify the case of those men in Moscow who favor a tough posture toward the United States and greater research into the military uses of space.

The American space effort, on the other hand, has undoubtedly been stimulated by American fear that the awesome accomplishments of Soviet sputniks, luniks and cosmonauts might lead to Soviet domination from the skies.

The Soviet Union and the United States have inspired each other's tremendous efforts. It is probably not too much to say they have frightened each other into costly action. A prominent American military leader once said in a confidential talk that he would not rest until his men could "operate" in space with complete efficiency, to meet any Soviet threat from that direction. There are undoubtedly Russian generals who feel the same way about their country's security.

There is no present indication that either the Soviet Union or the United States plans to mount a nuclear arsenal in space. The more obvious use of a military space laboratory would be for the purpose of patrol and detection.

This might help eliminate the possibility of a surprise attack and thereby reduce the prospect of nuclear war. But for all those who dread the prospects of an armed collision in space, the hope remains that Russiand and Americans will get on with the job of exploring the moon as a scientific venture, not as a military conquest.

Serious Famine Within Decade Is Predicted

BELGRADE (AP)—Dr. B. R. Sen of India, director-general of the UN Food and Agriculture Organization, warned a world population conference Monday that parts of the world may have serious famine within five to 10 years.

He told the opening session of the conference that mankind is in for a somber future "unless efforts are united on a world-wide basis to increase food production in the developing countries, along with decisive application of measures for control of the growth of population."

"In some of the most populous areas of the world," he said, "the possibility of serious famine within five or 10 years must not be excluded."

The conference is meeting to try to find means of bridging the gap between the number of humans being born and the number who can be fed. World population is expected to reach 6,000,000,000 by the year 2,000.

BROCKVILLE HERE TONIGHT

As the man said, "What are they going to do for an encore?"

We should find out here at the Fairgrounds tonight when Brockville Texaco Diggers and Belleville Ellis' tangle in the second game of their OASA Junior "A" playdown set.

Whatever the outcome it will almost certainly be anti-climactic to Saturday's' tremendous battle down east.

In case you missed it, Belleville nipped the Diggers 1-0 in no less than 23 innings—to establish what must be a record of some sorts.

Our man, Robert Snetjella says the game was something to behold. Brockville had the most scoring opportunities but could not find the crack in Ellis' armor with men on base.

Bobby Ethier came up with another of his great pitching chores, striking out 32, and got some excellent fielding help from his mates. Stu Muirhead who doubled and scored the only run in the 23rd, and Larry Soule saved the game earlier with excellent plays in the outfield.

Brockville pitching ace, Roger Hodgekinson, a big youngster who hits as well as he pitches, lost a toughie. Any time you strikeout 39 batters and lose the game, man, you got problems.

It will likely be Ethier and Hodgekinson again tonight. After all that work Saturday, perhaps their arms are still going around in the pitching pattern. All they will have to do is shove a ball in their hands.

Extra-inning games are nothing new to Harold Reid's crew. Ellis', as far as I can recall, have lost only one overtime game this season, that 2-1 to Bloomfield a week ago.

And they have had more than their share of them too. The club started its pennant-winning, 11-game undefeated drive with that superb 18-inning win over Tweed, in Madoc. A couple of other key wins against Trenton came in 12 inning affairs.

Around ball circles, the word is that "any club can win the wide open games but it takes a good ball club to cop the close ones."

If this is the case, Ellis Juniors must rate with the best.

Past performances will mean little, however, come 8.30 at the Fairgrounds tonight.

The Juniors, right from the club brass to the batboy, realize that Brockville has a truly fine team that will take a lot of beating before calling it a series.

You can bet the locals will be trying to wrap up the series at home rather than face a third and deciding game.

It should be some contest, with the biggest softball crowd in a long while on hand for the excitement, unless we miss our guess.

Stengel Resigns ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Mets Want Color

Yogi Berra May Get Manager's Post

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Yogi Berra, fired as manager by New York Yankees last year, may become the manager of New York Mets next year.

The dramatic but hardly unexpected resignation of Casey Stengel Monday, effective at the end of the season, left the door open for Berra to take charge of the National League cellar-dwellers in 1966.

There is always the possibility that the job will be given to Wes Westrum, who has served ably as interim manager of the Mets during Stengel's month-long absence.

YOGI BERRA

Most observers believe, however, that Westrum, short of pulling a miracle like bringing Mets home in ninth place, will be returned to his bullpen duties next year with Yogi elevated from his present job as first-base coach.

The Mets' front office, delighted by the huge crowds flocking to Shea Stadium all year, feel they must have a colorful leader following in Stengel's footsteps. Berra represents that image and Westrum does not.

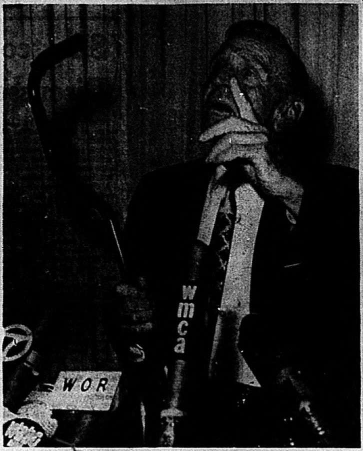
HAS BEEN ABSENT

Stengel has not managed the Mets since July 24, when he fell and fractured his left hip. Although an operation was successful, Casey has been confined to a wheelchair, occasionally allowed to walk with the use of a cane.

His decision to quit came on the advice of Dr. Peter Lamotte, the club physician who performed the successful operation.

It was not until last Wednesday that Casey finally made up his mind and broke the news to George Weiss, the club president.

Stengel's decision ends a career that started in 1910 when he broke into professional baseball as a left-handed outfielder for Kankakee.



CASEY QUITS MANAGING METS—Casey Stengel waves his cane in his New York residence Monday as he announces he will retire as field manager of the Mets at the end of the National Baseball League season. Stengel, 75, has been out of uniform since he broke his hip July 25. He will remain with the Mets as a vice president.

R. Maracle Has 1-Hitter

Ronnie Maracle pitched a one-hitter at the Point last night to lead the Point Anne Cementmen back into contention for the Commercial Softball League's fourth and final playoff spot.

The Cementmen whitewashed Black Diamond Cheese 10-0.

Point Anne meets RCAF Cosmos in the final game of the three-team round-robin series, at Prince Charles School, tonight at 6.30. The game is a "must" for both clubs.

Maracle had a no-hitter going for five and two-third innings. He lost it when opposing pitcher Don Holway cracked a double in the top of the sixth.

The winning pitcher struck out ten batters and issued three free passes.

Point Anne scored all their runs in two innings. They bagged three in the third and rapped it up with seven in the sixth.

Don Holway was the losing pitcher before giving way to brother Sonny part way through the sixth-frame rally. They allowed 11 hits. Don struck out six and walked five while Sonny fanned one and passed one.

Maracle helped his own attack with a home run and Vern Whalen also hit a homer, plus a double. Rick Rosebush topped all batters with four singles, aided by Dennis Hull, with two, Gerry Maher and Perry Ellis one apiece.

Shannonville used four pitchers, Bill Barberstock, Dave Lewis, "Cubby" Barberstock and Larry Lewis. Together they struck out four, walked four and allowed seven hits.

Keith Dickey hurled on the loser's hill-top, and managed to get one man on third strikes. He walked seven and gave up seven hits.

Vicki Berner Wins Gold For Canada

First Of Games

TEL AVIV (CP) — Canada gained its first gold medal and added two third-place bronze medals to its meagre total on the second last day of competition at the seventh world Maccabiah games.

Vicki Berner of Vancouver earned the first-place medal in the women's tennis singles, defeating Esme Emanuel of South Africa 6-4, 6-4 in the best-of-three set final match.

The other two Canadian medals were won by Toronto basketballers competing in track events. Mal Chessler placed third in the high jump and Hersh Cohen won his bronze medal in the hop, step and jump.

Chessler, 28, crossed the bar at five feet, 11 inches for his third-place finish. The 21-year-old Cohen executed a leap of 45 feet, eight inches.

During the first seven days of the games, Canada managed only five medals, four silver and one bronze.

Tom Okker of the Netherlands won the men's singles tennis title Monday 6-4, 6-1, 6-4 from American Mike Franks and later teamed with Ineke Van Wezel to defeat South Africa 6-4, 1-6, 7-5 for the mixed doubles title.

The sole U.S. tennis gold medal was won in the men's doubles when Franks and Ron Goldman defeated Israel's Elzear Davidman and Ian Froman 6-0, 6-2, 8-6.

Israel won the gold medal in soccer defeating Britain 5-0. Mexico earned the bronze medal.

The Americans continued to dominate men's track and field. Bill Morgan, who won the 10,000-metre run Saturday, finished the 5,000-metres in 14:23.6 to capture a gold medal. Other U.S. winners Monday were Bob Steinberg in the high jump clearing six feet, 1¾ inches, Martin Eisner in the shot put and Bill Shapiro in the 400 metres.

Izzy Horowitz of the U.S. won first place honors in the two-day, clay pigeon shooting competition, felling 180 birds of 200. Barry Naimark of Vancouver was fifth with 169.

At The Hambletonian

Rooters Follow Armbro Flight

DU QUOIN, Ill. (CP)—Canadian traffic at Wednesday's $122,245 Hambletonian trotting classic here has never been greater.

Four chartered aircraft, and countless other Canadians travelling by car, will produce a Canadian rooting section of several hundred when Armbro Flight, owned and bred by Elgin, Ted and Charles Armstrong, all of Brampton, Ont., faces 10 other three-year-old trotters in the 40th edition of the world's best-known harness race.

Four native Canadians, including Joe O'Brien of Alberton, P.E.I. who trains and drives Armbro Flight, have horses in this Hambletonian. Ralph Baldwin, a native of Lloydminster, Sask. drives Nimble Boy for Castleton Farm of Lexington, Ky.; Clint Hodgins of Clandeboye, Ont., just recovered from a serious spill a month ago, drives Perfect Freight for A.B.C. Stable of New York and Johnny Chapman, a native of Toronto, will pilot Poplar Jamie for Airin Stable and Silver Pine Acres of New York and Pompano Beach, Fla.

DISALLOW BETTING

There is no betting on the Hambletonian or other races conducted during the week of grand circuit here.

If there were, odds would be even money or less on Kenneth Owen's Noble Victory with a price of about 3- or 4-to-1 on the Canadian horse, the lone filly in this field.

Both Noble Victory and Armbro Flight are unbeaten in all earlier races this year. In 1964 Noble Victory had a record of 18 wins in 19 starts, his one loss coming here in the Castleton Stake when he finished third to Marengo Hanover and Victory Cadet, two of tomorrow's field.

Armbro Flight last season earned $107,452 off 20 wins in 26 starts and this year has earned $77,180 off 12 consecutive wins.

Local Bowlers Ousted By Narrow Margin

Mary Fox, Trenton and Jim McKenzie, Belleville, missed qualifying by narrow margins in the Master Bowlers of Ontario Match Tournament at Brantford over the weekend.

Fox missed by only eight pins, and McKenzie by 12. The latter came home with an award, however. He was presented with an Ontario Bowling Council Gold Pin Award for rolling a 400 - plus score in a Masters tournament last season.

Shirley Bedell of Hamilton, last year's women's winner repeated again as champion. She will fly to Vancouver to compete in the Pacific National Exhibition Five Pin Tournament. Accompanying her will be Dave Homan, Scarborough, who dethroned last years men's winner, Ernie Roggie of Hamilton.

WINS CASTING

TORONTO (CP)—Jay Walsh of Rochester, N.Y., is the 1965 winner of the all-round casting trophy presented to the top competitor in the Canadian National Exhibition's annual bait casting championship. Walsh had two firsts, a second and a fourth in four events in results announced Monday. North Jory of Toronto was runner-up.

Leaf Loss Gives Jets Pennant

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Columbus Jets lost a ball game Monday night but drew a five - minute ovation from a crowd of 4,035.

The Jets clinched the International League baseball pennant despite losing 7-2 to Atlanta Crackers. The cheers went up in the seventh inning with the announcement that Syracuse Chiefs had eliminated the second-place Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Leafs lost 3-2 to Syracuse and trail Columbus by 2½ games. Each team has two games remaining in the schedule. Atlanta is also 2½ back and tied with Toronto.

Columbus, which replaces Jacksonville Suns as pennant winner, last won the pennant in 1961 under the same manager as this year, Larry Shepard.

Rochester Red Wings continued their hot pace by downing Buffalo Bisons 4-1, winning eight of their last 10 games, as Ed Watt pitched a three-hitter for his sixth victory in 10 decisions.

Toledo Mud Hens, meanwhile, won 4-3 over Jacksonville in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader.

Only One Junior Breaks Par

By PAT DINEEN

BRANTFORD, (CP) — A young golfer who could not make his provincial team is the leader after the first 18 holes of the 36-hole qualifying round in the Canadian junior golf championships.

Peter Turner, an 18-yearold from Toronto, was the only one in a field of 156 to break par Monday over the 6,600 - yard Brantford Golf and Country Club.

Turner shot a one-under-par 71 to take a two-stroke lead over Wayne McDonald of Milton, and John Souter of Calgary.

The second 18 holes of the qualifying round, beginning at 7 a.m. EDT today, will determine the interprovincial team champions and the 64 golfers who will continue in match play for the individual title starting Wednesday.

Four-man teams from eight provinces and a combined entry from New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island are competing for the team title.

Turner was eliminated in an area preliminary tournament in Toronto earlier this summer. He did not advance to the Ontario junior championship where the provincial team was chosen.

Even without Turner, Ontario compiled an aggregate score of 315 to take a two-stroke margin over Alberta at the halfway point in the team event.

Souter led Alberta with his 73.

Five stroke behind Alberta was Manitoba with Quebec in fourth place another stroke back. The New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island team, paced by Pierre Rossignol of Bathurst, N.B., with a 74, was fifth with 326. British Columbia followed with 332 and defending champion Saskatchewan was seventh with 340.

Nova Scotia is eighth with 351 and Newfoundland, competing for the first time in the seven-year history of the tournament, was well back with 369.

Pennant Race Enters Stretch

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The National League pennant race moves into the fateful September stretch tonight with a crowd of contenders and no trace of a take-charge club.

Flag fever is running high in half a dozen cities but nobody has started printing World Series tickets. And when Ernie Banks makes a pitch for his eighth-place Chicago Cubs, he does it with a straight face. "Even if you're a mathematician, you can't say we're out of it," Banks said after slamming two home runs in a 10-2 victory over slumping Milwaukee Braves last Sunday.

The Cubs, in fact, are 13 games out of it but they'll remain alive as long as the leaders continue to mark time. Five teams are within 6½ games of first-place Los Angeles yet none has been able to take advantage of the Dodgers' second-division pace since Aug. 15.

On that date the Dodgers were 1½ games ahead of the second-place Braves. They have dropped nine of 15 starts since and still lead runner-up San Francisco Giants by 1½ games.

Milwaukee also has lost nine of 15—including six straight—and has fallen from second to fourth. The Giants are 8-7 and the third-place Cincinnati Reds 8-6 over the same period.

If momentum is the key at this stage of the race, Pittsburgh Pirates fit the bill. But the Pirates, in winning 10 of 15 games, have moved up only one notch in the standings, from sixth to fifth, although climbing from nine to 4½ games behind.

The Pirates also appear to have the best schedule in their remaining 29 games Bob Veale, 14-9, goes against Dodger ace Sandy Koufax, 21-6, tonight in the opener of a three-game set at Pittsburgh. After that the Pirates face contending clubs only eight more times.

The Dodgers, who plan to pitch Koufax, Don Drysdale and Claude Osteen in 24 of their final 30 games, have 14 games left with the pennant candidates. The Giants, who meet the sixth-place Phillies in a twi-night doubleheader at Philadelphia tonight, have 15 games to go against the other four contenders, the Braves 19 and the Reds 20.

Warren Spahn, 6-15, and Ron Herbel, 8-7, are scheduled to pitch for the Giants against 16-game winner Jim Bunning and spot starter Lew Burdette. Help is on the way for the weary Giants pitching staff, with Juan Marichal set to rejoin the club Wednesday when his eight-game suspension is up.

The Braves are at Cincinnati for a twi-nighter, with Tony Cloninger, 18-9, and Ken Johnson, 14-8, slated to start against the Reds' Joey Jay, 8-4, and Jim O'Toole, 1-9.

JAYCEES 5 — MEAD JOHNSON 2

Terry McTaggart pitched the Jaycees to a 5-2 win over Mead Johnson in a bantam baseball contest at Park Dale last night. McTaggart allowed only three hits, and his effort gives Jaycees a 1-0 lead in the semi-final series.

The winners sprinkled their five runs over five different innings as they plugged away at Jim Potts on the loser's mound. He walked nine men, allowed five hits and whiffed five.

McTaggart threw third strikes past 15 batters, and walked two.

Ron Jury led the Jaycees at the plate with three safeties. John Keane and J. McKibbon stroked singles.

In a peewee contest last night, I.B.E.W. edged Bad Boys 20-2. The game was called because of darkness after 4½ frames and will have to be replayed on Wednesday at Park Dale.

The winners obliterated pitcher-Paul Wolfe, as they had six in the first, seven in the second, five in the third and two in the fourth.

Moe Thompson allowed four hits in his five inning stint for IBEW and also paced his own attack.

Gonzales Diving Champion

TORONTO (CP) — Alf Gonzales is $2,000 richer, due not only to his talents but also to the efforts of Canadian National Exhibition officials who Saturday got him his second deferment of induction into the United States Army.

The Cuban-born resident of Gary, Ind., won the CNE's third annual professional high diving championship Monday and the $2,000 was his share of $5,000 in cash prizes.

He led the six-day diving event after Friday's plunge. The finals had been scheduled for Saturday but 35-mile-an-hour winds forced their postponement to Monday.

The 21-year-old Gonzales, however, was to report for service at Fort Knox, Ky., Monday.

A call to U.S. authorities got Gonzales a one-day reprieve and enabled him to complete the last dive.

He won the event with 1,260 points.

FINISHED SECOND

In second place was Barney Cioriani of Chicago with 1,208 points, 25 ahead of third-place Pete LaTona of North Miami Beach, Fla.

Ciprieni earned $1,250, LaTona $750.

William McGuire of Gary placed fourth to win $500, Bob Hawks of Chicago fifth, $300, and last year's champion, John Deininger of Seattle, Wash., sixth, $200. McGuire had 1,085 points, Hawks 1,074 and Deininger 1,059.

Others who completed the last dive (points in brackets): David Casper, Chicago (1,036), Darryl Maddock, Toronto (966), Jim Hall, Chicago (957), Raul Garcia, Acapulco, Mexico (899), and Ross Collins, Kitchener, Ont. (703).

Nicklaus Heads Money List

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP)—Jack Nicklaus, who finished out of the money in Sunday's American Golf Classic for the first time in his professional career, still is far ahead of the field in winnings, with $138,633 this year.

The Professional Golfers Association reported Monday that Nicklaus earned $127,445 in official tournaments and $11,188 in unofficial appearances.

Tony Lema won $101,816 in official play and $7,053 in unofficial tournaments for a total of $108,869.

The list, with official, unofficial and total winnings in order:

Jack Nicklaus, $127,445, $11,188, $138,633; Tony Lema, $101,816, $7,053, $108,869; Billy Casper, $74,521, $25,292, $99,814; Gary Player, $69,964, $1,096, $71,060; Bruce Devlin, $67,657, $3,264, $70,922; Doug Sanders, $63,028, $10,858, $73,887;

Gene Littler, $58,336, $4,303, $62,639; Dave Marr, $56,850, $6,080, $62,930; Arnold Palmer, $56,712, $22,504, $79,219; Bruce Crampton, $51,379, $12,249, $63,629.

The last time Toronto Argonauts visited a winless opponent, they presented Montreal Alouettes with a 20-0 victory. Then, by way of a souvenir, Argo coach Bob Shaw shipped them Don Fuell, one of the most ferocious defensive backs in the Eastern Football Conference.

The Argonaut goodwill mission moves into Edmonton tonight and the Eskimos, playing their first interlocking game after five straight setbacks in Western Conference play, can be forgiven if they anticipate similar comfort from the eastern cellar-dwellers, who have been shuffling their roster after almost every game.

No such charity need be expected in Regina, where Saskatchewan Roughriders, one point out of first place in the West, entertain Hamilton Tiger-Cats, the eastern co-leaders in a game to be televised by CTV at 10 p.m. EDT.

The Ticats, beaten 18-11 at Calgary Saturday night for their first defeat in four starts, battled the Stampeders down to the wire and showed signs of putting together an offence to match their defensive power.

The Argos, dropping their fourth straight game 36-1 to British Columbia Lions Sunday, had their moments defensively. But rookie quarterback Pete Liske, who will make his second start against the Eskimos tonight, was still too busy getting acquainted with his teammates to muster any kind of offence.

Edmonton coach Neill Armstrong has similar problems. He plans to reinstate Bill Redell, with whom he experimented at quarterback last season. He'll be the Eskimos' third signal-caller of the year, leaving them one behind Argos who have tried four.

Giants Trade Barnes

NEW YORK (AP)—After apparently deciding that rookies could not move into the first string quarterback's job left open by Y. A. Tittle's retirement, New York Giants today started looking for one to take over in the defensive backfield for Erich Barnes.

Dissatisfied by the exhibition showings of Bob Timberlake, Gary Wood and Henry Schichte, the Giants went shopping around the National Football League and came up with 10-year veteran Earl Morrall in a three-cornered deal Monday. But it cost them two first-stringers to get the 31-year-old signal-caller from Detroit Lions.

First they sent Barnes, an eight-year veteran, to Cleveland Browns for linebacker Mike Lucci and a future draft choice. Then they packaged Lucci with offensive guard Darrell Dess and another draft choice to the Lions for Morrall.

The Giants were a dismal 3-10-2 last year after winning three straight Eastern Division championships. Tittle, hampered by injuries, suffered his worst season as a pro and retired after it was over.

4,000 Interviews Given Papers on New TV Shows

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The publicity department of CBS, in what was perhaps an unfortunate moment of truth, boasted to the trade paper Variety this week that it had set a record total of 1,511 newspaper interviews in the course of drumming up interest in its new season of programs.

Presumably the other two networks have not been napping, so by a conservative count there have been more than 4,000 interviews about the 95 or so television programs on the network schedules.

This reporter, after five weeks of intensive study, would like to report that there has been a slight change in the rigid form of the star interview this year.

Interviews about a TV product as yet unseen by the public and often given by a star who has yet to be born are hard-sell spiels. Last season at about this time, the inevitable theme was cast friendship: "We all get along so well that we stick together even away from the studio—even on weekends. Great bunch of people."

This, however, is the year of writer-love and artistic chemistry.

GREAT, REALLY GREAT

"Of course the whole thing starts with the writing," goes the new line. "I think that when you see our show you'll agree we've got great scripts from real pros and really know what we're trying to say."

At this point the star or about-to-be star leans forward, sincerity glowing like bright flames in his eyes.

The real problem of course is that there isn't much that anybody can say in advance about a TV show except to assure the interviewer that it is positively great.

There is another slight change from last season, when it was the fashion to protest a little too much that TV's primary creative concern was to "avoid the cliche."

"What we've got to find now," stoutly declared a veteran producer, "is a new word for cliche. Cliche has become a cliche."

He had just finished explaining why his new western series, full of quick draws, fist fights, horses and ranchers' daughters was a brand new television concept.

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP)—The number of .300 hitters is almost as scarce as pennant contenders in the American League with only Carl Yastrzemski, Brooks Robinson and Tony Oliva in the select group, auguring a big league record for futility.

The major league mark for fewest .300 batsmen is three, established way back in 1906 when only three American League players finished with that percentage or higher. The National League mark is four set in 1907.

In addition to the top three, only four other American Leaguers this season are over .290 among the players with a minimum of 325 official times at bat. They are Fred Whitfield of Cleveland Indians and Al Kaline, Detroit Tigers, .299 each; Jimmie Hall, Minnesota Twins, .295 and Vic Davalillo, Cleveland, .293.

Yastrzemski, the Boston Red Sox outfielder, increased his average two points to .327 in last week's games. Baltimore Orioles' Robinson remained in second place despite a two point drop to .318.

Oliva held third place at .311. The Minnesota outfielder was sidelined with a hand injury after collecting three hits in 10 tries.

Whitfield tied Kaline for fourth place.

LEADS LEAGUE

Pittsburgh Pirates' Roberto Clemente continues to lead the National League. He increased his average six points to .340 last week with 11 safeties in 25 at bats.

Willie Mays of San Francisco Giants tied Hank Aaron of Milwaukee Braves for the runner-up position at .324. Aaron fell seven points with a five-for-25 performance while Mays' average remained the same as a result of eight hits in 25 trips. The figures include Sunday's games.

Mays slammed three homers, boosting his pace-setting total to 41. Deron Johnson of Cincinnati Reds leads in runs batted in with 102. He had five last week.

Willie Horton of Detroit remained the American League home-run leader with 26 while Cleveland's Rocky Colavito drove in five runs and lifted his leading RBI total to 89.

Inmanship Is Practised Devoutly in Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Much ado about ins and outs.

Recently an article in the New York Times magazine created a stir by naming the 100 in-people, from George Abbott to Tennessee Williams and including a parcel of Kennedys, who now mean most of New York society. Also mentioned were a few out-people, including Mayor Wagner, Dorothy Kilgallen and Jackie Gleason.

Nowhere is inmanship practised more devoutly than in Hollywood. I am not going to name who is in and who is out because, heavens, I must go on working here.

But I can report on the habits, customs and institutions that are in and out in Hollywood today.

Hotels: The Beverly Hills is forever in, and the Beverly Wilshire is suddenly in after an overhaul.

Night clubs: The Daisy is the new in discotheque. The Coconut Grove is in for important openings.

Restaurants: The Bistro is the most in of the new spots, Chasen's of the old. La Scala, Larue and a few small Italian places are in.

Movies: Previews at the Westwood Village are in. Big premiers are out, except for in charities like Cedars of Lebanon Hospital.

Sports: Tennis is definitely in, golf is out. Croquet is in—if you are invited to play at Sam Goldwyn's.

Living areas: Beverly Hills as in as you can get, Bel-Air follows. Malibu is in once more. The San Fernando Valley is far out.

Spectator sports: Watching the Dodgers is so in that Cary Grant does it. Doris Day has made the Lakers basketball team in. The Angels, alas, are out.

Award affairs: The Writers Guild dinner is the most in of the year. Attending the academy awards is out; watching it on television at a party is in.

Resorts: Palm Springs is thoroughly, continuously in, even more so in the summer. Las Vegas is out, except when Frank Sinatra is there. (Wherever Sinatra is, is in.)

Dogs: Poodles are still in, though not as in as Yorkshire terriers. Collies—with all due respect to Lassie—are out.

Cars: Vintage (but not new) Rolls Royces are in, as well as imported Italian sports cars. Motorcycles are coming in.

I realize that this list may be upsetting to local figures who thought they were in and now discover they are indeed out. But if it's of any consolation to them, I will add the gratuitous information that movie columnists are also out.

At the Park

"CAT BALLOU"
Clothing for a Girl Named "Cat."

When Jane Fonda returned from Paris to Hollywood for her starring role in "Cat Ballou," now in its fifth record-breaking day, Columbia Pictures' way-out Western comedy in Columbia color at the Park Theatre, she brought with her a happy collection of fashion's finery created by some of fashion finery created by some of France's greatest designers: Chanel, Balenciaga and Givenchy.

She wears none of it in her new film, which also stars Lee Marvin, Michael Callan, Dwayne Hickman, Nat King Cole and Stubby Kaye.

As the tigerish leader of an otherwise all-male outlaw band distinguished as much for its amateurishness as for its enthusiasm, Miss Fonda wears a blouse, pants, holster and a gun she learns to use.

The pants are skin-tight leather, of a beige color. They may not have been too suitable for frontier living, but they did give designer Bill Thomas the satisfaction of knowing that—when Jane wore them — the widely-publicized "topless look" in feminine fashion could safely be ignored.

Only once does Miss Fonda get to dress up in "Cat Ballou," and the evening gown she wears then is something she would not dream of wearing in Paris, or any place else. It is of gaudy red and yellow brocade, with feathers, and it is appropriate to the time and place she wears it. As the vengeance-ridden Cat, she poses as a lady of easy virtue in order to spy on the man responsible for the murder of her rancher-father; her gown and her general behavior attract considerable unwelcome attention.

Ottawa Dominates

Bo Scott Leads Scoring

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa Rough Riders again dominate Eastern Football Conference statistics following their 31-13 victory over Montreal Alouettes last week.

Led by Russ Jackson and Bo Scott offensively and Ken Lehmann on defence, Ottawa players took the lead in four statistical departments.

Scott leads in scoring the rushing. His three - touchdown performance against the Als gave him four for 24 points and a six-point lead over teammate Ted Watkins and Montreal's J. W. Lockett.

Scott rushed for 132 yards against the Als to bring his season total to 329 yards in four games. Art Baker of Hamilton Tiger-Cats is second, 112 yards back. Scott also retained second place in the kickoff return department behind Toronto's Jim Rountree.

Jackson replaced Montreal's Bernie Faloney as the EFC passing leader. The Ottawa quarterback is tops in touchdown passes and average gain and is second in number of completions and yards gained. Faloney leads in completions, yards gained and completion percentage, but has had nine passes intercepted, four more than Jackson and more than anyone else in the league.

Lehmann intercepted two passes against Montreal to tie teammate Larry DeGraw, John Wydareny of Toronto and Dick Cohee and Zeno Karcz, both of Hamilton, for the lead. Each has two interceptions.

Hamilton's Stan Crisson, held to one pass catch in Saturday's 18-11 loss to Calgary Stampeders, barely maintained his lead in that department. Crisson has caught 10 passes for 131 yards. Close behind him are Terry Evanshen of Montreal with nine catches for 162 yards and Watkins with eight catches for 169 yards.

Ticats' Joe Zuger increased his punting lead over Dave Mann of Toronto. He averaged 51.2 yards on 14 punts against Calgary to run his average up to 48.6 yards, slightly ahead of the EFC record of 48 yards a punt set by Mann in 1961. Mann's average is 43.1.

Surtees Registers Victory

BRANDS HATCH, England (AP)—John Surtees of Britain, driving his privately-entered 200-mile-an-hour Lola Chevrolet, streaked away from the field in both heats to win the international sports car race here Monday.

The world racing champion outstripped a field of 33.

New Zealander Bruce MacLaren, in an Elva Oldsmobile, and Scotsman Jackie Stewart, also in a Surtees Lola Chevrolet, were second and third in both heats, each of which were over 30 laps of the grand prix circuit for a total distance of 159 miles.

Surtees won the first heat at an average speed of 95.79 miles an hour and the second at 96.43.

World champion Jim Clark jumped unharmed from his Lotus 40 Ford after spinning and ramming a bank at about 100 miles an hour during the second heat.

Another unlucky driver was 1962 world champion Graham Hill of Britain, whose Elva Oldsmobile, dogged by ignition trouble, completed only three laps in the first heat and nine in the second.

Among Oldtimers

Sandy Sets Hot Pace

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville of London, Ont., six-time Canadian amateur golf champion and the only Canadian to win the United States amateur title, is showing little sign of letting up.

Somerville, U.S. amateur champion in 1932, shot a 72 Monday to take a four-stroke lead in the first round of the annual Canadian Senior Golf Association championship.

The tournament, with more than 290 golfers taking part, continues today over the Hunt Club and Sunningdale courses here.

Putting with deadly accuracy, Somerville shot an eagle and four birdies in a row for a 33 on the front nine. He was one over par three times on the back nine and parred the remaining six holes. He is competing in the 60-64 age class.

There are six age classes for golfers 55 and over.

B. F. Merwin of Sudbury, competing in the 65-69 age group, tied with Fred Lyon of Toronto and W. D. Taylor of Montreal for second place with 76.

DIDN'T DESERVE

Among the field, which includes supreme court judges, government officials and business magnates, is Clarence Campbell of Montreal, president of the National Hockey League. Campbell carded an 85 and said he did not deserve it.

Five golfers who started are in the over-80 class. A. J. Hills, 84, of Ottawa, is the oldest competitor. He scored 108. Best score in the group was a 95 carded by Dr. R. E. Davidson of Toronto.

Medal play winner will be decided today with a two-ball competition scheduled Wednesday.

Will Play Game For Children

TORONTO (CP) — A "save the children college bowl" football game will be played here Nov. 20, with the 10 provincial premiers and Prime Minister Pearson acting as patrons.

The game, sponsored by the Intercollegiate Athletic Union and the Canadian Save the Children Fund, will be played by participating teams from Canadian colleges, with every Canadian university eligible.

Profits of the game will be given to needy youngsters in Canada and other areas of the world. One-third of the amount raised will go toward the construction of a recreation centre for Eskimo and Indian children at Moosonee, Ont.

Flag Row Leads To Withdrawal

Canadian yachtsman Pierre Desjardins finished third in Monday's race after leading most of the way.

The organizers hoisted the flags of 13 nations taking part in the unofficial world championships for this class of yacht—but the East German flag was missing.

For East Germans Peter Ahrendt, who won an Olympic silver medal last year in Tokyo, and Paul Borowski this was enough for them to withdraw.

Desjardins of Montreal, started strongly in the first group and stayed out in front until the final upwind stretch of the three-cornered Olympic course.

Skilful tacking then took Henning Jensen of Denmark out front. Soon afterward, France's Rene Sence also overtook the Canadian.

Runs Third Fastest Mile Ever

LONDON (Reuters) — Kipchonge Keino, a 25-year old Nairobi policeman, ran a brilliant race here Monday to become the first Negro runner to break four minutes for the mile, winning an invitation race during a Britain-Czechoslovakia meet.

The Kenyan won in three minutes, 54.2 seconds, the third fastest mile ever run.

Only Michel Jayz of France, who has a world record of three minutes, 53.6 seconds, awaiting ratification, and Peter Snell, New Zealand's Olympic star, who holds the official record of three minutes, 54.1 seconds, have better times.

Twins Nip Tigers To Strengthen Lead

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Remember Harmon Killebrew?

He used to be Minnesota Twins' leading slugger before he dislocated his left elbow. Now he can almost straighten his arm.

The Twins thought they would miss Killebrew, also a versatile infielder, in their battle for the American League pennant. If they have, it's not discernible. When Killebrew was forced out of the line-up Aug. 2, Minnesota had a six-game lead. Now, nearly one month later, the Twins hold a seven-game margin following their 11-inning, 3-2 triumph over Detroit Tigers Monday night.

Earlier on the day of Killebrew's baseline accident, ace pitcher Camilo Pascual underwent surgery on his pitching arm for torn muscles.

The Twins were in trouble. Or so they thought. The other alleged contenders should be in such trouble.

Of 29 games since then, Minnesota has won 18 for a .621 percentage. That's slightly less than its over-all mark of .632.

Two major reasons why the Twins have maintained their comfortable margin are Al Worthington and John Klippstein, a pair of elderly relief pitchers.

Both pitched Monday night, shutting out the Tigers on three hits in the final five innings. They didn't walk anyone and struck out seven as Klippstein earned his seventh victory in 10 decisions.

The Twins won in the 11th when Don Mincher singled, was sacrificed to second and raced home as Sandy Valdespino lined a two-out single off Larry Sherry.

Mincher singled across the Twins' first run in the sixth inning after Hank Aguirre had held Minnesota hitless. Zoilo Versalles knocked in a seventh-inning run with a single while Willie Horton singled in both Detroit runs.

In the only other game played, New York Yankees defeated Los Angeles Angels 4-2. Rain washed out Cleveland at Kansas City.

Jack Cullen scattered eight hits and singled in a run for the Yankee. Elston Howard socked a home run in the third inning.

Quebec Prepares for Fight With Capital Commission

By PAUL DUNN

OTTAWA (CP)—The Quebec government has announced its intention to do battle with the National Capital Commission. Just what sort of opponent is the province taking on?

The commission has yet to lose a legal decision and it has always been on soundest ground on the issue of its right to expropriate property anywhere in Canada. This is the very issue that Quebec is contesting.

Justice Minister Claude Wagner said recently he may personally take his province's arguments against expropriation by the federal agency before the Supreme Court of Canada. The battle is scheduled to begin Sept. 8.

Thus Quebec joins the ranks of litigants who have sallied forth against the NCC. Previous contestants who have fought and lost include the Ontario government, the cities of Ottawa and Hull, Que., and numerous municipalities and private individuals residing in the 1,800 - square - mile national capital region.

Mr. Wagner said his case will be based on the earlier expropriation of an Ontario farm in the Green Belt — a specially-designated girdle of land around Ottawa in which development is controlled by the NCC.

CONSULTATION DESIRED

The Exchequer Court of Canada decided in the earlier case that the federal government has the right to expropriate through the agency of the commission. Quebec will use the same case in the Supreme Court but seek to guarantee "respect of the municipal territory of the city of Hull."

Quebec does not oppose parts of the province being included in the designated national capital region but it does desire federal - provincial consultation and co-operation before development takes place.

About half the area the commission administers is in Quebec. The Ontario side is heavily built up but the Quebec half, with the exception of Hull with its 60,000 population, is mainly forests and parks.

How did the commission get its authority and what is its task?

The National Capital Act—"an act respecting the development and improvement of the national capital region"—provides for appointment of the National Capital Commission.

The act sets out the commission's objects and purposes: "To prepare plans for and assist in the development and conservation and improvement of the national capital region in order that the nature and character of the seat of government of Canada may be in accordance with its national significance."

To achieve this the NCC was empowered to acquire and develop property; construct and maintain parks, roads, railways, bridges and buildings; and given the right to undertake joint projects with municipalities and make grants to them.

MASTER PLAN

The commission evolved from the Ottawa Improvement Commission of 1899 and the Federal District Commission of 1927 into the present body in 1959.

In 1945 Jacques Greber, French town planner, drew up a long-range master plan for development of the area around the national capital. Parliament approved his plan in 1951 and it became the NCC's blueprint.

The commission developed an executive of 20 commissioners, including one from each province, two from Ottawa and one from Hull. It has between 500 and 700 employees.

To control development in the 1,800-square-mile region, it created a green belt around Ottawa and Gatineau Park in Quebec.

The belt is 41,500 acres (about 64 square miles) and encloses Ottawa in a circle broken only by the Ottawa River. Its inner margin is about six miles from the city centre and it's about 2½ miles wide.

Gatineau Park is wedge-shaped and all but a quarter of its 75,000 acres has been acquired. It is 32 miles long and 11 miles wide at its broadest point.

To acquire land for the belt, park, miles of scenic drives in and around Ottawa and Hull and other projects, the commission has often had to step on the toes of private or municipal land owners.

FEW COMPLAINTS

To date it has acquired 31,800 acres in the Green Belt alone at a cost of some $50,000,000—and it's still buying. The commission says it always offers market prices for land and buildings but owners disagree and many have forced expropriation through the courts.

Most expropriations have been in Ontario. In Quebec they have concerned approaches to the federal-provincial-municipal Cartier Macdonald bridge between Ottawa and Hull, three parkways, the approach to the planned Deschenes - Britannia bridge between the same cities and a few instances in Gatineau Park.

Most of these expropriations drew few if any complaints from the various governments involved. The commission always approaches the governments and works in co-operation with them on projects such as roads and bridges so overlapping is avoided.

Irate home owners raise the loudest squawks. Some don't want to move no matter what the price offered. To date they've come off second best in legal fights with the commission.

Couple Stumbles Into Path Of Grizzly Bear With Cubs

JASPER, Alta. (CP)—A quiet evening walk by a young man and his girl companion ended in terror when the pair stumbled into a huge grizzly bear with three cubs on a dark trail high in the Rocky Mountains.

Fred Sturdy, 19, of Edmonton, was severely mauled by the big bear. He is in serious condition in Jasper Hospital.

Dianne Davidson of Sudbury, Ont., fainted Sunday when the animal attacked. She was unharmed and ran three-quarters of a mile to a warden's camp for help. The warden drove out and picked him up.

The girl was treated for shock and released from hospital Monday.

"It appears the two walked right into the bears in the darkness," said K. B. Mitchell, superintendent of Jasper National Park.

"The girl says the mother bear reared up right in front of them and her three cubs scattered. The fact she fainted probably helped save her life."

There have been cases where aroused bears have not touched people who "played dead."

Park officials said the description of the animals given by the girl indicated they were grizzlies, not the more common black bears. Grizzlies range from 600 to 700 pounds when fully-grown.

LOOKING FOR FOOD

The pair were in an area used by two lodges as a garbage dump. Parks officials speculated the bears were looking for food.

Sturdy and his companion worked during the summer at Brewster's Maligne Lake Chalet. They were attacked about a mile from the chalet.

Mr. Mitchell said Miss Davidson told officials she still heard the bears in the darkness when she regained consciousness and started to run. She was hysterical when she arrived at the camp.

A medical source said the youth suffered face and skull fractures, a nose fracture and lacerations to his scalp, chest and thigh. His face, an ear and thigh muscles were torn.

Parks officials set out a trap for the grizzly. If the bears are caught they will be moved to a remote area of the park.

MAIL DAIRY CHEQUES

OTTAWA (CP)—First supplementary payment cheques for farmers under the federal dairy support program instituted this year were mailed Monday, Agriculture Minister Hays announced. The payment goes to farmers who ship milk to processors to make butter, cheese and other manufactured products. Fluid milk shippers do not get them.

South Saskatchewan Valley's Drought Days Just Memory, It's Soon to Be 140-mile Lake

By R. J. ANDERSON

OUTLOOK, Sask. (CP) — The rains came copiously in 1965 to the South Saskatchewan Valley. In the face of the best crop of wheat in 50 years, irrigation seemed a newfangled, unnecessary, expensive way of coaxing the thin, sandy soil into giving forth its bounty.

But many a valley farmer remembered other years.

In the drought-stricken 1930s there was no hope The rains never came. Keening prairie winds whipped away rich topsoil from entire farms, obscuring the blazing sun with clouds of dust.

There were promises — and some fulfilments — in the '40s and '50s. Some years lush springs gave way to bone-dry summers. Again, the drylanders had little or no crop.

These years may never come again to the South Saskatchewan Valley. It will always have water.

Soon there will be no valley. There will be a lake 140 miles long, one to four miles wide, 192 feet deep at the outlet, the largest body of water between Lake Winnipegosis in Manitoba and the Rocky Mountains.

To the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration, irrigation is a beneficial side-effect of the multi-purpose water conservation project—the South Saskatchewan River Dam — now nearing completion on the river at a point midway between Outlook and Elbow, 150 miles northwest of Regina. It sees the dam as a means of changing the economy of an entire region.

THREE MILES LONG

The 210-foot-high pile of earth and gravel, three miles in length and a mile thick at the base, studded with massive concrete control works, is the largest rolled-earth dam ever built in Canada. It has tamed the wide, shallow stream the Indians called Kisiskatchewan—the river that flows swiftly.

The river runs more swiftly now through the penstocks built to bring hydro power to much of Saskatchewan. By this time in 1966 it will be a torrent that, the PFRA says, will bring immense benefits to city and town and farm village—power, recreation, flood control, water supply.

To the people of the valley it spells irrigation. Not all agree that it is a good thing. The elderly grumble at the cost—perhaps as much as $75-$80 an acre—of preparing their land for the life-giving water. Younger, progressive farmers look forward to an upheaval in a way of life, a change from dryland wheat-farming utterly dependent upon weather to crop rotation, sugar beet growing, forage crops, vegetable gardening, an assured annual income.

No one has ever said that it will be cheap. It will take three, perhaps four, generations to recover the $112,000,000 invested in the dam proper Additional millions must be spent to develop power; the first stage alone is costing $29,000,000 and another $21,000,000 will be spent in the future. Other millions in future years will build boating and other recreational facilities along the 476 miles of shoreline of the lake itself. Big-city water supply will be costly.

UNSURE OF COST

It will be worth it, says the PFRA. Water-cost figures have not yet been compiled but the administration's argument, paraphrased, is:

Suppose a farmer pays $1,000 or even $2,000 for his year's supply of irrigation water, controlled by water - gates and brimming over a maze of feeder ditches. He is assured of a crop worth many times that. In a dry year he'd have no crop at all.

Work has been under way since 1959 on the dam, a western dream for 100 years. It will be all but completed a year from now and by 1967, its power development works and water storage reservoir will be fully in operation.

It cannot be compared with anything else on earth. PFRA officials won't say it is the second or the third biggest. One now under construction in Siberia is much larger and is billed by the Russians as the world's largest. As high as a 17-storey building, the Saskatchewan dam will contain 84,413,000 cubic yards of fill—equivalent to 2,800 miles of the Trans-Canada Highway. It will impound 8,000,000 acre - feet of water.

An integral part of the project is a secondary dam on the Qu'Appelle, 12 miles southeast of Elbow. Ninety feet high, 10,200 feet long and 3,000 feet thick at the base, this dam will have conduit and control structures for a controlled water flow from the South Saskatchewan into the Qu'Appelle River system.

WORK AT NIGHT

Work goes on 24 hours a day. Construction crews work a 10-hour day, under floodlights at night, and stop only for lunch and dinner breaks and a nightly 90-minute period for equipment maintenance. Ten men have been killed on the job.

Huge control gates are in place, 4,000-foot-long tunnels for generation of electric power—168,000 kilowatts at the start, more later—are completed and flood-diversion channels are all but complete. Fourteen million cubic yards of fill remain to be packed down and a 60-foot-wide highway across the top to be built.

The federal government is paying all but $25 000,000, Saskatchewan's share, of the dam's cost. The province will construct pumping stations, the main canal systems, some secondary reservoirs and the distribution system connecting the main canals with the individual irrigation farms. This will run to more than $50,000,000 over a period of years.

In the beginning it was the explorer, Capt. John Palliser, who in 1857 first envisaged the possibilities of the South Saskatchewan. He saw it as a potential navigation route from Fort Garry in Manitoba to the foot of the Rockies—if the South Saskatchewan could be channelled into the Qu'Appelle. That led to the dream of a vast irrigation district.

MOVE FARMERS

A century after Palliser, the dream began to be a reality. The federal government was willing and thought that 500,000 acres of land could be put under irrigation. That figure has been scaled down to 200,000. A 28,000-acre pilot project is in operation at the dam-site area and the Saskatchewan government is committed to have 50,000 acres ready for irrigation within a few years.

It was necessary to expropriate about 60,000 acres of privately-owned farm land and to relocate some 50 farm families. The reservoir will inundate nearly 110,000 acres of land but only 5,700 acres of this is cultivated farm land.

There is opposition. The Irrigation Investigation Group has been organized in protest. Its members feel that irrigation is too costly for wheat-growing and they are unwilling to compete with southern Alberta, where irrigation has turned near - desert land into green gardens, in market gardening.

But the dam is there.

HITS RESTRICTIONS

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Eric Williams, prime minister of Trinidad and Tobago, Monday denounced British restrictions on Commonwealth immigration as monstrous racialism. He was writing in a Financial Times supplement commemorating his country's three years of independence.

Indian Medical Education Hurt by Rapid Expansion

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons says a rapid expansion in the number of medical colleges in India since its independence in 1947 has had a catastrophic effect on the quality of Indian medical education.

In a statement prompted by recent criticism by several Indian physicians whom the college had refused to license for private practice, the college said.

"When India attained its independence in 1947 there were 20 medical colleges.

"During the subsequent 16 years, there has been a phenomenal increase in the number of colleges to a total of 71 in 1963.

GREW TOO FAST

"All the information available to us suggests that this incredibly rapid expansion — expansion beyond the resources of the wealthiest country—has had a catastrophic effect on the quality of Indian medical education.

"Indeed, one dean of an Indian medical school has been driven to protest, in a published article, the serious predicament of India's schools."

On discrimination, the statement by Dr. D. Laurence Wilson, president of the college council, said:

". . . let me say that the college has a statutory duty to discriminate—between good medical education and conspicuously inferior medical education.

"It discriminates in no other way."

Tax Revenues Running Ahead Of Last Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal government sales tax revenues are running ahead of last year at more than four times the speed of general revenues.

If the pace keeps up for the balance of the fiscal year, running to next March 31, it seems clear that the buoyancy of the economy will push revenues well ahead of Finance Minister Gordon's April 26 budget forecasts.

But in the first four months of the current fiscal year—April, May, June and July—they amounted to $573,300,000, compared with $494,700,000 in the same period of the 1964-65 fiscal year.

Part of this increase reflects the imposition Jan. 1 of the final three percentage points of the 11-per-cent sales tax on building materials and production machinery.

Three percentage points of the sales tax are earmarked for the old age security fund, from which old age pensions of $75 a month are paid to everyone 70 and older. These collections for this fiscal year, to the end of last month, ran to $156,800,000, compared with last year's comparable figure of $120,300,000.

Sales tax collections, on both normal budget account and for the old age security fund, are running 16 per cent ahead of 1964-65 figures, while total tax revenues on both accounts, amounting to $2,838,000,000 at the end of July, are up 3.6 per cent on the year.

Promise Review Of Grade 13 English Papers

TORONTO (CP) — The department of education Monday said it will review Grade 13 English examination papers written in June by Ontario students.

The review was authorized after the Ontario Secondary School Headmasters' Council said poor examination results often did not coincide with students' performance during the school year.

Students have until Tuesday to appeal low marks. Department officials said many more than usual have appealed since the marks were released two weeks ago.

PERMITS HARVESTERS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz announced Monday his decision to permit a maximum of 745 Canadians to enter the U.S. to help harvest the apple crop in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Rhode Island. Wirtz said growers must continue efforts to recruit domestic pickers and, for each domestic worker recruited, a Canadian must be relieved of his job.

What's foreign about Mrs. Reed of Oshawa?

When we counted up recently, there were some 208,000 Bell shareholders. Over 203,000 of them were Canadian residents. And altogether, they held 93.6% of the total shares.
That's how it has been for a good many years now.
So if some people think Bell is foreign-owned—well, they'd better not let Mrs. Reed, or any of those 203,000 other Canadians hear them say so.
